FEAR REBEL MASSACRE IN CITY OF CHIHUAHUA.

Foreigners Fleeing from Insurrecto Capital Menaced by Gen. Huerta.

Attack on Bachimba Is Begun by the Victorious Mexican Troops and Is Expected to Be Continued With Renewed Vigor Today—Americans in Especial Danger of Shells on One Side and the Machete on Other.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHIHUAHUA, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Federal troops under command of Gen. Huerta opened the attack on Bachimba late this afternoon and a general attack is expected in the morning. Bachimba is ten miles south of and the key to Chihuahua.

Because of the conditions in the rebel ranks and the belief that Gen. Orozco's troops are short of ammunition and will be able to make little resistance, foreigners are leaving here in every possible way.

BOMBARDMENT EXPECTED.

A bombardment of the city is expected and Americans are of the belief that no orders or power of Orosco ran restrain the rebel rank and file from general pillage and slaughter.

The first passenger train for the Texas border in three days departed at noon and was loaded with foreigners, including about twenty Americans.

One freight train went out early in the morning for Juarez and carried a score of passengers, but not one was a Mexican.

Federal troops under Gen. Villa Rabago are known to have been sent east and west around Bachimba and fear of bombardment of the city by these troops is causing the exodus of Americans and others.

ACUTE SITUATION.

The situation here is tense in the extreme. The rebels are in an ugly mood and Americans are no longer respected as they were in the days when Orosco was making his triumphal marches south. And it all comes through a lack of ammunition in the rebel ranks.

Orozco blames the United States for stopping importations of cartridges for his men while permitting shipments to the Federal army of President Madero. This has occasioned bitter feeling against all Americans.

GENERAL EXODUS FROM CHIHUAHUA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) June 1.—Americans and other foreign residents are leaving Chihuahua and the rebel zone in Northern Mexico as rapidly as train service will permit. The warning from Washington several weeks ago for Americans to remove themselves from zones of disturbances is believed to have been reiterated within the last three days through Marion Letcher, American Consul at Chihuahua.

Passengers who arrived on the special train from Chihuahua late last night—the only one that has been run in three days—were agreed in their assertions today that even in the long period of isolation which Chihuahua suffered during the Madero revolution no such perilous conditions or demoralized business prospects had existed for foreigners as are today spreading alarm through Northern Mexico.

Though no overt act has been committed to indicate that the rebel officials would not be able to restrain

THE CITY. A young bank cashier related a harrowing story yesterday of being deliberately run down by a gang of robbers in an automobile and kept prisoner in a house in the business section presided over by a woman.

According to a story told by a man interested in the land and transportation business in Cuba, the negroes of the island are planning to establish a new republic for people of their color.

A romance begun several years ago culminated happily here yesterday when the former general manager of the Missouri Pacific married the woman who at one time was a telegraph operator on his railway system.

The Mayor says he will require an investigation of the Harbor Commission and the Board of Public Works because of strained relations between them, and he may ask the resignation of some of the members.

A spite-fence ordinance which is calculated to stand the test of the courts was recommended for passage by the Legislative Committee of the City Council yesterday. The committee also proposes to recommend the passage of an ordinance regulating mediums and mystics.

The two daughters of "Lucky" Baldwin are to receive about $9,000,000 each and the affairs of the estate are about ready for a final settlement.

Because of the death of former Judge Cyrus F. McNutt, the trial of the Darrow case was postponed yesterday until Monday.

The trial of the Magon brothers, charged with violation of the neutrality laws, is to be begun Tuesday in the Federal Court, and it is expected that another brother, who is in President Madero's Cabinet, will take a more or less active interest in the case in so far as his position will allow.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. Maj. George Edward Stockle, who was recently appointed military aide to President Taft, to succeed Maj. Archie Butt, victim of the Titanic disaster, will arrive in San Francisco next week. His parents, who live in Redondo Beach, will go north to meet their son.

Frank Stites, the aviator, fell at Long Beach while trying to make a landing yesterday and sustained a broken wrist and sprained back. He will be confined to the hospital several weeks.

The Lima Bean Growers' Association, in session at Oxnard yesterday, adopted an entirely new method of handling the crop. Under the new arrangement the association will be nothing more than a selling agent and all stockholders will assume a part of the financial responsibility of handling the business.

San Bernardino citizens are trying to raise a fund of $7000 to pay for a site for the Pacific Electric shops, which are to be located in that city if the condition named can be met.

The first shipment of Asiatic figs grown in Imperial Valley was made this week. The fruit was sent to Los Angeles and brought a good figure to the producer.

PACIFIC SLOPE. Aviator Philip O. Parmalee was killed while making a flight at North Yakima, Wash., yesterday, his aeroplane plunging from a height of four hundred feet to the ground.

San Francisco workmen yesterday uncovered an old wine cellar and were permitted to drink champagne to their hearts' content.

The Columbia and Willamette rivers were raging yesterday, and Portland, Or., was reported to be facing a prospect of the heaviest summer flood in several years.

The Buford reached San Francisco yesterday.

Federal authorities in San Francisco yesterday got word of an opium den on a steamship.

A number of homes in Reno, Nev., were reported yesterday to have been quarantined against scarlet fever.

An Oregon girl rescued from the man with whom she eloped, was restored to her parents yesterday in Willows.

A real estate broker of San Diego and Portland, Or., committed suicide in the latter city yesterday.

The United States supervising inspector at San Francisco yesterday issued orders designed to increase the safety of ocean passenger travel on the Pacific.

GENERAL EASTERN. A Los Angeles girl, booked to sail with her mother from New York to France yesterday, was seized with fright aboard a liner and had to be sent to a hospital.

Chicago yesterday became the center of political activities, with the opening of headquarters there for four Republican candidates, following the closing of the Washington bureaus.

Claude Swanson Allen was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury at Wytheville, Va., yesterday for the killing of Judge Massie in the Hillsville Courthouse last March.

The Ohio constitutional convention adjourned at Columbus yesterday, after formulating forty-two amendments for submission to voters of the State at special election.

WASHINGTON. The Taft bureau in Washington yesterday claimed 583 delegates to Chicago and conceded 427 delegates to Roosevelt. Twenty-two delegates remain to be chosen.

Secretary Fisher testified yesterday before the Senate Committee on Public Lands in re Alaska.

MRS. HUTT'S LITTLE BOY HAS SCARLET FEVER.

Health Authorities Hear that Son of a New York Artist, Whose Mamma Wants a Divorce, Has Been Permitted to Run Around in the Streets With the Malady.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the 6-year-old son of Mrs. Henry Hutt, the New York artist's wife, who is here to acquire a residence to sue for divorce, running wild about the streets with a fully-developed case of scarlet fever, the Reno City Council last evening ordered the Board of Health to take drastic measures to prevent an epidemic.

Twenty or more cases of the fever have been discovered and at an executive session of the Board of Health held at 1:30 o'clock this morning, a quarantine was ordered on Mrs. Hutt's apartments. Orders were issued to close all the private and public schools in the city and also to bar children from theaters, places of amusement and moving-picture shows.

This action was taken following a statement and protest made to the Council by former Congressman George A. Bartlett, who is also a candidate for Supreme Judge for the State of Nevada. Bartlett stated that over twenty cases had been reported to the health doctor and that his children, as well as other children in the city, were in danger unless means to stop the epidemic were taken and the police requested to quarantine homes where children with the scarlet fever were allowed to go out upon the streets and into the schools.

Mrs. Hutt's boy has been sick for about a week or ten days, but no effort has been made, it is alleged, to keep him in the house. He has mingled with the children in the fashionable neighborhood where his mother resides, and has also been a regular attendant at the public school.

JURY CONVICTS ALLEN.

Prisoner Found Guilty of Murder in Second Degree for Killing Judge of Virginia Court.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WYTHEVILLE (Va.) June 1.—After deliberating two hours and a half, the jury today found Claude Swanson Allen guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing of Judge Thornton L. Massie at Hillsville, in March.

The jury recommended that his punishment be fifteen years in the penitentiary. Sentence was suspended in order that he may testify in the other cases growing out of the shooting up of the Carroll County Courthouse.

NEW ART SCHOOL PROPOSED.

King Emmanuel Considers Plan for International Institution in the Eternal City.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

ROME, June 1.—King Victor Emmanuel is considering a proposal to found in Rome a new international school of arts in which professors from all nations may combine to unify in the Eternal City, progressive ideas, covering all the fine arts.

It is stated that His Majesty has been offered financial help to endow two of the professional chairs, by two wealthy Americans recently in Italy. The idea occurred to the King in connection with an observation made by one of these visitors commenting upon the new spirit in Italian sculpture. The American is said to have expressed his regret that advantage has not been taken to infuse this chaste spirit of Italian idealism into painting and music as well as in the work of the chisel, all arts tending to the same expressive purpose.

Rome, with all her art schools, painters' sculptors and musicians, has as yet no common platform where all can meet and work in unison. The King's idea is to found here an art university which would not be merely national, but international; intensifying the ideal of Italian interest and reviving the fame of Rome as the world center of civilization.

Enthusiastic Mass Meeting Held in New Mexico Hall of Representatives.

Speaker of House Welcomes "Times" Ocean-to-Ocean Car Crew.

Governor Sends Greetings. Road Will Follow Old Santa Fe Trail.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA FE (N. M.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At an epoch-making meeting in the historic city of Santa Fe, a division of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association was formed tonight. Near the monument which marks the end of the old Santa Fe trail, the largest gathering which has marked the organizing tour of The Times special was held.

Legislators from the baby State of New Mexico bonded themselves to build their section of a transcontinental highway along the Santa Fe trail. Men prominent in the politics of New Mexico took firm hold of the good-roads movement.

Don Ramon Baca, Speaker of the House of Representatives of New Mexico, welcomed The Times ocean-to-ocean car and its crew tonight in the Hall of Representatives. Maj. W. H. H. Llewellyn of Las Cruces, one of the leaders in the House, and John Baron Burg of Albuquerque, the third member of the "Big Three" in the House, addressed the meeting, which proved an epoch-maker in the history of this new State.

Gov. W. C. McDonald of New Mexico sent greetings to the large gathering and arranged to meet the crew of The Times car after the mass meeting.

Mayor D. K. B. Sellers and a large delegation from Albuquerque had a part in the good roads organization meeting tonight. Francis E. Lester, with twenty-five other business men from Las Cruces, also had a part in the special session called in honor of the arrival of the car that is carrying National Organizer Dell M. Potter across the continent.

HALF-MILLION PLEDGED.

Legislators who have the good-roads movement at heart pledged themselves to vote for a bond issue of $500,000 to be available immediately to complete the route of the ocean-to-ocean highway across New Mexico. This means that the good-roads work which will be made possible with the passage of the bill will help to make El Camino Real in this State one of the greatest highways along the Santa Fe route.

This money for the Ocean-to-Ocean route, it was stated tonight, will be placed in the hands of the State Highway Commission. This body is to be empowered to commence at once the work of improving the sandy stretches of this road. State Engineer Miller stated that he has the plans for this stretch of transcontinental highway well under way.

The good roads workers of this State planned to make the meeting tonight of such importance that its work will be felt all over this country. Here in the historic town of Santa Fe the leaders in the movement which has for its object a national highway met and planned immediate action.

PAVED WITH GOOD INTENTIONS.

"The existing roads of New Mexico are paved with good intentions," said ex-Judge J. H. Paxton. "This must not be. We have gone on record tonight at this meeting as being in favor of good roads and a national highway. Now we must act."

This sentiment caught the fancy of the representative men of this State.

"Good roads are the best asset that New Mexico could have," said Speaker Baca, "and I am here tonight to pledge myself in favor of this Ocean-to-Ocean highway. We have no anarchists who are working for good roads, no Democrats and no Republicans. This is a movement in which we can all join with a unity of purpose, and for my part I am out and out in favor of the good roads bill."

This sentiment took the House by storm and proved a starter for prominent Representatives, who one after another rose and pledged support for the bill, which is to come up for passage on Monday.

Representative John Baron Burg, chairman of the famous Committee of Thirty in the House, then said:

"I would favor a bond issue of $5,000,000 to be used at once on this ocean-to-ocean highway route through New Mexico. With ten young men pledged to this movement here we could make this stretch of the highway the best between the Pacific and the Atlantic. The Romans made a nation by building good roads. Why cannot we make a great State by building our part of the great national highway?"

Attorney A. B. Renhan was chairman of the big meeting, and expressed himself as being heartily in favor of the good roads movement. Attorney Mark B. Thompson of Las Cruces also went on record for his section of the State; and proved one of the orators of an evening replete with incident.

CUBAN TROOPS IN SERIES OF BRUSHES WITH REBELS.

Government Forces for Two Days in Contact With Insurrectionists—Results Indecisive—Confused Reports Received of Bombardment—Flying Columns to Be Sent Out—Efforts to Protect American Property.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HAVANA, June 1.—Government troops have been for two days in touch with the rebel bands in Oriente. Skirmishing has been constant, but without important results.

The report from Santiago of severe fighting near Palma Sorriano proves erroneous. The dispatch describing the bombardment by mountain guns of a rebel encampment in which 127 men and eighteen women were said to have been killed, appears to have referred to an engagement near the same place on Thursday, of which confused accounts have been received. The government has not yet issued an official report of this action.

Gen. Monteagudo, the Cuban commander-in-chief, remains at Santiago, but expects to go to the front at an early date, as he has completed arrangements for the distribution of his troops in flying columns to permit of the most rapid movements.

The government apparently is making every effort to protect American property and especially the mines at Daiquiri, whither strong forces have been dispatched to repulse the rebels in that vicinity.

There is no confirmation of a report which reached here of the capture of two Americans, Wheeler and Collister, near Daiquiri. It is said they were being held by the insurgents for ransom.

The new cruiser Patria, with 600 volunteers under Col. Piedra, sailed for Santiago this afternoon.

The government today received a dispatch from Santiago stating that it had just been reported there that the columns under Col. Valiente and Col. Vaillant struck the rebels yesterday morning, and fighting continuing until evening. The artillery wrought havoc among the insurgents.

Secretary of the Interior Laredo Brue announced today that the gunboat Paducah withdrew last night from Daiquiri, anchoring off the coast, where she remains.

AMERICANS REPORTED HELD FOR A RANSOM.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTIAGO (Cuba) June 1.—It was reported here today that Collister and Wheeler, Americans, who own a ranch near Daiquiri, have been captured by negro insurgents and held for ransom.

It is reported that a battle at Ayalya, near Palma Sorriano, yesterday, resulted in victory for the government troops, under Gen. Mendieta. The mountain artillery was used with terrible effect. One hundred and twenty-seven rebels and eighteen women, who had encamped with them, were killed.

Palma Sorriano is on the river Cauto, near the center of Oriente province, and about twenty miles northwest of Santiago.

Gen. Monteagudo, commander-in chief of the government forces, ordered 200 men to Sigua and Bacana, small towns, about twenty miles east of Santiago, to disperse rebels who are reported as threatening the miners.

The United States gunboat Paducah remained off Daiquiri today, but did not land marines.

Firing continued all night around the Daiquiri mines, where the government has a strong detachment. A sergeant of rurales was killed. The miners are abandoning the mines, which probably will be closed tomorrow.

The American Consul, Mr. Holliday, has departed for Daiquiri to investigate the situation there, which is considered critical.

The United States gunboat Nashville, at Nipe Bay, has not landed marines. The Spanish-American Iron Company has asked for the protection of its property, valued at $6,000,000, at Felton.

Luis Gomez, who is charged with being an important conspirator in the revolt, was arrested while attempting to embark on the steamer Julia for Santo Domingo. Other important arrests, including those of two high officials, are expected.

GARRISON IS SENT TO DEFENSE OF DAIQUIRI.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The American Consul at Santiago cabled today that the Cuban government had established a permanent garrison at Daiquiri, where the Spanish-American mining property is located. This force is deemed sufficient to defend the place against the insurgents. The Paducah did not land marines.

It is realized here that the Cuban government will have a difficult task to provide guards for all the foreign-owned properties in Oriente, and yet retain a sufficient force of regular troops in compact organization to repel any quick attack from the rebel leader, Estenoz.

Because of the extraordinary mobility of the insurrecto army, which enables it to break into small raiding parties and attack and pillage unprotected plantations, ninety miles separated, within the same day, the maintenance of a largely superior government force will be necessary, and it is believed it will be several weeks before Gen. Monteaguado can assemble an army for a successful campaign.

Graduate of Wright School Meets His Death at North Yakima, Wash.

Biplane in High Wind Flutters and Dives from Four Hundred Feet.

His Fiancee Is Among First to Reach Crushed Body of Fallen Birdman.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NORTH YAKIMA (Wash.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Insisting on flying in spite of a strong wind because of the 1500 people who had paid their admission to the State fair grounds, Philip O. Parmalee, graduate of the Wright school, fell 400 feet in his Wright biplane this afternoon and was crushed by the impact and the engine which turned and fell on him.

His start was exactly at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the track, directly in front of the grandstand. He rose in the face of the gale to get the benefit of the wind under his planes, flew north for about a mile and then turned east before the wind. He had gone about a mile in this direction when the biplane hesitated in its flight—then turned abruptly to the earth. Descending at an angle probably twenty-five degrees from the vertical, he disappeared from the view of the crowds at the fair grounds, behind the trees along the Yakima River.

The first to reach him were ranchers in the lower end of the Moxee Valley, who pulled his body out from under the debris of the wire guys and machinery.

The nose of the biplane had struck the ground sharply and the momentum had been sufficient to turn it upside down, throwing the aviator's body under the engine as he struck the ground head-first. His left arm and both legs were broken and his whole breast caved in.

Miss C. E. Turpin, his fiancee, was in the second automobile to reach the scene of his accident from the fair grounds, and his body was taken in that machine to the undertaking establishment. She was hysterical during the two-mile trip, insisting that life was not yet extinct and that efforts should be made to resuscitate him.

"You remember how it was with Hamilton," she repeated again and again, and then lapsed into a monotonous repetition of "Oh! God, Oh! God." Even after an examination by Coroner Fred Shaw showed that the weight of the engine had crushed his vital organs, she maintained that he might still be saved and refused to accept his death as a fact.

Clifford Turpin, who was detained in Seattle to attend the inquest of George Quinby, whom he killed there Thursday, left there this afternoon and arrived in North Yakima tonight at 10:35 o'clock. His sister, who was Parmalee's fiancee and was to have married him next week, is still hysterical.

SMILES TO CROWD AS HE MAKES ASCENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NORTH YAKIMA (Wash.) June 1.—With a smile and a wave of his hand to the thousands who watched him, Philip O. Parmalee, one of the Wright aviators, took the air in the teeth of a gusty west wind here this afternoon. Three minutes later his broken and lifeless body was dragged from beneath the wreckage of his biplane in an apple orchard in the lower end of the Moxee Valley, two miles from his starting point. The exact cause of the disaster that plunged him to death probably never will be known.

As he rose from before the grand stand at the fair grounds, Parmalee swung to the west over the Yakima River. He rose to a height of about 400 feet, and his speed increased to almost a mile a minute, although it was noticed that his plane dipped and rolled, and seemed to be controlled with difficulty. When he had gone about two miles from the fair grounds, he swung in a wide circle to the eastward for the return journey. As he squared away before the wind, the great plane checked in its course, fluttered a second like a wounded bird and plunged below the line of trees.

It is thought by the mechanicians who were employed by Parmalee that a sudden gust from one of the draws, or small canyons that notch the sides of the Moxee Valley, struck the machine and rendered the elevating planes unmanageable.

Parmalee was the partner of J. Clifford Turpin in the disastrous aviation meet at Seattle which ended on Thursday afternoon with the killing of two persons and the injury of many more. Turpin was so badly injured that he could not have proceeded even if he had not been desired as a witness by the Coroner's inquest, and Parmalee said he would come alone to North Yakima and carry out his contract.

After the disaster in Seattle Thurs-

ALASKA CLAIMS ARE DISALLOWED

Fisher Finds No Merit in Any of Them.

Another Inquiry Into the Cost of Meats.

Legislation Against Drugs Is Urged by Mr. Taft.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Secretary Fisher testified today before the Senate committee on public lands that not a single existing claim for mineral lands in Alaska could, under the present showing of facts, be allowed by the Interior Department.

The Secretary said he found the state of affairs by a thorough examination of what appeared to be the most meritorious of the claims for coal and other lands. In some cases dummies had been used by claimants to acquire large areas, he said.

Mr. Fisher favored the Smoot bill to lease coal lands in Alaska and to provide a permanent coal supply for the navy.

HIGH PRICE OF MEAT.

The high prices of meat probably will be investigated soon by the Federal government.

An inquiry to supplement the previous investigations into the packing business is being planned at the department of justice. The soaring prices and the question of whether the country's meat supply may be controlled in violation of the Sherman law has been called to the attention of the department by Representative Edwards' bill, directing the attorney-general to make an investigation.

COTTON REVISION.

Representative Underwood at the direction of Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee today reintroduced the cotton tariff revision bill which was passed by the House and Senate at the extra session of Congress and vetoed by President Taft.

The Democrats say the bill would reduce the average advalorem cotton duties to 27.06 per cent., as against an advalorem of 47.15 per cent. in 1911 and 48.12 in 1910. The committee will report the bill favorably early next week.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Immediate legislation to prevent the promiscuous use of habit-forming drugs is urged by President Taft in a message to Congress. The message was accompanied by a report from Secretary Knox declaring that unless speedy action is taken on measures now pending in Congress, the American government may justly be accused of being half-hearted in its effort to mitigate or suppress the opium and allied evils.

Chicago Chief of Police Urges Enforcement of Ordinance Directed Against Protruding Points.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU. Chicago, June 1.—Enforcement of the "Snicker-snee" ordinance, drafted by the late Alderman Herman Bauler of the Twenty-second Ward, is being urged by Chief of Police John McWeeney. The ordinance provides that women who are found wearing hatpins which protrude more than an inch from the hat-bands shall be arrested and fined.

Chief McWeeney called attention to the ordinance following the receipt of complaints from several persons who were reported to have been injured by protruding pins.

"Commanding officers will be instructed to give orders to their subordinates to arrest all violators of the "Snicker-snee ordinance," said the chief. "A hatpin protruding from a woman's headgear is a menace to public safety."

TIES ON THE RAILS.

Officials Believe That Vandals Made an Effort to Wreck Car on Sacramento Line.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—A powerful searchlight at the head of Central California Traction Company interurban train No. 46, heavily laden and bound from Stockton to Sacramento, prevented a serious wreck tonight, near Perkins. The light revealed to the motorman two ties which had been laid upon the track, the railway officials believe, by train wreckers.

General Manager Mitchell had passed over the road in a special car less than an hour before, and noticed two men sitting beside the track at the point where the ties were later found. The railway company asserts an absence of grievances against it, and ignorance as to possible causes for an attempt at train-wrecking.

Motorman Brooks of the lucky train says that had his attention been diverted for a moment, a serious wreck must have happened. The headlight enabled him to see the obstruction in time to stop the train within a few yards of the ties.

Count Navigates a Dirigible from Friedrichshafen to Hamburg and the Germans Exult.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

BERLIN, June 1.—As a result of Count Zeppelin's feat in sailing his newest airship from Friedrichshafen to Hamburg today without an intermediate landing, German military authorities will carry out the long-considered project of undertaking a series of experiments in airship evolutions at sea.

Count Zeppelin's trip is regarded as a brilliant triumph and an outburst of enthusiasm throughout the empire resulted.

The fact that he made nearly 800 kilometers, about 480 miles, in less than eleven hours, has profoundly impressed the military aeronauts who predict that confidence in the dirigible as a successful competitor of the aeroplane will be fully restored under the direction of the War Department. The Zeppelin craft, accompanied by cruisers and torpedo-boats, will be sent out from Hamburg for Bremen and Kiel and will cruise over that part of North Sea which is one of greatest strategic importance.

German Publicist Will Accompany New Ambassador to England to Promote More Friendly Feeling.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

BERLIN, June 1.—Herr Paul Weitz, one of the ablest German publicists, and for years the intimate associate of Baron von Marschall Bieberstein, goes to London from Constantinople with the new Ambassador to Great Britain. The coincidence of the two transfers strikes people in Berlin as exceedingly significant. Herr Paul is said to be the eyes and ears of the German statesman, whose movements he has followed with unbroken consistency; but he is also a great favorite with foreign newspapermen and it is said here that his chief mission in London will be to lead British editors to a more friendly feeling towards the fatherland.

Baron von Marschall Bieberstein is a progressive among diplomatists. He believes in talking for publication and, like Bismarck, he "knows when and how to tell the truth." His appointment has now been formally announced.

The discovery of what is claimed to be some remarkable letters of Martin Luther has created a sensation in literary and theological circles. The letters bear date just before the great German reformer commenced his crusade. They are mostly of a pacific character, where they touch on controversial subjects. Opinion seems to be divided as to their probable authenticity.

Sacramento Woman Torn from Her Husband on the Sinking Ship Returns to Her Home.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—Mrs. Stephen Hold, who, with her husband, was a passenger on the Titanic, arrived in Sacramento today and is among friends again. Since the loss of her husband in the wreck she has been staying in New York. Mrs. Hold says she can hardly realize what happened. She says she pleaded with the sailors to be allowed to stay on the deck with her husband, but was torn away. She declares she wanted to die with him.

Mrs. Hold praises the conduct of the Titanic captain and crew. She will never go on the ocean again, she says.

Closing In.

TWENTY-TWO DELEGATES REMAIN TO BE ELECTED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to a statement issued today by the Taft bureau, President Taft has 588 delegates in the Chicago convention. This number would be 48 more than enough to nominate. The Taft bureau concedes to Col. Roosevelt 427 delegates, or 113 fewer than enough to nominate.

Only twenty-two delegates remain to be chosen, six at large in Ohio, six at large in Arizona and ten in South Dakota. All delegates will have been chosen by next Tuesday night.

"The methods which Mr. Roosevelt and his managers have pursued to attain their ends is amply reflected by the contests now pending before the Republican National Committee," said Representative McKinley, in charge of the Taft bureau. "Mr. Roosevelt is contesting the seats of more than 200 delegates before that body and the flimsy pretense on which he is making his contests will be shown to the country when the contests are heard by the committee. These contests will be decided on their merits by the ruling body of the party. The friends of the President, knowing the facts as they are, have no hesitancy in saying that in every contest they have both the moral and legal right to the votes of the delegates they claim in support of President Taft. The high-handed methods of Mr. Roosevelt and his managers, almost invariably puerile in their execution, can have no standing before any body of fair minded, conscientious men.

"Mr. Roosevelt well realizes that he is now coming face to face with his own party at Chicago and that what he has done and said in this campaign will be weighed carefully in the balance. He and his managers have conducted themselves in this campaign without any regard whatever for the Constitution, the laws of the land, or the rules of the contest as laid down by the Republican National committee. On the stump Mr. Roosevelt himself has said nothing good either for the party, its President or principles of leaders. In the Republican National Convention the party will be called upon to consider these matters carefully and Mr. Roosevelt will, no doubt, receive all the consideration to which he is entitled as a minority candidate in that convention."

STRIKE RIOTS IN NEW YORK.

Police Obliged to Fire at the Hostile Waiters.

Reserves Called to Quell Disorder at a Hotel.

Former Employees Try to Storm the Netherlands.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—Police of the "strong arm" squad required revolvers to keep back 300 hotel strikers and sympathizers who assumed a threatening attitude after nine of their members had been arrested near the Hotel Savoy on charges of disorderly conduct tonight.

Holding the strikers back with guns which they shot only to threaten, the police retreated to the automobile entrance of the Metropolitan Club, where they barricaded themselves behind the gates until reserves arrived.

After the first clash with the "strong arm" men, the strikers attempted to storm the Hotel Netherlands. Three policemen armed with revolvers stood in the doorway and threatened to kill the first officer who entered.

The riot occurred in one of the most exclusive residential sections and within a stone's throw of the residence of Cornelius Vanderbilt. Traffic was interrupted in Fifth avenue half an hour.

With more than two score of the leading hotels and restaurants affected by the strike, the New York Hotel Men's Association today refused to entertain a proposal of arbitration suggested by Commissioner John J. Bestin of the State Board of Mediation.

More than seven hundred employees in twelve hotels and restaurants joined the strike today. Manicure girls, college boys, negroes and recruits from boarding-houses and cheap restaurants were pressed into service, and the employers continued firm.

At the dinner hour tonight sixty-five men marched out of Delmonico's after several hundred dinners had been served with the first courses. Union employees at Breton Hall, the Brevoort, the Kaiserhof, Colaizzis, the Hotel Netherlands and the Hotel Savoy also quit their positions while the dining-rooms were crowded.

Announcement was made by the Hotel Men's Association this afternoon that all the demands of the waiters, including higher wages, the abolition of fines, better food and working conditions, had been granted.

Edward Blochlinger, secretary of the International Hotel Workers' Union, said that the recognition of the union is paramount to all other demands. If necessary, the strikers declare, every waiter and cook in New York, about twelve thousand in all, will be called out.

Waiters at the Hotel Athens, Motel Wolcott, Grand Union Hotel and at the Fifth Avenue Flatiron Restaurant, joined the strike this afternoon.

G. H. Sims, pastor of the Negro Union Baptist Church here, popularly known as the "San Juan Hill Church," issued a statement, urging all negro waiteers to remain in the South and refuse offers from hotel men to come to the city.

At the strikers' meeting last night William D. Haywood, Rose Pastor Stokes, Joseph Elster, organizer of the strike, and Secretary Edward Blochlinger made speeches.

Haywood said he wanted to congratulate the strikers on their fight "already won," and said he was reliably informed "that even Judge Gary of the steel trust, went into a hotel where he was well known this afternoon, unable to get so plain an order as ham and eggs."

Otto Scholtz, one of the strikers, sounded a new note when he said the strike was directed against the tip.

Nephew and Niece Get Competence Amassed by Sacramento Expressman Who Had Saved Money.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—For many years Bartholomew Ford was an expressman in Sacramento. Saving a good part of his earnings and applying them to the purchase of realty, he amassed a fortune valued at $23,500 by the time he died, a few days ago, at the age of 92 years.

This fortune he has distributed in his will to Pat Ford, a nephew, residing in Elmira, and Kate Ford, a niece residing in Oakland.

TAFT MEN CLAIM CONTROL.

Roosevelt Leaders in Tucson Are Therefore Talking of Compromise in the Arizona Convention.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) June 1.—Although Taft leaders appear to control the situation, Roosevelt supporters who arrived tonight professed to believe that a compromise could be reached, whereby a split delegation would be named at the Republican State Convention here Monday.

The Republican State Executive Committee, which has been in session for the purpose of considering contests, took a recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, after deciding that admission to the convention would be by ticket only. It was said that this decision was reached because of an appeal made to all Roosevelt supporters to attend the convention and the fear, on the part of the Taft supporters, of a possible "packing" of the convention.

TWO VERSIONS OF CRIME.

Daughter Says Man Killed Her Mother in Cold Blood, but He Alleges Self-defense.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—The circumstances of the shooting of Mrs. W. C. Bradford by William Landis at Buckeye yesterday were complicated today by the declaration of Mrs. Robert Hyatt, Mrs. Bradford's daughter, that her mother did not have a revolver, contrary to the declaration of Landis, yesterday and today.

"My mother positively had no weapon," said Mrs. Hyatt, who witnessed the shooting. "I saw the two quarreling and stepped between them. Landis pointed his shot gun at my mother. I begged him not to shoot and called him cowardly. I tried to lead my mother around to the corner of the wood house, where she would have been out of range. All this time Landis pointed his gun at us, as I stood between him and my mother. He was smiling all the time, and at first opportunity he shot. All this lasted about five minutes. No weapon was found near the scene of the shooting, and I know my mother was not armed."

Landis discussed the tragedy in jail here today.

"I shot Mrs. Bradford in self-defense after she had twice covered me with her revolver. She rushed upon me in front of the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Hyatt, threatening me with a revolver. Her daughter rushed between us, and seized her mother's hand, but the woman broke away and ran toward me a second time, still pointing the revolver. Then, and only after begging her to stop, I took my shot gun and fired."

Mrs. Bradford was a widow, with grown sons and daughters, and lived close to the Landis store. The two had quarreled over business matters. The inquest was held today.

THE STATE FAIR.

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—The State Agricultural Society has announced its premium list of the California State Fair for 1912, to be held at Sacramento, September 14 to 21, inclusive. For the purpose of more thoroughly handling this important work, the society has divided the exhibits into twelve departments, beginning with live stock and ending with school work. Counties entering exhibits are to be given special inducements to strive for prizes. In the class A counties the prizes range for agricultural, horticultural, viticultural, manufactured and other industrial products as follows: First prize, $600; second, $400; third, $100; seventh, $75, and eighth, $50. The class B counties making the best display of exclusively farm products will be awarded the following prizes: First, $100; second, $75, and third, $50.

GIRLS FOUND CAMPING IN MOUNTAIN CANYON.

LURED from their homes by tales of city life in San Francisco, Anna Stank and Margaret Guinn, the two young girls who started north on steeds hired of a liveryman, were located early yesterday morning camped in a canyon near San Fernando.

After being restored to her anxious parents, the Stank girl once more longed for a life of adventure and is said to have again disappeared, only to be picked up by the police before she had a chance to leave the city. She was then taken to the Detention Home, where she will be kept until provision is made to care for her in the future.

Both girls left their respective homes last Thursday morning and, after hiring two white horses from the Fashion Livery, nothing more was heard of them until a ranchman in the San Fernando Valley recognized them and notified the Sheriff's office of their whereabouts.

At that time the parents were almost crazed by the belief that their children had met with foul play, but this theory speedily was dissipated when the fugitives were discovered in their roadside camp. An officer was sent to bring them back to Los Angeles, together with the horses.

As soon as the girls had changed their riding habits for street clothes, the Stank girl asked permission to visit a friend on the next block and when she failed to return the police were notified. Meanwhile Juvenile Officer Marden saw the girl on the street about 2 o'clock and at once took her to the Detention Home.

"Anna would never have left had her head not been filled with tales of adventure, and I am going to let her remain in the Detention Home until she is ready to come home and give up unwise associates," said Mrs. Stank last night.

Margaret Guinn was allowed to remain at home on her promise not to leave the city again.

LIMA BEAN GROWERS MAKE CHANGE IN SELLING PLANS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OXNARD, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Accepting a plan that had been mapped out by the directors of the Lima Bean Growers' Association, stockholders in a session with the directors this afternoon insured an entire reorganization of the business and pooling plan of the association. By a unanimous vote the stockholders recommended the adoption of the new method of handling beans.

Among the radical changes proposed are the following: The association in the future will be nothing more than a selling agent, and receive a commission, probably, to pay its running expenses. The association, as a corporation, will no longer buy any beans, but poolers who allow 25 per cent. of their bean pool proceeds to be used for the purchase of other beans, will be employing the association as their selling agent.

A second mass meeting of growers followed this, when agreements to pool beans on the new plan were circulated, and most of those present signed up. Growers were present from all growing sections of the State. Heretofore, the directors of the association have handled practically all deals without stockholders assuming any of the monetary responsibility.

FEAR REBEL MASSACRE.

the populace in anti-foreign outbreaks, the tone of the proclamation issued by rebel chiefs indicating that they might not be able to curb the passion of the people has served to alarm the foreign colony into wholesale flight. Most of the German families have already left.

The issuance of flat money by the rebel government has come as the last straw in the city of Chihuahua.

Merchants fear they will be called upon to exchange good currency for the rebel script created to fill the financial emergency of the rebel campaign.

The principal reason for the grievances which the rebels have against the United States is the strict border patrol preventing the smuggling of ammunition.

A thousand rounds of ammunition brings $85 in the rebel zone if brought across the boundary intact. blocking the traffic in ammunition, there are said to be unprotected points on the barren plans of New Mexico and Arizona where arms are brought into Mexico. To this end it is declared that Col. E. Z. Steever of the Fourth United States Cavalry will depart soon on a tour of inspection. Rebel sympathizers along the border are more numerous than is generally realized, according to advices.

Agua Prieta, the port of entry opposite Douglas, Ariz., now is held by the Federal government, which has been sending its arms and ammunition there for the supply of its troops in Northedn Mexico, but the number of rebel sympathizers in Agua Prieta is so considerable that the Federal government has decided to stop shipments until further assured of the loyalty of the garrison.

Giuseppe Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian liberator, who is commanded by President Madero to direct troop movements close to the border, has departed for Douglas, Ariz., to get in touch with his officers in the State of Sonora.

Garibaldi declared a group of men had been endeavoring to inveigle him into a violation of the American neutrality laws by sending him several men for recruiting purposes. He said a movement was on foot to oust him from his command because he is a foreigner, but that the group behind it was a small minority in Sonora. He denied that he had sent his resignation to President Madero.

DISAFFECTION AMONG REBELS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JUAREZ (Mex.) June 1.—Disaffection among the soldiers of Gen. Orozco further increased today the alarm of residents of Chihuahua and scores of them fled to the American border on a Mexican Northwestern train.

Fearing disturbances among his men, Gen. Orozco today ordered all saloons in Chihuahua closed. There are 1500 rebels in Chihuahua, and a mutiny is expected.

The city and surroundings towns which may bear the brunt of any Federal attack are rapidly being depopulated.

American and foreign residents who arrived tonight described the situation in Chihuahua as one of extreme tension.

Bachimba, forty miles south of here, is being fortified against the advance of Gen. Huerta's Federal forces, but it is feared the government commander may abandon the advance northward in a path of burned bridges, sending his cavalry around to each side of the city of Chihuahua for a flank movement that would hit the rebel army behind Bachimba, as well as in Chihuahua.

Most of the Mexican families in Chihuahua are making preparations to leave.

AWAIT ARRIVAL OF OROZCO'S MEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) June 1.—Reports from the interior of Sonora indicate that an exodus of rebels from Chihuahua is expected in that State.

Rebel sympathizers are said to be congregating in small groups, awaiting the coming of Orozco's soldiers. Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora, is said to be the objective point of the rebels.

Much discontent is reported in the Federal army, and Yaqui Indians also are said to be preparing to join the revolutionists.

AMERICAN OPERATOR ROBBED BY REBELS.

TUCSON (Ariz.) June 1.—Although threatened with hanging if he repaired wires cut by rebels, the agent of the Southern Pacific at Morado, Sinaloa, repaired the wire and reported that the rebels had robbed him of $500. He concluded his message with the statement that he intended to flee in order to escape hanging.

Rebels were reported to have burned the Hacienda Chilapa, south of Acaponeta, Sinaloa.

GRAND ARMY WINS.

Prevent Emma Goldman From Holding Meeting of Anarchists in Their Hall in Portland.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Grand Army veterans tonight won their fight to prevent Emma Goldman from holding a meeting in the same hall here where the G.A.R. meets. The Grand Army men were requested a few days ago by the owner of the hall to postpone their meeting scheduled for next Wednesday evening in order that a "lecture" might be given therein.

They consented, and later learned that it was intended to hold an anarchist meeting there, at which Miss Goldman would speak and Ben Reitman would be present.

The veterans at once protested to the owner, Mrs. E. W. Shaver, but she declined at first to cancel her contract with Reitman. The veterans declared they would see to it that the anarchists did not hold the proposed meeting, and Mrs. Shaver, on advice of the police, tonight canceled the meeting.

Reitman is now trying to find a hall where Miss Goldman will be tolerated.

PARMALEE IS KILLED.

day afternoon Parmalee got out his machine and gave a short flight, and then asked the crowd if they wished him to continue. There was a roar of "No." Parmalee had seen so many accidents that nothing could make him lose his nerve, he said.

Before he prepared for his last flight, Parmalee was urged to postpone the exhibition, at least until the wind quieted, but he laughed at the persistent and fatal misfortunes that had dogged the Wrights and their aviators for the last week, and climbed to his seat without a premonition of the fate that was to overtake him.

Mrs. Turpin, mother of Parmalee's fellow aviator, who was injured in the accident at Seattle Thursday, had accompanied Parmalee to North Yakima and notified his father at Los Angeles.

The bi-plane was demolished to such an extent that the mechanicians were unable to trace definitely the cause of the disaster.

"IT'S THE WAY OF THE GAME," SAYS TURPIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 1.—J. Clifford Turpin, aviation partner of Phil O. Parmalee, left for North Yakima as soon as he received news of Parmalee's death. Turpin was suffering much pain from the injuries he received in Thursday's accident at The Meadows, when two persons were killed and many others injured by his aeroplane, and was in no condition to travel, but he insisted on making the trip across the mountains to take charge of Parmalee's body.

"It's the way of the game" was all he would say as he boarded the train, his face swathed in bandages.

PARMALEE LEARNED TO FLY UNDER BROOKINS.

Phil Parmalee was first seen here in the second aviation meet in 1910-11. He came as the third member of the Wright team, Brookins and Hoxey being considered the star performers in aerial acrobatics and altitude climbs, while Parmalee was the racing driver sent especially to handle the Baby Wright flyer.

Parmalee learned to fly under Walter Brookins in the Wright trial fields near Birmingham, Ala., in the early summer of 1910. When Brookins went on his first starring trip, Parmalee went to the Dayton factory and aerodrome and took lessons direct of Wilbur Wright in the Baby Wright, which was only an infant in size, although the engine was more powerful than in the other Wright machines.

Up to that time Wilbur Wright was the only one to test the Baby, but he permitted Parmalee to gradually work into it and then entered him in the big international speed contest at New York. The Baby was so unruly with its small plane surface and great horse power that it bucked into a pole and was wrecked.

Public attempts to use the eight-cylinder, eighty-horse-power machine were discontinued after that experience, and, though Parmalee was supposed to have the big engine in the Baby here, he was in reality using the four-cylinder, forty-horse-power motor, and in brushes with Radley's sixty-horse-power Gnome in a Bleriot and Curtiss's sixty and eighty-horse-power speeders he was beaten. Nevertheless he made a remarkable showing in piloting the little machine without taking a spill.

During last winter's aviation meet at Dominguez Field, Parmalee was one of the features. With Lincoln Beachey, he performed the most startling evolutions in the air that have ever been witnessed in America. His bravery in making a flight at night on one evening of the week's meet was commented upon.

Parmalee was noted as one of the most careful aviators in the business, and during the meet here he was in much demand by individuals who desired to have the experience of flying. He made several noted flights in Los Angeles and several attempts at the altitude record, but owing to defective instruments was unable to officially set a mark.

Following the meet here, Parmalee and Clifford Turpin, who was seriously injured a few days ago at Seattle, started out for themselves as free lances and broke with the Wright brothers. Just after that break Parmalee stated to a friend:

"I have earned and turned over to the Wrights over $90,000, and never made a cent for myself."

Turpin and Parmalee went to Venice after the meet here and for a month or more made flights at the seaside resort several times each week.

They attended a meeting held at San Francisco and participated without accident, and later started for a tour of the cities of the Northwest. Leaving Turpin in a hospital in Seattle, as a result of the latter's accident, Parmalee, who seemed not to know fear, started out alone to keep the last engagement at North Yakima, where he met his death.

Curiously enough, both machines were built by Jay Gage in his factory at Griffith Aviation Park, the first two aeroplanes turned out from the park. Press dispatches, however, do not blame the construction of the aeroplanes for the accident.

LONDON, June 1.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Two letters signed "Oliver Cromwell" sold for $1060 and $1050. The first, which was written during the war with the Scots, says: "My Dear Friend, I perceive by Harrison's letter that you made me play the fool."

Drink Puritas This Summer

Instead of All Sorts of "Soft Drinks"

As soon as warmer weather comes along, a lot of people rush to the soda fountains for so-called "cooling" drinks.

If all these people would, instead, have in their homes or offices or apartments a five-gallon demijohn of PURITAS Distilled Water, kept at a moderately cool temperature—and would drink plentifully of it, there would be less illness and less notice taken of our warm days.

And the reason is very simple—PURITAS is nothing in the world but clear, cool, perfectly sterile—or pure—distilled water, which, after distillation, has been scientifically aerated.

The point of the whole matter is this—if you take into your system a lot of fruit juices, more or less acid in their nature, mixed with ice-cold water (not distilled, and, consequently, impure) you are running grave chances of disarranging your entire body.

Even if the ingredients of your "soft drink" are pure—and you know they often are not—your digestive organs must immediately go to work to assimilate the various acids and juices and sweets—that means increased heat in your body.

So your "cooling" drink only makes you warmer, on account of the reaction.

Be on the safe side—drink PURITAS, and nothing else—and drink quantities of it—you can't overdo its use.

Five gallons for 40c, delivered anywhere within the old city boundary lines. And you who live throughout Southern California can secure PURITAS through your dealer, as a rule. If there is no PURITAS dealer in your vicinity, we'll supply you promptly upon request, either by telephone or letter. Los Angeles Ice & Cold Storage Company. Home 10053; Sunset Main 8191.

called at a special session of any legislative body. This meeting tonight, according to Speaker Baca, is to go down in history as one of the most important of the kind ever held, and is to mean an appropriation for New Mexico that will build a highway in this State.

The sentiment of this meeting tonight was shown this afternoon when Representative W. W. Nichols and a special delegation from the New Mexico House of Representatives, which included Maj. Llewellyn and a number of others, met The Times car at La Bajada Hill, twenty miles from Santa Fe, and piloted the car into this city.

We were taken at once to the house of Gov. McDonald, where we were formally welcomed. Then the car was escorted through the city and the crew was banqueted tonight.

Dell M. Potter, the last speaker, organized a division of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association, with Judge John R. McFie in charge, and a promise of $1500 was made.

The Albuquerque delegation also organized with Col. R. E. Twitchell as president; F. B. Schwentker, secretary, and John Becker, Jr., treasurer. These men are all prominent in the business affairs of Albuquerque, and $1500 was pledged for that city in the work of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association.

Man Who Enters the Chilcoot to Get Drinking Water Is Almost Overcome.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTOLA (Cal.) June 1.—Work on the shoo-fly track of the Western Pacific Railroad around the Chilcoot tunnel was resumed with double vigor today and it is probable trains will be running over the track by tomorrow night. The fire which started last Wednesday night has exhausted itself as far as outward indications show.

One of the operators entered the east portal of the tunnel today and went as far as the spring after water, being almost overcome by gases which have formed in the tunnel.

HOLLYWOOD GIRL LOCATED.

Is Arrested in Phoenix Where She Had Joined an Opera Company. Father to Bring Her Back.

The mystery surrounding the whereabouts of Sudie McLean, the 15-year-old girl who ran away from home a short time ago, was cleared up last night when a telegram was received from the authorities at Phoenix, Ariz., announcing her arrest in that city, where she arrived late yesterday afternoon.

According to Chief of Police Moore of Phoenix, the girl was enamored of stage life and left home with the intention of making a great name for herself. In pursuance of this ambition, the girl is said to have gone to Phoenix to join a small opera company billed to show last night.

Before she reached the theater Sudie was picked up by the police and she was then locked up pending the arrival of her father, N. B. McLean, of No. 2208 La Mirada street, Hollywood.

Since her disappearance from home nothing has been heard of the girl except in two postcards mailed to her mother in which she said she was employed in a bakery on the East Side. Her request that the police be called off was ignored and officers were detailed to trace her movements.

In searching a room in this city yesterday evidence was unearthed showing that she intended to join an opera company at Phoenix and her arrest followed. Her father announced that he would leave this morning to bring the girl back home.

GIRL RESTORED TO HER PARENTS

Man With Whom She Fled Eludes the Posse.

Warrant Charging Kidnaping Is Issued for Him.

Wears Masculine Attire to Cover Rough Trails.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WALLOWA (Or.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Flora Norris, a 17-year-old girl who eloped from her parents' home in Elgin two weeks ago with Thomas Hobson, was rescued today in the mountains near here by a posse led by Constable Fred Hoskess. Hobson escaped in the midst of a fusillade of bullets from the officers' guns.

The girl had left willingly with Hobson because her parents had refused to let them wed, but a charge of kidnaping against Hobson was issued because of her youth. The officers had been in pursuit of the couple ever since their flight began, but owing to the wild nature of the country, they were unable to catch up with them. Several times at intervals the elopers were sighted, the girl attired in men's clothes, being led along by Hobson, but they always eluded pursuit.

The sufferings and hardship undergone by the girl were severe. She and Hobson walked more than eighty miles, most of it by night and over treacherous trails. However, Miss Norris declared, after being rescued today, that she felt well and was glad her sweetheart had escaped.

REFUGEES FROM MEXICO.

Buford Reaches San Francisco with One Hundred and Sixty Persons Entirely Destitute.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU, San Francisco, June 1.—The United States troop ship Buford, commanded by Capt. Ely, and which left here several weeks ago for the Mexican coast, returned this morning via San Diego and San Pedro, with 60 men, women and children who had been forced to flee from Mexico.

A committee was at the dock and offered whatever aid was needed by the Buford's passengers, many of whom had abandoned all their possessions in Mexico and were destitute.

Automobiles of city officials were placed at the disposal of the passengers and two ambulances were pressed into service to remove two suffering from typhoid and one tubercular patient to the hospital.

Five women and eight children were taken care of by the Young Women's Christian Association and the Associated Charities, while the city offered to look after twenty-eight men. The government proffered the use of tents for this number in the Presidio reservation and later in the day these persons and their baggage were taken to the military post.

In most cases the passengers had remained in Mexico until all hope of a settlement of the present rebellion had failed.

WORRY CAUSES SUICIDE.

Real Estate Broker of San Diego and Portland Ends Life in Latter City Over Business Cares.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Despondent over financial troubles, O. E. Fish, for the past seven years a real estate broker of Portland and San Diego, sent a bullet from a revolver through his head at his residence here this morning and he died at the Good Samaritan Hospital this afternoon.

Fish was a native of Ohio and came been worrying lately over business matters and has been despondent for several days past. This morning he appeared in better spirits, however, and with his wife, was preparing to go for a walk. Mrs. Fish left him for a moment and upon hearing a shot, hastened into the room, where she found her husband lying on the floor, with the smoking pistol in his hand and the blood streaming from a wound in his right temple.

Fish was a native of Ohio and came to this city seven years abo from Deland, Fla., of which city he was Mayor for four years. After arriving in Portland, he engaged in the real estate brokerage business and prospered. About two years ago, with his wife, he removed to San Diego where they lived until a few months ago, when they returned to Portland.

TO WED NEW YORKER.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU, San Francisco, June 1.—Mrs. Richard Sprague announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Isabelle Donahue, better known as Miss Isabelle Sprague, and William Henry Pool of New York. The announcement is made to San Francisco friends by means of notes sent out by Miss Eleanor Martin, a relative of the bride-elect. Miss Donahue is the daughter of Mrs. Richard Sprague and the late Mervyn Donahue and a granddaughter of the late Judge and Mrs. William T. Wallace. Mervyn Donahue was a cousin of the Baroness von Schroeder.

Luce and Charles L. Neumiller. Charles D. Blaney, it is said, will go East as alternate for his wife, Mrs. Isabelle W. Blaney, one of the regular delegates, who will, it is understand, relinquish her seat to her husband.

OPIUM DEN ON A SHIP.

Federal Authorities in San Francisco Obtain a Confession From a Convicted Smuggler.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU. San Francisco, June 1.—In testimony given today before United States Commissioner Krull, Charles Kenney, former fourth officer of the steamship Siberia of the Pacific Mail Company, told of an opium den which existed on the Siberia for three years, in which Chinese passengers were in the habit of smoking the drug on their way to San Francisco; related how he had been approached by members of the crew, asking him to help smuggle ashore quantities of opium, and broadly intimated of collusion between the ship's officers and the Chinese crew in the traffic.

Kenney succumbed to the luring temptation on the last trip of the Siberia, and he was arrested as he stepped off the ship with six five-tael tins of opium. Eighteen more tins were taken from a secret panel in his room later. He pleaded guilty several days ago and was fined $500 and sentenced to serve three months imprisonment in the Alameda County Jail.

United States officials believe that as the result of the disclosures made by Kenney it will be possible to take effective steps to break up the opium ring.

POLICE IN A DAZE.

San Francisco Officers Don't Know What to Make of the Dynamiting of Three Poolrooms.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU. San Francisco, June 1.—The dynamiting of three poolrooms in the most congested sections of the city last night has left the police in a daze today. Today the detectives are in possession of merely a fine collection of theories. However, it is patent that the dynamiter did the first work of his career last night. All the evidence points to the fact that the man knew little or nothing about the use of explosives. The damage done in each of the places is trivial. Windows were shattered and there are gaping holes at the points of intact of the explosives, but an hour's work by carpenter and glazier restored the premises.

There is every reason to believe that the work was done by one man. The opinion is that the man is a crank, who has been unlucky in gambling. The suggestion that disgruntled competitors of the owners of the poolrooms dynamited or persons who were jealous because they were not allowed to do business as gamblers, is scouted by police and sporting men generally. All agree that the strongest probability is that an unlucky crank did the work.

RECEIVER APPLIED FOR.

TELEPHONE CO. INVOLVED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) June 1.—The Pacific States Electric Company of San Francisco applied for a receiver today for the Overland Telephone and Telegraph Company, which operates an extensive system in Phoenix and Northern Arizona. The assets of the Overland are given as $435,000, with liabilities of $700,000. The Mountain States Telephone Company took over the entire assets of the Arizona Telephone and Telegraph Company, today. The purchase price was $2,000,000, according to information said to be official.

BOATS SAIL FOR ALASKA.

MANY PASSENGERS BOOKED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 1.—The formal opening of navigation in Bering Sea, which is closed by ice nearly five months of the year, was marked today by the sailing of the passenger liner Senator and the freighters Seward and St. Helena for Nome, Alaska. The Senator carried 351 passenbers, the first delegation of miners and business men who make the annual pilgrimage to Nome. Included in the cargo of the Senator is a large shipment of fresh vegetables and fruits, delicacies which the residents of Seward Peninsula have been denied since the close of navigation last fall.

EX-OFFICER LOSES CASE.

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU, San Francisco, June 1.—The District Court of Appeals today denied the appeal of George Wittman, former Chief of Police, to be restored to the force following his dismissal in 1905. Wittman took his case before Judge Sturtevant, who decided against him on the ground that Wittman had been out of the department for three years when the case was heard and could not therefore be reinstated. The Appellate Court sustained this decision.

CORN DOCTORS CHARTERED.

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—The Pedic Society of California is the latest in the way of corporations. This society, articles for which were filed in the office of the Secretary of State today, has for its chief object, the passage of an act authorizing the Governor to name a commission of chiropodists, making it a requirement of law that all chiropodists secure a State license, thus protecting the profession from incompetent "corn" doctors.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Infantry Goes to Alaska.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] The army transport Sheridan sailed at 9 o'clock today for Seward, Alaska, carrying the Thirtieth Infantry, which will relieve the Sixteenth at various posts along the coast of the Territory. The Sixteenth has been in Alaska for two years and will be brought back by the Sheridan, leaving St. Michaels June 24.

Editor Pleads Guilty.

STOCKTON (Cal.) June 1.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] W. R. McIntosh, editor of the Business Farmers a local farm periodical pleaded guilty in the Superior Court this morning to the charge of assaulting C. E. Allington, a messenger boy, with a deadly weapon and was fined $250 by Judge C. W. Norton. A stay of execution was granted until next Wednesday. Friends of the editor interceded in his behalf and urged the court not to impose a prison sentence.

APPEAL IS FACILITATED.

San Francisco Judge Orders Distribution Under Terms of Late Claus Spreckels's Will.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—In order to facilitate an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, Superior Judge James V. Coffey formally ordered the Spreckels estate distributed yesterday, according to the terms of the will of the late Claus Spreckels. The notice of appeal was filed immediately after the entering of the order for distribution, according to the decree of the State Supreme Court, which upheld the will.

Yesterday's proceedings mark the passing of the will contest from the State and county courts, where the $5,000,000 worth of property bequeathed by the late sugar magnate to Rudalph, Claus Spreckels, Jr., and the daughter, Emma Ferris, has been kept for several years by the two other sons, A. B. and John D. Spreckels. The latter two were ignored in the will, it being claimed they had been provided for by their father during his lifetime.

SUES FOR MARSH DEED.

Woman at Stockton Asks Permission of Instrument Executed by Eastern Man Afterwards Murdered.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON (Cal.) June 1.—Miss Orpha Marsh, of this city, today commenced a suit against George E. Crane, a local real estate man, for the possession of a deed executed in her favor by George E. Marsh, the Lynn, Mass., soap manufacturer who was recently murdered, and held in escrow by Crane.

The deed, which is fully set forth in the complaint, was executed in July, 1906. According to its terms, Crane was authorized at the expiration of ten years to pay $10,000 to Grace Kemball, of San Francisco, and $1000 each to the First Presbyterian Church and the Children's Home of this city, and then deliver the instrument, together with the property, to the plaintiff. If the grantor died before the expiration of ten years, it was provided that Crane should pay the several charges on the estate and then deliver the property to Miss Marsh.

The plaintiff affirms that immediately following the murder of Marsh she demanded the deed of Crane and that he refused to deliver the same to her. She prays the court to force him to deliver the instrument.

GREAT BARLEY YIELD.

A Crop Nearly Equal to that of Last Year in Prospect in the Delta Country.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is estimated that the recent rainfall will prove a gain of from 50,000 to 100,000 sacks of barley in this section. A careful estimate of the prospective yield of barley has been made in the territory about Stockton and a harvest nearly equal to that of the season of 1911 is expected. The west side promises a banner yield and the delta lands will score their usual output.

In the delta sections, with here and there an exception, the yield of barley will be exceptionally heavy.

The weather of the past two weeks has been particularly favorable. The storm last Saturday which precipitated an inch of moisture over the delta country was a great help to thousands of acres of partially-developed grain.

One True Medicinal Whiskey

Beware of Imitations and Substitutes Unscrupulous Dealers Tell You Are "Just as Good" as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Some dealers may try to convince you that there is something "just as good" as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Pay no attention to their claims, they are imposing on your confidence.

Substitutes Are Dangerous

It is the well known purity and merit of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey that has caused the manufacture of inferior and unreliable limitations. It is the natural result of more than half a century's good reputation for purity and well doing behind Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which has been used by the Medical Profession, Hospitals, Sanitariums and in the home all these years with wonderful results.

Fac-simile of package and bottle greatly reduced.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure distillation of selected clean grain thoroughly malted. Its palatability and its freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach. It has been used with remarkabe results in the treatment of pneumonia, grip, coughs, colds, malaria, low fevers, stomach troubles and all wasted and diseased conditions.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the government as a medicine during the Spanish-American war.

The genuine Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold in sealed bottles only. The "Old Chemist's Head" is on the label and over the cork is an engraved seal. Sold by druggists, grocers and dealers everywhere or direct, $1.00 a large bottle.

LABORERS FIND A WINE CELLAR.

Drink Champagne on "Steam Beer" Salary.

Site of Grand Hotel in San Francisco Excavated.

A Taste of the Master's Goods for the Man.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That men may drink champagne on a steam beer salary has receiveed convincing proof. Around the ruins of the Grand Hotel at Stevenson and New Montgomery streets are a lot of $2-a-day laborers today who are nursing assorted "heads," but who are very happy just the same.

During the work of clearing the ruins yesterday an old rock crusher that stood on the lot was toppled over under the instructions of the foreman. The foreman, the day being hot, then adjourned to a nearby buffet to quench his thirst. He returned to the field in five minutes to find that every man jack of his laborers had disappeared.

Their coats were still hanging around on fences and the foreman was puzzled, not having reason to believe there had been a walk-out, until the sound of popping corks, coming from the near distance, mingled with gusty laughter, attracted his attention to where the rock crusher had stood.

He hurried over there to discover his entire crew sitting around the floor of the wine cellar that had been exposed, drinking the cream of the choice stock of liquors that had made the old Grand Hotel bar famous.

After the wreck of the hotel in 1906 no one gave a thought to the wine cellar and the stock of old wines, assuming that the stock had been ruined.

Col. Kirkpatrick, of the Palace when advised of the find and asked what disposition he wanted made of the wines, said:

"Let the laborers dispose of it. The wine is theirs by right of discovery. For once in their lives let them drink the wine that men drink who can better afford it and who used to drink it in the Grand Hotel bar in the old days."

ATTACKED BY SEA FRIGHT.

Los Angeles Girl Leaves Liner in Hysteria at New York and Has to Be Taken to Hospital.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Just before the American liner St. Paul sailed today, a cabin passenger ran to one of the ship's officers and told him that a young woman in the steerage was trying to choke another woman. When the officer got to the head of the steerage companionway a frantic woman rushed past him, and made for the gangplank and onto the deck, where she sank in a hysterical heap. The girl's mother, Mary Penertola, followed her and tried to calm her and get her aboard, but it was not any use, so she was put in an ambulance and sent to St. Vincent's Hospital.

The girl's name is Fernada Penertola. She and her mother came from Los Angeles, Cal., and are on their way to Pau, France. They had booked passage by the French liner France, which sailed last Thursday, but the girl was seized with a dread of the sea and the France sailed without them. Her mother finally prevailed upon the girl to go by the St. Paul, and she got as far as the steerage today, when she suffered another attack of fright and became hysterical and violent.

MAMA'S GRATITUDE.

Introduces Daughter, Who Found Her a Second Husband, to Man Who Finally Won Her Heart.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

MT. VERNON (N. Y.) June 1.—Out of gratitude for introducing her to her second husband, Mrs. Joseph Wilson of Mt. Vernon introduced her daughter, Miss Marion Elizabeth Strange, to Raymond Morrison Diggs, who is connected with mining interests in California and said au revoir to her today when Miss Strange leaves for San Francisco.

Miss Strange is to be married to Diggs in the home of her sister, Miss Bertha Strange, in San Francisco on June 15.

About five years ago Miss Strange, who was then a little girl, met Mr. Wilson and fell in love with him because he used to buy her candy and play dolls with her. At the home of a friend she introduced her mother, who was a widow, and soon after the mother and Wilson were married. A year ago Mrs. Wilson invited Diggs to visit, and introduced him to her daughter. Mr. Diggs was a very busy young man, but found time to come East four times in four years. On his first visit he proposed to Miss Strange, and was refused with a toss of the head. The next year he met with a similar rebuff, but when he proposed the third time he was accepted. They will spend their honeymoon on Mr. Diggs's ranch in Nevada and will travel through Mexico, South America and Lower California.

WOULD PENSION MOTHERS.

French Nation Discusses Reward for Those Who Propagate Nation as Antidote for Race Suicide.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

PARIS, June 1.—France proposes to pension every mother as a reward to those who help propagate the nation, and as a practical argument against race suicide. This plan, now formally before the Chamber of Deputies, has been brought to the front by M. Messimy, Minister of War in the last Chamber, following the startling revelation that last year's births were only 742,114, compared to 776,983 deaths. M. Messimy suggests that the money required be raised by a tax on bachelors and childless married men.

He wants every French mother to receive when her first child is born either $20 in cash, or half that amount, and have the other half invested for her. Payments for each succeeding child would be made according to a sliding scale.

M. Messimy calculates that a woman who had eight children before she was 31 years old would receive a pension of $21, or thereabouts, from the age of 60 until death.

LUTHER AMBITIOUS.

SPRINGFIELD (Mo.) June 1.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Luther McCarthy will start for the Coast within a few days looking for a fight. He has been offered a match with the winner of the Elder-Miller bout and with either Al Palzer or Carl Morris. McCarthy declares he is ready to fight any body, but would prefer to get on a match with Palzer, because, if he beats Al, he will be in direct line for a match with Johnson.

TWO ARE DROWNED.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

HUDSON (Wis.) June 1.—Lucy Gridley, aged 23, prominent in Hudson, and Peter Sims of Eau Claire, are dead as the result of a canoe accident here. Miss Gridley, with a sister and Harold Stofer and J. Harrity, was canoeing on Lake Malliou when the craft accidentally capsized. The others escaped. Miss Gridley's body was found later. Sims, who was an employee of the car shops here, lost his life while crossing Lake St. Croix.

SECRETARY ROSE BURIED.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

GOLCONDA (Ill.) June 1.—Secretary of State James A. Rose was buried today in the Rose family lot of this little town's cemetery. Golconda was his old home. Funeral services were held this morning at the First Presbyterian Church, where the Rev. J. H. Stevenson delivered an address. He paid high tribute to the dead State official. At the time Mr. Stevenson was Presbyterian pastor here Rose was the Sunday-school superintendent. So large was the crowd that attended services it was necessary for many of them to remain outside of the church. Gov. Deneen and nearly all of the State officials attended.

BOY'S DEATH HIS OWN DEED.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LOUISVILLE, June 1.—Twenty-five witnesses this afternoon confirmed the first decision of a Coroner's jury that Bruce Emmet, 15 years old, had committed suicide. Investigation into the lad's ending was reopened after his father had expressed the belief that young Emmet had been lynched by playfellows. Three weeks ago the boy's corpse was found hanging in an outbuilding of his home.

SENTIMENT GETS JOB.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1.—Because Mayor J. C. Haynes believes in romance, R. H. Friedrich, who is six feet, two inches in height, and weighs 250 pounds, today is a member of the police force. Some two weeks ago Friedrich called on the Mayor to see about a position on the force. The next day Louise Leubner visited the Mayor. "She told me she knew Robert Friedrich and that he was the best man in the world," said Mayor Haynes.

MINOQUA HAS BAD FIRE.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

MINOQUA (Mich.) June 1.—One entire business block of this town was almost entirely destroyed by fire today, the loss being estimated at about $100,000, partly covered by insurance. The Lakeside Hotel was among the buildings destroyed. No one was hurt. Appeals for help were made to Wausau and Antigo.

The Perfect Laxative for Elderly People

Age has its attractions no less than youth in a more serene and quieter life. But it is this very life of rest without sufficient exercise that brings with it those disorders that arose from inactivity. Chief of these are a chronic, persistent constipation.

Most elderly people are troubled in this way, with accompanying symptoms of belching, drowsiness after eating, headaches and general lassitude. Frequently there is difficulty of digesting even light food. Much mental trouble ensues, as it is hard to find a suitable remedy. First of all the advice may be given that elderly people should not use salts, cathartic pills or powders, waters or any of the more violent purgatives. What they need, women as well as men, is a mild laxative tonic, one that is pleasant to take and yet acts without griping.

The remedy that fills all these requirements, and has in addition tonic properties that strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of elderly people use, to the exclusion of all other remedies. They take it at regular intervals and in that way maintain general good health. You will do well to always have a bottle of it in the house. It is good for all the family.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

Political.

BUREAUS MOVE TO WINDY CITY.

Chicago Becomes Center of Political Activities.

Four Republican Candidates Establish Headquarters.

Hair Lines Are to Be Drawn in Convention Contests.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chicago became the main spot on the political horizon of the United States promptly at midnight.

In Washington, the lids of the desks were jammed down at the national headquarters of the Taft and Roosevelt seats of war, and hosts of managers, "gum-shoe" brigades and hordes of press agents, etc., began the march on the city by the lake.

Monday will see four national headquarters mixing things up in Chicago. From break of day until the curtain falls on the convention, the rest of the country will be in political obscurity. Baltimore not excepted.

The headquarters, managers and locations will be:

Taft headquarters at the Congress Hotel, in charge of Representative William McKinley.

Roosevelt headquarters at the Congress Hotel, in charge of Senator Joseph M. Dixon.

Cummins headquarters in the Rector building.

The official list of contests filed so far was given out as numbering 228 by the national committee today. Because of the chaos resulting from the late filing and withdrawal of contests after notification had been given of contests, the work has progressed slowly.

The list does not include the Alaska contests, or those which may be filed following the South Dakota, Arizona, or Ohio elections of delegates. Six at large are still to be named in the latter State.

A number of contests which had been anticipated were withdrawn at the last moment. This was true of the seventh Indiana district and several Kentucky districts.

One of the most significant statements as to what effect the rulings by the national committee and convention credentials committee on the seating of contested delegates, will have as regards the nomination, was made today by a prominent Taft follower. His estimate, while considered low on the Taft side of the ledger by others of his following, gives some inkling as to the hair line which will be drawn in the convention.

His figures today give Taft 273 uncontested delegates and Roosevelt 415. Thirty-six delegates are tied up to La Follette and ten to Cummins. Twenty-two—six in Arizona, ten in South Dakota and six in Ohio—are yet to be elected.

Six of the 228 contests, he classed as without merit. Of the other 222, he figured Taft would win four-fifths. With this "dope," it would appear that Taft would get 549 votes on the first ballot, or only nine more than is required to nominate.

Lux Orientalis.

LIGHT FROM THE EAST ON THE LIVING ISSUES.

[SPECIAL BY FEDERAL WIRELESS TELEGRAPH LINE.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU, New York, June 1.—The following editorial comments on topics of the hour are printed today in eastern papers.

DOES HIMSELF HONOR.

CANNOT YIELD TO ROOSEVELT.

New York World:

NO COMPROMISE.

President Taft cannot in any consistency or self-respect do otherwise than to insist upon no compromise in the Ohio State convention next Tuesday. This has become to him more than a personal contest; it has become more than a contest to save his party.

The President is asked to divide evenly the six Ohio delegates-at-large with Roosevelt, merely to prevent a fight in the convention, merely to patch up a local party harmony, merely to help the party ticket in the State election. And he says "no" with an emphasis that does him honor. Taft could yield to the nomination of some other Republican like Hughes, or even La Follette. He cannot yield anything to Theodore Roosevelt.

HATRED IS CONFESSED.

HOLD CLUB OVER INDUSTRY

New York Tribune:

KILLING OFF TARIFF BOARD.

The Democratic majority in the House of Representatives has just added to its many sins of omission and commission a raid upon the tariff board. In the sundry civil appropriation bill, just reported, no provision is made for the continuance of the board after June 30, next.

The war on the tariff board is a confession of Democratic hatred of scientific methods of revision. Democratic politicians want to hold a club constantly over industry. But the great majority of the people want to put an end to wild-eyed club-swinging. They will be eager to put the Democratic party out of business if they find that such a step is necessary to get the tariff out of politics.

PEOPLE ARE IMPATIENT.

ANTICIPATING CHANGE.

New York Press:

SENATE RECONSTRUCTION.

So impatient are the American people with the present way of choosing United States Senators that they do not care to wait for the ratification of the constitutional amendment providing for direct elections. Massachusetts is one of the conservative old States to anticipate the nation-wide change. The people of the commonwealth under the new system are more likely to get a Senator who, at least, will try to serve the general welfare and will not cater to special privilege, than was available to them under the plan which produced Lorimer in Illinois, and which filled the Senate with mis-called representatives of the people who were willing to stand by Lorimer when he was found to have been the beneficiary of coarse bribery.

While the people may not always be so successful in selecting gentlemen of brains and cunning to serve them as the privileged classes were able to bring to their service when these had the naming of United States Senators, they will be better off under the new dispensation. Well meaning mediocrity striving for the public welfare is better than genius plotting against it.

INCISIVE WORK REQUIRED.

CUBAN ARMY'S DISADVANTAGE.

New York Sun:

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE CUBAN INSURGENTS.

There is some impatience in Washington because the campaign is several days old and there are no casualties to speak of. The criticism is made that the rural guards and regulars are limiting their acticities to the protection of the property of Americans. From a political point of view such tactics are judicious, but the rebellion is still to be put down. It can be done only by tracking every large body of insurgents discovered and compelling them to stand and fight. In this kind of campaigning the Spaniards were not adepts, and with all their training by American army officers the Cuban rural guards cannot be expected to do much better, for they understand the great advantage the insurgents have when they choose their own ground to defend themselves. The wild country within fifty miles of Santiago contains many positions and retreats that are impregnable except against troops that are intrepid enough to rush them and pay the cost.

OSTRICH POLICY COSTLY.

WARSHIPS WILL BE NEEDED.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

Yet the Democrats of the House have refused to lay down two battleships this year. They seem to think we have enough of these peacemakers. The two ships will be needed some years hence, when a large number of existing vessels are discarded. The ostrich policy has cost this country many valuable lives and millions of property and we ought not to let this phase of history repeat itself.

Assert the Police.

PLAYS LOSING MARKET; SHOPLIFTS TO RECOUP.

WHAT is said by the police to be an improvement in the art of shoplifting was revealed late last night when Cecilia M. Chappelle, a stenographer employed by the firm of Blake, Moffitt & Towne, was brought to the Central Station under arrest on the charge of stealing from more than a dozen prominent downtown stores.

According to the officers, the young woman invented an entirely new method of getting away with the goods, and she might have continued her career indefinitely had she not accidentally been discovered in the alleged theft of a new spring suit.

When confronted with the evidence against her the prisoner broke down and admitted her guilt, the police assert. Nearly $500 worth of merchandise subsequently was recovered from the home of the young woman at No. 314 East Twenty-eighth street, where she lived with her parents.

In explaining her mode of operation the police assert the prisoner said she visited all of the large department stores and recovered sales checks that had been discarded by purchasers after which she said she picked up articles similar to those described in the sales slip and walked out unmolested.

A day or two later the girl said she would return to the store and upon presentation of the check, would demand and obtain the return of the money supposed to have been paid for the article.

A large number of women's suits and other wearing apparel, the girl said, had been taken direct to her room and hidden. She was caught yesterday afternoon in the act of obtaining money on an article alleged to have been stolen, and was arrested by Detectives Browning, Ingram and Harris.

In searching her room the officers found a cartload of alleged loot, including cases of jelly and a dozen or more silk dresses, all of which the girl is alleged to have confessed to smuggling out of stores without the slightest interference on the part of the management.

As far as known the young woman's scheme is unique in the annals of shoplifting, and she is given credit by the police of being more clever than the usual store thief.

Miss Chappelle is about 30 years old and is of striking appearance, and dresses in the extreme height of fashion. For the last three years she has been employed, she says, as a confidential stenographer, during which time she learned to take flyers on the stock market.

When several railroad stocks in which she was interested happened to take a slump, Miss Chappelle declares that she invented the idea of picking up sales checks and using them to obtain funds.

She also said that she had not worked with anyone, and was alone responsible for the charges made against her by the officers. She probably will be arraigned in Police Court tomorrow morning.

Learning Lines.

ROOSEVELT SQUAD IS REHEARSING.

DRILLED ADVANCE GUARD WILL BE SENT TO CHICAGO.

Colonel Will Waive Objections to Root for Temporary Chairman and Reserve Fire for Later Contest—"If There Is Unfair Play I May Show Up," He Declares.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OYSTER BAY (N. Y.) June 1.—The Roosevelt line of battle for the Republican National Convention was formed today, at a "council of war" on Sagamore Hill.

The first step is to be the organization of the Roosevelt forces throughout the country. It is planned to send to Chicago, a week or so in advance of the convention, an Executive Committee from every State in which Roosevelt delegates have been elected, or in which there is a contest. By this method, it is expected to mobilize and drill an organization that will act as a unit.

As a part of this plan, the Roosevelt delegates in every part of the country will be canvassed as to their views on the temporary chairmanship, that a harmonious agreement may be reached. Although Col. Roosevelt had decided to oppose the selection of Senator Root, and had asked Gov. Hadley of Missouri to be his candidate for the place, he indicated today that he would waive his objections if it seemed wiser to his supporters to reserve their fire for the more important contests.

Whether Col. Roosevelt will go to Chicago to lead the fight in person is now an open question. The colonel virtually served notice on his opponents that under certain circumstances he might go. He said he did not intend to go "unless some grave emergency in the shape of unfair play should arise."

"If there is unfair play, I may show up," he said to Robert McCormick of Chicago, one of his visitors today.

Two other matters were agreed upon. Every effort is to be made to have the hearings before the National Committee to settle contests for seats held publicly and the Roosevelt supporters will fight to obtain what they deem an equitable distribution of convention tickets.

Col. Roosevelt said he had been told that some of his delegates felt that the action of the National Committee indicated a deliberate purpose to use 10,000 or 12,000 tickets to stuff the gallery with shouters who will try to overawe the convention by clamor.

Regarding the result of the day's conference, the colonel said:

"I have written to Gov. Hadley in regard to the temporary chairmanship, but nothing definite has been decided about that.

"The delegates whom I have seen today consider the matter of the temporary chairmanship unimportant. They take the ground that whatever the temporary chairman said would represent only his own opinion and the opinion of the National Committee and in no way the opinion of the convention; and their belief was that no issue should be made about the temporary chairmanship. I want to hear from the delegates throughout the country before committing myself finally."

TAYLOR IN CHILD PLAY.

Star Would Assume Principal Role in Piece Enacted by Children, According to Her Present Plan.

It is more than possible that Miss Laurette Taylor, after her return from her San Francisco engagement, will be seen in a children's play, in which she will take a stellar role, supported by the children of the Egan school.

According to Miss Taylor's present dates, this premier event in the annals of childhood dramatics in Los Angeles will come off about September 1.

It would not interfere with any other dramatic work in which she might be engaged, but would be given as a special matinee, or as a series of special matinees, at one of the principal theaters here.

Miss Taylor reached a decision in the matter after a conference with Frank Egan last Wednesday afternoon. Previously she had paid three visits to the school, in the Hamburger Majestic Theater building, and had seen the work of the ambitious young histrions in several things, varying from satires as serious as "Everywoman," to comedy and drama as light and romantic as "Barbara Frietchie."

Three plays are under consideration: "Cinderella," "The Piper," in which Edith Wynne Matthison appeared—and "Peter Pan." This last vehicle, created in its principal role, as far as America is concerned, by Maude Adams, would furnish Miss Taylor a wonderful opportunity, and would give genuinely childish roles to her enthusiastic young supporters.

Miss Taylor as Peter would be a stellar attraction upon her own account, and no doubt she would actually rival Maude Adams in local interest, for local audiences have placed a very considerable valuation upon Laurette Taylor's work.

"No one in the world," said Miss Taylor, "possesses the high, undefiled, uncommercialized enthusiasm of a child. I love nothing better than to mingle with childish enthusiasms, and when they are rightly directed, artistic enthusiasms are perhaps the most ennobling of all.

"I have seen these young Los Angeles player-folk on several occasions, and after my last visit I was stormed with the idea to do something with them when my own playtime comes.

"Understand, I'm not making this venture to exploit my personality, or advertise any one else, or to make any money. I'm just going to put my hair in a braid—as it were—and go out in the big lot behind the barn, and swing, and play tag, and skip the rope with the liveliest and littlest of them.

"I want to get a children's play, and play it with them.

"What play?

"Well, that matter has quite a ways to go for its final decision, but I am pretty sure we shall get something.

"I remember when I was a little girl, that I was always in the game of make-believe, and if anyone would help me the least little bit, if any grown-up would come down out of the world of reality even for fifteen minutes, I was, for that fifteen minutes, transported to heaven."

PUTS LIMITS ON POWER OF COURT.

OHIO CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION COMPLETES WORK.

Forty-two Amendments Formulated for Submission to Voters of the State at Special Election. Preferential Vote for United States Senators Prescribed.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

COLUMBUS (O.) June 1.—Forty-two proposed constitutional amendments for ratification at a special election on September 3 is the completed work of the Ohio constitutional convention, which adjourned today.

The most radical change is the limiting of the power of the Supreme Court. In the same proposal, the name of the circuit court is changed to the court of appeals, and the appellate court is made the court of last resort in most cases.

A proposal was passed providing for a preferential vote for United States Senators. However, the Legislature will not be required to hold to the result of the preferential vote.

The convention provided for a regulatory liquor license and limited the number of retail saloons, one to 500 population.

The delegates refused to pass the "recall" but passed a bill for the prompt removal of public officials, including the judiciary, upon complaint and hearings.

Another proposal gives the Legislature power to pass a law requiring a vote of only three-fourths of a jury to return a verdict in civil cases.

After a campaign of days, during which women crowded the galleries of the convention hall and tons of literature were distributed over the State, the convention voted to remove the word "male" from the bill of rights in the present constitution and thereby give votes to women.

The initiative and referendum passed by the convention provides for the direct initiative upon constitutional amendments on petition of ten per cent. of the voters and indirect initiative upon legislative questions upon six per cent.

Clergyman's Son Had Tuberculosis—Now Well

Consumption is a flattering disease and the sufferer is filled with bright hopes of improvement. Call it by its own dread name—and then—take Eckman's Alterative, because it is effective in Tuberculosis. No one need doubt it—there is plenty of evidence from live witnesses. Investigate the following:

Amenia, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: Prior to February, 1908, I was suffering with La Grippe, which developed into Tuberculosis. My physician gave me one month to live. My father, who is a clergyman, heard of Eckman's Alterative and induced me to take it. The night sweats and chills disappeared, my cough became easier and gradually diminished. I am now in perfect health, back to 155 lbs. I feel certain that I owe my life to Eckman's Alterative."

(Signed) E. H. COWLES.

"Gentlemen: I cannot find words to express my appreciation of what your remedy has done for my son."

(Signed) REV. J. J. COWLES, Pastor Presbyterian Church.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by The Owl Drug Company and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

So Tired of Tired Feet? Use TIZ for Instant Relief

Get the "Tired" Out in a Few Minutes. TIZ Makes Your Feet Sore-Proof and Tired-Proof.

Send for FREE Trial Package of TIZ Today.

"Pull, Johnny, Pull!"

"O fudge! It's awful how tired feet make you feel tired all over—so dead tired. Then, when you've got a corn besides, and a bunion, and a few blisters, and your feet are terribly swollen, you won't care if you've got a million dollars—you're tired, that's all. A million dollars can't help you, any more than 25 cents will."

A quarter buys a box of TIZ—a wonder for tired, sore, tender, chafed, blistered, swollen, sweaty, smelly feet, corns, callouses and bunions, chilblains and frostbite. The moment you use it, you give a sigh of relief, and then you smile. There's nothing as good as TIZ, so don't accept any attempted imitation. TIZ draws out all the poisonous exudations that make foot troubles.

TIZ, 25 cents a box, sold everywhere, and recommended by all drug stores, department and general stores. Write today to Walter Luther Dodge & Co., 1223 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., for a free trial package of TIZ by return mail, and enjoy the real foot relief you never had before.

Why Theaters Pay in Los Angeles

Because it is conceded to be the best amusement city in the West.

This Will Always Be the Case

Not only because of the steady stream of tourists passing through, but it is due to the fact that it has the best low-priced theater attractions. When one speaks of low-priced theater attractions the name CLUNE comes first to the mind because it is an uncontested fact that the in Los Angeles and Pasadena set the pace in these popular public attractions. You know this to be a fact. You who have seen the immense crowds lined up in front of the CLUNE theaters night after night—each patiently waiting to spend ten, twenty or thirty cents to enjoy these performances, must have involuntarily exclaimed, "The CLUNE theaters must be making a lot of money." And you are right.

The Clune Theaters Have Paid Immense Profits from the Start

It is now decided to extend this earning power by building additional theaters. To this end there has been incorporated the CLUNE THEATERS CO., which will earn and pay a dividend to the stockholders each month from the start.

Darrow Trial.

IGNORANCE OF USE, DEFENSE.

Alleged Bribe Money Was for Expenses, May Be Plea.

To Try to Prove Corruption Unknown to Him.

Witnesses Held in Reserve by Prosecution.

The cross-examination of Bert H. Franklin, star witness for the State in the Darrow trial, was yesterday continued until tomorrow afternoon on account of the death of Cyrus F. McNutt, who was associate counsel for the defense until failing health compelled him to retire. Both Judge Hutton and the lawyers associated in the case spoke in terms of deep regret for the decease of the attorney.

From the commencement of the cross-examination of Franklin Friday afternoon it is evident that Darrow's counsel will try to break down his testimony as far as possible. Franklin's testimony forms the connecting link between the various acts of alleged jury bribery and Darrow, the defendant. If the defense can show that Franklin acted on his own initiative when he said he offered money to various prospective jurors if they would vote for an acquittal of the McNamaras, a strong point would naturally be gained. From the line of interrogation so far by the defense, it seems apparent that this will be its main issue—to prove if possible that Darrow knew nothing about any alleged attempts to corrupt talesmen, but furnished money to Franklin to provide legitimate expenses of looking up the records and history of the veniremen.

BANK BOOK ARGUMENT.

The defense is also endeavoring to show by means of Franklin's bank book that the sums received by him from the McNamara defense lawyers were for legitimate purposes. It is probable that the cross-examination will extend into Tuesday, for there is much ground to cover.

Dist.-Atty. Fredericks and his assistant, Ford, are carefully laying the framework for the balance of the State's case. Without making any assertions as to the possible strength of forthcoming evidence, it is known that Capt. Fredericks is well pleased with the progress of the case thus far, and has a number of witnesses in reserve. These are handled by Malcolm McLaren, one of the operatives of the Burns agency, and reputed to be one of the keenest men in the business. McLaren was an important figure in the McNamara case, for from his investigation developed many of the incriminating bits of evidence tending to show the identity of the men who planned and committed the dynamiting outrage that resulted in the death of twenty employees of The Times.

McLaren is often in the courtroom to confer with Capt. Fredericks, but his chief work is in the District Attorney's office, where he is looking after witnesses and documents that may figure as exhibits later on.

ATTRACTS THE MORBID.

Owing to the small size of the courtroom where the Darrow trial is held, only a few spcetators can be admitted. But morbid curiosity draws a crowd each day to the second floor of the Hall of Justice in which department eleven is located. They stand there, more or less patiently, occasionally catching a word from the courtroom, and overhearing a portion of some legal objection that is like so much Greek to them.

From the outlook, the trial will last until the middle of July or perhaps the first of August. Attorney Appel, who has recently been retained by the defense, is known for his thoroughness in presenting a case and his method of introducing a host of witnesses to clear up even the most trivial points. Appel said yesterday he could not even approximate how long it will take to present the side of the defendant, but that ample time will be taken to bring out certain features he deems important. Though associated in the case for a little more than a week, indications are that Appel's theory of the defense will be adopted as the most logical and convincing.

Darrow and Appel held a long conference yesterday and it is belived the defendant himself will take more and more part in the proceedings. His remarkable personality will count for much, his friends declare. Lincoln Steffens is often in the courtroom to offer sympathy to Darrow, and Job Harriman was there during a greater part of Friday's session. The labor unions have apparently deserted the cause of their former national counsellor, but the Socialists still profess the warmest attachment to their idol and several literary stars of more or less brightness twinkle about Darrow's chair. Through it all the defendant preserves a courteous word for everyone, and a smile somewhat strained and wan at times for those who press forward to grasp his hand.

IDEAS FOR MODEL CITY.

Miniature Municipal Bath Plant to Be Exhibited by High School Students at Civic Exhibit.

Students of the Manual Arts High School, under the direction of C. E. Nihart, are constructing an elaborate model to represent the latest ideas in the construction and arrangement of a municipal bath plant. The model will be an interesting feature of the civic exhibit to be held in the Auditorium July 8 to 20. The pupils have made a close study of municipal baths in Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and leading German cities and have embodied these ideas in their model.

Dana W. Bartlett, chairman of the Exhibit Committee, writes from the East that he has procured a large amount of good material for a "housing exhibit." This will consist of striking models and photographs. Stephen Childs, landscape architect, has agreed to contribute an exhibit on "Town Planning in Europe."

The parks and playgrounds of Boston will be shown by means of models. A set of models and pictures, contributed by Boston and New York architects, will show, in the same exhibit, the latest plans for the proper and artistic subdivision of city property.

Miss Florence Mills, manager of the civic exhibit, says that the project is developing rapidly and that the results will far surpass early expectations.

LOST—FREIGHT ORDINANCE.

Board of Public Utilities Cannot Lay Its Hands on an Instrument That's Badly Needed.

Who is sufficiently interested in the proposed freight-carrying ordinance to have "swiped" it from the office of the Board of Public Utilities.

The ordinance has completely disappeared, and Secretary Frankel spent hours yesterday in a vain search for any trace of it. The instrument represents the accrued investigations of approximately eleven months, and was almost ready for submission to the City Council for adoption.

The Board of Public Utilities had the ordinance on its table for consideration on Wednesday. Then intervened a holiday, and when it was called up on Friday, the secretary could not place it. This was followed by a search that continued throughout yesterday and that included an overhauling of all the documents of the office without results.

It is probable the ordinance will have to be redrafted by Special Counsel Hewett. Its many changes in the commission room caused it to become for different from the original document, of which there are duplicate copies.

DEATH AHEAD OF POLICE.

Former Los Angeles Bank Clerk, Wanted by the Local Authorities, Passes Away in New Orleans.

Thomas J. Flinn, a former bank clerk of this city and wanted here by the police on a charge of having passed fictitious checks, died in New Orleans about May 20, according to information received here yesterday by the Pinkerton National Detective Agency. At one time Flinn was in the accountant's department of the First National Bank, but because of his habits was discharged, the bank officials state.

The young man was beginning to figure as an amateur actor and had a fixed idea of becoming a professional at the time he left the city. When he did so, the Pinkerton detectives assert he cashed $200 worth of worthless checks upon his friends, several of them clerks in other banks in the city. The largest of these checks was for $25, so nobody was hard hit.

The police at first had information to the effect that Flinn had gone to San Francisco to join a musical comedy company but this proved to be erroneous. Flinn apparently made no friends in New Orleans and the cause of death has not been mentioned in the dispatches to the Pinkertons. The body was taken to Camden, N. J., for interment.

Flinn had an aunt, Miss Fulton, and a brother Frank Flinn, in Philadelphia.

DEAD ON GAS TUBE.

When Mrs. R. D. Hughes went to her husband's room about 7 o'clock yesterday morning to call him for breakfast, she found him dead in bed. He had evidently committed suicide for one end of a rubber tube was in his mouth and the other end connected with an open gas jet. Hughes was a carpenter, about 30 years old, and lived at No. 1534 Panama street. Mrs. Hughes ascribed her husband's rash act to ill health. She declared they had been happily married about four years. Hughes was last employed by the Library Board on work in the Hamburger building. The Coroner will hold an inquest tomorrow.

Deadly Problem.

LOOKING FOR THE REMEDY.

Mad Acts of Peons Costing County a Fortune.

Cheap Wine Held Responsible for Many Killings.

Indiscriminate Hiring of Men Also Blamed.

Camp Eleven was one swaying mass of liquor-soaked peons. It was Saturday night and as it was pay day in the construction gang, the imported laborers had started their weekly orgy with every promise of making it the wildest night that the camp had ever witnessed. Several nights had been marked with violence but on this particular night, it appeared as if the entire force of peons had caught the fever and were gradually working themselves into a frenzy by pouring fiery liquors down their brown throats.

The foremen of the gangs shook their heads and watched the peons out of wary eyes, but they were powerless to stop the mad revelry. Little groups of peons were seated around their box-car shacks and the bottles, filled with cheap wine mixed with strong brandy, passed from hand to hand.

In the midst of a burst of song, there came a cry as if some one were in mortal pain. The singing stopped and the camp was soon in an uproar. The excited laborers rushed hither and hither. At one point a big group gathered. The foremen ran to this spot instinctively. As the group divided to let them through, they saw what had caused the uproar. Stretched on the ground was a young Mexican. He had been stabbed through the heart with a long-bladed knife. His slayer had disappeared.

Sheriff Hammel said yesterday that the foregoing scene is enacted nearly every Saturday night within the borders of Los Angeles county and that because of the prevalence of crime among the imported peons, the taxpayers of the county are carrying a burden amounting to scores of thousands of dollars a year.

SEEKING A REMEDY.

Judge McCormick, who is now hearing nearly all the criminal cases in the courts, has begun an agitation looking to some sort of a measure which will reduce the large number of crimes that are committed by the peons. He declared yesterday that about sixty per cent. of the crime in this country is by peons crazed by drink.

It is estimated that the peon killings cost the county about $105,000 a year. The peons are not citizens of the United States and because of this large cost and the fact that the cases will fill up the court calendars, clogging other business of the courts, the criminal judges, the Sheriff and the police of Los Angeles are anxiously seeking some means to put a stop to the numerous crimes.

Judge McCormick said yesterday that many of the peons are working for very low wages and that their only recreation lies in their Saturday-night orgies, and that it is almost impossible to find a remedy for the evil.

"I have sent many of these imported laborers to the penitentiary for crimes and they have told me their stories," said the judge. "I feel sorry for the poor fellows, as they are not nearly so much to blame as the man who sells the liquor to them. It would be impossible to pass a law prohibiting the sale of liquor to these peons, as that would be class legislation. I believe that for one thing, the wholesale importing of the peons into this country should be restricted. Many of these laborers are brought here by false promises on the part of contractors who employ large gangs of laborers.

"They commit crimes when they are drunk. They buy the stuff they drink at wineries and right here some needful legislation could be enacted. At the present time, a winery can sell one-fifth of a gallon. That is practically retailing liquor. The law should prohibit them from selling less than one gallon and no winery should be allowed to have a liquor license for any restaurant run in connection with it.

"Last year Judge Willis and I heard about forty-two homicide cases and about thirty-five of them were peon killings committed while both the victim and the assailant were drunk on wine they had purchased at these wineries."

Immigration Inspector Connell said yesterday that he is fully aware of the large amount of crime committed by the peons who are imported into California. He declared that all of the immigrants coming from Mexico are rigidly inspected and that none come in in violation of the Federal laws.

HOLDS WINE RESPONSIBLE.

"My idea of the way to stop a great many of these murders is to have the pure food inspectors get after the wineries that are selling to the peons," said Connell. "The wine they buy is supposed to be claret, but it is adulterated in such a way that a few drinks of it makes a man so drunk that he is ready to commit murder or any other crime."

Within ten days there have been two cold-blooded slayings in peon laboring camps. In one case a Mexican was stabbed to death by a man with whom he was drinking. The other murder was committed by a drunken peon who visited the shack of a man whom he fancied was his rival in a love affair.

Just 50 years ago, on May 29th, 1862, the Desmonds first threw open the doors of the first Desmond Store on the Pacific Coast. It was to be, and proved to be, a store destined to be a power in this territory, because based and kept up on principles of absolute integrity, dependability and always guaranteed satisfaction. The men of the West have always been sturdy men—of sturdy character and strong principles. With just such a character and just such a principle, the Desmond Store, small at first, was gradually succeeded by an ever-growing series of stores.

The Desmond institution has kept on growing steadily and we are today in position to celebrate one of the greatest commercial successes in Los Angeles. To prove the strength of our buying power, the character of service and satisfaction we give, and the standard of quality we have established, we have determined to make this 50th Anniversary an occasion not only for festal rejoicing, but for the offering of highest grade values obtainable, at prices that will prove the correctness of THE DESMOND WAY of buying and selling.

SEALS FINALLY BEAT ANGELS.

Knock Out Five Runs During Ninth Inning.

Tozer Pitches Fine Ball Until the Blow-up Comes.

Henley Surprises Fans by Hitting Homer.

BY GREY OLIVER.

San Francisco, 6; Los Angeles, 3.

At the end of the first half of the ninth inning yesterday afternoon the peaceful spectators in the grand stand were badly frightened by the sudden bursting of a volcano near the Seals' bench. Bats, hats, caps, masks, gloves and stones belched up into the air and one-half of the players ran around in circles.

Five minutes later ten of them dropped to the ground as if they had been shot and lay there a moment while the fans surged across the field.

No one tried to pick them up, for they were not dead. They had simply collapsed into the earth as a result of winning a ball game, after having lost five straight to the Angels this series.

Kid Mohler made a verbal protest of the game on a decision of the umps in the first of the ninth inning, but after his team had made five runs and won the game he refused to make out a written protest. They never do when they win.

Henley and Tozer were the heavers, and both pitched good ball, except in the ninth inning, when Tozer went to the bad. He walked two men, hit one man and was hammered for a double and a home run and a sacrifice fly was cracked out. In addition to these things a bad throw by Howard past first base added to the gaiety of the Seals.

Henley was Henley and that always means a lot. Any team that tries to fatten its batting averages off this old bird would die of starvation. If not you could look through it as easy as you can gaze by a lace curtain.

A pass, steal, an out and a sacrifice got the locals their first run in the fourth and after much effort in the seventh they got the second one on two singles, a passed ball and a sacrifice. In the ninth, with one out, Lober tripled over first base and scored on Dillon's infield out. My, my! It was like pulling up fence posts with your teeth to get these runs.

Tozer was just as good, for only one man got to third base in the first four innings. Two singles and a throw-in from left field finally broke the ice for the Seals and gave them a run.

Then Tozer behaved himself for the next three innings, but in the ninth you would have thought the McNamaras were loose again and spreading their gospel of gas explosions.

Bill began this ninth by walking Mundorff. McIver grounded to Howard, who not only juggled the ball but threw it wildly to first. Mun scored on this overthrow, but was sent back to third by McGreevy and this was why Mohler wanted to protest the game. Then Tozer filled the bases with a pass to Hartley. Corhan flew to Daley and Mundorff scored after the catch.

Jackson next cracked a double to the scoreboard, sending in McIver and Hartley. This so rattled Tozer that he hit Schmidt with the ball and about the next ball pitched Henley slammed it over the left field fence for a home run that scored Schmidt.

Daley was the hitter with two doubles in four times up, while the star fielding stunt was a left-handed catch by Jackson of a wild throw to first base by McArdle in the fifth.

MT. WSHINGTON TENNIS RESULTS.

The final day's play of the Mt. Washington tennis tournament, while it failed to develop anyone who is nvery likely to dispute the titles of Tom Bundy and Miss Sutton, provided the best tennis ever seen here in any tournament of the kind. The play was fast, nineteen matches being played, and there was not a dull moment during the entire day.

The tournament as a whole was a success from every point of view, with the possible exception of the attendance.

Summary: College—Newell defeated Fobes, 8-6, 6-3; Barker defeated Newell, 6-8, 6-1, 7-5.

Ladies' singles—Miss Wellborn defeated Miss Kingcade, 6-4, 6-3.

RIVERSIDE WINS HONOR.

RIVERSIDE, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Riverside High won the Citrus Belt League championship in the contest with Redlands this afternoon by a score of 9 to 8. The game was loosely played. When Riverside went to bat in the ninth inning the score stood 8 to 6 in favor of Redlands. Riverside had a batting streak and put three runs over. Batteries: Riverside, Horton and Kid; Redlands, A. Cram and Whittemore. Milton of U.S.C. and Shutt of Pomona College umpired the game.

OAKS WIN IN SLUGGING FEST.

Vernon Loses Game Featured by Hard Hitting.

Carlisle and Bayless Hammer Out Home Runs.

Cy Parkin Proves to Be Strong in Pinches.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Oakland slipped the Hoganites a 9 to 6 surprise today and just naturally and easily the Commuters slipped back into that first place seat they have been decorating for most of the season.

It wasn't altogether an easy victory, since the Villagers were hitting the ball as freely as the Oaks and there was a chance any time for a bombardment that would have started things Vernonward.

Two home runs, by Carlisle and Bayless, helped the southerners to three of their runs and their hits were prime factors in the balance of the tallies.

The game seesawed back and forth with Vernon first leading by three runs and finally dropping back, only to come again and give the boys from across the bay a merry scare.

With such hitting as was displayed to the crowd out at Recreation Park, it might not be fair to lay the blame on any one man, but if fault must be found, Louis Litschi is the man to be criticised. Louis had one of his off days, and on two separate occasions let the ball get away from him for two runs apiece. The first time he had a chance to retire Cook, but miscued on a grounder, and two of the Oaks tallied. The second time it was Hetling who laid the ball down to Litschi, and with two on the cushions as before, Litschi once more booted and gazed at the sky as a couple of the Oaks sprinted home.

Those four runs would have made a heap of difference so far as the Villagers were concerned.

As between Cy Parkin and Carson there wasn't much choice, save that the slow-going Carson so thoroughly delayed matters that it took two hours and eight minutes to play a game that never should have been sprawled over that distance.

Parkin fanned six as against two struck out by Carson, and the Oaks gathered one more hit, which shows the slight difference between the two men.

Vernon started like a house afire and threatened to land Parkin on the bench in short order, landing three tallies before they were retired.

In the same inning the Oaks, while they didn't quite tie the score, at least annexed a couple.

Oakland took the lead in the fourth. Zacher doubled to center and Patterson flied out to Kane. Hetling walked and Cook dropped a Texas leaguer back of the infield that filled up the bases. Sharpe's sacrifice fly to right scored Zacher and Rohrer came along with a rattling good three-sacker to center that got past Kane and anchored two more of the Oakland runners on the home plate.

In the fifth there was a general Vernon mix-up, so far as fielding was concerned. Frick lifted a high fly to center and was retired. Hoffman doubled and Zacher was safe when he grounded to Brashear because Hosp dropped the throw. Hoffman tried to score on the same play, but Hosp recovered in time to throw Izzy out at the plate.

A home run by Bayless in the same inning, with Brashear ahead of him, gave the Villagers a temporary lease on life. Each team made one in the seventh and the Oaks forged ahead with another tally in the eighth.

Vernon had some chance in the ninth, but proceeded to throw away three clean hits. Stinson, batting for Carson, hit to center. Carlisle changed the single to left, but Stinson, good for an advance to third, missed second and was called out, although Patterson, who fumbled in right, would have otherwise been charged with an error. Kane responded with a safe hit to center, but Hosp hit to Hetling and Kane was doubled out at second.

REMARKABLE TIME.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Lincoln Johnson, the one-legged Y.M.C.A. swimmer, was beaten today in his official trials for the all-American Olympic team by Frank Resleure of the Olympic Club, also a one-legged swimmer. The race was one of the most remarkable ever swum. Resleure's time was 2m. 38 1-5. for 220 yards with two turns. The officials say there is no American record for the distance under identical conditions, the nearest approach being Daniels's time of 2m. 40 3-5s. for 220 yards with one turn. Johnson's time was 2m. 41s. flat, and it is probable that he will be recommended on the strength of it, although beaten, for Resleure is an Australian by birth and has never been naturalized.

HALL KNOCKED OUT.

NAPS BANG PITCHERS.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

CLEVELAND, June 1.—Cleveland cleaned up on the scrappy Red Sox in the opening engagement between the two clubs this afternoon by a score of 9 to 2.

Kaler held the speed boys to six scattered hits. The Naps pounded Hall, Collins and Pape for fourteen singles.

Poor Exhibition.

GIANTS MAKE MONKEYS OF ST. LOUIS CARDINALS.

[SPECIAL BY FEDERAL WIRELESS TELEGRAPH LINE.]

LOS ANGELES TIMES BUREAU, New York, June 1.—After today's exhibition, New York fans are wondering how the St. Louis team beat the Giants yesterday.

It was a comedy of errors on the part of the visitors, and, while the Giants would have won on the merits of the game, there would not have been anything like the score there was had Bresnahan's men played big league ball. Score:

PIRATES BRACE UP.

OVERTAKE PHILLIES.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. — The Pirates took the first game of the opening series from Philadelphia today by a score of 7 to 5.

The Phillies hung up what appeared an overwhelming lead in the first three innings, but young Robinson was derricked and Camnitz held the locals safe the last half of the game. The Pirates bunched their hits in the sixth and seventh innings.

COYOTE HUNT SUCCESSFUL.

SANTA ANA RIFLE CLUB BRINGS HOME A CARCASS.

Glenn Martin Participated to the Extent of Conveying Victim to City Strapped to Aeroplane—Capture Utilized by Picture Men for unch of a Western Drama.

SANTA ANA, June 1.—Swooping over the foothills this morning, Glenn Martin's biplane scared all the coyotes in sight and hearing. The occasion was the coyote hunt of the Santa Ana Rifle Club, of which Martin is a member, and the result of the hunt was the capture of one coyote, a big fellow. The carcass was strapped to the aeroplane and was taken as passenger to Santa Ana.

The hunters had hoped to bring in half a dozen of the pests, but were unable to begin their hunt until after 7 o'clock. It had been planned to begin at 4:30 o'clock, in order to catch the sneaking animals before they got back into the brushy hills. By an oversight, the gate to the pasture in which the foothills are located was left locked, and it was 7 o'clock before the hunters could proceed. The hunters covered ground from the old San Joaquin ranch house to the hills directly back of Corona Del Mar.

Martin waited until after the fog raised before venturing to fly. He did not like the idea of going through the fog sixty miles an hour with the possibility that he would suddenly find a high hill in front of him, too close to rise over it. After the fog lifted, Martin, with a passenger, scouted along the range of foothills, using the biplane in which he made his trip from Newport Bay to Avalon. The air craft was driven low, and it was with ease that moving objects in the brush could be detected. Martin is thoroughly satisfied with the efficiency of the aeroplane as a means of scouting for wild animals. He thinks it has great possibilities as a means of driving game into the open.

To William Jeffrey, from whose ranch the start of the hunt was made, belongs the honor of the hunt. The coyote, however, was appropriated by the crowd. The dead varmint was strapped to the biplane and played a part in a moving-picture stunt, the arrival in camp with the coyote being the last act in a scenario planned by a moving picture artist.

Twenty men in automobile and horseback took part in the day's fun. Among them were William and Elmer ibbon, John A. and Arthur J. McFadden, Scott Thompson, L. A. West, A. C. Lantz, D. E. Hoff, E. C. Frambes, Louis Sheats, William and George Jeffrey, Ben Nimmo and Ben Ward, most of whom are members of the Santa Ana Rifle Club. During the day the men did a good deal of practice shooting at marks.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Two contraband Chinese have been captured at San Juan Capistrano and have been taken to Los Angeles for deportation. These men were traveling separately and without a guide, which is unusual. As a rule the Chinese who come here illegally from Mexico come in a band with a Mexican to guide them. One of the two men caught was found by Henry Stewart beside the road, exhausted. He had fifteen minute instruction as to the [illegible]. The second man was caught by Matias Bellardes as he was buying food at a store.

M. Nagai, Japanese Consul-General of San Francisco, was given a banquet last night by Santa Ana citizens. The Japanese has been visiting his fellow countrymen in this county.

Marriage licenses: Albert J. Smith, aged 22, and Anna M. Mustachia, aged [illegible], both of Los Angeles; Carl H. Longstreet, aged 24, and Tressa Sturtevant, aged 24, both of Pasadena; Newton Evans, Jr., aged 21, and Glenna Ball, aged 21, both of Los Angeles; Ralph D. McBride, aged 22, of Los Angeles, and Maude E. Green, aged [illegible], of Garden Grove; Harry C. Ken[illegible], aged 20, and Beulah McClay, aged 20, both of Santa Ana; Samuel F. ASIATIC FIGS SHIPPED.

Imperial Valley Producer Sends Fruit to Los Angeles and Secures Good Price—Desert Miracle.

IMPERIAL, June 1.—The first shipment of Asiatic figs from Imperial Valley was made this week to the Los Angeles market. The figs are grown on the A. J. McPherrin ranch and were shipped by George W. Rude, manager.

This valley is the natural home of the fig and in time fig growing will become one of the principal industries. Mr. Rude reports that there are forty-five acres of very fine grapes that he will begin shipping June 10. The Malagas will be ready for shipment about the 10th of July. The great advantage here is in early shipments, which always command the highest prices. This held good in the shipments of asparagus, as 6000 crates of asparagus were shipped at a high price before the market broke.

GOING SOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schwab, who are now enjoying an extended visit to their former home in Austria-Hungary, came to Imperial Valley five years ago and having limited finances, took up a tract of ninety acres of desert land. Today the Schwab ranch is one of the most productive ranches in the valley and is well stocked with cattle and fine poultry.

Best time now to visit Coronado.

FRANK CHAMPION TO FLY AT LONG BEACH TODAY.

LONG BEACH, June 1.—Frank Champion, the local aviator who was shot in the leg while hunting near Dominguez field January 14, discarding his crutches only three days ago, agreed tonight to take the place of the injured aviator, Frank Stites, entertaining the crowd here tomorrow afternoon with flights in his Bleriot monoplane which has been lying unused at Dominguez since January.

Champion, who narrowly escaped losing his leg when shot and who now limps about with a brace supporting his leg, is considered nervy in consenting to make flights tomorrow. He said tonight he could get his machine in readiness and reach Long Beach between 2 and 3 tomorrow afternoon. Champion has done some of the fastest flying on the Coast in his Bleriot.

RIVERSIDE HIGH SCHOOL TAKES SIX CHAMPIONSHIPS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Riverside High School [illegible] square herself in this part of the State after not having held the championship for five years, walked away with six Citrus Belt League championships between 9 o'clock Friday night and 5 o'clock this evening. This evening Anspach and Strong of this city defeated Redlands High in the final debate of the season. The decision was unanimous for Riverside, which is now the permanent holder of the cup.

This morning at Redlands, the Borchgrevink sisters, representing Riverside High, defeated the Redlands doubles tennis team, thereby winning that championship. Miss Borchgrevink, in singles defeated Miss Ford of Redlands in the final match.

At Riverside, San Bernardino and Riverside were the chief contestants in both boys' tennis matches. The Bakewell brothers defeated Zimmerman and Wagner of San Bernardino in doubles, finals and Pedley beat Zimmerman in the singles.

Riverside thus won all four tennis championships. Zimmerman was Los Angeles Poly's star man last year.

Riverside defeated Redlands in the final baseball game this afternoon in a 9 to 8 contest. The game was the most sensational battle played in the league this year. However, Riverside did not win the game till the ninth inning when Vervillion hit safely and brought in two runs.

Auction! Auction!
Of Horses, Mares and Mules

On Wednesday, June 5, 1 p.m., I will sell two and one-half carloads of horses, mares and mules, ranging from four to seven years in age, in weight from 1200 to 1650 pounds each. This stock is all young, sound and well broke to all harness, just out of hard work in Cash Valley, Utah. This stock is the good flat bone, heavy kind, all well broke, single and double. Also 11 head of heavy bone, brown, mealy nose mules, ranging in age from four to seven years, weight from 1000 to 1200 each. All well broke and good workers; nearly all well matched teams.

Just received telegram from Ed Stuart, in Cash Valley, Utah, to advertise this sale, as they must be sold for cash, as this day I have shipped the above described stock and I will be there in due time to attend the sale. The teams of this sale are cash. Each one will be hitched and tried immediately after sale and must be as represented in every particular.

Now, Mr. Buyer, if you are looking for chickens and dinkies I would advise you not to take up your valuable time attending this sale, for we have none of that kind, but if you are looking for good, sound, heavy, well-broken stock we solicit your presence and patronage. Do not forget day or date, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5TH., ONE P.M. SHARP. Take Brooklyn Ave. car, get off at Lyon st.

Auction! Auction!

I am instructed by the owner, Mr. C. T. Sutcliffe, to sell his big eleven-room cutstone mansion located at 2666 Menlo avenue, to the highest bidder without reserve or limit, just off of West Adams street. This is the same property that was advertised to sell on last Wednesday, May 29; but on account of some outstanding accounts against the property for repairs, the sale was postponed until Wednesday, June 5th, at 11 A. M.

This property will be sold for anything over and above the mortgage. There is $7500 bank loan at 7 per cent., which can run or be paid off as purchaser may wish. This property is now rented for $1000 per year to good, substantial, high-class people. It is located in one of the very best residential districts in the city of Los Angeles. The lot is 75x150 feet, lots of shade, a beautiful lawn, fruit trees, large garage and abundance of flowers, really it is equal to a king's palace. There will be no buybidders or stool-pigeons on the grounds.

Please do not fail to attend this sale on Wednesday, June 5, at 11 a.m. It will be sold on terms; come out and help yourself. This place sold once for $17,000; but this time it will be sold for anything over and above the mortgage.

Yours for a square deal,

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

CAMPAIGN IS FORMALLY ON.

Pasadenans Hold Mass Meeting With Few Present.

Election Will Be Held in Latter End of June.

Annual City Cleaning Date Is Close at Hand.

[Office of The Times, 23 S. Fair Oaks avenue.]

PASADENA, June 1.—The first meeting to be held in the campaign for municipal ownership of water in Pasadena took place last night in the Council Chamber at the City Hall. It was a mass meeting, open to the public, but only thirty-eight attended.

As a result of the discussion Dr. Solon Briggs, who presided, was authorized to appoint a committee of fifteen to take charge of the campaign. This committee will appoint additional members to the number of 100.

The date that the City Council has set for the election is June 27, and the new Water Committee will carry on an active campaign in the meantime. The amount of the proposed bond issue is $1,250,000.

City Attorney Carr acted as secretary of the meeting last night, and Burdette Moody, the special engineer who made an inventory of the holdings of the different water companies of Pasadena for the city, reviewed his findings in detail.

The committee is not to be appointed until tomorrow.

HAS A FULL DAY.

The experiences of Hamilton Platt Smith, if told by himself, would fill a book. He is the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith of No. 183 North Hudson avenue and is not yet qu[illegible] years old. Yesterday morning a hole in the back fence, where a board had come loose, was too much of a temptation for him and, seizing his pet bantam rooster, Pete, in his arms, he went through to see the world. He said he would have taken more of his many pet chickens if he could have carried them, but he could only manage one in his arms, and the hole was not large enough to get his cart through.

The child, evidently lost, was picked up on Colorado street by a guest at the Maryland Hotel and taken to the police station, where he remained until it was ascertained who his parents were. He and Pete, who did not desert him in his wanderings, were taken home in the police automobile by Detective Schultz.

"It was great," he told his mother. "I went through the City Hall. Chief of Police Wood gave me some candy, and I liked Mayor Thum fine."

He was told that if he should run away again he would be put in jail.

"I'll run away quick then," he said. "I'd like to go to jail."

PREPARES FOR ACTION.

The annual city cleaning is now nearing completion. Street Superintendent Beyer stated yesterday that notices have been served on all owners of property that needs attention, with the exception of a few in the northeastern part of the city. Notice will be served on these tomorrow.

This week the ten days' notice will have elapsed in some cases, and as fast as the time expires the Street Superintendent will proceed to clean up the property that has been neglected himself.

Property owners in the downtown section have been the most diligent in cleaning up where notices were served, and Superintendent Beyer declares the city looks decidedly better.

CITY BRIEFS

Despite the fact that the City Hall was closed at noon yesterday, building permits totaling $32,000 were issued for the first day of June.

Dr. Charles R. Hager, a prominent missionary to China, will speak at the North Congregational Church at 11 o'clock this morning.

City Attorney Carr expects that the State Railroad Commission will come to Pasadena for the telephone hearing either the latter part of this week or the first of next week.

John Muir, the well-known author and naturalist, is the guest of Mrs. E. M. Dickey of San Rafael Heights. He expects to be in the city for several days.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered to the graduating class of the Pasadena High School at the Christian Church next Sunday night by Rev. W. C. Hull.

Because one of the residents on Peoria street yesterday forgot to shut off his gas-heater when he went to the seashore to spend the afternoon, all others along that street discovered hot water ran from their faucets instead of cold. Many telephone calls to come and ascertain why the water was hot reached the city officials. The day was warm and cold water was wanted.

Thomas Lopez, who shot Patrolman Farmer a week ago last Saturday night, yesterday was removed from the Pasadena Hospital to the County Hospital. It is believed now that he will recover. Yesterday Justice of the Peace Dunham issued a warrant for his arrest, charging him with attempt to kill.

Prof. R. W. Sorenson and Prof. L. H. Gilmore of the faculty of Throop Polytechnic Institute, expect to leave June 14 for an extended trip in the East.

REVIVAL MAY CONTINUE.

Monrovia Services Are Meeting With Favor and Evangelists Determine to Prolong the Work.

MONROVIA, June 1.—The union services being held in the tent at Myrtle and Palm avenues have been so well attended and the interest shown so encouraging that Evangelists Brown and Curry have announced their intention of another week's stay in Monrovia. All of the meetings have been of great interest to all denominations and the capacity of the large tent has been taxed, it being estimated that fully 1000 people have attended the evening services.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The Monrovia-Duarte Country section, held a meeting Wednesday evening and elected officers as follows: W. H. Young, president; John H. Bartle, vice-president; J. Allen Munro, secretary; F. N. Hawes, treasurer.

George A. Mounsey, formerly of Covina, has taken posession of the handsome property recently bought by him from the Tifal Building and Investment Company, at White Oak and Charlotte avenues. The house, a Swiss chalet, has been one of the show places of Monrovia since its completion and has been more admired and commented upon than any of the new houses built in the last six months. Mr. Mounsey is the owner of large orange property near Covina, which he will manage from his home in this city.

Another orange grower who will make Monrovia his home while still retaining his interest in Glendora is John Quick. He has bought from the Tifal Building and Investment Company a lot in the new May street tract, and has contracted for a seven-room bungalow, to be built at once.

Redondo Beach.

WILL SUCCEED TITANIC VICTIM.

MAJ. STOCKLE'S PARENTS LIVE AT REDONDO BEACH.

Newly Named Official Was Appointed to Succeed the Late Maj. Butt After He Had Sailed and Does Not Yet Know of the Honor Conferred.

REDONDO BEACH, June 1.—Maj. George Edward Stockle, who has recently been appointed aide to President Taft to succeed Maj. Archie Butt, will be met on his arrival in San Francisco from Manila by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Stockle of No. 103 South Guadalupe street, this city.

When Maj. Stockle sailed from Manila May 15 he had not been informed of his appointment as aide, but left with his family for San Francisco, as he had been promoted from captain in the Eighth Regiment of the regular army to major in the Ninth Regiment and stationed at Ft. Russell, Wyo.

His parents in this city are expecting a cablegram within the next few days from Honolulu and will leave Friday for San Francisco to meet their son there, whom they have not seen for five years.

Maj. Stockle's military career is of interest. Born in Story county, Nevada, in 1866, he was reared and educated in mining camps with the exception of seven months at the Nevada State University at Elko. He took the competitive examination for West Point, passed the highest of any one in the class, and entered West Point in 1884.

The young army officer was rapidly promoted and with Lieut. Clark was in charge of the expedition to capture the Apache Kid in Arizona at the time of the trouble with the famous notorious Indian Geronimo. Later he was stationed at Pullman, Wash., as instructor of military science and tactics. He served several years in Cuba and was stationed several times in the Philippines. For the past fourteen months he has been stationed at Batangas, near Manila, as commissary of the Eight Cavalry.

His parents are pioneer residents of California and spent their early days in mining camps in Nevada, where Stockle, senior, is now interested in mines. For the past three years they have lived in Redondo Beach.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Alva Gipe, the young Redondo Beach High School pitcher who went from the Vernon team to the training camp of the Philadelphia American Athletics, has reecently been transferred from New Orleans to the Holyoke (Mass.) team. Young Gipe, who is considered a comer by the baseball managers, was transferred from New Orleans to Holyoke that he might have better opportunity to play more frequently.

The children of the Memorial Baptist Sunday School of Los Angeles held a picnic here today. About 100 were in the party and games were played on the beach and in the park throughout the day by the youngsters.

Plenty of room at Coronado.

Capt. George Edward Stockle,

Appointed Aide to President Taft to succeed Maj. Archie Butt, will be met in San Francisco by his parents from Redondo Beach when he arrives from Manila next week.

Long Beach.

AVIATOR HAS WRIST BROKEN.

Frank Stites Takes Header on Long Beach Sands.

Flyer Will Be in Hospital Weeks With Wounds.

Aged Resident Dies Suddenly from Heart Disease.

LONG BEACH, June 1.—Aviator Frank Stites is at a local hospital suffering with a sprained back and a broken wrist, but thankful that it is no worse. Both injuries are the result of an accident this afternoon in front of Hotel Virginia, just as he was concluding a daring and successful flight.

Stites, who has just signed a ninety-day contract for a series of flights in Montana, came to Long Beach this morning from Dominguez Field for a series of four flights today and Sunday. His trip south was made at an altitude of from 4000 to 5000 feet and after executing a series of startling dips and spirals he descended at noon just west of the roller coaster. His first exhibition was scheduled at 2:30, but after taking the air he had trouble with his carburetor and descended.

Ascending at 3 o'clock he gave a ten-minute exhibition in front of the city and then, rising about 3000 feet, volplaned down toward the beach. Within a dozen feet of the ground he truck a gust of wind which tilted his plane and one wing striking the sand, Stites was thrown forward on his steering gear. He attempted to use his vertical control to swerve the machine towards the ocean, away from the crowd on the beach, when it toppled over throwing the aviator upon the sand, with the machine resting partly upon him and the engines still running. Hundreds of hands lifted the wrecked machine from the injured man and stopped the engine. Stites was rushed to a hospital, where it was found that his left wrist was broken and his back sprained, the latter injury due to the radiator striking him. He will be out of the game for some weeks. The machine is badly damaged, the wheels and running gear being smashed up.

The flight and accident was witnessed by several thousand people.

SUDDEN DEATH.

A. F. White, an old-time resident of Long Beach, while talking to an employee of his ranch, north of town, suddenly gasped and fell dead. Physicians say heart failure was the cause. Mr. White had lived in Long Beach seventeen years, and was active in its business and political life until a few years ago, when he retired. He was 57 years of age and leaves a family.

DEFIANT WOMAN.

Miss M. L. Bosley an aged spinster, who defied the courts and officers in their efforts to make her pay the balance of a judgment, was sentenced by Justice Brayton to pay a fine of $5 or spend twenty-three hours and forty-five minutes in the County Jail, and still defiant, she chose the latter alternative, and spent today in jail.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Harold Crowe, Hugh Shippey, Way Middough, Esther Dayman and Arthur Wilcox will be the first board of commissioners elected by the High School student body under the commission charter, recently adopted. In addition to these the board of commissioners will include two faculty members and the principal of the High School, who is a member ex-officio. This board will appoint subcommissioners for the different departments. Any commissioner can be removed for incompetency by a vote of five of the commissioners.

Efforts to have Council secure plans and specifications for a horseshoe pier, between American and Pine avenues have been renewed and a petition with several hundred signatures will be presented to the Council Monday evening, asking them to take that course instead of the contemplated repairs of the present pier.

With the high record for building this month May ended with the issuance of 150 permits, aggregating $296,421, as against $159,290 the same month last year. So far this year there have been 737 permits issued of the aggregate value of $1,174,223, which is $600,000 in excess of the same months in 1911.

Postoffice receipts for May were $5,729.60, a gain over the same month last year of $1,059.80, or 22½ per cent.

Three ships are due to arrive at the city docks the coming week: The Casco, on Monday; the Daisy Freeman, on Wednesday, and the Santa Monica on Friday. The three will bring to the docks a total of 1,000,000 feet of lumber.

The Western boat works has laid the keel of a new launch for Lowman Bros., of Wilmington. It is forty feet long, ten-foot beam, and will draw but three feet, being designed especially for towing purposes.

Only $4 to Coronado and return.

CAR STRIKES GRAVEL WAGON.

South Pasadena Crossing Scene of Wreck When Pacific Electric Flyer Bumps Vehicle.

SOUTH PASADENA, June 1.—At the corner of Mission and Fair Oaks avenue this morning the 8 o'clock flyer, Los Angeles bound, struck the gravel wagon and trailer of J. M. Montgomery, contractor, and threw the driver, H. C. Peck, to the ground, smashing the two forward wheels and damaging the third wheel of the first wagon, overturning the load of gravel, and when the car finally stopped, one of the mules was caught in the fender.

The driver escaped with a few bruises, and the mule was badly scratched up. The driver said he thought all cars stopped at Mission and Fair Oaks avenue, and on account of a car standing on the curve on the long line, did not see the flyer coming. The motorman was also within about eighty feet of the wagon before he saw it, and succeeded in slowing down, which saved the life of Peck.

Citizens are indignant over the fact that the flyers pass this dangerous crossing at such a high rate of speed, and will once again ask the Council to have the flyers stop at Mission, instead of Oxley street, where they now stop, before some serious loss of life occurs. While the citizens generally know that the flyers stop at Oxley, strangers do not, and unless something is done, it will be a menace to the city.

REVIVAL ENDS.

Evangelist Charles B. Allen of Denver closes his work with the Methodist Church of this city tomorrow. He will preach at 11 o'clock, a.m., at 3 o'clock p.m. and at 7:30 o'clock p.m. These services will be the climax of the most interesting revival services ever held in the church. Before the evening service, a praise service of one-half hour, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. George C. King, will be held.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Instead of the regular evening service at the Baptist Church, a sacred concert will be presented by the church choir, assisted by Miss Louise Mason, Mrs. George Crandall, Miss Harriett Vail and Homer Sampson.

The young people of the local churches will hold union services Sunday evening at 6:15 in the Memorial Baptist Church, corner of El Centro and Mound avenues. There will be special music, and the services will be conducted by Evangelist Charles Allen of Denver, who has been holding a series of revivals in the Methodist Church the past two weeks. An invitation has been extended to all young people of South Pasadena and vicinity to attend.

Arthur C. Burgess of Portland is passing a few days at the Angelus. Burgess is a contractor and builder, as well as being heavily interested in real estate. R. H. Tuttle joined his wife at the Angelus yesterday. Tuttle is division superintendent of the Santa Fe with headquarters at Needles.

It Is San Jacinto's Turn Now

You have seen valleys, and heard of valleys, but unless you have seen our beautiful San Jacinto Valley you can have but little conception what a real valley is like. It is more than a "level strip of land between hills," it is eighteen thousand acres level as a floor, surrounded by beautiful mountains, and every acre under cultivation, beautiful ranches and orchards of every kind, fine alfalfa farms, great potato fields, in fact most everything that will grow in any country can be grown here to better advantage.

All we want now is a few more good, neighborly settlers to join us in an expansion that we are proud to be able to make, and doubly proud to know that the highest priced acre offered in the valley at this time would still be a bargain at twice the price asked. Heretofore we have had population enough, because of the scarcity of water, but conditions have changed since the great water discovery made recently. We now have more water than we have land, and not quite as many settlers as either, so come right along and bring your friends. You can't beat it for climate, water, fertility, beauty, or a place to accumulate a snug little fortune quick.

We have people with us who have traveled all over the world, and lived in this State for years, and are in a position to judge of the true condition as compared with other localities—they are here to stay. Now is the time to get in right. All we ask is a look. Every one should see the best there is to be had in any line before they decide. It aids the judgment in making comparison, we know if you will become interested enough to make comparison that the jig is up. When this is done, it only remains for us to co-operate with you and you with us in making San Jacinto Valley the most desirable home place on earth. Come over and see us, it won't cost you a cent after you get here, as we have a committee appointed with machines to show everybody around, absolutely free. These machines are at your service every day in the week.

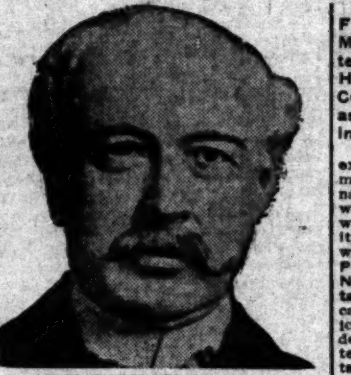
CURED IN FIVE DAYS
Hernia, Piles, Fistula and Varicose Veins



H. J. TILLOTSON, M.D.
[Established 31 Years. Copyrighted.]

I publish my true photograph, correct name and personally conduct my office. I am the longest established, most successful and reliable, as medical credentials and press records prove. Imitation of my copyrighted announcement is an evidence that I am a bona-fide specialist. I make this statement that you will know you consult a Specialist who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience acquired in such a way that no other can share. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued and results obtained.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing person as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I have the ability and can give you this service. I have always charged a very reasonable fee, so that my services may be obtained by any man who sincerely desires to be cured. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions; Neither do I desire to be particularly independent, and I would like to have you for a patient if you will come to me on a strictly professional basis, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability and thirty-one years' successful experience. Time-saving treatment and guarantee of cure of certain diseases.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. Many patients have no confidence in their doctor because he demands pay before a cure has been effected, and there are many who have been misinformed about their condition, or through unsuccessful treatment have become skeptical and think there is no cure for them. I want an opportunity to treat such cases. It makes no difference about the financial part, as I accept pay for my services as benefits are derived, when I am satisfied the patient is reliable. Health is capital at interest. I will prove my ability to cure you before asking pay for my services.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE.

Dr. Tillotson's written guarantee means a cure or no pay for services. I guarantee to cure certain diseases or refund every dollar you have paid me for my services. My services cost you nothing unless I cure your Varicose Veins, Hernia, Piles, Fissures, Fistula or any disease I guarantee to cure. My terms are reasonable and no more than you are willing and able to pay.

READ MY BOOK—It contains information every young man, husband and father should have regarding himself. Book Sent Free to those who, in my opinion, will be benefited by it. Call or write before treating for disease or disorders.

Many Cases Cured Permanently in FIVE DAYS. Most Time-Saving, Most Natural, Most Safe. No Detention from Occupation, Family or Home. A Radical and Permanent Cure. I Will Give $500 to Any Charity as a Guarantee That Every Statement in This Announcement is True.

I cure rapidly, painlessly and at small expense. Cured patients are my testimonials; however, I do not make patients' names merchandise by publishing them. I will give conclusive evidence of my merit, which is obtained and maintained by ability. I invite you to come to my office. I will explain my treatment for Hernia, Piles, Fistula, Varicose Veins, Pelvic, Nervous, Blood, Kidney, Bladder and Rectal Diseases. I will give you free a physical examination; if necessary a microscopical and chemical analysis of secretions to determine existing pathological and bacteriological conditions. Every person should take advantage of this opportunity to learn their true condition. Certainty of cure is what you want.

VARICOSE VEINS.

In the cure of Varicose Veins, Rupture and Associate Diseases of the Pelvic Region, I am successful in bringing to bear the curative power of Nature's forces in such a manner as to supplant the old-time, wide-open surgical operation. Once it required several weeks to cure these conditions and the method which some still use is such as to endanger the life of the patient and require a long period of convalescence. Now an absolute cure can be accomplished in a few days and with perfect safety.

TRUSSES SELDOM CURE RUPTURE.

Disregard for existing Hernias has cost many lives. The smallest hernias are the most dangerous to life, because of the increased liability to strangulation. I am aware that a great deal of fraud has been practiced on the public in connection with the alleged cure of rupture, and when I say positively that I cure Rupture, to stay cured, I do not expect any one to accept my statement without investigation of my professional work. My claim to your confidence is based on absolute facts, accomplished results. A personal consultation. I will make a free examination, can explain every detail of your Hernia and demonstrate to you the curative value of the method I have discovered. I invite the careful investigation of any person who sincerely desires to be cured. I cure Rupture, in selected cases, with perfect safety, and entail no suffering, and do not detain you from occupation under Written Guarantee. Many cases cured to stay cured by a few treatments.

PILES, FISTULA, RECTAL DISEASES.

These diseases are very commonly and frequently found in persons of middle or advanced age; are exceedingly annoying, often very painful, and sometimes very dangerous, and frequently unfit one for pleasure or occupation. My treatment and successes are the result of years of experience; my treatment is kindly applied. I cure Piles without cutting. Some cases are cured by one or more treatments. If I do not cure your Piles, Fistula and other Rectal Diseases, my treatment does not cost you anything. Gentleness in treatment comes from treating many cases. I guarantee a cure of Piles, Fistula, Fissure and all curable Rectal Diseases.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES.

With these diseases you may have more complications than are presented by any other diseased organs. By my searching illumination of the bladder I determine accurately the diseases and by my microscopical examination and urinalysis make sure of the condition of the kidneys, thus laying foundations for scientific treatment.

I OFFER A FREE CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION.

San Bernardino.

EFFORT MADE TO RAISE COIN.

San Bernardino Boosters Are Passing the Hat.

Must Purchase Site for Pacific Electric Shops.

Redistricting Plan Is Opposed by Various Sections.

SAN BERNARDINO, June 1.—Strenuous efforts are being made by the Chamber of Commerce committee to secure funds for the purchase of a site for the Pacific Electric shops. General Manager Paul Shoup has announced to a similar set of boosters at Riverside, who seek the shops for that city, that he has given his promise to the people here, and that if the local committee can meet the conditions that the shops will be located at San Bernardino.

The local committee is seeking to raise in the neighborhood of $7500, having selected seven and a half acres just south of First street, near E, splendidly located for railroad facilities, and it is believed that the full amount required will be easily raised this week.

The advent of the Pacific Electric shops, to handle cars on the interior divisions of the big trolley system, is regarded as of great importance to the commercial future of this valley. Not in years has there been such an earnest effort put forth to draw business enterprises here, but this shop proposition is really the largest which has flirted with San Bernardino in years, and appeals to the citizens as really worthy of endeavor.

MANY OBJECTIONS.

Residents of the Yucaipa and the [illegible] section are circulating a petition protesting to the Board of Supervisors against the recent redistricting of the county, which throws their section into the desert supervisorial district. It is said that a similar petition may circulate in Highland and East Hight, and be presented to the Supervisors Monday. The main objection appears to be a feeling that the districts this side of the mountains should have a supervisor in immediate touch with conditions as they occur in this section, whereas the desert supervisorial district usually draws its supervisor from Needles.

SECOND MARRIAGE.

That the marriage of Irving Smith, [illegible] manufacturer of Warsaw, New York, and Miss Bonnye Clemmons of Redlands and Highlands, Memorial Day at the Pioneer Log cabin, was the second nuptial ceremony they had gone through together within a few months is the statement emanating from Redlands. It is claimed that they were married at Riverside last February. Soon afterward Smith returned East, and the bride returned to her duties as a pupil in the Redlands training school for nurses.

TO OPEN RESORT.

Tomorrow will be opening day at [illegible] Springs. The $50,000 improvements made by the Pacific Electric are completed, and preparations to receive a tremendous crowd coming from all over this county, Riverside and Orange, are being made. It is expected that at least 17,000 pleasure-seekers will throng the resort. Among the special attractions is the coming of the Long Beach band, which will render a number of selections during the day.

BUILDING INCREASE.

The report of the building inspector, F. D. Flory, shows a most remarkable increase in building operations in the city for the first five months of the present year over a like record for a similar period of last year, the increase being 230 per cent. At the end of May last year the total reached $142,593, and the total up to the close of May this year is $325,-[illegible]. For May this year the total was [illegible],159, as against $22,365 for May of last year.

SUIT OVER CHILD.

George Arthur Cowan is suing [illegible] Henrietta, for possession of their [illegible]-months-old infant. His complaint alleges that she is not a proper person to have the rearing of the infant, and affinity circumstances are suggested. The Cowans reside at Colton. They separated recently, the wife going to Los Angeles with the infant.

WILL FILED.

The will of Thomas Cadd, pioneer, who died here Monday, was filed today. It leaves an estate valued at [illegible] equally divided among the children of the deceased, all residents of this city. One-tenth of the estate is to the widow of Richard Cadd, deceased son of the testator.

"Hotel del Coronado" leads all.

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAMME.

Beaumont Will Devote Five Days to the Formal Closing of the School Year—Lower Freight Rates.

BEAUMONT, June 1.—There will be three graduates from the Beaumont High School this year, Helen Lanning, Laura M. Mathers and [illegible] H. Dunlap having finished the [illegible] years' course. The programme for commencement week is as follows:

Friday, June 7—Reception to patrons of High School pupils in Assembly Hall.

Saturday, June 8—Annual High School supper.

Sunday, June 9—Baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. H. P. Espy in the United Presbyterian Church.

Monday, June 10—High School play, "Little Women," in Assembly Hall.

Tuesday, June 11—Graduating exercises.

Prof. E. S. Thompson, who has taught in the local schools for the past three years, left today for Tarkio, Mo. He will manage the college glee club during the summer months and resume his studies in Tarkio College at the commencement of the fall term.

NEWS BRIEFS.

After a week's delay on account of lack of material work has been resumed on the test well for water on the Strong & Dickinson ranch north of the city. A depth of 100 feet has been reached.

[illegible] A. Olsen has resigned as superintendent of the Beaumont Land & Water Company and has accepted a similar position with the Sunny Slope Water Company at Los Angeles.

A. V. Dedrick left yesterday for Nome, Alaska, where he will remain for six months dealing in furs, a business in which he has been engaged in the Arctic regions for twenty years.

Word has been received from the hospital at Redlands that C. E. Clayton, who was dangerously injured by a cave-in in a tunnel near this city Monday, will probably recover. His right hip was fractured, several ribs were broken and he received minor injuries.

The Board of Trade has appointed a committee to make arrangements for a home talent minstrel show to be given here in the near future. The proceeds will be added to the booster fund of the board.

Tickets should read "Coronado."

FREEHOLDER'S BOARD MEETS.

Organization of San Bernardino Body is Affected and Desultory Suggestions Made by Members.

SAN BERNARDINO, June 1.—The Board of Freeholders recently elected to draft a county charter, met here today, organizing with the appointment of W. M. Parker, San Bernardino, chairman; Thomas Donnelly, Etiwanda, secretary. The board named Attorney Henry Goodcell as legal adviser, to meet with the members and aid in giving a legal color to the charter.

G. W. Beattie of East Highland suggested that in preparing the charter that it be the aim to eliminate politics in every way possible, believing that as long as an official proved competent and faithful he should be retained by the people. He suggested copying the charter after the Philippine commission form of government, while Justice J. B. Hanna of Colton suggested combining the Coroner's office with that of Justice of Peace, and allowing the District Attorney to do the public administrator's work. The board will meet at the Courthouse each Saturday until the charter is ready to submit to the Supervisors.

Coronado offers every amusement.

Riverside.

BANNER MONTH FOR BUILDING.

RIVERSIDE SURPASSES PREVIOUS RECORDS IN GROWTH.

Indications Are that June Will Establish a New Figure for the Year. Man Convicted of Slaying Two Women Has Not Yet Been Sentenced—News Briefs.

RIVERSIDE, June 2.—May was the banner building moth for the year to date in this city, the valuation being $101,725. Not since April, 1910, has a single month exceeded this total. June promises to eclipse May's figures by 100 per cent. The First Congregational Church and Federal building will both be included in the current month, the aggregate estimated cost being about $175,000. With the average amount for homes and other improvements, June promises to set an entirely new record in Riverside's building history.

BAUWARAERTS NOT SENTENCED.

The courtroom was crowded this morning in anticipation of the pronouncing of sentence on Frank Bauwaraerts, who was found guilty of first degree murder by a jury a few days ago. The Belgian was tried for the murder of Mrs. Harriet Guyot and Miss Francois of Portland, in the Chuckawalla country. The defendant's attorneys moved for a new trial, and Judge Densmore set Thursday for hearing the arguments.

THAW PLACE SOLD.

Interest attaches to a ten-acre tract sold here this week for the reason that it formerly belonged to the mother of Harry Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White. The property is located on South Monroe street, and when Mrs. Thaw owned it, was in oranges. She had the trees cut out later, and since that time the land has been used for general farming. William Barth has sold the place to C. D. Perrine, the consideration being $5500.

GOVERNMENT LABORATORY.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington will establish a laboratory in the new State citrus experiment station building now under construction at the base of Mt. Rubidoux. This statement is made by K. F. Killerman, in charge of the laboratory maintained by the government in the Abbot building in the conduct of its investigations under the auspices of the Bureau of Plant Industry. Riverside is headquarters for the government in its bacteriological investigations in the citrus belt.

PLAYGROUNDS OPENED.

The Fairmount Park playgrounds, as enlarged and improved under bond issue, were formally opened this morning with the use of the big plunge for the first time. A concrete wading pool for the little tots adjoins the plunge, and both features were thronged by school children all day. Geoffrey F. Morgan, principal of the Longfellow school, will have supervision of the playgrounds for the summer months. His assistant is Mrs. J. Van Koevering.

ENTERTAIN VISITORS.

Eighty-two delegates of the National Electric Light Association spent a good part of the day in Riverside today, arriving over the Santa Fe in what is said to be the longest train ever operated between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. The party enjoyed automobile trips over the valley and up Mt. Rubidoux. This afternoon the automobile journey was continued to Lytle Creek Canyon, where the power-house of the Southern California Edison Company was inspected.

San Diego.

PRISONERS ARE RIOTOUS.

San Diego Jail Scene of Unique Demonstration.

"Human Battleship" Is Disintegrated and Stripped.

Band Reaches San Juan Capistrano.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, June 1.—A demonstration by Industrial Workers of the World in the City Jail, and a report that forty-five members of the same organization had reached San Juan Capistrano with the intention of continuing to San Diego, to resume the campaign against the street-speaking ordinance were today's developments in the so-called "free-speech" campaign here.

According to Chief of Police J. K. Wilson, the workers in the jail, who numbered twenty-three, formed what they termed a "human battleship" or human battering ram. Taking off their shoes, they were said to have rushed upon the principal door which kept them from freedom and to have made every effort to break it down.

Chief Wilson said his officers had entered the room where the men were confined, stripped and searched them, and found them equipped with "billies" made from the handles of jail brooms, and with small weapons constructed from steel bands which had bound plumbing pipes to walls, and which the prisoners were said to have sharpened by rubbing upon the steel and cement interior of the prison.

The police said they had placed the men in solitary confinement, and that they would be denied ordinary privileges until they were willing to live up to jail regulations.

The disturbance occurred when the Police Court was in session, and was asserted by the police to have been planned largely with the intention of interfering with the proceedings in the tribunal.

It was alleged that today's demonstration was the third since the so-called "free speech" campaign was begun.

Two workers, held in the County Jail for several weeks on charges of conspiracy to violate the street-speaking law, were released today, after having pleaded guilty. They were given suspended sentences of thirty days each.

That action was in accordance with the announced intention of the authorities to free all alleged offenders as soon as they had admitted their guilt.

HONEY CROP WILL BE SHORT.

County Bee Inspector of Orange County Predicts Light Supply from That Section of State.

ANAHEIM, June 1.—County Bee Inspector J. E. Pleasants is pessimistic over the outlook for the county's honey crop this season and is convinced that conditions cannot change sufficiently to make much difference in the final outcome. He predicts practically a failure for the season's yield. Mr. Pleasants said: "The outlook is bad, very bad, and bee food is so very scarce that many people in the hills are already feeding their bees. Good rains later may help some, but I am afraid that it is too late for anything to help much. Our principal honey plant, the black sage, is a failure this year, but later the sumach and wild alfalfa may come on and do some good, although it is hardly that such may be the case."

NEWS BRIEFS.

The teachers and students of the Anaheim Grammar Schools are preparing for the annual exhibit of the work of the students which has been accomplished during the past year. A special feature will be the exhibit of the cooking class, which will prepare dainty dishes which will be judged by hundreds of parents and friends of the young cooks. Art and sewing will also be an interesting exhibit, which will be open the the public Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

Carl Marten is making a success in cabbage raising on his ranch between this city and Garden Grove. From seven acres he sold $950 worth of cabbage, and he expects to engage in the same industry on a larger scale next year.

Herman Stern, one of Anaheim's business men, and his wife leave tomorrow for a tour over Europe. They will sail June 11 and will be absent three months.

THESE DOCTORS CAN CURE YOU

Drs. Shores & Shores Have Treated 100,000 Patients in Twenty Years—They Are Skilled Specialists

There are no long waits for beneficial results when you treat with Drs. Shores. They know the symptoms of chronic diseases, and apply the proper remedy at once. Their fees are low, but you cannot get better medical service at any price. Thousands of people right here in Southern California have been treated by these wonderful doctors, and where a cure is possible they cure to stay cured. Don't waste time in experimenting with doctors who have not had the same facilities and experience, but come to the doctors who really know, and whom you can rely on to give you the best treatment, most skilled service, and yet be easy on your pocketbook. Now, Drs. Shores especially invite those who are skeptical to come. They will tell you very quickly just what your trouble is, and if and how you can be cured. Drs. Shores are each regular graduates and licensed physicians and are strictly reliable. CALL OR WRITE.

Free to the Sick

Drs. Shores offer a thorough medical examination free to all who apply this week with catarrh, deafness or any other chronic, nervous or private disease, to demonstrate their superior skill. Terms for treatment low and uniform.

Electricity—Medicine

Drs. Shores' offices are equipped with modern appliances and apparatus; remember, all medicines are furnished free. SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR TREATING WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

True Specialists

Drs. Shores have spent many years in the study and treatment of Catarrh, Asthma, Chronic and Nervous Diseases of Men, Women and Children. They have treated thousands, an experience rarely ever granted any specialists, and have gleaned therefrom information that is invaluable to sick people. They would not attempt to treat Scarlet Fever or Diphtheria at any price, not because they don't know how, but because they have not given it the thought and constant study that other doctors have, and, in short, it is not in their line of specialties. Every moment is given to studying CATARRH, CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC, NERVOUS DISEASES. There is where they excel and there is where they can serve you better than most anyone else. Don't be a permanent invalid. They know what causes Catarrh. They know how to cure. They know what causes Stomach Trouble. They know how to cure it, instead of merely relieving it. They have studied the Liver, the Kidneys, the Ears, the Throat, the Lungs, and they know what to do for these troubles.

We Treat All Chronic Diseases

Drs. Shores not only treat Catarrh, but they treat Nervous Diseases, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Bladder Troubles, Heart Diseases, Rectal Disease, Female Complaint, Nervous Debility, Spinal Trouble and Skin Diseases, Asthma, Consumption, Chronic Bronchial and Lung Trouble, Sciatica, Rheumatism, Hay Fever, Neuralgia, Hysteria, Deafness, Ear Diseases, Goitre, Epilepsy, La Grippe, etc., and all forms of Nervous and Chronic Diseases that are curable.

PROMINENT SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH

THE HEAD AND THROAT.

This form of catarrh is most common—resulting from neglected colds—quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

Is your head stopped up?
Does your nose discharge?
Is your nose sore and tender?
Is there pain in front of the head?
Do you hawk to clear the throat?
Is your throat dry in the morning?
Do you sleep with your mouth open?

You can be easily cured now. Don't let it run into complications.

THE BRONCHIAL TUBES.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends down the windpipe into the bronchial tubes and after a while attacks the lungs.

Have you a cough?
Do you take cold easily?
Have you a pain in the side?
Do you raise frothy materials?
Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?
Do you feel like you were growing weaker?

Don't risk neglecting these warnings—stop the disease before it reaches the lungs.

OF THE EARS.

Catarrh extends from the throat along the eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness.

Is your hearing failing?
Do your ears discharge?
Do they ring?
Is the wax drying in your ears?
Do you hear better on some days?
Does a cold make your hearing worse?

Don't neglect this until your hearing is irreparably destroyed.

OF THE STOMACH.

Catarrh of the stomach is usually caused by swallowing poisonous mucous which drops down from the head and throat at night.

Is there nausea?
Do you belch up gas?
Are you constipated?
Do you bloat after eating?
Is there constant bad taste?

Now is the time to be permanently cured. Drs. Shores are curing hundreds every year. Consultation Free.

FINANCIAL NEWS SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Pennsylvania for April shows a decrease in net of $1,543,734.

Mercantile agencies report fair conditions for business with expansion in steel trade.

Failures this week, 231; against 218 previous week.

Steel unfilled tonnage not expected to show large increase for May, due to heavy shipments.

Idle cars decreased 13,897 in fortnight ended May 23.

Twelve industrials declined 1.87 per cent.; twenty active rails declined 1.73 per cent.

While during the trading of the past week quoted securities values have been forced to a somewhat lower level, still the occurrences taken on the whole were rather more constructive than otherwise.

Political considerations it is true have been and for an indefinite period, are likely to remain as more or less of an influence, calculated to produce hesitancy, if not uncertainty.

The conventions promise to be fully as exciting as the primaries, and until party lines are more clearly defined and the candidates and their theories definitely known, there will doubtless be many whose inclinations will counsel a conservative course.

As far as trade and industry are concerned, steady progress apparently is being recorded, and as to the crops the advices from agricultural sections while conflicting in detail on the whole, may be said to denote a more favorable prospective outcome than was the case some weeks ago.

There does not appear to be anything radically wrong with fundamentals, especially so with the banking situation, which has been strengthened by various readjustments and though admittedly railroad earnings have been spotty, still the change of attitude on the part of shippers in intermountain territory appears to be an indication of what might reasonably be expected when it is more generally realized that the largest corporations should not be unduly hampered in their efforts to provide such facilities as are necessary to keep pace with, and stimulate rapid growth of trade and industry.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Eggs advanced on the produce exchange yesterday 1 cent all around, making a total advance of 2 cents the past two days. New quotations range from 20 to 26 cents, the top quotation being on ranch candled, which was restored to the board after an absence of one month. When the candled quotation was removed it was announced that in the future dealers would be left to get whatever they could for eggs put to the candle test. Dissatisfaction arose and it was decided to put the quotation back on the board.

The change in egg prices gives a wider range for trading. Outside eggs are now quoted at 21 and 24 cents. Butter declined 1 cent a pound, creamery extras now being quoted at 26½ and firsts at 25½. Heavy receipts the past several days is given as the cause for the drop.

There was a decline of from 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds on grain and feed at the mills. The reduction did not extend to flour but the market is a little week and in consequence flour is likely to drop.

The produce market was well cleaned up for Sunday. Cherries, however, were somewhat slow to move. The regular daily shipment from the North reached the city several hours late. In it were 1300 boxes. The fruit showed a slight improvement over the shipments, since the recent rain, which damaged the crop. Cherries sold on the street at 5 and 8 cents.

Tomatoes arrived in large quantity from Mexico. There were no local tomatoes and none from Imperial Valley. The Mexican shipment in consequence sustained the market.

A car of pineapples from Hawaii came in yesterday. The fruit sold at 8½ cents a pound. Apricots were in limited receipt. Sweet potatoes would not sell yesterday. Receipts were rather large for this time of the year. Produce men said sweet potatoes were a drag because there was too much green stuff in the market. There was practically no call for asparagus. Onions were steady and moved rapidly.

Receipts of the leading produce staples were light: Eggs, 365 cases; butter, 22,759 pounds; cheese, 1814 pounds; potatoes, 289 sacks.

Oil Stocks Sales.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] Morning oil sales: 250 New Pennsylvania at 48; 500 do. at 49.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE.

Forty-four Shares National Pacific Sell Around Two Cents—First National Active.

The chief attraction on the Los Angeles Exchange yesterday was National Pacific, 44,000 shares selling during the short session at prices ranging from 2 1-4 to 2 5-8 cents. The closing sale was made at the latter figure, and the stock closed at 2½ bid and 2 5-8 asked.

Union Oil made a fractional advance, closing with a sale at $98.87½. Ten shares of Mexican Petroleum preferred sold, seller thirty days, at $94.50 and twenty Traders Oil at $80. Amalgamated sold down to $74.50, off board.

First National Bank stock was traded the first time in several weeks. Two shares sold at $700 and it closed at $704 asked.

Trading was fairly well divided among the several lists. In the mining list 4000 shares of Consolidated Mines sold at 4½, the closing price.

NO MORE ICE BILLS

What is the temperature in the food chamber of your ice box? Well, you don't know, in fact, you never thought about it. If we informed you that it averages 55 degrees, would it not surprise you? Supposing you put a thermometer in the food chamber and read it twice daily; you will then be convinced that your ice does no more than if you saved the expense, the constant drip and unsanitary results from the ice, by using a No Ice Refrigerator.

Call at the Company's office, and be convinced. If not convenient, inquire and we will give you all information appertaining to this wonderful, sanitary and inexpensive invention of a refrigerator.

Speculate In Oil

On a Square Deal Basis

We believe that right here in Southern California there is a lot of money ready to go into a fair, square speculation in oil. One of our clients recently called at this office and stated:

"I don't want 6 per cent on my money. I don't even want a reasonable profit—I want a big profit. I am willing to take a chance with a couple of hundred dollars, and I want to know that I am putting the money in where the company is not over-capitalized, where the management is good and where there is a reasonable expectation of bringing in wells of such magnitude that I can expect to cash in $2000 or $3000 as a result of my $200 speculation. I am willing to take a reasonable risk with the right people, provided I know I am getting a fair, square deal and a good run for my money."

Now, we have carefully and painstakingly investigated many different oil propositions with an idea of finding something that we could offer our clients which would answer the above requirements.

The proposition which we are submitting herewith is, we believe, the best possible sort of a speculation in oil, that is as nearly certain to prove highly successful, as it is possible to find.

We refer to the Coblentz Oil Company.

This company has a twenty year lease on forty-eight acres of ground in the Santa Maria field adjoining the New Pennsylvania.

This company is incorporated under the laws of California with a capital stock of $400,000. At the present time there is nearly 200,000 shares of stock in the treasury.

The officers and directors are:

T. R. Finley, President and Manager; Frank Smith, Vice-President; Edward Morris, Secretary; First National Bank, Treasurer.

Mr. Finley is also the President and Manager of the New Pennsylvania Petroleum Company, which is located on the adjoining property and has been paying regular monthly dividends for years.

The property consists of a twenty year lease on forty-eight acres of ground. A one-eighth royalty is to be paid when production is secured, but no cash rental during the time operations are under way. While the lease is for twenty years, yet the pumping rights on all oil wells drilled are perpetual.

The property is equipped with a full Standard rig, tools, houses, tanks, casing and other equipment. The hole is cased with 12½, 10, 8 and 6 inch pipe, and the company has over 1000 feet of 4½ inch on hand with which to continue drilling. The equipment is worth about $30,000.

Well No. 1 is located just 600 yards east of New Pennsylvania No. 6. This New Pennsylvania well is one of the best wells in the State of California, and has been producing 300 barrels of twenty-five gravity oil daily for nearly three years. This well has a remarkable record for consistency of production.

Mr. T. R. Finley, the President and Manager of both the Coblentz and New Pennsylvania Petroleum, writes us that Coblentz well is almost completed and that there is no doubt in his mind but that when it is finished the Coblentz will get the same quality of oil as did New Pennsylvania No. 6, and this oil will sell for not less than 75 cents per barrel.

Well No. 1 on this Coblentz property has reached a depth of 3750 feet. Mr. Finley states that they anticipate getting oil within the next 600 feet and within all probability within 300 feet. He further states:

"We base this assertion to the relative location of our well to New Pennsylvania No. 6, which is 1700 feet away. From a dip in the slope it is safe to say that 600 feet at the outside will reach the sands encountered in that well which were productive of one of the best wells in the old field."

Now, we have analyzed this proposition from an investment and speculation standpoint and as a result of our work the following facts stick out most strongly:

FIRST: The company is incorporated with a very modest capitalization, viz.: 400,000 shares, of which nearly one-half are yet in the treasury.
SECOND: The property adjoins one of the best properties and one of the most profitable producing properties in the State of California.
THIRD: The management is excellent in every respect and have proven their ability by the results they have shown on the adjoining property.
FOURTH: The stock of the company is largely held right in Santa Maria, where the property of the Coblentz Oil Company is well known.
FIFTH: The nearest well to this property is one of the best in the State and has an earning capacity of approximately $75,000 per year.
SIXTH: Every present stockholder owns stock today that has cost him much more than the price at which we are offering a small block.
SEVENTH: The hard grinding work has been done. The well is now 3750 feet. Only a little more money and a little more work is needed.
EIGHTH: One well as good as the well on the adjoining property, and one well alone, should enable this company to pay dividends each year of more than the price you pay for a share of stock.
NINTH: The completion of this well, should it be as good as its nearest neighbor, means that this stock will have a value of not less than $1.00 per share as a result of bringing in that one well. Other wells would, of course, increase the value of the stock.

We are firmly of the opinion that this well can be completed within a very short time and that it will be a big well.

There is, of course, a reasonable risk to be taken and we do not solicit the money of the "widows and orphans" for a speculation of this kind. We do believe, however, that any hard-headed business man who will take out his pencil and figure on this proposition will have no hesitancy in buying a few hundred or a few thousand shares of this stock. There isn't a better oil speculation to be had in the State of California today, according to our way of looking at it.

The stock that we are offering for sale is treasury stock. We do not make it a practice to offer treasury stock in any company, and we would not in this instance but for the fact that the company needs only such a small additional amount of money to finish up this well that we are certain we will do our clients a favor in giving them an opportunity to put up this little money and share in the tremendous profits that should be made.

The company's indebtedness is $2500 and this should be paid off, together with a few thousand dollars additional to complete well No. 1 and put the company in a good, strong financial condition.

We have been authorized to sell a small block of this treasury stock and will accept subscriptions at 15 cents per share for the next five days. We are soliciting subscriptions for cash only but if you can't pay all cash let us know just about how you want the payments arranged and if we can do so we will be glad to accommodate you.

We believe that every reader of this announcement will find it to his advantage to buy a small block of this stock, even though it be only one hundred shares.

We believe that if you will write to any one at Santa Maria that they will tell you practically what we have told you in this announcement. Mr. T. R. Finley, President and Manager, whose address is Santa Maria, California, will substantiate all the statements we have made herein.

Orders will be alloted as they are received. It is a case of "first come, first served." Should your money be received too late we will promptly return it to you. Send in $15 and buy 100 shares or $30 for 200 shares, if you can't buy any more. You can buy 1000 shares, par value $1000, for only $150.

This proposition certainly looks as though you would have a chance to see your stock go to par within a very short time.

Please bear in mind that the value of the equipment alone on this property is sufficient to place a valuation of 15 cents per share upon all the outstanding capital stock. Also bear in mind that you are getting your stock even cheaper than did the original buyers. Also please do not forget that the long wait is nearly over. The company has to drill only a few hundred feet more when they should have the same rich oil bearing sands that have proven so profitable for their nearest neighbor.

We suggest that you call at our office tomorrow or write us a letter today, enclosing remittance at the rate of 15 cents per share for a few hundred or a few thousand shares of this stock.

The company expects to list the stock on the San Francisco or Los Angeles Exchange just as soon as this well No. 1 is completed.

The completion of this well, and only between three hundred and six hundred feet of drilling is now necessary, will send the price advancing to between 50 cents and $2.00 per share.

Now, we have tried to tell you our story as it was told to us. We have given you all the facts as we found them. It is up to you to decide just how much of this stock you want. We certainly believe it will be to your interest to have a little of this stock and we suggest for your own protection that you get your order in by first mail. We really have very little of the stock to offer.

Our Weekly Market Letter

contains information of value to every one interested in the California oil business. If you have been reading our Weekly Market Letter you are aware of the following facts:

FIRST: That we predicted the sensational advance which has taken place in Mexican Petroleum and advised our customers to buy it. Had you followed our advice you could have cashed in large profits today.
SECOND: Although it was definitely stated that the Palmer properties had been sold to an English Syndicate for ten million dollars, we advised our clients that we did not believe this statement and advised them to dispose of their stock and get out from under it. Since that time the stock has continued to decline.
THIRD: When Pyramid stock was being promoted and quoted around 40 cents per share we began to advise our customers to get out from under it, and the fact that the stock has gone down until today it is selling around 15 and 17 cents per share is sufficient evidence of the value of our advice.
FOURTH: We advised our clients to dispose of Buick Oil stock when it was quoted around 50 cents per share, and, of course, it is impossible to sell it for anything like that figure today.
FIFTH: In our Weekly Market Letter we have endeavored to give the facts regarding various oil stocks which are being offered for sale on both Exchanges, and also the unlisted stock. We have not hesitated to call a "spade a spade."

Some promoters and some oil companies don't like us and openly say so. We don't blame them. We are building up our business by telling our clients the facts as we gather them, whether they be good or bad. We shall at all times in our Weekly Market Letter endeavor to point out the stocks for profit and those that should be sold. No matter what oil company you own stock in it will pay you to read our Market Letter every week.

There are few oil stocks that can really be classed as investments. There is a difference between investment and speculation. We think the average American is willing to speculate but he wants to know that he is getting a square deal and a fair speculation. He doesn't want to be told that a prospective piece of oil land is as safe an investment as a Government Bond.

In the announcement above we have called attention to what we consider a mighty good speculation. It is not an investment by any manner of means. If it was a solid, substantial investment you could not buy it for 15 cents per share. If the company had brought in its first well you could not buy it for that amount of money.

It is up to you whether or not you want to speculate in the shares of that little company. The bringing in of a good well will make you a tremendous amount of money from a small speculation.

There are several good oil stock investments where you are sure of regular dividends upon your money. We tell you about these various investments in our Market Letter.

If you want to speculate and want a chance to make great, big profits, send us your order for some Coblentz stock mentioned in the above announcement.

If you have a few hundred or a few thousand dollars that you want to invest and do not want to risk in a speculation, let us know and we will submit something for your consideration.

If you want any information about any oil company we would be glad to give it to you.

We will be glad to send you our Weekly Market Letter every week without any charge whatever. Simply fill out the coupon below and mail it to our office.

RESPONSIVE TO LONDON.

WEAKNESS DISAPPEARS FROM THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Most Prominent Issues and the Industrials Close With Marked Net Gains Resulting in Part from Good Support and the Modicum of Short Covering.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—Irregularity and hesitation during the first hour, followed by a degree of firmness toward the close, were the salient features of today's brief session of the stock exchange. Responding to London, where most of our stocks were above the preceding day, probably on New York buying, the total market opened with little trace of yesterday's weakness. The more prominent issues, including Reading, Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, United States steel and the industrials closed with marked net gains. This doubtless resulted in part from good support and a modicum of short covering. The commercial agencies point to the slight reduction in bank clearings compared with a year ago, as proof that general trade is again inclined to lag. The only notable feature of the bank statement was the very small actual cash gain—a little more than $800,000—whereas estimates had made the gain from $5,000,000 to [illegible],000,000. Actual loans showed a relatively small contraction as against an average loan decrease of nearly $4,000,000. The bond market was irregular with improvement in some of yesterday's weak issues. Total sales, par value, $902,000. United States government bonds were unchanged on call.

New York Curb Stocks.

[Special Service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—There was little business in the copper shares today. The industrials were active, with Marconi showing the greatest strength, selling up to 11¼, and reacting slightly at the close. British American Tobacco closed strong, 27¼@27½.

The Boston market opened nominally at closing prices, but quiet; some show of strength was attempted, but the uncertainty of the New York market caused extreme quietness to appear in the coppers, but the undertone remained strong.

Following are the closing bid and asked prices:

New York Cotton Market.

[Special Service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., members New York and other exchanges, 118 W. Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—The market fluctuated within a narrow range of four points today, but there was a good demand on limited orders, supposed to be for Memphis account, and thought likely to be covering ahead of the government's report. New Orleans was also a buyer, and as that market will be closed on Monday, this business probably reflected final evening up. The weather was generally favorable, but no rain was reported in Oklahoma or Texas, where needed.

Logan & Bryan say:

"Trading in cotton was limited in the extreme, and natural fluctuations were of the narrowest sort. While the Journal of Commerce report on Texas and Oklahoma was not as favorable as the trade had expected from these States, weather conditions since the replies were forwarded have been rather favorable, and the general sentiment is that the report does not correctly reflect conditions today. The weather over night was generally favorable, some rain being reported in the western portion of Texas and Oklahoma, with lower temperatures and indications for showers in all sections east of the Mississippi River. Trading during most of the half day session was done at a decline of two to three points. Bureau report giving crop conditions as of May 25 will be announced Tuesday noon, eastern time, and in the meantime several private reports are due."

STAMPEDE TO SELL WHEAT.

GENERAL RAINS IN KANSAS AND NEBRASKA.

Drouth and Heat Had Made the Crop Situation in Those States Critical, but Now It Is Much Better—Prices Break Two and Five-eighths.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 1.—A selling stampede in wheat today resulted from general rains throughout Kansas and Nebraska, where drought and heat had made the crop situation critical. Prices broke as much as 2 5-8 and closed unsettled 1 7-8 under last night. Corn suffered a setback of 2 and finished with a net loss of ¾ to 2 3-8. Oats declined ⅝ to 1@1 1-8 and provisions 5. July wheat fluctuated from 1.07½ to 1.09¼, with last sales 1 7-8 off at 1.08fl. July corn ranged from 72 to 74 7-8@75, closing nervous at 72 5-8, a net loss of 2 3-8. July oats ranged from 47½ to 49@49 1-8, with the close 1@1 1-8 down at 48@48 1-8. Steadiness developed in the provisions pit. Prices closed within 5 of last night.

THE COPPER INDUSTRY.

London copper opened firm. Spots, £75, 13s 9d, up 5s; futures, £76, 3s 9d, up 5s.

The Engineering and Mining Journal contains interesting figures on copper production. It says:

"United States production of copper in 1911 amounted to 1,083,856,371 pounds. This figure compares with that for 1910 of 1,086,249,983 pounds. The world's production for 1911 is placed at 1,955,141,952 pounds, compared with 1,944,690,400 pounds."

The above figures indicate the production in the United States fell off in 1911, while in the world's production an increase of only 11,000,000 pounds was shown. Consequently the much heralded increase in copper production for the year did not materialize.

An increase of more than 900,000 pounds in the gross production for April by Utah Copper represents at present metal prices, and on an estimated cost of production of 7½ cents a pound, additional earnings at the rate of $930,000 per annum.

During April gross production amounted to 9,069,237 pounds, or at the rate of approximately 109,000,000 pounds per annum, which indicates that Utah's net production at the present time is at the rate of 103,000,000 pounds per annum. This is an increase of approximately 10,500,000 pounds over 1911. Nevada Consolidated, the control of which is held by Utah Copper and from which it receives dividends of slightly in excess of $1,500,000 per annum, is now turning out copper at the rate of 70,000,000 pounds per annum as against approximately 63,000,000 for 1911.

If copper is estimated as being sold at 16½ cents, and, allowing for the dividends from Nevada Consolidated, Utah Copper's net output at the present time, based on the above supposition as to cost of production, is in the neighborhood of $6.70 a share.

Utah from now on should show a steady increase in production from its Bingham mines until the reduction plants have been brought up to rated capacity of 20,000 tons a day, which should be by July 1. At this time it is expected that production will be averaging in the neighborhood of 140,000,000 pounds per annum, which, at 16½-cent copper, the cost assumed above, and the dividends received from Nevada Consolidated, would indicate earnings of approximately $8.75 per share. On this basis of Utah's entire equity in Nevada's earnings, both this figure and the one above of $6.70 a share, would be considerably increased.

Frederick Lyon, assistant managing director of the United States Smelting Company, takes an optimistic view of the company's operations in both California and Mexico.

He tells Hutton's Salt Lake correspondent that the baghouse at the Mammoth company's plant at Kennet, Cal., is operating successfully, and no damage is resulting whatever; that only an immaterial number of farmers are objecting to present conditions; the company has no fear of reported litigation and he doubts if any suits are in contemplation. He says the farmers are not dishonest, but simply mistaken in ascribing more ills to smelting operations than are due.

Regarding the company's operations in Mexico he says there is no interference to operations through the revolution, and he does not expect any.

The United States Company is now showing the largest earnings in its history—around $350,000 a month, which is at the rate of $8 a share on the common stock before depreciation charges.

EXPERIENCES IN SERMON

Pastor of Temple Baptist Church Returns From East and Will Tell What He Saw—Politics, Too.

The experiences of a three weeks' trip through the East will be the subject of a sermon at Temple Baptist Church this morning by Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, who returned last night.

Dr. Brougher visited Washington, where he delivered an address at the National Seminary. He was at the Fifth-avenue Baptist Church May 19 and met John D. Rockefeller. He talked with the oil king concerning Temple Baptist Church and its work.

From New York Dr. Brougher went to Des Moines to attend the northern Baptist convention, which distinguished itself for its progressive and insurgent measures. He introduced a resolution instructing the Executive Committee to so amend the bylaws that a preferential vote on all officers of the convention may be held.

The doings of the convention will be told by Dr. Brougher this morning, and he will review some of the brilliant speeches he heard.

In his evening sermon he will use his trip from New York to Los Angeles as a symbol of the journey of life. He will also discuss political situations. He returned to this city on the same train with Lieut.-Gov. Wallace, who had been attending the Methodist conference at Minneapolis. From Wallace he obtained some interesting political sidelights.

TO RESTORE PLAZA CHURCH.

Fiesta Will Be Held This Month to Raise Funds for Repairing Landmark—Many Attractions.

For the purpose of raising funds to repair the Church of Our Lady of the Angels, at the Plaza, a unique fiesta will be held there from the 10th to the 15th inst. Catholics and Protestants are asked to exert every effort to make the undertaking a success.

In booths representing California missions and cloisters bewitching senoritas will sell all manner of things. A dining-room serving Spanish and meals of other European countries will be a feature.

Matters of historical interest will be discussed by well known speakers and there will be amusements, too. This part of the programme is being handled by church societies. Many surprises are promised.

The Plaza Church is one of the landmarks of Southern California. It marked the center of the pueblo of Los Angeles, and has seen a great metropolis grow up around a peaceful village of sheep herders and ranchmen. Time's ravages have left many scars on the historic pile, and it is hoped to raise sufficient funds by means of the fiesta to restore Our Lady of the Angels to is former glory.

CONTINUE I. W. W. INQUIRY.

Final Roundup of Witnesses This Week—Evidence Thus Far Adduced Said to be Unconvincing.

It is the understanding that if United States District Attorney Robinson is able to give the week to the further investigation of the I.W.W., it will be concluded this week. Charles De Lacour, a private detective in the employ of citizens of San Diego, was in the city, yesterday, arranging for the final round-up of witnesses. He said there is just one more phase of the case to investigate.

It is no secret that the testimony so far taken before the grand jury has not been wholly convincing so far as violations of the Federal statutes are concerned. The statutes name sedition, treason and conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws as causes under which prosecutions may be made. It is believed that while much evidence along that line has been taken, it is not of a character to constitute competent evidence before a jury. Under the Federal laws it is not a violation of any law to denounce the national flag unless a charge of disorderly conduct can be maintained against the violator, and then it is only matter for the attention of municipal authorities.

GUARANTEE DAMAGE WAIVERS.

Property Owners of San Pedro Assure Public Works Grading Privileges for Beacon Street.

A committee of San Pedro property owners composed of Dr. Randolph W. Hill and Messrs. Hall and Goodrich, visited the Board of Public Works yesterday to assure that body that property owners along the proposed Beacon-street route to the harbor frontage would sign waivers of damages for the cuts necessary on the Beacon Hill. A cut of about twenty-four feet would be required at the maximum point, but property owners believe that the improvement of the street as a part of the highway to the water front would justify them in making waivers of damages. It was stated yesterday that if this work was undertaken at least three substantial brick business blocks will be erected on Beacon street. One property owner who had deplored the proposed cut, declaring regret that an offer of $10,000 for the property had not been accepted was promptly offered that amount for the lot, with the privilege of removing the house on it, but at once raised the price to $15,000.

The Board of Public Works has not yet received from Engineer Hamlin the detailed estimates of cost on the Beacon-street route and the Pacific avenue route. It is probable these reports will reach the board during the ensuing week, and that final decisions as to the route to be used will be reached.

PERSONALS.

C. H. Baker, accompanied by Mrs. Baker and their two children, are sojourning in the principal eastern cities. Baker is combining business with pleasure and buying shoes for his eight Pacific Coast stores. Mrs. Baker and the children will spend the summer at a fashionable beach near Boston. The eldest daughter, Charline, a student at Dana Hall, will soon leave with a number of Wellesley girls for an extended European trip.

W. A. Taylor is registered at the Van Nuys. He is one of the officials of the Pacific Hardware & Steel Company of San Francisco. J. W. Hobson, a land operator with offices in San Francisco, accompanied by J. B. Struble, is making his home at the same place.

W. G. Clinch, Mrs. C. G. Clinch and C. D. Clinch are guests at the Alexandria. They are here from San Francisco. W. G. Clinch is vice-president and manager of the Clinch & Co., manufacturers and dealers in paints, oils and varnishes. Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Joyce of San Francisco are passing their honeymoon at the same hotel. They are registered from San Francisco.

William H. Stanley and M. H. Chance are guests at the Hollenbeck. They are interested in the manufacturing of tools and are owners of a factory at Athol, Mass. Their intention is to locate if possible a plant in or near Los Angeles. H. E. Gard, manager of the Southern Pacific Hotel at Indio is staying at the same hotel.

Dr. W. H. Edwards, a practicing physician of Spokane, is at the Hayward while looking after local investments. C. H. Lyne, a planter of Miami, Fla., with his family is at the same hotel. H. E. Drendel and A. E. Drendel, owners of the Pacific Beer Company of San Francisco, which has a branch here, are registered at the Hayward.

H. M. Hart, owner of one of the big cattle ranches of Arizona, is registered at the Angelus from that place. H. Bar C. Ranch is the title given the property and it is located in the northwestern portion of the State.

R. D. Adams, a mining engineer of La Paz, Bolivia, who was one of the pioneers in the Klondike and who is well-known in Los Angeles, having an orange ranch of considerable size at Lindsey, arrived at the Hollenbeck yesterday from the South American country. This is his first visit home in two years.

G. P. Winds, with his family is a Mexican refugee who arrived at the Lankershim yesterday from Nacozari, Sonora. He will remain here for several weeks. C. R. Glick and wife of Chicago are staying at the same hotel. Glick is a Chicago manufacturer. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ingals, Hazel and Oscar Ingals form a family party who registered at the hotel yesterday from Oakland, where Ingals is in the real estate business.

Dr. P. W. McLeod, surgeon of Tonopah, is making his home at the Van Nuys. Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Dimmick are registered from San Francisco. Dimmick is president of the Albion Lumber Company. S. S. Magruder is an author of the same city, registered at the same hotel.

Thomas Wren Ward, with his wife and servants is occupying a suite at the Alexandria. Ward is a retired professional man of Boston and has been passing the winter at Santa Barbara. The Ward home in the East is located on Jamaica Plain.

W. E. Youle and daughter, Miss May Youle, of No. 2734 Normandie avenue, will leave for the East on Wednesday, and will sail from New York for Europe on June 15. Youle is one of the successful oil men of California, and drilled the first well in this district, coming here from Pennsylvania. He says he has been forty-nine years at the grind, and thinks he has well earned the five months vacation he now proposes to take.

A. F. Statter, for two years special agent of the United States Treasury Department, in Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, has gone to Chicago, where he will become private secretary to Secretary W. D. Hayward, of the Republican National Committee. Statter was for years connected with the Treasury Department at Washington, and for a time Assistant Treasurer of the United States under Secretary Leslie M. Shaw, of Iowa.

Mayor Alexander's Appeal TO THE CITIZENS OF LOS ANGELES

At the outcome of the long and bitter internal struggle in Mexico a large number of persons residing in that country have been deprived of their property and of their civil rights and have been compelled to seek a haven in Los Angeles and other cities. A number of these arrived in this city on the United States transport Buford on Memorial Day. Others have come over various other routes.

Many of these refugees are in distressing circumstances. Their urgent and immediate needs include clothing, food, hospital service and housing. Among these refugees are a number of families in absolutely destitute circumstances, having suffered the loss of everything they possessed in the homes they have just abandoned. Such as these need not only food and clothing but furniture, as they are practically starting life over again without means to purchase the necessities of life. Those who are in fit physical condition need employment.

For the relief of these refugees it is estimated that at least $5000 is needed at once. The Associated Charities will disburse this fund and do everything in its power to see that the suffering of those persons whom fate has thrown in our midst is alleviated, but this institution can do nothing without funds, and $5000 is the minimum amount needed.

I therefore call upon the citizens of Los Angeles to contribute to the relief fund at once in accordance with their means. All checks should be made payable to H. W. Frank, 443 South Spring street, president of the Associated Charities. Those having clothing and furniture to donate should communicate at once with the Associated Charities at 232 No. Main st., or they can be reached by telephone—Main 5366 and F5203.

GEORGE ALEXANDER,
Mayor.

SHAKE-UP IS NOW EXPECTED.

Von Bieberstein's Appointment Will Make Changes.

Kill Off All Cats Is Cry of the Doctors in Berlin.

Tom and Tabby Are Blamed for Spread of Disease.

BY MALCOM CLARKE.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

BERLIN, June 1.—A general shake-up in Germany's representation at foreign capitals is expected to follow the transfers necessitated by the supercession of Wolff-Meternich at London by Mareschall von Bieberstein. This, however, will not mean any change in so far as the German Embassy at Washington is concerned. Such, at least, is the opinion in the best-informed circles here. The Kaiser has been fortunate in his choice of the present Ambassador to the United States and everybody seems to agree that it would be a mistake to "switch horses" at a time when important commercial questions are undecided but in the best hands possible to realize an understanding satisfactory to both nations.

Cats will soon be an expensive luxury in Berlin if a crusade which has just started gains the headway which the promoters expect it will. One of our most distinguished medical men tells us that cats are responsible for two-thirds of infantile ailments. The child will play with Tom or Tabby and neither Tom nor Tabby will refrain from wandering now and then along the tiles. In their nocturnal peregrinations, says the doctor, they pick up diseases which they transmit to the nursery. There is only one remedy—kill off all the cats. This doctor has made numerous experiments, testing both children and cats, and he finds that in infancy a certain feline tendency is observable in all mankind. He says it is this kindred spirit which draws children and elderly women towards cats. Nature is speaking in the subconscious ego; and, to quote him, "All cats are abominable. They have no sense of discrimination." A short while ago we had a general vendetta against the poor little twittering sparrow. Now, it is the sparrow's chief enemy who is doomed to the headsman's block. As Berlin women are particularly fond of cats—many splendid specimens of the Persian, Angora and Maltese are to be seen in Berlin boudoirs—there is just a chance that the aristocratic cats may obtrude between the common, work-and-catch-mice-for-their-living "meowlers."

The Crown Prince of Germany is one of the most democratic men in the empire. He does not care to have his rank paraded and frequently shocks ultra-conservative people by his fondness for chance acquaintances. He delighted one of the Wright brothers when he made an aeroplane ascension and insisted upon going as high as possible. "It would not be safe to go higher," the aviator protested when they reached a certain altitude. "Do you ever go higher?" responded the prince. "Sometimes, yes," replied Wright; "but never when I have an heir apparent for a passenger." "Don't mind the heir," said the Crown Prince of Germany, "let's have more air instead." And he insisted upon getting it. He never makes speeches and never grants interviews; but he spends a lot of time going among the poor and doing good where he can.

Sweden, the home of many enterprising suggestions, delighted the German socialists by the hint given in battleship building by popular subscription. Recently a deputation waited upon the King of Sweden and presented His Majesty with 13,000,000 kroner (about $3,500,000) to provide a new battleship for the Swedish navy. In addition to this substantial sum the Swedish navy volunteers have $1,500,000 tucked away for coast defense purposes, and subscriptions are still coming along.

"Good for the Swedes," say those who object to Germany's heavy load of military taxation. "Why should not those who demand immense navies pay for them? Let the militarists pay for the cost of militant propaganda." This cue from the northern kingdom, coupled with the practical plan of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis to end all wars, came at an opportune moment—when Lord Haldane was again in Berlin, "merely for the benefit of his health," of course, but even statesmen know how to combine business with pleasure and recuperation. The Otis peace programme meets with warm approval from some of the greatest minds in the empire. It is pointed out that Europe already provides precedents in parts for a peace pact which would really give assurance of lasting peace and progress has been made to the point when the world is ready for a plan of the magnitude and force proposed by the great American, who speaks with personal knowledge of the horrors of war. There are many German campaigners who know Gen. Otis intimately and they speak very highly of his military skill. This esteem from the professional warriors, very naturally, makes his advocacy of peace on a practical basis all the more authoritative.

A man in Budapest is seeking to divorce his wife because she gave him sponges soaked in cream as a dessert. This was evidently a "trifle" too much for him.

SEEKS JAKE SOLOMON.

If anybody in Los Angeles or California knows of the whereabouts of Jake Solomon, a printer by trade, his father, now living at No. 612 Turner street, this city, will be glad to hear from them. The old man has been in the County Hospital for a long time, but has now been discharged, and needs the help of his son. He has a wife and five children in New York, and desires to get back to them.

NEW TRAFFIC LAWS.

Virtually every municipality in the United States will be interested in the new ordinance for the regulation of motor vehicle traffic soon to be adopted by the Board of Aldermen of the city of New York.

That the present city ordinance, which prescribes a speed of eight and fifteen miles an hour, is obsolete is conceded upon all sides, especially as there is scarcely an automobile driven at the present time without violating the city's speed ordinance.

New German Ambassador at the Court of St. James, whose appointment will probably be followed by general shake-up in German diplomatic circles.

Grand Old Man.

HEALTH OF FRANZ JOSEF AGAIN CONCERNS EUROPE.

Ruler of the Dual Monarchy Said to Be in a Bad Way Since Death of His Aged Chaplain—Strauss Obsessed With the El Dorado Theme for an Opera That Might "Listen" Well in San Francisco.

BY EMIL ANDRASSY.

[SPECIAL BY FEDERAL WIRELESS TELEGRAPH LINE.]

VIENNA, June 1.—The health of the Emperor Francis Joseph, the "grand old man of Europe," is again giving his people grave concern. Since the recent death of his octogenarian chaplain and confessor, Monsignor Mayor, he has developed symptoms of despondency which have alarmed the court physicians. He was advised not to attend the chaplain's funeral, owing to the sudden change in the weather from intense heat to a chilling rain, but he insisted upon heading the cortege of mourners. "He was my faithful friend and counsellor," said his Imperial Majesty, "and I cannot refuse this slight token of my affection for him."

AN AGED COMEDIAN.

The day before the funeral of Monsignor Mayor, the Emperor gave audience to another old friend, Herr Baumeister, the senior player in the Imperial Burgtheater. This Austrian actor is still able to make audiences laugh and cry at the ripe old age of 84. He treasures a wonderful stock of stage stories culled from his experiences as a player during sixty years and more, and is still adding to the diary which he began with his first appearance behind the footlights. Although Herr Baumeister is so old he has frequently been on the point of making an American tour. He was offered an engagement by a New York syndicate three years ago. Only one thing deterred him from accepting—the long sea voyage.

"The only time I have ever been to sea," he says in his droll way, "was when I played Vanderdecken; and the way they rolled the scenic sea around made me so sick that I could not act for a fortnight afterwards."

AN IDEA FOR STRAUSS.

Herr Richard Strauss, while resting in Italy, read Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West" and, according to one of his intimates here, it gave him an excellent idea. The indefatigable John Barrett's probing into the byways of early South and Central American history has reached Vienna in numerous translations of the records of "El Dorado." Strauss seems to think that if ever actual history presented cut and dry material for the lyric drama it has done so most magnificently in the quest of the "King of Gold." He has already jotted down a few suggestions for his scenario and is pondering over it in the Strauss way. Without the weaknesses of the flesh which hampered the author of "Stabat Mater" and "Wilhelm Tell," Strauss has a good many of Rossini's eccentricities. He cannot lead the "Blue Danube" or any of his dance pieces without going through the motions of the measure mazes, and his moustaches just as much as his baton give tempo and tone to singers and band when he is directing his operas. And, like the great Italian exponent of the realities of life in tonal poetry, Strauss works just when he feels like it and then he is a perfect tempest. Sheets of paper, pens, ink-blots are scattered around in his excitement. He will smash the rarest piece of bric-a-brac to lasso a fugitive inspiration. That is how he dreams those eerie diapasons, of which he is the most towering master in the music of today.

The idea of an opera around "El Dorado" seems excellent. The work will require a personal visit to the slope of the Andes, the great West of the new American "Wonderland" in which literary and artistic Europe is now intensely interested.

If "El Dorado" is to be written by Strauss, would it not make a splendid bill for the great World's Fair opening? It would be worth holding to give San Francisco, the great musical metropolis of the Golden West, the honor, and the work itself the glamour of a sensational premiere.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

The State Highway.

BAKERSFIELD, May 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is, I assure you, with more than ordinary pleasure that I notice the Tejon Pass route for the proposed great State highway has been favored thus far by the State Highway Commission, for the simple reason that they consider the same much shorter and more direct, and, also, that there will be a most material difference in the actual cost of construction between that route and the road which the people of Tehachepi are agitating. And in this connection, it may be that some of the citizens of Bakersfield are not sufficiently acquainted as to the inexpediency of constructing the highway via Tehachepi, and for that very reason are partial towards that route.

I have been a long resident of the southern part of this State, and have considerable business interests in Kern county, and for that very important reason am now residing in this community. I believe I am possessed of sufficient insight to judge that the commission will not only act wisely, but will also have in view the best interests of the community at large, in the event it is definitely decided to select the Tejon route.

As the proposition involved is of such tremendous import, it behooves us to look at the matter calmly and dispassionately, and in all justice and fairness to the commission every possible consideration should be accorded that body in weighing all details as to the shorter and more direct Tejon route. This route would prove a great financial saving in comparison with the disadvantages of the steep grades and mountainous roads via Tehachepi.

The road favored by the commission will take the tourist and traveler through a fertile section of country in the Tejon Canyon, and from there on will traverse the most promising portion of the Tejon ranch. This splendid territory has already been opened up, and will, in the near future, offer unexcelled opportunities to the new-comer and home-seeker, and will consequently prove of immense benefit to Bakersfield and Kern county in general. This section will tap the best lands of the northern part of Los Angeles county, such as Gorman, Neenach, etc., and will be largely instrumental in opening up that part of the country for future development. On the other hand, should the Tehachepi route be selected, it would cover a sparsely-settled and mountainous country, which apparently a wise providence intended and designed for other purposes outside of the pursuits incident to the tiller of the soil.

In comparing the question of distances, it might be advisable to state that it is 140 miles from Hollywood to Bakersfield, and 147 miles from Los Angeles to the latter point, via the Tejon Pass route, as against 170 miles from Hollywood to Bakersfield and 177 miles from Los Angeles to Bakersfield, or, in other words, thirty miles further via the Tehachepi route. It is therefore quite apparent if the matter of a direct route is to be taken into consideration that the State Highway Commission should give that via Tejon the decided preference. The commission was not created to accommodate any individual or set of individuals, but to render the best possible service to the people of the State as a whole.

The San Joaquin Valley proper commences on this side of the chain of the Tejon Mountains, and that part which is located over the Tehachepi Mountains, together with that country which adjoins Mojave, Randsburg and other towns, is certainly cut off from this county by the hands of nature, and should, in my judgment, be created a county within itself. While it is generally claimed that Kern county is the portal of the San Joaquin Valley, it most certainly does not include Tehachepi and all that other stretch of territory located over the mountains.

ABRAHAM JACOBY.

Neutrality in Mexico.

LOSANGTLTS, June 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is possible there may be some misapprehension in the minds of some, who may believe that there is just ground for complaint on the part of the Mexican insurrectos, because the United States denies them the right to purchase arms, ammunition and other supplies in this country, while such right is being conceded to the Mexican government. But a little reflection will make it clear that there is no just cause for such complaint.

In considering this question we must assume that, at least Orosco, himself, and his immediate advisors, are familiar with the principles of international law, which must apply and govern in such cases. Mexico is a nation with an organized government, having an army, a navy, and a system of laws, ordinarily fairly well administered, which should and does entitle her to a standing in the family of nations. This is conceded by treaties on an equal basis, as well as diplomatic relations, according equal rights to and treatment of citizens and subjects of each government by the other.

It follows that, not only must each of the family of nations be most careful to observe the strictest neutrality in case of a war between two other of this family of nations, but it must be equally punctilious not to give aid or comfort to an internal enemy within the borders of any other of this family of nations. Thus, for several successive years during the long-continued insurrection in Cuba, which resulted in her freedom, both Democratic and Republican administrations issued proclamation after proclamation, warning all citizens of the United States to abstain from giving aid or assistance of any kind whatever to the insurgents in rebellion against the government of Spain; and this continued until the United States, for other specified reasons, saw proper to intervene.

Many of us are not yet too old to forget the almost unbearable irritation we felt against Great Britain because we believed she failed in her duty in this regard, in not using due diligence to prevent the escape of the Confederate cruisers, which had been built and fitted out in her waters, during what is now called our "Civil War;" nor is that nation likely soon to forget the millions which she was compelled to pay us, by the award of the Geneva Tribunal, because of such failure on her part. That case, however, would be an exact parallel, should we permit arms and ammunition to be freely carried into Mexican territory by people in armed insurrection against the government of Mexico.

But, on the other hand, it would have been no violation of the duty of Great Britain to have knowingly sold and delivered the United States arms, ammunition, ships and supplies, to be used in putting down the rebellion, and this for two reasons:

First. No nation can owe any duty whatever to an unorganized insurrection against another government, with which the former government maintains friendly relations, and this for reasons too obvious to require more than the bare statement. And, second;

To have refused to do so would have been justly regarded as an unfriendly act, sufficient even to have justified the termination of diplomatic relations.

We repeat, that we must assume that Orozco is familiar with these principles, which are well settled, known and understood. But this being true, he knows that there is no just cause for complaint against the government of the United States, either in granting such rights to the Mexican government, or in refusing them to his insurrectos, but in each case she would simply be doing her duty, under the rules of international law.

It must be understood that, as yet, the Orozco revolution has no standing, whatever, in an international sense; it has no semblance of a government; he is merely conducting a large, and largely unorganized, mob, which has never been accorded any belligerent rights whatever, by any nation, and, as already said, no nation does, or can, owe any duty whatever to such a revolution.

Delicious Fruits and Berries Flood Markets.

Sunny Southland Is Outdoing Even Herself.

Season's Abundant Crop Superb in Quality.

In prodigal abundance nature's horn of plenty has poured forth this spring such a profusion of delectable and delicious products of the soil that the markets of this city present a spectacle of lusciousness that has scarcely been equaled even in Southern California.

Mountains of red and black cherries overflowing the market places in glossy avalanches mingle with great crates of brilliant yellow loquats. Heaps of artichokes with their spine-like leaves are scattered around in abundance. Cantaloupes, golden yellow when cut, are heaped close to the piles of artichokes. Bristling pineapples from Hawaii stand guard over great crates of blood-red tomatoes.

Green corn, actually "corn on the cob," is set forth in tempting array to catch the unwary buyer. Jet black figs from the warm, fertile valleys of California are displayed as a background to the riot of more brilliantly-colored edibles.

The dominant note in the profusion of good things to eat is the strawberry. Hundreds of crates of them are displayed in all their brilliant colorings. They vary from the hurriedly-picked berry, small but sweet, to the aristocratic berry, large and firm and with a certified label on each box, stating when they were picked and guaranteeing every blessed red berry to be free from the slightest blemish.

There are red raspberries, blackberries, black raspberries and the great loganberries distributed with strategic intent to inveigle the shopper into buying. Great heaps of huge watermelons, with one sliced, showing its red, juicy heart, are displayed.

IN TEMPTING ARRAY.

With "malice aforethought" the market keepers have gathered to their shops the wonderful abundance of good things which the soil of Southern California is furnishing and have arranged them in such tempting array that the shopper is carried away with a desire to buy of every variety shown.

The art—for it is an art—of raising fruits, berries and vegetables has been brought to such a state of perfection in Southern California that any unusually favorable period of rain and sunshine causes the gardens to spring into bearing in a day's time.

This spring has been wonderfully propitious for growing things, and the fields and orchards of the Southland are groaning under their abundance. The growers have descended upon the marketmen of the city and have almost buried them with their riot of good things. The market men have responded valiantly and their shops blossom forth with an array that leaves the dyspeptic groaning in anguish at his inability to enjoy them.

In one shop on Broadway there are displayed twenty-seven different products of the field, orchard and garden. They ran the gamut of egg plant, figs, loquats, summer squash, pineapples, artichokes, cantaloupes, red and yellow bananas, oranges, lemons, grapefruit, water melons, green corn, strawberries, apples, peas, beans, and down through peaches and plums to new potatoes still odorous of the moist earth.

Asparagus was never so abundant nor tender. Some of the sprouts are almost as thick as a man's wrist and as tender as marrow. In the East, where asparagus is raised under glass, it is purchased by the stalk or a small bunch. Here it is bought by the armful.

NEWCOMERS DELIGHTED.

It is a familiar sight at some of the market places to see a man during the late hours of the afternoon rush up to the proprietor and purchase enough asparagus to feed a small army. He is immediately recognized as a recent arrival from the East, who is having for the first time "his fill" of asparagus. The same procedure is noticed in the case of strawberries and artichokes, especially the latter. They are so expensive in the East that they are considered a delicacy.

The big, black, luscious figs are one edible that escapes for a time the onslaught of the easterner. He buys a few the first time he goes shopping. Then some good Samaritan explains how delicious figs are when split open and smothered with powdered sugar and cream.

Loquats come in for a great deal of wary attention on the part of the newcomer to Southern California. The stranger buys a few as an experiment and discovers that they are almost all seed, but while he is pondering over the size of the big black seeds, a trickle of that indescribably sweet, pungent juice slips over his tongue and he stands transfixed and closes his eyes while he carefully licks up every vestige of the yellow pulp. Then he is a loquat lover and carries the fruit home regularly.

The profusion shown at the market places this spring has aroused even the blase Californian, who thinks he is accustomed to all of the abundance of good things which his State produces.

Market men say that never before have they had such a variety at the same time and in such perfect condition.

HALF A CENTURY OLD.

Tomorrow will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the first Desmond clothing store on the Coast. Fifty years in one line of business is unusual even in the successful, enterprising West. In that half century of merchandising there have been many changes and remarkable expansion but the firm is the same, the character of the business is the same, and the policy of giving honest values has remained unchanged. In celebration of the anniversary the big Desmond store, Spring and Third streets, will tomorrow inagurate a big anniversary sale. The store will be decorated, a ladies orchestra will furnish music and special lines of goods will be placed on sale

When this proposition was first put to me I refused as I was loaded [illegible] woolens myself and could not see my way clear to handle this big buy, but the lawyer made the goods so cheap I simply had to buy, and here they are:

This stock of Ryan & O'Brien's is different from most tailoring stocks, and as I look it over can see why they charged prices of $40 and $50 for suits.

Now, Mr. Reader, I want your confidence. If you have traded with me before I want you to see these woolens. If you have never favored me with an order come in now and let me prove values to you. They are not common woolens, but the finest money can buy.

The very best of Irish Tweeds, Worsteds, black and blue staples and fine unfinished goods. They sold as high as $50 and $60, and after taking possession of this stock believe me they are just as good as when these prices were charged.

Every yard must be sold and my price is: Made to order for $20.

Isn't It Great?

SPRING, THE STREET OF MERE MAN, AND HOW HE CONDUCTS THINGS THERE.

AND now look on Spring street—the Man's street. It figuratively rises up in meeting and claims recognition as the habitat of the sterner sex and says that what it earns Broadway spends— for Broadway is the Woman's Own.

Spring street boasts of more cigar stores in its business portion than any other two thoroughfares in Los Angeles.

It is the real home of the quick-lunch—not the cheap lunch, but the quick good lunch, which business men demand and eat from astride a stool.

Its scores of mens furnishing and clothing stores register the change in men's fashions—for the downtrodden males have their own fashions—fully as quickly as the glittering emporiums on Broadway.

It points with pride to its towering skyscrapers and says that therein are the male moles who toil and spin so that Broadway may maintain its reputation as the greatest shopping mart of all the great West. It is inordinately proud of its cafes and their night life, of its vaudeville and girly-girly shows.

It has more glittering electric signs flashing out than any other two streets in Los Angeles.

In fact, it has everything dear to the heart of those half-civilized or semi-civilized beings—men—and it does not care one whoop whether a member of the "more deadly" sex ever sets her foot on its confines. It is for men first, last and all of the time, and what they want they can have if Spring street has it. And if it hasn't it will move mighty quick in getting it.

From the fighting headquarters, at an uptown cigar store, to two blocks below the latest cafe, there are few establishments that do not depend directly upon the men for existence. The few notable exceptions prove the rule.

NOT ALL.

In this day and age men have gathered to themselves such a number of wants that they call necessities and luxuries that they have accustomed themselves to that it has come to cost about as much to keep a man in proper raiment and proper standing with his fellow-business men as it does his perfectly-gowned wife.

The ordinary man of affairs and hard-working business or professional man arrives downtown in the morning and does not feel at home until he reaches Spring street. He steps into a cigar store, purchases a few daily dark brown beauties, and asks "Charlie" or "Jess" what they think of the day's ball games. Before he leaves he may have tried his luck at a certain rattling game, just to see how the day's events will break for him. Whether he wins or loses he has separated himself from one or two dollars, possibly. Then he hies himself to his office.

An hour or two passes and a business acquaintance calls. The talk is over and as it is approaching lunch time he steps out on his Own Street, and feeling perfectly safe from prying eyes, marches into his favorite buffet where "Heinie" or "Bill" or "Fred" or "George" or 'Big Eddie" reaches promptly for the exact wetness that he has learned from long experience is wanted.

Of course the doors of the buffet are of glass, but what does he care? There is—theoretically at any rate—no one on Spring street that is so impolite as to peek through the glass doors, unless he is thirsty and low in purse.

During the two hours allotted for luncheon, Spring street is at one of the most interesting periods.

Those eating establishments which boast of the word "grill," have their body of eager waiters standing on tip toe, for the business man wants his lunch quick. In those establishments where long counters and revolving stools are the principal furniture, there is even more of a tension.

Do not be misled into the belief that these quick lunch places are cheap and serve food. They don't, for if they did, they would not be able to pay rent and other things. They are just handier and quicker than the table establishments, hence they prosper and their name is legion.

It is a common sight in many of these counter-and-stool places to rub shoulders with distinguished members of the bar, prosperous business men, heads of large corporations, and leading merchants of Spring street.

It is a rarity to find a "sword swallower" at these establishments, as they become lonesome and finally discover for what purpose the fork was manufactured.

LUNCHEON CLASSES.

The luncheon question on Spring street is one of its most vital problems. As a rule the men are divided into three classes. There are the superb grills of the larger Spring-street hotels, which are thronged each noon hour with business men whose time is so valuable that they make appointments with their business associates to "take lunch with me and we will talk it over." Thus the large grills in the hotels become substitute offices during the noon hours.

Then there is the restaurant with counter and stools where the business man without an appointment for luncheon hurriedly gets his "eats." And finally there are the numerous cafeterias where the clerks of the larger concerns act as their own waiters, get excellent food in quick-step time, and keep one eye on the clock while they munch their food.

After the close of the luncheon hours comes the second onslaught on the legion of cigar stands, and the click of dice can be heard from one end of the street to the other.

At this exact period there is generally a light haze over Spring street from the thousands of cigars burning, and the amount of money that passes over the tobacco counters would make the heads of some of the more pretentious trading establishments on Broadway open their eyes. The amount and number of cigars that a business man will somtimes have on his credit at a certain stand would appall his home folks if they but knew. Sometimes he wins at his favorite game and stocks up a credit of a dozen boxes of the finest.

He is sad then! He does not shake the dice for the cigars. He shakes them for divertisement. Of course he wants to win, but when he wins so regularly, his business acumen tells him that he has more than he will smoke in two months, and therefore he has no more business for two months around a cigar stand. Yes sir, he is sad! He cannot smoke them all, and finally determines to make his friends a present of several boxes and happily finds himself with such a small margin of smokes that he can triumphantly come back and spend a half hour at noon in testing his luck.

THE QUICKENING PULSE.

After the noon hour, the pulse of Spring street begins to quicken. The hundreds of automobile stands begin to awaken. Cabs and cars with their "for hire" signs on them roll into their regular places along the curb, and their day has started.

This is another feature that is peculiarly a native of Spring street. Do you know of one taxi-cab stand on Broadway?

Spring street furnishes the taxis and cars for the entire business part of the city night and day. Of course there are always several individual cars operated by their owners standing along Broadway at various hours, but the regular renting concerns are always on Spring street. A woman seldom hires a cab or taxi and a man is likely at any moment to want one.

There is one shopping hour for Spring street haberdashers and tailors, and that is between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The buying of his raiment is a dreadful thing to the business man. He realizes fully that he must "keep up his end," and after business hours he dashes madly into a tailoring establishment where they already have his measure on a chart, paws over a dozen pieces of excellent cloth and then asks the presiding genius "what are we wearing this year?" When he is told, he orders one or two from that piece and rushes away. If it is haberdashery, he jumps in, asks for a half dozen or a dozen of No. blank hose, throws down his money, and is gone. He manages to clothe himself from head to foot during that one hour of shopping, or rather buying, for a man never shops. If he is married and well broken, his wife will wander timidly on Spring street and pick out his cravats for him; otherwise he tells the haberdasher to "give me something nice."

It is at night that Spring street really comes into its own. Lights begin to flash about 7 o'clock and the strains of soft music come floating out from dozens of cafes and grills.

The taxi stands and motor companies begin to show signs of life. Their cabs go dashing back and forth and hurriedly answer calls from the residence parts of the city. The lobbies of the big hotels fill up, as it is the hour before the theater opens. And Spring street is all a-quiver with night life.

His'n—and proud of it! The one great street that belongs to man.

VANCOUVER AND VICTORIA LAUD SULPHURRO TO SKIES

MULTITUDES ARE PRAISING REMEDY

Some of Most Prominent British Columbia People Are Cured.

SULPHURRO BATHS AID

"Common-Sense" Features Apparent to All Those Who Read Booklet—Free on Request.

By F. W. STRANG.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 1.—I am truly amazed at the widespread use of Sulphurro in Vancouver, Victoria and other Western cities of the Dominion. Cures of this new Sulphur medicine in the most serious cases of Rheumatism, blood, skin, stomach and other disorders are fully as surprising as in the cities farther down the Coast.

The people of British Columbia, being close to Seattle, the home of Sulphurro, heard of Mr. C. M. C. Stewart's Liquid Compound of Sulphur sooner than many other localities, and from friend to friend the word has passed with marvelous rapidity that the new medicine brings back health and strength by common-sense methods—the kind that Mother Nature uses.

Thus Sulphurro's fame has spread without any systematized publicity on the part of the newspapers, until almost every one I meet north of the international line knows of its powers, and is recommending it to others.

Sulphurro Common-Sense Remedy.

Many seem to think that there is something akin to the miraculous in the cures of Sulphurro, but I am explaining to all that such is not the case. Sulphurro is a blood purifier and regulator of the system, the equal of which has not before been found. Regulate the system's internal workings, purify the blood, put the stomach in the right condition, and disease has no chance.

That is why such a large number of ailments yield before Sulphurro. It makes the blood rich and pure and cleanses the entire system. This done, afflictions of years disappear through the kindly work of nature. Disease germs leave the system, and the sufferer is restored to perfect health.

Sulphurro Bath Essential.

Especially is Mr. Stewart recommending baths as an essential part of the treatment. The Sulphurro bath is the most delightful form of ablution, and by means of it sulphur is absorbed into the system through the pores of the skin. Thus it not only improves the skin and keeps the pores open and free, but it quickly restores the blood to its normal, health-giving state.

Cures in severe cases of Rheumatism are especially notable here. Sulphurro is proving a benefit to humanity through its relief to rheumatic sufferers. The poisons which cause rheumatism usually defy all treatment, but sulphur rendered into liquid form (Sulphurro) drives them out of the system. Usually only a few weeks are needed to cure a case of rheumatism, although mild cases often respond in a few days' treatment. But I want to emphasize this:

There never was a case of Rheumatism which did not yield to Sulphurro when the directions in the Booklet were carefully followed.

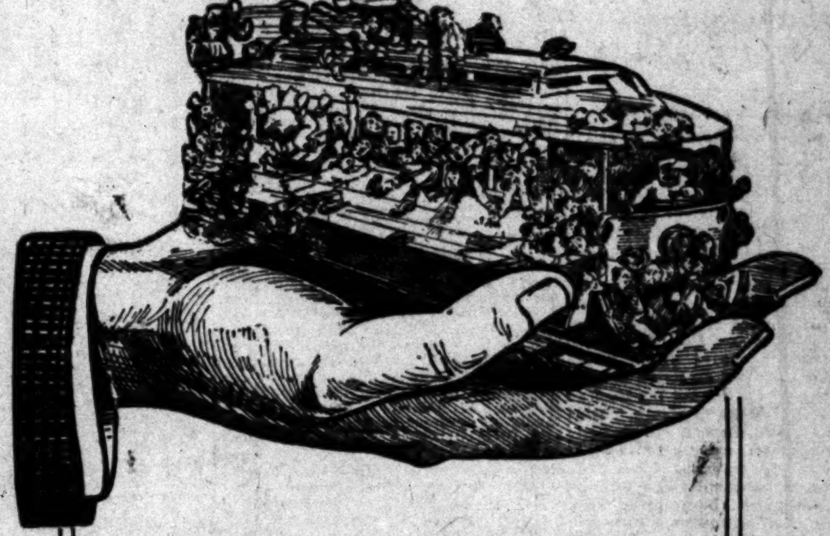
Here let me say that the Sulphurro Booklet, which can be had free upon request to the C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Co., 71 Columbia St., Seattle, and which accompanies each bottle of Sulphurro, is the most valuable piece of literature issued in many years. The average sufferer will find there the means of his or her deliverance. Read it, and you cannot help but be impressed with the "common-sense" of it.

Sulphurro Cures Prominent Persons.

The druggists of Victoria and Vancouver are experiencing a large demand for Sulphurro. Some of the cures they report are among the most prominent residents of both cities. Two of Victoria's leading druggists think so much of Sulphurro that they have given away many bottles to their close friends, certain of it accomplishing cures—and it has not disappointed them once.

Sulphurro is now on sale in practically every drug store from Alaska to the Mexican line (price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle) and its friends are spreading its fame to the four quarters of the globe. Sulphurro is made only by one concern, the C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Co., 71 Columbia St., Seattle, Wash., and each bottle bears a facsimile of Mr. Stewart's signature.

If you owned a street car line



What kind of a system would you install for the use of the public?

Would it embrace these features?

Cut down the running time to the Beach to 15 minutes? Reduce round-trip fares from 50 cents to 25 cents?

Eliminate that menace to life, passengers and property—grade-crossings? Would it reach all of the districts surrounding Los Angeles with better and quicker service?

Would it double and treble suburban and interurban travel along such lines, as well as the value of your property? Would it help to build the population of Los Angeles up to the Million Mark?

If it did this, would it not be more profitable than any other system of similar length elsewhere in the world?

Then your system is our system.

Let's Get Acquainted

Our model on exhibition runs on 150 feet of circular track. It's six feet long, built precisely to scale, one-twelfth size, and it's as perfect, mechanically, as a marine chronometer.

Call any day from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., or from 7:30 to 9 p.m., at the basement of the Consolidated Realty Building, Sixth and Hill streets, Los Angeles, where demonstrations are given every minute—

—Showing "top-notch" interurban service and "the point of difference."

Don't Fail to See It

Obey your impulses that spring from intuition and curiosity combined—to see —SOMETHING WORTH WHILE!

We'll virtually knock you down with proof a-plenty, both as to profits unprecedented and the practicability of the proposition.

One man, who owns property at the Beach, and who purposes interesting himself to the extent of $25,000 in the shares of the Monorail Rapid Transit Company, asserts that the construction of this line, "Los Angeles to the Sea," —Will increase the value of his property down there from a nominal sum to One Million Dollars!

He saw what you can see—any day.

There Is Money In It

To further construction of the first line, that must in the very nature of things be exceedingly profitable, a small allotment of the Monorail Rapid Transit Company's stock is now offered at $10 a share.

Accessory to the first line, "Los Angeles to the Sea," that ought to be in operation in eighteen months, something like 25,000 miles additional should be constructed under the same system in the following five years.

All these roads, constructed under various licenses from the Monorail Rapid Transit Company, which owns and controls patents throughout the entire North American Continent, covering the Valentine "Direct Power Motor," Monorail System and accessories—MUST PAY TRIBUTE TO IT.

This stock should then be worth not less than $100 a share or ten times the present price, and, in all probability—a great deal more.

PAYMENTS may be made—10 per cent. cash and the balance in nine equal monthly installments. For all the cash a discount of 5 per cent. will be allowed.

WHO WILL BE NEXT PREMIER?

Diplomatic Circles Already Picking Candidates.

Asquith's Early Transition to Lords Is Accepted.

Winston-Churchill Mentioned for High Honor.

BY PAUL LAMBETH.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LONDON, June 1.—The early transition of Premier Asquith to the Lords is now accepted as an absolutely assured certainty and it is not at all unlikely that he will at the same time relinquish the leadership of the government and the Liberal party to a younger man. Mr. Asquith smiles at these recurring rumors, but they are known to have good foundation. He carried such a tremendous load during the strenuous years which have marked his successful direction of the Liberals that it is a wonder his health has at all survived the strain. His physicians have frequently advised him to seek a temporary rest so that he may give his splendid vitality a fair chance and extend his political life for the good of the country. Asquith has proved a Moses to the Liberals during a time of upheaval which called for unusual powers of suasion and action. Neither the great Gladstone nor the witty but otherwise mediocre Campbell-Bannerman could have solidified the mixed coalition elements as Asquith managed to do. Therefore, if the Liberal-Labor-Irish alliance is to continue after Asquish reseat on his laurels, his successor will require a great deal of tact and not a little personal magnestism. The man who seems most likely to fill the bill is the British-American, Winston Churchill.

Young Churchill is even now the master-spirit in the Cabinet. He has not failed to carry every point upon which he has set his heart. And he soothes, reconciles, satisfies everybody. Even Lloyd George, who at one time showed a disposition to do with the Liberals what Joseph Chamberlain had tried to do and failed utterly when he was the most radical of Radicals, now accepts with the utmost good nature at his command the Churchill dominance. The substantial money powers in the Liberal party would not accept Lloyd George as leader. Churchill wins them to him because he is not an extremist and at the same time his evident sincerity as a reformer who gets things done delights the working-class vote. It will surprise nobody if Churchill is called by the King to form the next Liberal Cabinet, and the indications are that this task will have to be tackled at an early date.

SUGAR BEETS IN ENGLAND.

The raising of sugar beets is proving a profitable industry in the southern and eastern counties of England. It was at first thought futile to attempt this addition to British agriculture and the first experiments conducted at the government stations in Kent, Gloucester, Schropshire, Devon and Essex attracted very little interest among farmers or refiners. Now, however, it is found that even without sub-soiling a fair average production has been attained and commercially the proposition is an assured success. It was due to a suggestion by a visiting Nebraskan that the Board of Agriculture took the first steps which have so quickly borne favorable fruit.

FIELD FOR PROMOTER.

The British peerage still provides a rich field for the scheming promoter. The conversion of demesne lands into productive farms and sales forced by the new land taxes has provided many of our elderly lords with money to invest, and with consols fluctuating and unattractive the mind of the peer naturally turns to outside speculations. Of course, that term is never used, but nothing could exceed the speculative character of some of the baits which are eagerly bitten at by these ermined lambs flirting with the promoters on the outer fringe of Lombard street. Just recently one of the best-known and most respected members of the House of Lords contributed $750,000 towards the continental expenses of a smart young man who has just gone into the insolvent court with no assets to his name. The peer had extensive properties in Newfoundland, and the clever young promoter of questionable morals showed him how by spending a little money there was a fortune to be got out of this land in timber and coal. The lord had never looked upon his own American property. Neither had the promoter, although he hailed from the Newfoundland side of the Atlantic. But he had a lovely assortment of maps and charts, and little by little he bled his dupe of every dollar almost which the peer had in bank, at the same time raising money on the Newfoundland properties under power of attorney.

CHANGE IN UNIFORMS.

One result of the King's inspection of his troops at Aldershot will most likely be a complete transformation of military uniforms. King George agrees with the younger officers of the army that the time is ripe to modernize the regimental home and field dress so as to make Tommy more presentable and more comfortable. The royal military and naval tournament, which his majesty opened just recently, and which is now drawing big crows at Olympia, gave the public an opportunity to contrast present uniforms with those worn in the days when Marlborough was winning victories in the Low Counties. The "Green Howards," as the Yorkshire Regiment was known in 1750, are showing in manual exercises how loose and easy to walk in was the dress of the soldier in the days of the great Louis, John Churchill and Prince Eugene.

It was only after the ramrod influence of Frederick the Great became paramount in this country that stiff and ugly uniforms came into use. The Prussian example was reinforced by the desire to cut down expense by using as little cloth as possible. Then the loose coat with wide skirts made to button back was turned into a tight coat with ridiculous little tails, the warm waistcoat was done away with, the soft neckcloth became a hard leather stock, and gaiters were cut down to "spats." A crease was regarded as a crime and a pocket as "unsoldierly." That is why the British Tommy Atkinses still have to carry their handkerchiefs in their sleeves.

From recent snapshot in London. Mr. Churchill is the master-spirit of the British Cabinet and is mentioned as Asquith's successor as Premier.

VENICE NOTES.

VENICE, June 1.—The funeral of Mrs. Carrie Krick, wife of Adam Krick of Shell avenue, was conducted this afternoon, the interment being in Woodlawn Cemetery. Deceased, who was 40 years of age, came to the beach from Ohio six months ago for the benefit of her health. She is survived by a widower and three children.

The funeral of Elizabeth, the 19-year-old daughter of former City Marshal J. D. Simpson, will be held tomorrow afternoon. The body will be taken to Hollywood for interment.

An assistant to the life-saving corps is to be installed in the form of a dory that is now being built at San Pedro. The new boat will be installed behind the breakwater here, for use whenever emergency calls. The launch from the biological station will make the trip to San Pedro during the week for the purpose of towing the dory to Venice.

Three new teachers have just been added to the teaching force in the grammar grades. The new acquisitions are Carrie Mooser, Margaret Taylor and M. Weaver. They will report for assignments when the schools open after the summer vacation.

Worried About a Wart For Five Years, Removed It In Two Days

"For five years," said a young lady of 22, I had a wart on the second joint of the first finger of my right hand. It was rough and ugly and I worried about it constantly. I tried everything in order to get rid of it—caustic, advertised remedies, everything. Nothing seemed to affect it. I had given up in despair, when I met a charming lady just home from a trip to Turkey. She noticed the wart, much to my embarrassment, but she said: 'There is no reason why you should have your hand disfigured like that my dear.' I told her I had tried in every way to get rid of that ugly wart but had failed. She told me that she would give me a recipe that was absolutely sure to give me relief without causing the least pain or making my finger the least bit sore. This is the recipe she gave me: 'Go to any druggist, get two drams of Traxit (Triple Strength,) bathe the wart in warm water just before retiring, dip a wooden toothpick into the Traxit and touch the wart lightly.' I acted upon her advice and in two days was greatly relieved to see this troublesome wart disappear. Since then I have given this prescription to hundreds of my friends, who have used it with the same success."

If you have been thinking of buying a Piano or Player Piano—either right away, or at any time within the present year, select now—tomorrow or next day—or any day during this first week of June. We have decided—

To Clear Out
—all Sample Pianos
—all Shopworn
—all Slightly Bruised
—all used instruments

Prices are cut regardless of cost or value. Terms will be arranged to suit you. In many instances instruments will go at almost half what they should really bring. All will carry our guarantee.

Uprights at $100, $150, $250 And Up—
Terms $4, $5, $6 and up monthly

These are all Used Instruments, but many of them can scarcely be told from new.

Select from These Famous Makes Steinway,
Estey,
Miller,
Krakauer,
Kranich & Bach,
Kurtzmann,
Laffargue,
Bohmer,
Chickering,
Kimball,
—and many others.

Four Sample Estey Uprights Regular Prices —$450, to Go at— $295

Handsome instruments, absolutely new. Cases are in the very latest design with art finish—in Mahogany, Circassian Walnut, etc. One of these Esteys will give you genuine satisfaction. The only reason for this low price lies in the fact that these are samples, and must be sold at once.

Three Sample Estey Grands Regular Prices $750 and $800 $600

These Estey Grands are all in Mahogany. One of the three is a small, tiny Grand, a beautiful little instrument, just the size for a small room. Sold regularly at $750. The other two Grands are a larger size, the style that sells regularly at $800. You can have your choice now for $600. Don't delay if you want one of these Grands, as they will be taken within the next day or so. Remember, these are strictly new Pianos—never been used.

Terms on These Esteys
$10 or More Per Month

Other Grands $350 to $500

We offer a number of other Grands, including both new and used instruments, at $350 to $500 each, on very easy terms. Among them are many instruments in thoroughly reliable makes. Some of them are so slightly used that they can scarcely be told from new. Very easy terms will be made.

Cabinet Piano Players $50 and $75

These Cabinet Players include such makes as Cecilian, Pianola, Angelus and Simplex. These prices are ridiculously low, but the Players must be moved without delay. If you want one of these, you can buy it on terms as low as $5 per month.

Buy or Rent a Player NOW
A Wonderful Opportunity
$10 A Month With Free Music

Select your Player now—it's the chance of a lifetime. We are offering Players at $300 $350, $400 and $500 that are genuinely worth $400, $600 and $800. They are manufacturer's samples—the only reason for this reduction. We will sell them on terms as low as $10 per month. Now, perhaps you would prefer to rent a Player in order to try it out first. We will arrange for you to do this. Pay $10 a month—if you find the Player all we claim for it, and you want to buy, we will allow you the rent paid, and you may continue at $10 per month—and own the Player. A generous supply of free music goes with one of these instruments. Also free exchange privileges.

RUNNING DOWN MEN TO ROB.

Young Bank Cashier Struck and Hidden Away.

Gang of Thieves Operating With Automobile.

May Have Killed the Man Found in Bay.

Held a prisoner in a den of thieves, whose leader is a woman, Thomas Moore, a young bank cashier, after having been struck and knocked unconscious by a "pirate car" driven by one of the criminals, listened to the planning of the disposal of his body after death, unable to move or speak a word.

Moore, who lives at No. 3622 University avenue with relatives, was held a prisoner during one night and a part of a day. Hourly fearing death, he lay half unconscious on a rude bed in a lodging-house in the downtown district, while the thieves stripped him of his valuables, including a diamond stick pin, a pair of diamond-studded cuff links, a watch and chain and $17.62. All identification marks were also removed from his clothing.

The mystery connected with the Moore case leads some of the officers to the belief that the man identified as Bernard Rien, whose body was found in the inner harbor two weeks ago, was a victim of the same persons. It is thought that Rien was struck by the automobile in the same way that Moore was, and that he died from his injuries. The clothing on the body had evidently been changed and all identification marks removed in exactly the same manner as was done in Moore's case. The theory now is that the dead man was taken in the automobile to San Pedro, his body weighted with a heavy iron bar, and then thrown into the bay.

RUN DOWN PURPOSELY.

Moore says the thieves ran their car upon him purposely while he was waiting for a street car at Eighth and Spring streets at 11 o'clock at night. He was tossed half way across the street and rendered unconscious. The next thing he knew he was lying in the machine, which contained five men and a woman, and was driven rapidly through the downtown streets. He was taken to the thieves' rendezvous in a lodging-house somewhere on Third street, and was held in a room in the place until 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Evidently the thieves were afraid to finish their work. Moore says they were counseled against murdering him by a woman member of the band, and that he was finally loaded into an automobile while still dazed and unable to comprehend where he was, and taken to his home, where he was unceremoniously dumped on the front porch.

The strange story told by the young bank cashier is borne out by Mrs. McKelvey, his cousin, at whose home he has been staying since he came here from Kansas City. Mrs. McKelvey heard Moore's feeble cries for help and ran to the door just in time to see the chauffeur of the car make a quick turn and disappear northward on University avenue. The car used to bring the victim home was not the same one which struck him the night before.

Lieut. Kriege of the University Police Station, after an investigation said yesterday that the thieves had evidently run into Moore purposely and that their intention was to disable and rob him at their leisure.

When Moore was taken to the room he was able to hear conversation but was unable to move or utter a sound, having been completely stunned. He says he dimly remembers being carried up three flights of stairs. The woman gave the directions where he was to be taken.

Once in the place another woman was summoned, and the injured man was taken into a room. Upon the door was the number "27."

While being picked up on the street where he had been knocked down, Moore heard one of the men say as he bent over him:

"We have croaked this fellow sure."

"Looks like we had smashed him up pretty badly," said another.

"LET'S GET OUT OF HERE."

"Toss him into the automobile and let's get out of her," sharply commanded the woman, who was sitting in the rear seat.

Three of the men picked up the victim and laid him in the back of the car.

"Drive like the devil and get out of here before the cops come down on us," said one of the thieves.

As the car sped along the street Moore heard one of the men say:

"We might just as well dump this fellow into an empty lot somewhere. I don't want to see him killed, but he is going to die anyhow, and if we go to a hospital with some sort of a trumped-up story there will be the deuce to pay and the police will nab us sure."

"We will take him to the lodging-house and then figure out what is best to be done. We will say he is drunk if we are questioned by any one," replied a companion.

After they had landed their semi-conscious victim in a room, one of the women took a bottle of whisky, forced open his mouth, and tried to pour liquor down his throat.

"No use wasting good whiskey on this chap," sneered one of the men. "He is just as good as dead now. The best thing to do is to let him alone."

CUT OFF MARKS.

"Cut the identification marks out of his clothing so if we dump the body somewhere and it is found it will be some time before he is identified," spoke up another. "That will give us a few days to look around in and get away if he have to."

This suggestion was acted upon. The laundry marks were cut out of the band of his shirt and the name of the tailor who made the clothes he wore and his own name, sewed in an inside pocket of his coat, were clipped out. All the papers and letters were removed from his pockets, and when

ROMANCE OF RAILROAD AND TELEGRAPH KEY.

Mrs. William B. Doddridge,

Who became the bride last night of the former general manager of the Missouri Pacific Railroad system, and will live in Los Angeles.

AS THE CULMINATION of a romance which began a dozen years ago in Memphis, William B. Doddridge, former general manager of the Missouri Pacific Railway, and Miss Hattie L. Gann, a charming young woman of St. Louis, were married last night.

Miss Gann arrived in Los Angeles Friday afternoon, in response to a telegram sent her by Doddridge, telling her to come immediately, as everything was arranged.

Doddridge met her at the train and whisked her in his automobile to the courthouse, where they obtained the license and then took her to her hotel.

The marriage was performed last night by Justice Young, at the new residence purchased for his bride by Doddridge, at No. 1330 Bonnie Brae street. There were no guests, and Mrs. A. M. Fickeissen, a friend of the bride, was the only woman attendant. E. K. Potter was best man.

Doddridge is one of the best-known experts on railroading in the United States and was taken in hand when a boy by Jay Gould and given his start. He rose from a telegraph operator on the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad until he finally assumed the general managership of the entire Missouri Pacific system.

He retired three years ago, and has since been retained by the Interstate Commerce Commission on several important railroad matters as an expert.

Doddridge first met Miss Gann in Memphis, twelve years ago, when she was a telegraph operator. Mrs. Doddridge was living at that time and a friendship between Miss Gann and Mr. and Mrs. Doddridge sprang up, which has lasted ever since. Following the death of Mrs. Doddridge, several years ago, the friendship between Miss Gann and Doddridge ripened into something closer and dearer.

Six months ago Doddridge came to Southern California and decided to make this his home. He purchased a large orange grove at Riverside and remained there two months. Coming to the city he invested in considerable realty and finally purchased a beautiful residence on Bonnie Brae street.

He was corresponding regularly with Miss Gann, and after the purchase of the home the date for the wedding was set.

Miss Gann—now Mrs. Doddridge—has been engaged in the mercantile business in St. Louis, and is a sister of Everett Gann, a counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. and Mrs. Doddridge will reside in this city.

"Miss Gann and myself have been engaged to marry for the last year or so," said Doddridge yesterday, "and it was only a question as to where we would make our home. I decided to start out and investigate several places where we would like to live. I came to Southern California and had been here but a little time when I realised that I need look no farther. I immediately wrote to Miss Gann, and described to her what this beautiful country was like, and she was satisfied. It remained only for me to get settled and secure our home."

In Interest of Harmony?

MAYOR MAY DEMAND TWO BOARDS RESIGN.

RESIGNATION of some members of the Harbor Commission and the Board of Public Works and an official investigation of the office of the City Engineer is possible outcome of the strained relations that have developed at the City Hall within the past few weeks, and that reached an acute stage yesterday.

Mayor Alexander said last night he will require an investigation of both boards, and it is understood that action will be taken in the City Council on Tuesday to bring about an investigation of the City Engineer's office, at least five members of the Council favoring such action.

The Mayor, who has declared publicly that he cannot longer stand the pressure, conferred with five of the Councilmen on their trip to San Pedro Friday on the situation wherein the Harbor Commission is at loggerheads with the Board of Public Works and Councilmen are making public attacks on the management of the office of the City Engineer, who is subject to the orders of the Board of Public Works as well as engineer for the Harbor Commission and ex-officio harbor engineer for the city.

Two other conferences between the Mayor and certain Councilmen were held yesterday, but the Mayor at no time was able to get all of the Councilmen together to outline a definite plan of action. After the conferences, however, the Mayor made the statement that an investigation of both boards will be demanded.

"I have been striving for peace, and we've simply got to have it," said the Mayor yesterday. "I hoped to bring this about quietly, but the Council precipitated matters by its open attack on the City Engineer's department, and it is for the Councilmen to file their charges so that a regular investigation may be held. I have not asked for the resignation of members of the Harbor Commission and the Board of Public Works, but I am not saying what I will do. We must have peace and be in a position to advance harbor work as rapidly as possible."

City Engineer Hamlin refused yesterday to make a statement as to what his future attitude toward the Harbor Commission will be, but it was learned that he has filed a "general statement of facts," with that body, which the harbor commission has not yet considered. Hamlin said yesterday he will make a statement in regard to the conduct of his office later, but intimated that he will remain silent until action by the Council.

"I am willing to resign in the interests of harmony, if the other members of the Board of Public Works and the Board of Harbor Commissioners will also resign," said Commissioner Humphreys yesterday.

President Hubbard of the Board of Public Works takes a different view of the situation.

"We are either right or wrong," he said. "I would consider it cowardly to resign now. If we are in the wrong, let our accusers come into the open and demand that we be investigated."

The Executive Committee of the Municipal League yesterday adopted resolutions highly commendatory of Engineer Hamlin and deploring the attempt of the City Council to reduce Hamlin's salary and thereby force him to resign.

The City Club, at its session yesterday, adopted a resolution asking that the Mayor, as the head of the municipal government, institute an investigation to determine the factors that are preventing harmonious action between the Board of Harbor Commissioners and the Board of Public Works.

NEGROES PLAN NEW REPUBLIC.

Cuban Situation Grave, Says Sugar Planter, Here.

"Gomez Regime One of Peril for Americans."

Aged Veteran Comes Far for Our Memorial Day.

Remarkable sidelights on the negro uprising in Cuba and its origin, together with disturbing predictions as to conditions which will shortly face the American population of the island if swift means are not found to handle the situation, were given The Times yesterday by John F. Early of the Cuban Land and Steamship Company of La Gloria, Cuba, extensively interested in sugar, cocoanut and tobacco raising and land.

Though he is 75 years of age, Early traveled all the way from Cuba, where he has resided for the past twelve years, to march in the Memorial Day parade of the Grand Army in this city on Thursday. Few veterans have a more extensive war record than he, for he served under the regimental flags of no less than six regiments, all of which saw long and arduous service in the Civil War. He left the army at the close of the war with the rank of sergeant in the Second Minnesota, though he was a resident of Virginia when hostilities broke out. He is visiting relatives in Tropico.

"The situation confronting Americans in Cuba is a grave one," he said. "It is one not generally understood in America, but it ought to be, for unless something is done about it, our colonists will be in exactly the position of Americans in Mexico at the present time.

"The negroes constitute a much graver menace than is generally understood, partly by reason of the fact that they make up nearly half the population in many districts. The situation is aggravated by the regime of President Gomez, by whom every good law given the people by Gen. Wood has been annulled. Bull-fighting, cockpits and lotteries have been re-established and in them is to seek much of the origin of trouble.

"It is the opinion of the negroes that they are not given a proper voice in the government and that they do not elect their share of the public offices. This is their excuse for the revolt, which has for its object the establishment for a negro republic on the east end of the island. England, Germany and Denmark are constantly improving the fortifications of their holdings in the southern island and Americans cannot for a moment forget that Cuba is at once the gateway to the Panama Canal and to the United States.

"These negroes are vastly inferior to the negroes of the United States and are utterly incapable of any sort of self-government. They are ignorant, superstitious and often lawless and vicious. They kidnap children and offer them up as sacrifices. They rove through the country in desperate mobs, playing the bandit. Gomez, when he took his seat, released about 1500 negro bandits upon the people. This was done under the cover of amnesty and while it may have been good politics for him, it was bad business for the populace.

"The present trouble has reached its climax of open revolution after brewing for more than a year."

"ELECTROCUTED," WALKS AWAY.

Ocean Park Man Is Struck by Live Wire and His Clothes Are Burned, but He Is Unhurt.

A sizzling, crackling live wire, that hissed great tongues of greenish, reddish and yellowish flames when it came in contact with anything, threw pedestrians into a panic at Fifth and Broadway Friday evening when it fell and enveloped F. P. McDivitt of Ocean Park.

The next instant he was aflame and dropped to the ground. An exclamation of horror went up from men and women for it was supposed he had been electrocuted.

Before any person could reach McDivitt's side the wire had swung away from him, leaving him lying on the pavement. He was not killed or even stunned. Aside from his clothes from his knees down being seared and scorched, McDivitt did not show any signs of his narrow escape from electrocution.

A score of men tried to assist McDivitt to his feet, but he spurned their attentions. Half a dozen volunteered to send for an ambulance, but the man only shook his head.

"I'm all right," he protested. "I had a shock and a close call, but that's all there is to it."

He brushed the dust from his clothes, and was soon lost in the crowd.

Car No. 8 of the First and Sixth street line, going west, threw its trolley at the crossing. It struck a guy wire, which fell on McDivitt.

POSTAL BUSINESS GROWS.

Local Office Nearing Million Dollar Mark—Last Month's Business Shows Twenty Per Cent. Increase.

The postoffice receipts of the local office are fast approaching the million-dollar mark. The amount for the month just closed was $154,153.02, as compared with May, 1911, $128,003.65, an increase of $26,149.37. Postmaster Harrison predicts that within a year the receipts of the Los Angeles office will reach $1,000,000 annually.

Pieces of mail misdirected or not addressed to street and number totalled 621,110. They were disposed of as follows: Forwarded to points outside of the city, 73,128; address found and delivered by city carriers, 134,217; sent to the general delivery to await call, 413,765. The number of callers at the general delivery, exclusive of Sundays, for the month was 191,141. There were 29,751 changes of address.

John T. Early

Of the Cuban Land and Steamship Company and a Civil War veteran of service in six regiments who, despite his 75 years, came all the way from Cuba to take part in the Memorial Day services in this city. He throws some unusual light upon the present negro uprising on the island.

Love's Young Dream.

CUPID TAKES NO HOLIDAY.

THAT'S WHY SCHOOL CHILDREN LOSE PRETTY TEACHER.

When Lochinvar Comes from the East Fair Preceptress Closes School, Dons Wedding Gown and Orange Blossoms and Brings Pretty Romance to Blissful Climax.

Memorial Day was disastrous for the members of the South Pasadena High School Freshman Class. Because their pretty young teacher, Miss Anna Vance, put an entirely wrong construction on the day's purpose, they will have a new teacher Monday morning.

Miss Vance observed the day by pinning orange blossoms on her own wedding gown. This she did at the home of her parents Thursday night at Santa Ana, and by this time she is presiding over the home of James Carlson at San Antonio, Tex.

While her alert pupils, who are from fourteen to sixteen years of age, had been watching her romance with much interest, they had not at all anticipated this golden climax. Instead, she had confided to some of them that she and a girl chum were going to teach next year in Honolulu. Of course the youngsters under her efficient instruction credited this decision to a lover's quarrel. They had a double reason for doing so. At the beginning of the term they say that their pretty teacher wore a stunning diamond ring. Of this obvious fact the older boys and girls took no end of advantage. Once, when some of the children were on their way to a house party, intending to leave the school room Friday afternoon for the beach for the week end, they stacked the teacher's platform with suit cases, and on the suit cases in bold letters was the sentence "O gee, we are married!" and many similar legends calculated to embarrass a young woman whose engagement was an open secret. Later the solitaire disappeared, according to the children, who insist that Miss Vance was much less pleasant than before and seemed for from happy. After that, they declare, they never dared crib at an examination, and they cut their pranks short for fear of judgment.

Last Wednesday morning, however, the youngsters felt a something different in the air. Romance seems to have a psychology all its own and, to listen to their conversations in the native atmosphere, one is readily convinced that the sixteen year old boy and girl have developed the romantic sense to a high degree. They declare that Miss Vance was at her radiant best Wednesday morning, being both very happy and absent minded. Consequently, when she gave them as an exercise the writing from memory of a portion of Scott's Marmian they boldly placed their books upon their desks and made a liberal and literal copy of the assigned section. When their papers were passed back quite uncorrected with the announcement that the teacher had placed their credits in a book of her own they were very sure that something most unusual was about to take place. When she did not return for class Wednesday afternoon their suspicions amounted to conviction.

Most of them by this time know that her Texas lover suddenly appeared upon the scene and literally carried her away like the true knight that he is, and they are now looking for a new teacher who will promise to hold out against the wiles of Dan Cupid for at least twenty days, until the present school term can be properly ended.

CHECK-SNATCHED CHECKED.

Ed Gordine, No. 3177 Malabar street, a bootblack, was taken to the Detention Home yesterday by Plainclothesman Robinson on a charge of having stolen an aqueduct time check for $30.12 from Mike Mahon. Mahon told the police he patronized Gordine's stand at First and Los Angeles streets. He drew out a handful of money, including the check, in search of a dime. Gordine, he said, grabbed the check and ran. He was arrested before he had an opportunity to attempt to negotiate it.

LOW-BROW "SPIRITS" "HANT" YOU CHEAPLY.

But the Hindu Swami With the Milwaukee Accent Isn't Built that Way—Story of a Day of Ghost-Hunting Among the Los Angeles Mystics Now Under Councilmanic Fire.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

THIS is the tale of the Phantom-Fussers, and of the ghost of commerce, which "hants" with the meter on.

I didn't in the least know, when I started out, how to go about hunting for ghosts: whether you pursue them to their clammy lair, or just coax them out, pat them on the head and call them "good ghostie!"

How did I know what a ghost liked, anyhow? I might feed it macaroons when it preferred hay.

The occult student who accompanied me couldn't help me much.

As a matter of act, I found ghosts a coy lot since their creators were before the City Council's Legislation Committee.

SWAMI'S MILWAUKEE ACCENT.

There isn't much suggestion of the sensuous East about North Spring street, and not much of sumptuousness about the Swami's "apartments" which we visited.

By the way, I don't believe the mediums of this city are getting rich, for most of them tell your fortune in their bedrooms, and from all palpable evidences, live, move and have their "bean" right there.

The Swami had long curls and faded eyes with little lines around them, and he was paring his early-morning finger nails when we entered.

"Some trouble you are in?" asked the Hindu, in his strong Milwaukee accent, as he waved us to a chair.

I sighed.

"Won't you tell me your sorrows?" asked the Swami, sympathetically, as he left off paring.

"I c-c-can't!" I moaned—which was quite true, for the simple reason that I didn't know myself.

"Oh, I get it now," said the Swami, passing his hand over his brow, "I got it now just as clear!"

I was obviously curious.

"Some gentleman has went off and left you!"

Naturally I looked serious at that, for what woman wants to look the part of a lady that a "gentleman has went off and left?"

"W-what will it cost me to get him back?" I asked, innocently, "a dollar?"

The tender sympathy suddenly faded from the Swami's pale eyes.

"Well, with trouble like that," he vouchsafed quite severely, "I couldn't do it for that. You really ought to have a book, which will cost you $5. I can bring him back for $5."

"Couldn't you even bring him back a few miles for a dollar?" I mildly suggested.

But it seems he couldn't get the gentleman to budge a step for less than five.

"I'm not like some of those low-priced fellows; I never make mistakes," he said, modestly.

Naturally it was a tempting offer, because of course a good man for $5 would be cheap at the price; but I didn't want to strain my expense account, so I merely sighed again and said I'd think it over, and maybe I'd come back. At which the Swami looked irritated—as if somebody had "bit his dog"—and said good-by in a peevish manner, full of pitying contempt for people who hadn't $5.

AT A HAT SEANCE.

Down in the southeastern part of the city, a lady came back in a blue light! It seems a spirit won't appear at all unless there is a blue light.

The medium stepped into a cabinet. Some one went in and tied her. We all saw she was tied—with cheesecloth, in a slipknot. The cabinet was closed. The lights went out. In spite of ourselves the cold chills ran up and down our spines, and telling ourselves we didn't believe in ghosts didn't help a bit. We sat breathless. Finally the inevitable blue light appeared. Our eyes were glued to the curtains of the cabinet. They parted slowly to the sound of low chanting from within—and out swayed a phosphorescent figure in white, and floated about the room near the cabinet, about two feet from the ground. We all sat with our hands clasped, as per orders, so as "not to break the circuit" whatever that is. Slowly, slowly, the figure floated back into the cabinet, and the curtain closed behind it. Then we sang a hymn, and by and by an "assistant" opened the curtains, and disclosed the medium seated as before, bound to her chair. She opened her eyes, stared blankly about, and parted her lips to speak. We listened breathlessly. Naturally, she would tell us where she had been—tales of wondrous visions. She spoke: "Ladies and gents," she began—ah, surely it was coming now, this mystic revelation—

"Ladies and gents, we will now pass the hat."

HARK THE TRUMPS.

Later there were trumpets, and we all sat about in attitudes reminiscent of "his master's voice." Messrs. Marcus Aurelius, William Shakespeare, St. John, Julius Caesar, Montezuma and others called, all speaginf in voices strangely alike and all using the same awful kind of grammar. Making due allowance for differences in age, customs and languages, I'll leave it to you if it seems quite natural for Mr. Montezuma to say "haint," or Mrs. Caesar to allude to his auditors as "them folks."

And there was a banjo floating in the air.

"Why do ghosts always play banjos?" whispered the student, peevishly, "they never seem to really know how to play a tune."

"Perhaps it's their doom," I suggested, but when he pointed out that he had often heard live performers play quite as badly and yet seem to enjoy it, we gave it up.

"And why," I asked in my turn, "why is a 'control' nearly always a weak-voiced Indian, who has apparently died of an overdose of foolish-powders?"

A "fortune," marked down from $5 to $2.

That's what I got at a luxurious place on South Spring, furnished with Turkish rugs, and ornamented with pictures of bric-a-brac of all sorts. There was a very good copy of Millet's "Gleaners," and a very bad copy of a Corot. There were rare vases and jars from the Orient, or maybe, the Occident, and there were statuary and pictures. The pictures were too jumbled a lot, in point of color and subject and framing for good taste, but the general effect was very gorgeous, and there was an impressive array of charts and books.

A much-perfumed "gent," wearing an immense solitaire, presently entered from an inner room, and asked me if I would have a $10 sitting. He said he had a lot of "sittings" later in the day, and intimated I had better come in before they muddied the water.

I suppose I gasped at the price for he immediately said his five dollar sittings were very good. You really ought to have a sitting," he said, solicitously, as if he were speaking of a pew in church, and I answered, "I know, but—" And then he said, in a pained sort of way, that he believed he could let me know quite a lot for $3. I still demurred, and he said that, seeing as he knew I needed a sitting very badly, he would let me have one for $2. I couldn't resist this.

But just let me say, right here, gentle reader, that unless I miss my guess, that fortune belonged to a damaged line of fortunes he had on hand, which he hadn't been able to dispose of. But it was all done very scientifically, out of a book, with charts, especially from off a pink and white chart with strange cabalistic symbols. Now I don't know the stars well enough to call them by their first names, but the astrologer (or is it ist?) did, and all the combinations.

Sometimes they give you the come-on sign by beginning with a warm breeze from the South; and sometimes they bluff you into going into the ten-dollar class with the pazaz specialty, and this two-dollar fortune was of that sort. When he got through, the man who has just seen the new moon over his left shoulder while walking under a ladder on Friday the thirteenth, is little Willie Fortunatus compared to me!

It had a ruthless sweep, too, that fortune, and reached out and wrapped itself round all my relatives and friends, assuming the proud proportions of a family curse. Honestly, I did think it was mean to extend that $2 jinx to the whole reservation!

As for me, he prophesized heart-disease, rheumatism and house-maid's knee, and having thus maimed me and left me by the roadside, he proceeded relentlessly to deprive me, one by one, of all my friends, relatives and things-in-law! All but the family cat; he didn't know about the family cat, and you bet I kept her dark. But at the last he relented a little, and soothed me by saying that at the end of six years, if some of the awful things that were to happen, hadn't killed me, by that time, I would be doing fairly well, except that I'd be sick and poor and all alone in the world!

I sighed as I left, for I realized there was no escape, for he is an astrologer, and astrology is an "exact science!"

"CABINETS IS NOT NECESSARY."

One spook doctor on South Main street guaranteed to skid a spirit into the midst of the here-and-now for $1, solemnly assuring us that "cabinets is not necessary to materialization."

We paid and asked for the spirit. He said it was right there, only we couldn't see it, and we wished we had done that way about the dollar.

Thenceforth he launched into a discourse on spirits, from which it seems there are just little low-brow spirits, that will do your "hanting" for almost nothing, and glad to get the work for the experience; there is the common, or garden variety of ghost, which haunts graveyards and lonely houses, and there is the classy ghost that comes with guards, a pedigree and up-to-date fixtures, that won't take any but high-class jobs, and demands union wages!

He was a strongly-built, square-headed man, vital and stocky, with all the animal fascination of his type. He looked like a man that ought to have a good job in the ferry house, and his grammar proved it.

Sitting opposite me at a table, and taking my measure with his eye, he told me I was much greater than the world knew. (I had always suspected this, but heavens! How did he know it?) "You are destined to a great career"—really there was something in this man—"and then

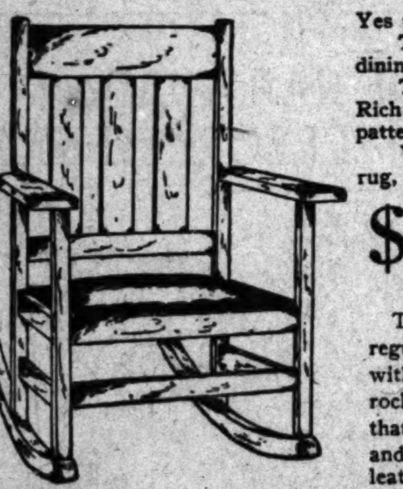
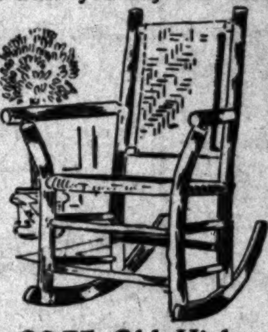
Seamless Velvet Rugs $17.95



Yes they are absolutely seamless—a rare feature in rugs of this grade. They measure 9x12 feet—standard room size, ample for the ordinary dining or living-room. The colorings are the same that you find in the highest grade weaves. Rich browns, greens and tans—soft tones, delicately blended. Seven patterns to choose from. You buy long service and perfect satisfaction when you buy this rug, at $17.95.

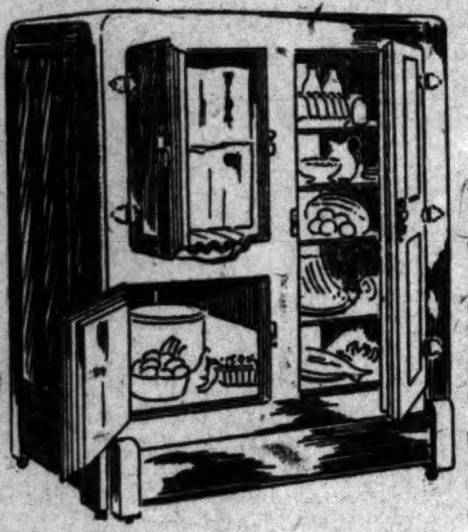
$5.50 For this Solid Oak Rocker

The most important feature is the price. The regular value of this rocker is $8.00. Couple this with the fact that every stick of wood in the rocker is solid oak and you have a combination that is certainly unusual. The finish is fumed and the seat is upholstered in imitation Spanish leather.



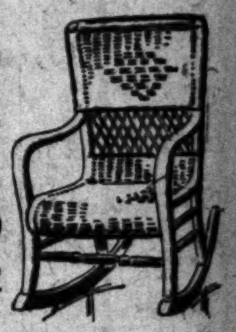
$6.75 Old Hickory Arm Rocker $5.25

Just as strong and sturdy as it looks in the picture. Extra heavy posts and the woven parts extra strong. You cannot duplicate this in town for anywhere near $5.25. The price, you must remember, is $6.75.



Our Special $25.00 Refrigerator

A well built, hardwood case, golden finish. Insulated by the latest scientific process, with heavy building paper. Has white enamel lining in the provision chamber; solid brass clamp locks and brass hinges. Holds 100 pounds of ice. Has the celebrated dry-air process refrigeration. Special demonstration with ice this week, showing exactly what it will do. A great investment, at $25.00.



$5.00 Fiber Arm Rocker $3.75

Exact design shown in the sketch. This rocker represents a new carload shipment of rockers, chairs, settees and tables, the latest in fiber furniture. We selected the line because of its adaptability to Southern California porches.

$9.50 Fiber Table to Match $7.25

This piece is fiber in finish only, as the top is ash and the frame of hardwood, well braced. Two or three pieces of this fiber furniture furnish the average porch wonderfully well.

ADMIRABLE THEORISTS.

Now comes Mrs. Richard Harding Davis into court suing for release from a matrimonial yoke too heavy for her to bear. It appears that authors create ideal husbands in fiction.

STRIKING THE BALANCE.

While the flood damages in the South will run far above $50,000,000, it is comforting to know that this will be offset by the benefits to drought-burdened regions. Nothing counts like good crops.

GETTING BUSY.

Now that the country is in sight of the open Panama Canal, the United States would probably find it good business to build a big merchant marine which could carry commerce in times of peace and help the navy in case of war.

HAVE IT COMING.

Russia notified the Chinese government that Russian lives and property must be guaranteed protection and quickly followed the notice by landing troops in a Chinese province. Some day that bear will meet a hunter of his size and the fur will fly.

NOT PERFUNCTORY.

Memorial Day in Los Angeles seemed to bring a peculiar sense of realization. Fifty years has not dimmed the memories nor lessened the gratitude of the nation. Every local service for these heroes on Thursday was characterized by depth of feeling.

A GREAT ORGANIZATION.

Los Angeles is to be congratulated on its woman's orchestra, which has been in continuous practice for more than twenty years. Two sections of this orchestra are truly remarkable. For tone, quality and color its reeds and horns are equaled by few aggregations.

DISFRANCHISED.

To give the women the vote and then to compel them to walk two and a half miles over a bad road to the polling booth is like presenting an automobile to an Eskimo Indian to chase polar bears. Yet such was the fate of the voters in Precinct No. 102, Hollywood, at the late municipal election.

IT LISTENS STRANGE.

It is amusing to read that the East is trying to protect itself from the death which may lurk in summer vacations by having its periodicals and newspapers refuse to advertise unsanitary resorts, and especially those which cannot prove wholesomeness of water supply. It is certainly great to live in a land where every man knows he will get something good wherever he goes.

UNMOVED.

Alfred Stead, son of the journalist and lecturer who was lost on the Titanic, is said to be defending the United States Senate's inquiry into the disaster. If he requires any help in that defense he knows where to call. Bernard Shaw says that if America were him, it would not worry about the English opinion. We can assure Mr. Shaw that he himself need have no worry on this score. America saw its duty and did it in the shortest order possible. So far as this country is concerned, its opinion of the wreck will not be expurgated and it is not likely to be amended.

CROSSING A BRIDGE.

It is quite unfair to denominate Congress as a madhouse simply because its Democratic members are occasionally in the ascendency without knowing what to do about it. They are now trying to utilize the political accident of their presence at the Capitol by passing a bill which will make the Filipinos both independent and self-governing in 1921. It is probable that the Lord himself would not set a date at which any of his creatures would be commanded to take up a burden for which they show no present fitness. The one hope of the people in the Philippines is that the Americans will remain as their instruction and support as long as they need them. Evolution, even under a Democratic administration, can hardly be made to conform to the dates of a calendar.

KING OF HIS CASTLE.

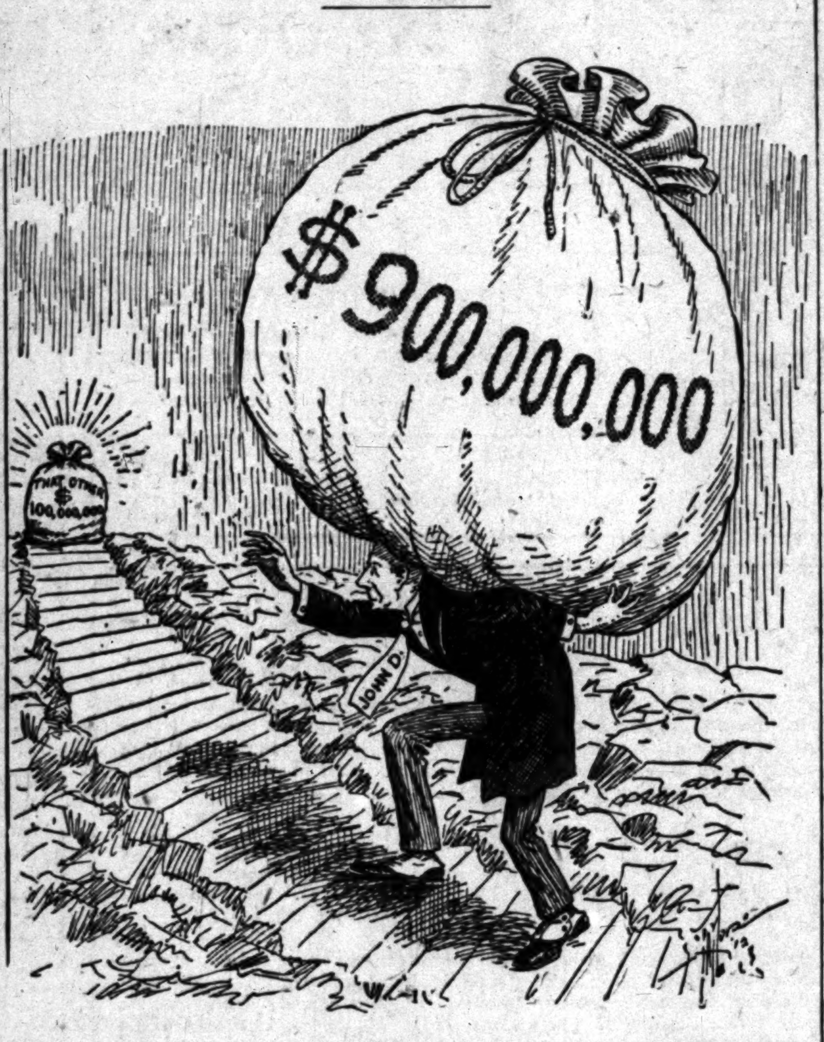
Herr Sohst is still king of his own castle. A lessee of a small house on the imperial estate in Cadinen, Germany, he considered it all-sufficient for his needs. The German Emperor, however, felt that something very much more magnificent was desirable for the housing of his tenant and he forthwith decided that a better house should be erected, and that Herr Sohst should contribute toward its cost. Herr Sohst thought not.

The German Emperor believed that the view, the land, the surrounding houses and certainly, Herr Sohst's family would all be the gainers by his idea. He argued persuasively, he ordered indignantly, he pleaded tearfully; but Herr Sohst proved adamant. The Emperor gave instructions for the work to commence. And then—the audacity—Herr Sohst called upon the law to deter the Emperor from interfering with his private rights!

The case has just been decided, and the Emperor climbs down.

We can just imagine with what dignity Herr Sohst will carry himself in future. It is something to be an Emperor, but oh, it is the purest joy to have defeated an Emperor on his own estate!

His Goal?



THE EXAMPLE OF NEVADA.

Prior to January, 1908, the Industrial Workers of the World had terrorized laborers, employers of labor, merchants, restaurant-keepers and the people generally in the State of Nevada into subjection to their exactions. The labor bosses ruled with a rod of iron. They enforced the doctrine of the closed shop rigidly, especially in the mines and reduction works, where no person not a member of the union was permitted to work. If a mill owner employed a non-union worker he took the chances of having his establishment dynamited. The non-union man employed took no chances. It was a sure thing that he would be beaten to pulp the first convenient opportunity.

The mining companies had a rule requiring miners who worked in drifts where high-grade ore abounded, to change their clothing on beginning and on leaving work. This was done to prevent miners from pocketing rich ore. There was ore in some of the Goldfield mines that would run from $1 to $5 a pound, and a miner who could filch daily five to ten pounds of such ore would be able in a few months to lay the nucleus of a fortune.

The labor-union bosses compelled the companies to forego the enforcement of this rule on the assumed ground that it was an insult to the integrity of the honest miner, but really because it lessened the ability of the dishonest miner to contribute to the revenues of the labor bosses.

Merchants who furnished non-union workers with supplies were boycotted. The keeper of a restaurant who sold a meal to a non-union man, after being warned not to do so, was murdered in his place of business. The members of the jury that tried the murderer were warned that if they failed to acquit the defendant they would be boycotted and beaten. They disregarded the threat and brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree. The convicted man was sentenced to life imprisonment, and while in prison he was nominated by the Union Labor party for President of the United States, and received the votes of its members.

Aroused to action by these unbearable conditions, Republicans and Democrats in the Nevada Legislature in January, 1908, united in passing what is known as the "State Police Bill."

This measure provided for the appointment of a superintendent of police by the Governor, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the Attorney-General and two representative citizens. The superintendent was required to be over 30 years of age and a citizen of the State and of the United States.

The superintendent was authorized to appoint two inspectors, ten sergeants, 100 subordinate police officers, and 500 reserves. These were to be citizens of the State, over 21 years of age, of good moral character, and were required to pass an examination as to their mental and physical qualifications. The inspectors were required to be competent military instructors.

The superintendent was given an annual salary of $5000, the inspectors $2400, the members of the active force $1200, and the members of the reserve force $240 and $5 per day while in active service. All members were required to serve not less than one year, unless dismissed or discharged. A member of the State police on exhibiting a copy of his commission to any railroad conductor was entitled to transportation with any prisoners in his charge, and the railroad company was entitled to payment from the State for such transportation. Any person refusing to aid a member of the State police in the discharge of his duties, and any person intercepting, molesting or insulting him by abusive words or behavior while in the discharge of his duties might be punished for a misdemeanor.

The act provides that it shall be the duty of each member of the State police and he shall have the power—

(a) To make arrests, with or without warrant, of any and all persons charged with crime, or to arrest and detain all persons suspected of the commission of any offence or of violating any law of the State or of the United States, and shall bring such prisoners as may be apprehended as soon as convenient before the proper tribunal for examination and trial.

(b) To suppress all riots, routs, affrays, or disturbances of any kind within the State, and to arrest any and all persons engaged or abetting therein, and for this purpose shall have the power to command the assistance of all peace officers and all other citizens of the State.

(c) To serve any criminal process within the State issued by any court of the State.

(d) To co-operate with the local authorities in detecting crime, and in apprehending any person or persons engaged in or suspected of the commission of a crime.

(e) To do and perform all duties required of any peace officer of the State, except he shall not serve civil process.

The law makes it the duty of any officers or jailers having charge or custody of any jail or place of detention, to receive all prisoners arrested by any member of the State police, and to detain them in custody until ordered to be released by the said State police, or by a court of competent jurisdiction. Any officer, jailer or person having custody of any jail or place of detention who shall refuse to so receive and detain such prisoners shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

It is provided that whenever the Governor shall declare martial law within any county or counties in the State, or when he shall declare any county or counties in the State to be in a state of insurrection, after the date of such declaration, and until the same shall have been revoked, THE SAID STATE POLICE SHALL HAVE FULL AND ABSOLUTE POWER TO TAKE ANY AND ALL STEPS NECESSARY AND PROPER FOR THE PRESERVATION OF LIFE AND PROPERTY AND THE RESTORATION OF PEACE AND ORDER.

The last clause was criticised as being a suspension of all law and the establishment of a military despotism. The answer was that conditions had demanded and might again demand that just such power be lodged somewhere, in order to protect the lives and property of peaceable citizens from assault by the I.W.W.'s.

Certainly the provisions of the law are exceedingly drastic and the State policemen might have abused their power. But they never have abused it. The law has been in operation in Nevada for more than four years, and no single instance of its being abused has ever been adduced. Since its passage there has not been a riot, a boycott, or a case of unlawful picketing in Nevada. Goldfield and Tonopah, which were formerly storm centers of disorder, have become quiet and law-observing communities. Union and non-union members work alongside each other. Ore stealing is no longer an industry. Boycotting has ceased. Industrial freedom reigns, and there is no more peaceful and prosperous commonwealth in the Union than the battle-born State of Nevada.

CURSING CAPITALISTS.

The cursing of capitalists by those who have no capital, and who never would have any capital if they lived to the age of Methuselah, because they spend as they go, is one of the prominent jawbone industries of the day.

Yet without capital civilization would soon degenerate into savagery, because without the aid of capital the most industrious man would be unable to supply himself with food, shelter or clothing. He might dig clams with his hands, but he could not till the earth without at least a spade, or shoot a rabbit without a gun, or cut boughs for a hut without a hatchet, and spade, gun and hatchet were all manufactured with the aid of capital.

It may be that capital demands and obtains for itself an undue share of what is produced by the toil of labor, but on the other hand it has never appeared that the toiler failed to get all that he could for his work, without knowing or at least without caring whether his employer gained or lost by hiring him.

"Without the factory," says Henry George, "there could be no factory operatives; without the sewing machine no machine sewing; without the plow, no plowman; and without a great capital engaged in exchange, industry could not take the many special forms which are concerned with exchanges."

The honest Socialists—those who are not anarchists or I-Won't-Workers—propose that the State shall be the capitalist, and shall supply the machinery of production. But where would the State obtain the money with which to provide land, machinery, and tools? It would obtain the cash by the same process invoked by the private capitalist. It would obtain it from a profit upon the earnings of labor. The worker would exchange one employer for another. He might gain by the substitution, and then again he might not.

The French have a proverb that "the better is always the enemy of the well." A Socialist co-operative commonwealth would have to be governed and directed. A railroad would need division superintendents; a factory, a furnace, a foundry or a farm would need managers. There must be "fellows who work and fellows who direct." Is it probable that the directors in a co-operative commonwealth would all be unwinged, unselfish seraphs, content to receive no more of the good things of life than those whose jobs they directed? Or is it not altogether likely that the "fellows who direct" would continue as now to gather shekels from the toil of the fellows who work?

STRINDBERG DIES.

That irony of destiny which has befallen so many of the world's great ones has come upon August Strindberg, who died in Stockholm last week at what might be considered the dawn of his recognition. It is true that his first work was published in Sweden as early as 1879, but it was only in recent years that he began to be a power in his own country and a serious influence abroad. Indeed, it is only within the last year that Mr. Edwin Bjorkman, a generous, faithful and really stupendous critic of the greater modern poets and philosophers, has undertaken to gain for Strindberg the advantage of a large audience in the book-buying United States.

By a singular coincidence Charles Scribner's Sons last week issued Bjorkman's second volume of the Strindberg translations almost on the day of Strindberg's death. It contains only a single play entitled "There are Crimes and Crimes," and is accompanied, of course, by a luminous introduction by Bjorkman. No foreign-born man of letters in America has ever done a more pretentious work than is now being achieved by Bjorkman in his translations and criticisms of men like Strindberg, Ibsen and Bergson. His reviews are unprejudiced in the favor of his subjects and are exceptional both in their clarity and faithfulness. For instance, it is probably true that Strindberg has no vast cosmic conception of life and that he sees humanity's motives and actions only from angles, but Bjorkman never claims for him an all-inclusive greatness of idea or treatment, being satisfied merely to see that Strindberg is understood as an artist of great power up to the mark of his limitations.

No modern dramatist of consequence is more desperately in need of a sympathetic and intelligent interpreter than Strindberg, because of his eccentricities of personality and of method. One who knew less of the psychic and the philosophic than Bjorkman and one unfamiliar with the peculiar temperament of the Swede and his language would fail Strindberg at many vital points. In spite of the rare interpretation which he gave the three plays of Strindberg published by Scribners' some three months ago, a good part of the American drama-reading public seems to have taken them superficially to voice only bitterness and to express an especially ferocious attitude toward women. We think this view sadly inadequate. Certainly the "Dream Play" brings together some atrociously sordid characters; but Indra, the daughter of the gods, sheds the light of a mellow understanding over every situation. Strindberg is not to be blamed, but rather praised if he illuminates the drama with an insight of realism similar to that which Turgenev brings to the Russian novel, Zola to the French, and Poe to the American short story. In his personal life Strindberg's experiences were often unhappy and sometimes tragic, but like the true artist his own heart's blood has been used as ink for a faithful portrayal of what he saw, and something of fragrance from his lifelong love of flowers has crept into all his work.

That work was exceedingly voluminous, and while it may not be fair to judge him by a few translated examples, Bjorkman may be depended upon to give us much of the best.

A WORD FOR THE SAILOR-MAN.

On the whole, Senator Smith's summing up of the causes that led to the greatest world-ocean-tragedy and his suggested safeguards for the seafaring public are well judged and carefully considered. His blaze of indignation at the conduct of Capt. Lord of the Californian, no less than his eloquent tribute to the heroism of Capt. Rostrom of the Carpathia, should stimulate the owners and masters of ships to avoid the disgrace of the one and to copy the humanity of the other.

With the mass of his findings and his suggested remedial legislation the government will no doubt deal at the proper time. One result of his inquiry may not attract so much public attention, yet it is very important. It relates to the composition of the crews on whom the safety of every ocean ship to a great extent depends.

He touches the right spot when he puts in an eloquent plea for the sailors, the men before the mast, the firemen in the stokehole, the private soldiers of the sea, that their lot should be ameliorated, their calling made more attractive, their wages more adequate. It certainly is not to our credit that in our merchant marine only 10 per cent. of the men are native-born Americans. Nor is it to the honor of Great Britain that her big ocean-shipping companies employ 70,000 orientals. The labor-unions must bear their share of the disgrace.

Surface thinkers may suppose that the desire to obtain cheap labor is the controlling motive of the ship owners in employing Lascar and other alien seamen to the partial exclusion of their own countrymen. These business men know that cheap labor is by no means the most economical. But a far more serious problem confronts them if, by employing entirely native crews, they thereby put the tying up of ocean commerce in the hands of a few labor-union officials. Captains and companies alike would prefer to use intelligent sailors picked from among their own countrymen and pay them better wages. But few of them are willing to place their ships and fortunes at the mercy of a labor-union oligarchy. If the Seamen's Unions on both sides of the Atlantic will co-operate loyally with the ship owners we may get once more a class of seamen on every American and British merchant ship, to use a time-honored expression, "worthy of the best traditions of the sea."

PASSING OF THE SPELLBINDER

BY TOM FITCH.

In no State of the Union is the passing of the spellbinder more noticeable than in California. The voices that thrilled and fascinated in the olden golden days are hushed in the silence of death and their successors come not.

Edward D. Baker was among all the orators facile princeps. Who that heard it can ever forget his Atlantic cable oration. "Thought has bridged the Atlantic and cleaves its unfettered way across the deep, winged by the lightning and guarded by the billow. . . . From the dark, unfathomed caves of ocean the pearl that heaves upon the breast of beauty is dragged to the glare of day. The unburied dead lie waiting for the resurrection morning, while above them the winds wail their perpetual requiem; there the lost treasures of India and Peru are forever buried; there the wrecks of the Armada and Trafalgar are forever whelmed. But amid these scattered relics of the buried past, over shell-formed shores and wave-worn crags, the gleaming Thought darts its way; amid the monsters of the deep, amid the sporting myriads and countless armies of the sea, the single link that unites two worlds conveys the mandate of a king or the message of a lover."

Baker's apostrophe to Freedom in his "American Theater" speech was a masterpiece. "Long years ago I took my stand by Freedom, and where in youth my feet were planted, there my manhood and my age shall march. I am not ashamed of Freedom, I know her power; I rejoice in her majesty; I walk beneath her banner; I glory in her strength. I have seen her again and again struck down on a hundred chosen fields of battle; I have seen her friends fly from her. I have seen her foes gather around her; I have seen them bind her to the stake; I have seen them give her ashes to the winds, regathering them that they might scatter them yet more widely; but when they turned to exalt, I have seen her again meet them, face to face, clad in complete steel, and brandishing in her strong right hand a flaming sword, red with insufferable light."

Thomas Starr King, who ranked equally with Baker as an orator, was not so fiery in delivery, but had a more affluent imagination and was more artistic in his arrangement of phrases. He said: "God created this country to be one. The Creator placed no Mason and Dixon's line upon it; that was the work of foolish men. He marked no boundaries for rival civilizations in the great basins of the West. The Mississippi, like a great national tree, has its root in the hot gulf, and spreads its top to the far icy north—a glorious tree, with boughs in different latitudes and branches binding the Rocky Mountains and the Lakes together, its great trunk the central artery of a national unity."

Starr King had no patience with the materialistic philosophy. He said: "The clinching argument against atheism is not that there is such constant order in the universe, but that so many facts, apparently independent of order, play so beautifully into each other in perfect harmony. Can it be chance that determines the mad but punctual whirling of the universe? Think of a heap of letters dropped from space, sent fluttering through the air, like snowflakes, and by chance arranging themselves into the scenes, the stirring passages, the solemn climax of the tragedy of Macbeth so that all the characters should be there. The proposition obliges atheism and probability to look each other in the face. If Macbeth is probable as a result of such a shower of letters, hurled down by chance then it may be confessed that chance hurled the immense physical alphabet into this grand poem of nature, whose leaves are systems and each word a world."

John B. Felton was the most versatile of after-dinner speakers. Comparing physical and mental pleasures, he said: "Who, as he has sat down to his table, has not felt how monotonous and drear a life of a thousand years would be with the same dull round of beef, pork, mutton or venison? Who has not sympathized with me, long-suffering man that I am, my temper gave way at the seventh reception of the saddle of lamb in the same week? 'Madame,' I exclaimed, 'it seems to me that since our bridal we have had nothing but saddle; if this goes on I shall be like the horse that Motherwell's pathetic verse has immortalized. He went forth in the morning, and in the evening

"Home came the saddle,
But he nevermore."'

"For the mind—for the intellect—for the investigation of truth—here variety is boundless. Here desire finds ever new changing food to gratify it. Here, as bodily faculties fail, and physical pleasures pall, the pleasures of the mind constantly increase in variety and intensity. In the gratification of these desires we find our minds created for no finite bound of time, but everything is graduated on an eternal scale."

Henry Edgerton, Harry I. Thornton, Alexander Campbell, Harvey S. Brown, E. J. C. Kewen, W. H. L. Barnes, Newton Booth, Milton S. Latham, Charles A. Sumner and Frank Tilford were spellbinders who could hold delighted audiences for hours.

M. C. Briggs, S. B. Bell, W. A. Scott and Horatio Stebbins were clergymen the pews of whose churches were always filled.

J. G. (Blove) Howard, J. G. Eastman, Frank M. Pixley, Sam Parker, J. F. Swift and J. H. Warwick were eloquent speakers.

And they are all gone. Of one hundred and eleven authors and speakers whose writings and utterances are recorded in Shuck's "California Anthology," published in 1880, only two linger on this side the shoreless river—Joe Goodman and the writer of this article. The days in which we live are presumably better than "the brave days of old," and yet one sometimes thinks with regret of the times when one was not compelled to exercise every faculty of mind and body to cross Spring street without being run over by an automobile.

Qualified.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley said the other day of a canning concern:

"These people, when we objected to some of the poisonous chemicals they used in their canned peas and asparagus, laughed at us. They said we were ignorant and inexperienced. They pointed out that they had been many years in business and that they turned out many millions of cans a year.

"It reminded me of a woman whom I once saw, in my young days, feeding a babe a few months old on bits of fried fish and pickle.

"'Don't do that,' I said. 'Don't do that, madam! It's most unhealthy to give fish and pickle to so young a child.'

"The woman frowned upon me.

"'Huh,' she said, 'don't you try to teach me how to feed babies. Why, young feller, I've buried seven!'"

Spring's Promises.

When the spring comes again, will you be there?
Three springs I watched and waited for your face,
And listened for your voice upon the air;
I sought for you in many a hidden place,
Saying: "She must be there."

"Surely some magic slumber holds her fast,
She whose blue eyes were morning's earliest flowers,"
I sighed: and, one by one, before me passed
The rainbowed daughters of the vernal showers,
Saying: "She comes at last."

Ah! broken promise of the world! how fair
You speak young hearts! In many a wanton word
Of lyric April, each succeeding year,
By risen flower, and the returning bird,
You vowed to bring back her.

And now the flutes are in the trees once more,
The violets breathe up through the melting snow,
Old Earth throws open wide her grassy door—
As if there were no violets long ago,
Or any birds before.

Los Angeles Times

INFORMATION

For Newcomers, Inquirers, Subscribers and Advertisers, Agents and the General Public.

SCOPE AND AIMS:

THE TIMES PUBLISHES REGULARLY more pages of news and other reading matter and a larger volume of advertising than any other paper extant.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: Independent, uncompromised, unshackled, unpurchasable, unafraid and unincumbered. THE LOS ANGELES TIMES is devoted to the great principles of Liberty under Law, Equal Rights in all fields of lawful human endeavor, Industrial Freedom, and to the upbuilding of Los Angeles, the State of California and the great Southwest.

AS TO LABOR: The Times is the undeviating friend of all honest toilers—of all unshackled law-abiding workers everywhere; and while never denying the right of workmen to organize lawfully, it is the unyielding foe of lawless, proscriptive, monopolistic and exclusive labor organizations, because they are the [illegible] enemies of their own class and of the common industrial weal. Our position is unmistakable and will be maintained. The long record of The Times as a just, liberal, reliable paymaster is unassailable. During the period between August 4, 1890, and September 30, 1911, there was paid to our loyal and well-satisfied non-union workmen, in salaries and wages, the telling aggregate cash sum of $4,268,819.17—mainly to skilled labor.

SWORN CIRCULATION: Daily net average seven days, Sunday included—for 1896, 18,091; for 1897, 19,258; for 1898, 26,124; for 1899, 25,731; for 1900, 26,733; for 1901, 28,446; for 1902, 36,050; for 1903, 38,940; for 1904, 37,909; for 1905, 42,150; for 1906, 48,321 copies, for 1907, 52,311 copies; for 1908, 53,700 copies; for 1909, 54,954 copies. Sunday average for 1910, 55,152 copies. Daily and Sunday average for 1910, 57,358 copies. Average circulation every day for the three months of 1912, 60,153 copies.

AGENTS: Eastern Agents, William Lawrence & Cresmer Co., Brunswick Building, 5th Ave. and 26th St., New York; 824-25 Harris Trust Bldg., 111 West Monroe St., Chicago. Washington Bureau, 46 Post Building (THE TIMES on file.) San Francisco Office, Room 1206 Call Building; R. J. Bidwell, Representative.

THE ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY: Published on Saturdays; 40 pages; distinct and complete in itself. "The Unique Magazine of the Sumptuous Southwest." Mailed to subscribers separately from the Daily Times for $2.50 per year, postpaid. Single copies 10 cents, postpaid.

TWO SPECIAL OFFERS: From and after this date, an extra copy of the Los Angeles Times Illustrated Weekly will be MAILED FREE FOR SIX MONTHS upon the order of any person, whether an old subscriber or a new, who contracts to subscribe for the Daily and Sunday Times for one year and pay the price, $9.00, in quarterly installments of $2.25 each, in advance. Or, with a full year's subscription to the Daily and Sunday papers, and $9.00 cash in advance, an extra copy of the Illustrated Weekly will be sent free for 12 months. This is an exceptional opportunity, good for a limited period, to serve a distant friend and at the same time do good missionary work for Los Angeles.

TELEPHONES: Counting-room, Subscription Department, Editorial Rooms, City Editor and Local News Rooms—Sunset, Main 8200; Home 10391.

TERMS: Daily and Sunday, 75 cents a month, or $9.00 a year. Daily without Sunday, $7.50 a year. Sunday alone, $3.50; without the Illustrated Weekly, $2.50. When the Sunday issue is mailed, the Illustrated Weekly is mailed separately, a day in advance.

POSTAGE: On the regular week-day issue (1 or 2 parts,) 2 cents; on the Sunday issue (8 parts,) 7 cents.

LOW-BROW "SPIRITS."

you will be recognized as you deserve."

After all, I reflected, sometimes these simple, untutored natures have more real penetration—

"I could ha' told you who your 'fren' was that come in at the door with you, but you notice I didn't," he said.

"Just fancy!" we cried in admiration. "Being able to keep anything like that to yourself, just as easy!"

While we waited for the "control" to work our man, the student told me of an experience he had, a few years ago—and when I turned around suddenly, that man was biting my dollar! But to the story:

"I went to a seance once, in the days when the raw things went better than they do now. The lights were down very low, of course. The friend with me was a believer, and she was very much excited because the medium had told her she should see her dead aunt. Presently a dim blue light, unearthly and phosphorescent, shone at the cabinet's door; the curtains opened a little way, and a shadowy figure appeared. The medium told her she might approach. She did so, in fear and trembling. She grasped the figure and kissed it! 'Ah,' she cried, "it is, it is, my aunt! It's cold and it smells just like the grave!' Just then some investigating unbeliever turned on the lights which fell, in full glare—not on a spirit face, but on a human foot!"

When the "control" finally got oiled up and running, he turned out to be one of those silly Indians, and we fled!

SPIRIT READINGS.

On Thursday we attended a meeting where they were giving spirit messages. The mediums on the platform glanced at us with their sharp and furtive eyes when we entered, but we assumed a look of lamb-like innocence, and by and by they forgot us, while a colorless young woman sang, in a colorless voice, something about the spirit faces.

The medium who was to give the readings was a handsome woman of about 35, who, blindfolded, answered to the name of Blossom, and unblindfolded became Mrs. Murphy.

She answered questions from the pile of papers before her, in the time-honored way. I must say she was very optimistic—everything was always "going to come out all right." I noticed, however, that neither the student nor myself received any answers to our momentous questions. They weren't even discussed; they were just coolly ignored.

It was marvelous, too, how the spirits lead a medium! Though this one was blindfolded, she constantly walked from one of the platforms to the other, with firm and certain step, unerringly avoiding chairs and people and everything else, and never once missing her footing! That alone was worth the 15 cents admission!

After the spirit "readings," we all sat in a circle and watched the spirit-healing, when the healer removes imaginary drops of sweat from the healee's brow and shakes it off his fingers. It seemed to us there was far more perspiration on the brows of the good looking young women than on those of the old men, but that may have been only our imagination.

"Have you the shivers?" I asked the student as we parted.

"Hoot mon!" he cried, mysterious-

GLENDORA.

GLENDORA, June 1. — Miss S. Marsh sustained a fracture of the collarbone this morning in a runaway accident. While driving through town she dropped one of the lines, the horse bolted and headed north, and at the sharp turn made at the next street intersection the occupant of the buggy was thrown suddenly and violently to the ground. She was picked up in a dazed condition and taken into the home of V. C. Reynard until Dr. W. R. McNair, who had been called, arrived. As soon as Miss Marsh had recovered from the shock sufficiently she was taken to her home on Grand avenue.

RUNNING DOWN MEN TO ROB.

the thieves got through, there was little left which would establish Moore's identity in case his dead body was found.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

"I lay there all night in a daze," Moore said in telling his story to Detectives Moore and Oaks of the University station. "My experience was terrible and it is a wonder that my hair did not turn white during the night. I could not speak at first and was semi-delirious, but I realized vaguely what was going on around me.

"During the night someone frequently poured something down my throat. What the stuff was I don't know. I remember that I cried wildly at intervals for Dr. E. J. Cook, my cousin, who lives at Twelfth and Elder streets. I begged my captors to send for him, but they would not listen to me. The way they discussed my probable death was bloodthirsty, but I was too badly hurt to care much what they did with me.

"All night long they talked of what they would do if I died. Then toward morning I began regaining strength and they saw that I was not so badly injured as they thought. My head was aching fit to burst, as I had suffered a long scalp wound. My lips were swollen so I could not articulate as they were split wide open and the inside of my cheeks were cut nearly through where my teeth had cut into the flesh when I was struck.

"In the morning, about daylight, one of the women of the gang—a big coarse-looking woman, who wore a kimono and who had her hair done up in a scraggly fashion—began quarreling with the men. She said that if I was going to die that I could not die there and that anyway I would have to be taken away, as it would never do for me to be found in the place.

TAKEN HOME.

"'You'll have to get him out of here and get him out quick,' said the woman. The men growled and one of them swore roundly but after a talk they decided to take me away. Evidently, as they knew then that I was not fatally injured, they decided to take me home. They knew my address from the letters they had taken from me.

"I was carried downstairs. There was an automobile standing in front of the place. It was a five-passenger car, I remember. The car that struck me the night before was larger, holding seven passengers. The driver of the car was standing at the curb.

"'I am not going to take this fellow out there alone. One of you fellows will have to come along and help me. He can't walk and I won't be able to handle him,' said the driver of the auto.

"One of the fellows who had hold of me jammed my hat down over my eyes so that I could not see where I was. I was helpless and too weak to resist. Then he turned on the chauffeur and swore at him.

"'You take this man where I tell you and ask no questions,' he commanded, and with considerable muttering I was loaded into the machine and the driver started away with me.

"When he got me to the home of my cousin he lifted me out of the machine, half dragged me to the door, opened it and I staggered inside and caught hold of the back of a chair. Then he ran back to his machine and drove away. The only thing I had left in my pockets was a ring with two keys on it. The thieves took everything else I had."

OUT TO THEATER.

Moore, who is 30 years old, had been to the theater with friends, who had just left him a few minutes before he was struck by the "pirate car." Moore was hurt at 11 o'clock at night, and had just walked from the theater with a friend named Wilder, to take his car on Spring street when the thieves drove along. The bank cashier says he stepped from the curb out into the street to read the sign on an approaching car when the big touring auto came around the corner. The chauffeur steered straight for him. The car was on the wrong side of the street but he says the driver could easily have avoided hitting Moore. Evidently it was the chauffeur's intention to tip his victim over with a blow from the fender. However, he struck him squarely and hurled him twenty feet.

REIN KILLING.

In commenting on the similarity between the injuries suffered by the man whose body was found in the harbor and those suffered by Moore, one of the Central Station detectives declared last night that he is almost certain the man thought to be Rein was killed by an auto. "There were bruises on the San Pedro victim's body that we at first thought were produced by a blunt instrument," said the detective.

"Now it looks as if he had been struck by an automobile. We never believed that the murder was committed at the docks at San Pedro, but thought that the body had been taken there and then thrown into the water. The fact that the identification marks on the clothing and the marks on the shirtband were cut out of the shirts of both Moore and the man whose body was found in the harbor, makes the work look to me as if it had been done by the same band of crooks."

"Moore's friends and relatives say that he is a young man of exemplary habits and never drinks. He was cashier of a bank in Baxter Springs for a number of years, having been raised in that town. Later he was cashier in a bank in Kansas City, giving up that position a short time ago because of poor health, on account of which he came here.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS' BANQUET.

Extensive Function of the Students' League on Tuesday Night, to Be Addressed by New Zealand Athlete.

The big Students' League banquet, which will be held at Hamburger's on Tuesday evening, now promises to number not less than 1000 guests, from the various High Schools of the city, and it is looked forward to as a most interesting occasion. The principal speaker will be Harry N. Holmes of New Zealand, who is in this country making a study of social and economic problems. Mr. Holmes is chairman of the Football Association of New Zealand. Himself a football and cricket player, he is in full sympathy with the boys, and it is expected that his talk will be of marked interest to them. The Students' League is now less than one year old and has been organized in ten of the high schools, including some outside of the city, with a present membership of about 3000.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Legislative Committee of the City Council yesterday recommended the passage of a "spite fence" ordinance which the City Prosecutor says will stand the test of the courts.

Action was taken by a Council committee yesterday clearing the way for action on the improvement of Hope street on a split grade between First and Third streets, an improvement long sought by property owners.

The Legislative Committee will recommend to the Council the passage of an ordinance prohibiting mediums and other mystics from advertising to foretell the future, etc. The committee yesterday referred the ordinance to the City Attorney and City Prosecutor for minor changes.

The Streets and Boulevards Committee took favorable action yesterday on the proposed Arroyo de la Brea storm drain, calling for an expenditure of about a half-million dollars.

Affairs are nearly ready for a final settlement of the estate of E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, and it is estimated his two daughters will receive property valued at $9,000,000.

At the City Hall.

WILL PROHIBIT SPITE FENCES.

LEGISLATION COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL PLANS IT.

Hears Assistant City Prosecutor About Ordinance Drafted on Eastern Model and Decides to Recommend Its Adoption—"Unnecessary or Malicious" High Walls Barred.

"Spite fences" have been a bone of contention in various parts of Los Angeles at sundry times within the past few years, and four times the City Council has undertaken to legislate away this sort of troubles—but in each instance the ordinance was found defective.

For several weeks past the Legislation Committee has been struggling with the problem, along with numerous others, and yesterday it decided to recommend to the Council the passage of an ordinance that has been prepared by the City Prosecutor's office. The assistant City Prosecutor was before the committee explaining the ordinance. He declares that it will stand before the courts and that it is practically formed on ordinances of similar character that have stood court tests in Connecticut, Maine and some very important cases in Massachusetts.

The particular force of the proposed ordinance lies in the provision that no fence of more than six feet in height shall be built or maintained on any property "unnecessarily or maliciously." The courts have held that if a property-owner can show a reasonable need for a fence of unusual height it cannot be affected by any legislation against "spite fences," but if it can be shown that the fence is unnecessary or maintained maliciously then it is subject to legal action.

The proposed ordinance provides that each day of maintaining any fence conflicting with the ordinance shall costitute a separate offence, and that the penalty shall be not less than $20 nor more than $200 fine for each offence, or from five to 100 days in jail, or both fine and imprisonment. The Council will pass upon the ordinance Tuesday.

Safety Regulations.

The Legislative Committee of the City Council yesterday instructed Assistant City Attorney Robertson to prepare an ordinance that will generally cover provisions for safety appliances and rules for the operation of elevators, and especial attention is to be paid to regulations that will require some sort of automatic device that will prevent the moving of a car until the shaft door is closed. Several recent elevator accidents have called this subject to the attention of the committee.

The "Spook" Ordinance.

Having recovered normal poise after the seances of the preceding day, wherein mediums undertook to prove to members of the Legislation Committee occult powers, the committee yesterday decided to refer the proposed ordinance for minor changes to the City Prosecutor, Assistant City Attorney Robertson and T. M. Hall, representative of the League of Justice, which body originally asked for the passage of an ordinance prohibiting the advertising of any method of telling fortunes or revealing the future.

Councilman Reed advocated a high license, asserting that every American citizen has the right to make a fool of himself to a certain limit. Councilman Andrews opposed this, urging that the city could not afford to be a partner in the profits of fakery by taking money for license fees from fortune-tellers and mediums.

It is probable that in the changes to which the ordinance will be subjected regularly-organized spiritualist churches will be exempt from any of its provisions.

Hope-Street Improvement.

The way now appears to be clear for the beginning of work soon on the improvement of Hope street on a split grade between First and Third streets. The Streets and Boulevards Committee yesterday recommended the improvement and equalized the assessment district so that uniform assessment will apply to all the property along the street to be improved.

The upper grade will pass over the westerly entrance to the Third-street tunnel, and the lower grade will reach the tunnel entrance. The committee recommends that the water department lay all water pipes in the street before the paving is done. The water department will place pipes on each side of the street within a few feet of the curb line, and a proportional price of the usual service connection fee for center of the street mains will be charged, as an inducement for all property owners to make service connection immediately.

Lowering of Tunnel.

Time for protest against the proposed lowering of the roadway through the Broadway tunnel expired June 1. But two protests were filed; one for 431.85 feet of frontage on California street, and another for fifty feet on Broadway, between Temple and California streets. The petition for the improvement represented nearly 7000 feet of frontage. The lowering of grade will begin at Temple street and Broadway and at the south end of the tunnel the street will be lowered twenty-two feet from the present surface.

Recommends Storm Drain.

The Streets and Boulevards Committee of the Council yesterday recommended the passage of an ordinance of intention to construct the Arroyo de la Brea storm drain. The construction of the Arroyo de la Sacatella storm drain, which is to be a continuation of this system, will be taken up later. The project recommended yesterday will require the expenditure of about a half million of dollars, to be paid for by an assessment district.

Alessandro-Street Improvement.

The Board of Public Works yesterday awarded to C. I. Goucher the contract for the improvement of Alessandro street, from Angelica to Reservoir and other streets. The bidder's figures were $13,818.33 and the estimated cost of inspection is $372.

Wants Dog Business Licensed.

The Ladies' Kennel Association of Southern California has filed with the City Clerk a petition to the Council for an amendment to the license ordinance providing for the issuance of kennel licenses to breeders of thoroughbred dogs upon the payment of license fees of $10 per year. The petition says that the breeding and selling of thoroughbred dogs should be considered a legitimate business and should be protected by license.

THOUSAND A DAY THEIR INCOME.

NINE MILLIONS TO BE FORTUNE OF TWO SISTERS.

They Are Daughters of Late Turfman, Whose Estate Is About to Be Finally Settled—Great Task of the Executor—Cash Needed for Investment.

Experts who have done a little figuring for their own information have reached startling figures in the landed possession and income of Clara Baldwin Stocker and Anita Baldwin McClaughrey, the daughters of E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, whose estate is now passing through the Probate Department of the Superior Court.

When the final distribution shall have been made, which is expected shortly, these experts assert that the daughters will have an income of $1000 a day and property valued at $9,000,000. This will give them a total income of $365,000 a year.

The Baldwin estate has been turning property into cash for many weeks. A petition is before the court for a partial distribution, the amount of which is set down at $165,000. As the investment for which this money is said to be desired is still under consideration, the matter was continued until next Friday.

H. A. Unruh, the executor of the great estate, has been connected with the business of handling it for thirty years. He was a close personal friend of Baldwin, and since his death, with the assistance of Bradner W. Lee, the executor's attorney, has attended to the manifold details of the administration. The indebtedness has practically all been cleared off, law suits disposed of, and affairs are rapidly getting into shape for winding up the court work and distributing the estate to the two daughters.

RECALLS OLD ADAGE.
AGED HUSBAND; YOUNG WIFE.

"You knew she was 42 when you married her, didn't you?" Judge Monroe asked Hubert McCormick, a real estate operator of this city, who was defending a suit yesterday for separate maintenance. He is 74.

"Yes, your honor," was his reply, "but there is no fool like an old fool."

"Well, you probably saved me the trouble of saying it," the court remarked.

McCormick married Mrs. Ella Ward, a widow. His wife had been dead two years. He said he married the widow two days after he had become engaged. On the honeymoon, he testified his wife flirted with the Pullman conductor and in Chicago, committed other indiscretions. These, Mrs. McCormick denied.

McCormick, two months before his marriage, deeded certain property to his sons. He said when Mrs. McCormick learned this she made a fuss.

After their marriage he said Mrs. McCormick refused to be a wife to him unless he gave her three pieces of property. He refused to do this.

The court ordered McCormick to pay his wife $30 a month. She asked for $150.

TOURIST AGENTS SUE.
RIVAL USES NAME AND CAP.

Thomas Cook & Son, tourist agents, seek to restrain the Cook's Auto Tour Company from carrying on its business under the name of Cook's Auto Tours or Cooks Auto Tour Company. In addition to an injunction Cook & Son ask $1000 damages.

he complaint, filed yesterday, states that the Cook tours were organized in 1865 by Thomas Cook, grandfather of the plaintiff. He entered partnership with his son, John M. Cook. Later the business was organized as Thomas Cook & Son. The companyn conducted sightseeing tours in European cities, and when autos came into use arranged auto tours in the United States. The company is engaged in sightseeing trips in Los Angeles and complains, among other things, that the Cook's Auto Tour Company employees wear caps similar to those used by Cook & Son.

FATHER DEFENDS SON.
FAILS TO HALT TRIAL.

A. T. Stewart, former assistant city engineer, who is charged with having destroyed public records, will be tried in Department Eleven, on July 17. He is represented by his father, Attorney T. M. Stewart. In a stirring argument yesterday on the motion to set aside the information, Stewart declared he is defending his life's blood and asked the court to take this into consideration.

The motion was denied by Judge McCormick, who also denied a motion to reconsider the motion to set aside the information. The documents Stewart is alleged to have destroyed the prosecution will try to show belonged to the Board of Public Works. Stewart asserts they were his own memoranda.

WIFE HIS PROPERTY.
RESISTS COURT SUMMONS.

Ambrocio Pardo ran afoul of the law yesterday. His wife was summoned as a witness in the Juvenile Court, and Pardo declared she is his property and would not let her go. Probation Officer Reyes reasoned with Pardo, but in answer Pardo said:

"She will not go unless she is clubbed. You have told me the law; you can put me in jail. She belongs to me."

Mrs. Pardo was needed to corroborate the statement of the mother of Eurecia Dias, who was before the Juvenile Court. The girl said she is 18 and the mother swore she is only 14. Mrs. Pardo was able to settle the dispute. The court ordered both Pardo and his wife brought into court.

HUSBAND WINS OUT.
GETS DEED FROM EX-WIFE.

The suit of John H. Smith against Esther Dye Smith, his former wife, to declare a trust and for a reconveyance of property which figured in an agreement whereby one was to have it all if the other died, was decided in his favor by Judge Wood yesterday.

Smith owned property in the West Adams Heights Tract valued at $40,000. His wife owned a house, No. 1127 West Eighteenth street. Smith alleged he gave his wife the deed to his property, but that she refused to deliver up her deed. Later he alleged she transferred property to a third party.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.
BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

CUTS OFF WIFE. Out of an estate of $15,000 left by Benjamin Walter Mitchael, his wife receives only $5. The will was filed for probate yesterday, and the bequest is couched in these words: "To my beloved wife, Sarah, I bequeath $5 and no more." Mitchell died May 25 at Oswea, Utah. Share and share alike is left to his nieces, Anna Levinson, Ethel Levinson Ellenstein, Ada and Dora Levinson. Mitchael lived at No. 800 California street. His executor is Jacob Levinson.

SEEKS ACCOUNTING. The Bud Fisher Dyas Sales Company filed suit against Bernal Dyas yesterday for an accounting of goods delivered and sold by Dyas as managing agent for the company. It is alleged that Dyas had exclusive control of the manufacture and sale of the cartoonist's conceptions and has collected several thousand dollars.

JUDGMENT FOR CITY. Judge Burroughs of Lassen county, who last Decemer tried the suit of Charlotte Pabst against the city to quiet title to 11.41 acres in the river bed near Elysian Park, mailed his decision, which was received yesterday. He gives judgment for the city. Mrs. Pabst alleged she had held the property for ten years and this claim the city disputed.

ANOTHER TRIAL. The retrial of Gorham Tufts, Jr., on a charge of having obtained $700 from Victor H. Steele under false pretenses, will be held in Judge McCormick's court. The date of the trial will be set tomorrow. The jury which tried Tufts in Judge Willis's court disagreed last Friday.

DECIDES CASE. Joe McNamara was sent to the Preston State School at Ione until he is 21, yesterday. He was not wanted at Whittier, where he had been an inmate, because the new superintendent thought he would demoralize the other boys. At Ione he will be instructed in a trade, and Judge McCormick, who sentenced him yesterday, hopes Joe will overcome his mania for taking joy rides in stolen autos.

HEAVY DAMAGES. C. E. Rhodes, administrator of the estate of Edward E. Rusac, filed suit against the Santa Fe yesterday for $100,000 damages, for the death of Rusac, who was struck by a train on Los Robles avenue, March 22 last, dying of his injuries.

IN THE INFERIOR COURTS.

Thirteen Men Arrested on Friday Charged With Gambling Find No Hoodoo in the Combination.

Six of the thirteen men arrested Friday night for gambling in the old Hellman building, Second and Broadway, pleaded guilty in Police Judge Rose's court yesterday. Those arrested were not all prosecuted, because it was shown some were enjoying a social game of cards at a side table when members of the Metropolitan Squad broke in.

J. Lane, the thirteenth man, did not appear in court, and his bail was forfeited. Harry Knowles, J. J. Means and T. Moore, the confessed proprietors of the game, paid fines of $30 each. W. T. Foster, William Rogers and J. McMillan were fined $10 each. The following were discharged: William Lawrence, William McClellan, Henry Lee, D. Davis, James Wilkinson and Henry Wilson.

Serve Time Awaiting Trial.

After remaining more than ninety days in the City Jail, awaiting a jury trial, on a complaint charging them with having stolen a pair of trousers, Juan Jasames and Juan Rias went before Police Judge Frederickson yesterday and pleaded guilty. The men were arraigned February 26.

"Inasmuch as you have served more than three months," said the court, "I'm going to be lenient with you. I'm going to give you sixty days, but will suspend sentence for one year."

Poor Indentification Costly.

C. Davis's inability to tell a detective from any other man seen walking along the sidewalk, resulted in his receiving a thirty-day jail sentence yesterday by Police Judge Rose. Davis asked Detective Hawley for 10 cents. After shadowing the man for a while, Hawley took him to headquarters. In each hip bocket was a bottle of wine. A handfull of small change showed how successful had been in his begging.

He Ventured and Lost.

Mike Ryan was haled before Police Judge Rose yesterday on a drunk charge.

"You've been here before," said the court.

Mike denied it, but the records were searched. In January he received a ninety-day suspended sentence, the understanding being he was never to return to Los Angeles.

"I didn't think you'd remember me that long," said Ryan.

"Any time we forget, we don't," replied the court, committing the defendant.

LICENSE NOT EVERYTHING.

Two Take Oath At Bureau and Think They Are Married—Are Led to Knot-Tier by a Clerk.

Deputy County Clerk Sparks hung out his "Busy Day" card yesterday morning. The long counter in the marriage license bureau was lined with the victims of Cupid, and more were clamoring to get their certificates before the big doors closed. Thirty-seven couples received licenses.

Sparks came to Pedro M. Landa and Miss Henrietta Mendozo, aged respectively 23 and 18.

"Hold up your right hands," ordered Sparks in the business-like way he has acquired. Both right hands went up, but Landa's left hand clasped the ring fingers of the coy Henrietta. Sparks spoke the oath necessary to signing the affidavit.

Pedro smiled and Henrietta blushed.

"Thanks for marrying us," stammered Pedro.

"You're not married," said Sparks. "Go down on the floor below, for the man who ties the knot."

Pedro couldn't understand and Henrietta pouted. Sparks made a personally conducted excursion of it.

HARD HIT LITTLE HURT.

Driver and Three Horses Upset When Electric Locomotive Bumps Fire Engine—Injuries Minor.

Frank Hanscam, the large fire engine he was riding upon and the three powerful and high-spirited horses he was driving, were struck and rolled completely over by a Southern Pacific electric freight motor at Thirtieth street and Central avenue at noon yesterday. Neither he nor his horses were seriously injured. The steamer was damaged and was sent to the repair shop. Hanscam who lives at No. 3400 Central avenue, was strapped to his seat. That probably saved his life, for it prevented the impact of the collision throwing him under the rolling machine.

The horses quickly regained their feet and would have run away had not Hanscam retained his firm grip on the reins. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital where it was found he was suffering from a slightly wrenched right elbow and a few minor contusions. The horses sustained scratches.

Hanscam was returning with Engine No. 14 to the house at No. 2400 Central avenue from a rubbish fire near Thirty-second street and Central avenue. The electric engine was at the other end of a long string of freight cars Hanscam did not notice the approaching train until too late to prevent the collision. He applied the whip to the horses and they leaped forward, jerking the heavy steamer almost off the ground. Only the rear wheels were on the track when the crash came.

PICK CANYON SITES.

First Squad of Applicants Makes Trip to Santa Anita—Many Summer Homes to be Built This Year.

The first selection of lots in Santa Anita Canyon, set apart by the Federal government for building sites, was made yesterday, when thirty-five applicants went out on the trail leading from Sierra Madre to Sturdevant's Camp. An equal number will make the trip today, followed tomorrow by fifty more, and on Tuesday by thirty-five. There are but one hundred and sixty-two lots and the total number of applicants is two hundred and fifty.

To judge by the interest shown in the plans laid out by supervisor Carlton of the Angeles National Forest, the canyon will be dotted all over with neat and commodious summer homes. The new trail is about completed.

HOW GRACE BENSON BECAME FAMOUS FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

Free Prescription That Can Be Prepared At Home Without Expense.

Grace Benson, famous for the marvelous beauty of her hands and arms in a recent interview, says: "If I could tell every woman about the prescription that has caused all this talk about my hands and arms they could every one of them make their hands and arms just as beautiful as mine. I am glad to have the opportunity to give my receipt free to the world. It will help every woman to improve her personal appearance."

When I asked her if she would allow me to publish the prescription, she quickly answered: "Certainly, only too glad to have you do it." Turning to a desk, she wrote it on a slip of paper and handed it to me. Here it is: "Go to any drug store, get an empty two-ounce bottle, also a one-ounce bottle of Kulux Compound. Pour the entire bottle of Kulux into the two-ounce bottle, add quarter of an ounce of witch hasel, then fill with water. Apply night and morning."

She further said: "This prescription makes the skin transparent and removes all defects, such as freckles, tan, sun spots, roughness and ruddiness. A single application works a marvelous transformation. Where low collars are worn it can be applied to the neck with equally as startling results. It is absolutely harmless, and will positively not stimulate or produce a growth of hair."

The Eye and Its Disease

PROF. WILSON'S TREATISE ON EYE DISEASES SHOULD BE READ BY EVERY PERSON WITH IMPAIRED EYESIGHT. THE BOOK IS FREE.

Eyeglasses Not Necessary

Every reader afflicted with any impairment of eyesight should not fail to send for this book. It contains sixty-four pages and cover and describes in language so plain and interesting the various forms of diseases of the eye and sure and safe methods of treatment that any reader of ordinary intelligence may fully comprehend every word.

The author of this book is the inventor of "Actina," an instrument that is attracting the attention of people in all parts of the world owing to the wonderful results obtained from its use.

In the treatment of Eye disease the author says: "Nine out of ten persons wearing glasses might better be without them. Eyeglasses do not cure. The defects that make them necessary can be removed in most cases by proper treatment. There is also no need for cutting or drugging the eye for most forms of disease—for the cause can be removed by a newer and more humane method."

The book also goes into full detail of the causes and effects of disease in general. It advocates a method in the treatment of disease that is based upon a humane and common-sense principle. It contains the recommendations of hundreds of intelligent persons in every walk of life who have been cured. A free trial of the "Actina" is offered in every case.

If the reader is interested, write for a copy of this book. It is absolutely free; a postal will bring it. Address Actina Appliance Co., Dept. 89E, 811 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

ON OLD WAY OF PADRES THIS BELL IS BLESSED.

Drama of the Old Order and the New.

Above, Rev. Andrew Resa ringing El Camino Real bell, hung Friday at Daly street and Mission road; below, Mrs. Anna S. Averill, in honor of whose seventy-ninth anniversary the bell was presented. The little girls took a significant part, too.

AT DALY STREET and Mission road, a few hundred yards from the County Hospital, a drama of the old order and the new was enacted Friday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock before 200 persons.

His silver cross gleaming in the sun and himself assisted by two altar boys in wine-colored robes, Rev. Andrew Resa, pastor of the Plaza Church, and a Spanish priest of the Order of the Immaculate Heart Fathers, blessed a new bell on the old road of the early padres, and then he rang it in token of its dedication to public service.

Seated before him in a circle of friends was Mrs. Anna S. Averill, for whom the bell was christened, and in whose honor it was presented to the city and the State by the Averill Club in behalf of El Camino Real Association of California, which has already placed 130 of these bells between the San Diego Mission and San Francisco, and which hopes to locate one at every mile on the historic road.

It was in commemoration of the seventy-ninth anniversary of Mrs. Averill's birth that the Woman's Study Club, which she founded more than twenty-three years ago, and which is the oldest woman's club in the city, made the presentation of the bell. The club has forty-nine members. Its organization was the first effort in this city to introduce methodical study into a circle outside of the schoolroom. For many years Mrs. Averill presided over the club which Friday delighted in showing her honor.

Her little grandson, Norman Averill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Averill, withdrew the silken flag which draped the bell, and it was later presented to the boy in a beautiful address by Mrs. B. F. Nance, president of the Averill Club, who told him that he should keep it against that day when he would know the incident for one of the truly great occasions of his life.

Three dainty maids, the eldest of whom was only 5 years of age, twined garlands of flowers around the post on which the bell is hung. They are Leah Clampitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Clampitt; Louise McDowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gale M. McDowell, and Ruth Bundrum, grand-daughter of the president, Mrs. Nance. Leah Clampitt, until the birth of a little sister six months ago, is the only baby to have been born into the club for many years, and is known as "the club baby."

Rev. Resa read the dedication service in Latin, the spirit of it being that God's blessings should follow every traveler who passed that way. Rev. Warren F. Day delivered a brief address, in which he paid a beautiful tribute to the rare character of Mrs. Averill, who gave a gracious response.

A. S. C. Forbes, president of El Camino Real Association, presided and explained that the bell bears the dates of 1769 and 1906 because the first mile of the old Mission road was built by the early fathers on the former date and the association placed the first of its bells in commemoration of the event August 16, 1906.

AUTHOR AND SCIENTIST.

Mrs. Blance R. Trask Returns From Catalina Suffering From Pleurisy. Career Has Been Unusual.

AVALON, June 1.—After conferring with her physician for several hours yesterday, Mrs. Blanche R. Trask, author and scientist, consented to be removed to the home of her daughter, and went to Los Angeles today. For two weeks since her return from the isthmus, Mrs. Trask has suffered from pluerisy. Thursday morning Dr. Bicknell was sent for. The illness is considered serious.

Twelve years ago Mrs. Trask came to the island in poor health. By living outdoors she built up a constitution that has been the envy of many who know her. During the past six years Mrs. Trask has camped at Fisherman's Cove, alone for months at a time. After regaining her health ten years ago, she took up the study of natural history and during many rambles over the Channel Islands, gathered valuable information relative to the early inhabitants of California. Much of this information has been used by government officials at Washington. Two years ago she gave her entire archeological collection valued at several thousand dollars to the United States. It includes specimens gathered at San Miguel, San Clemente, Santa Rosa, Santa Barbara and Anacapa Islands.

Always traveling on foot in search of material for study before her present illness, Mrs. Trask became one of the most expert mountaineers of the island. Occasionally she would be accompanied by one of her large dogs. Visitors, seeing her at different parts of the island afoot, while they, themselves were on horseback, often proffered assistance, but never was it accepted. Once, failing to get in communication with her home at Avalon, she walked the round trip, a distance of fifty-six miles, in one day.

Woodcraft Women's Memorial.

Laurustinus Circle No. 83, Women of Woodcraft, has completed plans for the observance of the annual memorial Day today. The officers and team will meet at Inglewood Cemetery at 9 a.m. After decorating the graves there, they will go to Rosedale, where the same services will be performed at the graves of fifteen departed members of the order. Mrs. Alice Hulick, Mrs. Mollie McClelland and Mrs. Rose Waddell will decorate at Hollywood Cemetery during the morning. At 1:30 o'clock the graves at Evergreen will be decorated and at 3 o'clock the principal services of the day will take place at Odd Fellows Cemetery, where two monuments will be unveiled, after which Calvary Cemetery will be visited. Capt. Maud Crawford is in charge of general arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Laura E. Isbell, Mrs. Minerva J. Coover, Mrs. Agnes Hogan and Mrs. Mary E. Clairemont. Music will be furnished by Mrs. Margaret Teste, Misses Eelanor Parker and May Englander and F. N. Livingston.

Easy to Get Rid of Corns THIS Way

"GETS-IT," the New Corn Cure. Guranteed.

"Corns Gone! GETS-IT Got 'Em!"

"GETS-IT" is the new-plan corn cure that will surely surprise you the very first time you use it, it is so simple, painless, quick and sure in its action.

It shrivels up the corn, wart, callous or bunion, separates them from the true flesh, the corn comes off, and there you are, with feet that feel positively glorious; corn-free once more as they used to be in your "bare-foot days."

The most remarkable feature is that "GETS-IT" does not harm or turn raw the healthy flesh as other preparations do. It is as safe as water. No more plasters, bandages, or salves.

"GETS-IT" is sold at drug stores at 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Los Angeles by The Owl Drug Co.

By Example.

HOW TO DRESS, WHAT TO GIVE.

NECESSARY TO SHOW MOTHERS OF THE POOR.

Women of Industrial District Know Little About Care of Babies, and School Has Been Established for Their Instruction—Modern Methods.

That nature equips a woman with a mother-instinct and she knows intuitively how to care for her babies, is a popular misapprehension, according to three Los Angeles women, who are making education of the ignorant their life work. They are Miss Nora Sterry, Mrs. H. K. W. Bent and Mrs. B. W. Buxton.

Miss Sterry is principal of the Macy and Amelia-street school centers, Mrs. Buxton represents the Parent-Teacher Association, and Mrs. Bent is a deaconess. They have combined forces in the establishment of a school for mothers. They say Mexican, Russian, and women of other nationalities in the industrial district know next to nothing about the care of themselves or their babies, and to such they are giving practical demonstrations.

Leading department stores have donated a great deal of outing flannel and other material worn by babies, and this is used in the demonstrations. The mother is shown how to cut a garment, sew it and how to put it on the youngster.

A life-size doll is used in this last act. The teacher dresses the doll, then the mother tries the experiment on her baby. If she finishes without sticking the youngster more than half a dozen times there is general rejoicing—especially on the youngster's part. There is often some lusty crying, but the babies' of the poor are a philosophical lot. Perhaps they don't know whether they have inherited fancy nerves on their father's side or ingrowing toe nails on their mother's. They begin young to take things as they find them.

The fortunate woman whose turn it is to have a try, becomes the center of a curious, almost envious circle of women, who watch her in stoical silence. When the ordeal is over the proud mother triumphantly carries away her baby, clothed, amid the congratulations of her friends, and another diffidently takes her place.

"These women approach motherhood without the slightest preparation of any kind," said Miss Sterry. "They do not know how to care for either themselves or their babies. It is a wonder any of them pull through. They live in spite of conditions, not because of them.

"When we give them clothes for the baby they do not know how to use them. If we give them goods to sew they are completely at sea. I could show you fifteen or twenty children within two or three blocks, who have only one thin cotton slip on them, no shoes, stockings or underwear. There is just this one slip to cover their nakedness winter and summer.

"It makes one's heart ache to see these poor creatures suffer. Endowed with all the human mother-love, yet so ignorant, and so helpless, we almost despair at times, the task before us is so great.

"The mortality percentage list here is overwhelmingly large among the children."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS PARADE.

Endeavor to Elect Brigadier-General, But Lack of uorum Changes Business to Pleasure.

Two hundred members of the Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, representing thirteen of the twenty-nine companies in the Third Regiment, attended a meeting of the order Friday night at Pythian Castle, No. 108 North Spring street.

Maj.-Gen. Arthur J. Stobbart of St. Paul, commander of the Uniform Rank K. of P., of the United States, presided. The meeting was called to elect a successor to Brig.-Gen. Driffill of Oxnard, commander of the Third Brigade, but as the meeting lacked a quorum, the election was postponed.

Companies from Fullerton, Anaheim, Orange, Santa Ana, Tustin, Santa Barbara, San Francisco, Oxnard and Los Angeles were represented.

The five companies from Orange county, comprising the fourth battalion, arrived in this city on a special train of four coaches, over the Santa Fe. Headed by the Uniform Rank K. of P., band No. 76, the visitors marched from the depot to First and Spring streets; south on Spring to Sixth, thence to Broadway, north on Broadway to First and to the Pythian Castle. Capt. Alexander Henry, 74 years old, of the Anaheim company, marched at the head of the procession dressed in kilts. Dinner was served after the meeting.

SECOND SHOW AT EMPRESS.

THE MAD MOB HEADLONGING TO ITS AMUSEMENT.

Knowledge Brought by the Loss of Thirty Cents at the Empress Theater—The Crowd Which Waits Patiently and Charges Furiously for Its Play.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

How I lost thirty cents.

This is the truth, and it might be the title of a story.

Pursuing my course as a dramatic gueirilla—not to say gorilla—I came to the lowly entrance of the Empress Theater.

The calendar stood at the date referred to in country towns as "Decoration Day," evening had fallen, sat down, or arrived—whichever term you prefer—and a considerable gathering of our populace was already within, watching the stunts provided by Mr. Considine, ostensibly for diversion.

I had great difficulty in getting up to the theater door at all. A congested mass of humanity, such as is always described by the baseball writers on the first day of the season, occupied the most of the lobby.

The deluded wretches were waiting for the "second show."

Why people wait for the second show is more than I know or can imagine; but they do, and not one of them ever grows tired on the job. As I found out.

Mr. Worley was reading a sporting edition, and making no pretense of being busy.

From within I heard, from time to time, the noise of the band, the dull thud of old jokes, and not infrequently loud splashes of laughter.

"Deane," I said, "Sullivan-Considine haven't contributed much news or hilarity to the Sunday paper for a long time. What hast to tell?"

"Well, hast nothing to tell," summed up Mr. Worley.

"Nothing?"

"Naught."

"Very well, I will proceed me to Pantages."

"Stay!"

"What ho?"

"Methinks——?"

And though one could see that he was hard pressed to catalogue his thoughts, it was at least apparent that he was stricken with professional jealousy. I moved out into the seven-by-eight grand foyer, in order that I might not see his features writhe in pain.

The long line of second-comers, packed in like a nice box of Fresno raisins, sighed and swayed wearily. Here and there one complained about the wait, or the heat, or the discomfort of standing.

Worley strolled out.

"Deane, I'll bet you a dime your long show tonight is going to scatter your number two crowd."

"Think so? Well, I'm on for 10 cents."

It was a long show.

Long after an ordinary Empress entertainment should have pushed them out the back door into the street, the clatter inside, and the monotonous wait outside, continued. The line grew a longer tail. A police sergeant jawed two boys with a paper bag of popcorn, and a fussy old man who wanted eight feet of room for a three-inch personality.

"If she hangs on five minutes longer, Deane, I'll bet you lose at least ten."

"Another dime?"

"O. K."

The crowd grew more restless. It swayed back and forth. A baby began to cry, and its mother, with trembling arms, tried to hold it above the heads of a bunch of men in front of her. They paid no attention, and the baby refused to hush.

"This beats the world," said the head usher, coming out; "La Diva is just on!"

"Any out yet?" asked the manager.

"Not yet, but the side-lines are getting frightfully wiggly."

As we continued to wait, the stentorian voices of the police rose higher and higher. It looked as though the impatient crowd would charge the flimsy old house. I was sure they would break and beat it for the pictures.

"Is there one out?" asked Worley, speaking mockingly.

I checked up the Greek boot-black, the gentleman with the silk hat, the two little girls in white, Father Time with the flowing beard, the elderly Mr. and Mrs. Tourist—I knew because he carried an umbrella—and the scholarly man with celluloid cuffs and a copy of the Literary Digest, which he read diligently. Yet these outposts were all in their places. Not one had gone. But interiorly there was an ominous surge and seethe.

"Want to bet me another dime every mother's son and daughter'll stick?"

There was that in Mr. Worley's voice which reminded me of Mr. Ritchie speaking to Mr. Wolgast, and I bet him the other dime.

Just then the head usher closed the doors, and I heard the tramp, tramp of a throng moving out the side entrance, to the south of the lobby.

They were all out.

Worley, an anxious look on his face, pushed me to one side and mounted an old kitchen chair.

"Keep in line, don't crowd, and hold the stubs of your tickets!" he shouted, in a voice which seemed unnecessarily loud and severe when used on that patient, long-suffering procession of stalled ants.

The three doors were manned by Dusty Rhodes, Jess Caldwell, Tommy Hopkins.

Stage Manager Ralph De Lacy buttoned his coat tightly about him and stepped just outside the pale.

There was a moment of shrieking silence, made endurable only by the shuffling of doors on the inside, folding back to show an empty theater.

"Ready," said the head usher quietly.

"All right!" said Worley, much more loudly, from his vantage on the kitchen chair.

Three heavy brass chains fell with a simultaneous bang.

"Don't crowd, keep in line and hold your tickets!" The voices of the three door men cracked simultaneously, like a precise volley.

The crowd which had been packed on the south side of the entranceway spread, in the fifth of a second and as if by magic, over the whole lobby.

In the space of five seconds:

I saw a tottering old man duck nimbly under Mr. De Lacy's outstretched paws and do a double-header right into the theater, the gateman twirling his ticket from him by some psychologic process as he flew.

I saw a woman with two children all but knock down the main doorkeeper and get half-way down the main aisle before the next person set foot inside the door.

I saw, on the south door, three boys, an old man, a young man, a fellow and his girl, a girl and her fellow and four unclassified, get in and properly started to their destinations.

The next instant the flying crowd jammed me against the brick wall and I feared to breathe lest I should become too thick.

Some swain lost his Marie and started a fight with ready Ralph. Ralph pinioned his arms and hurled him into the theater—a throw of eight feet, clear.

The doorkeeper nearest me had an array of boys who forgot their coupons. He never called them back; he didn't have time. Doubling them together in the fraction of a second, he hurled them at their heads like paper-wads. They got them—in every instance.

I have seen crowds on a football field, crowds at a prize-fight and crowds trying to get home from a place to which they had gone in crowds as hopeless, but I never saw such rapid eagerness, such frantic speed, such utter disregard of your neighbor's wife. Verily, had they been rushing to stake out Indian lands, they could not have gone at it more furiously, more wholeheartedly.

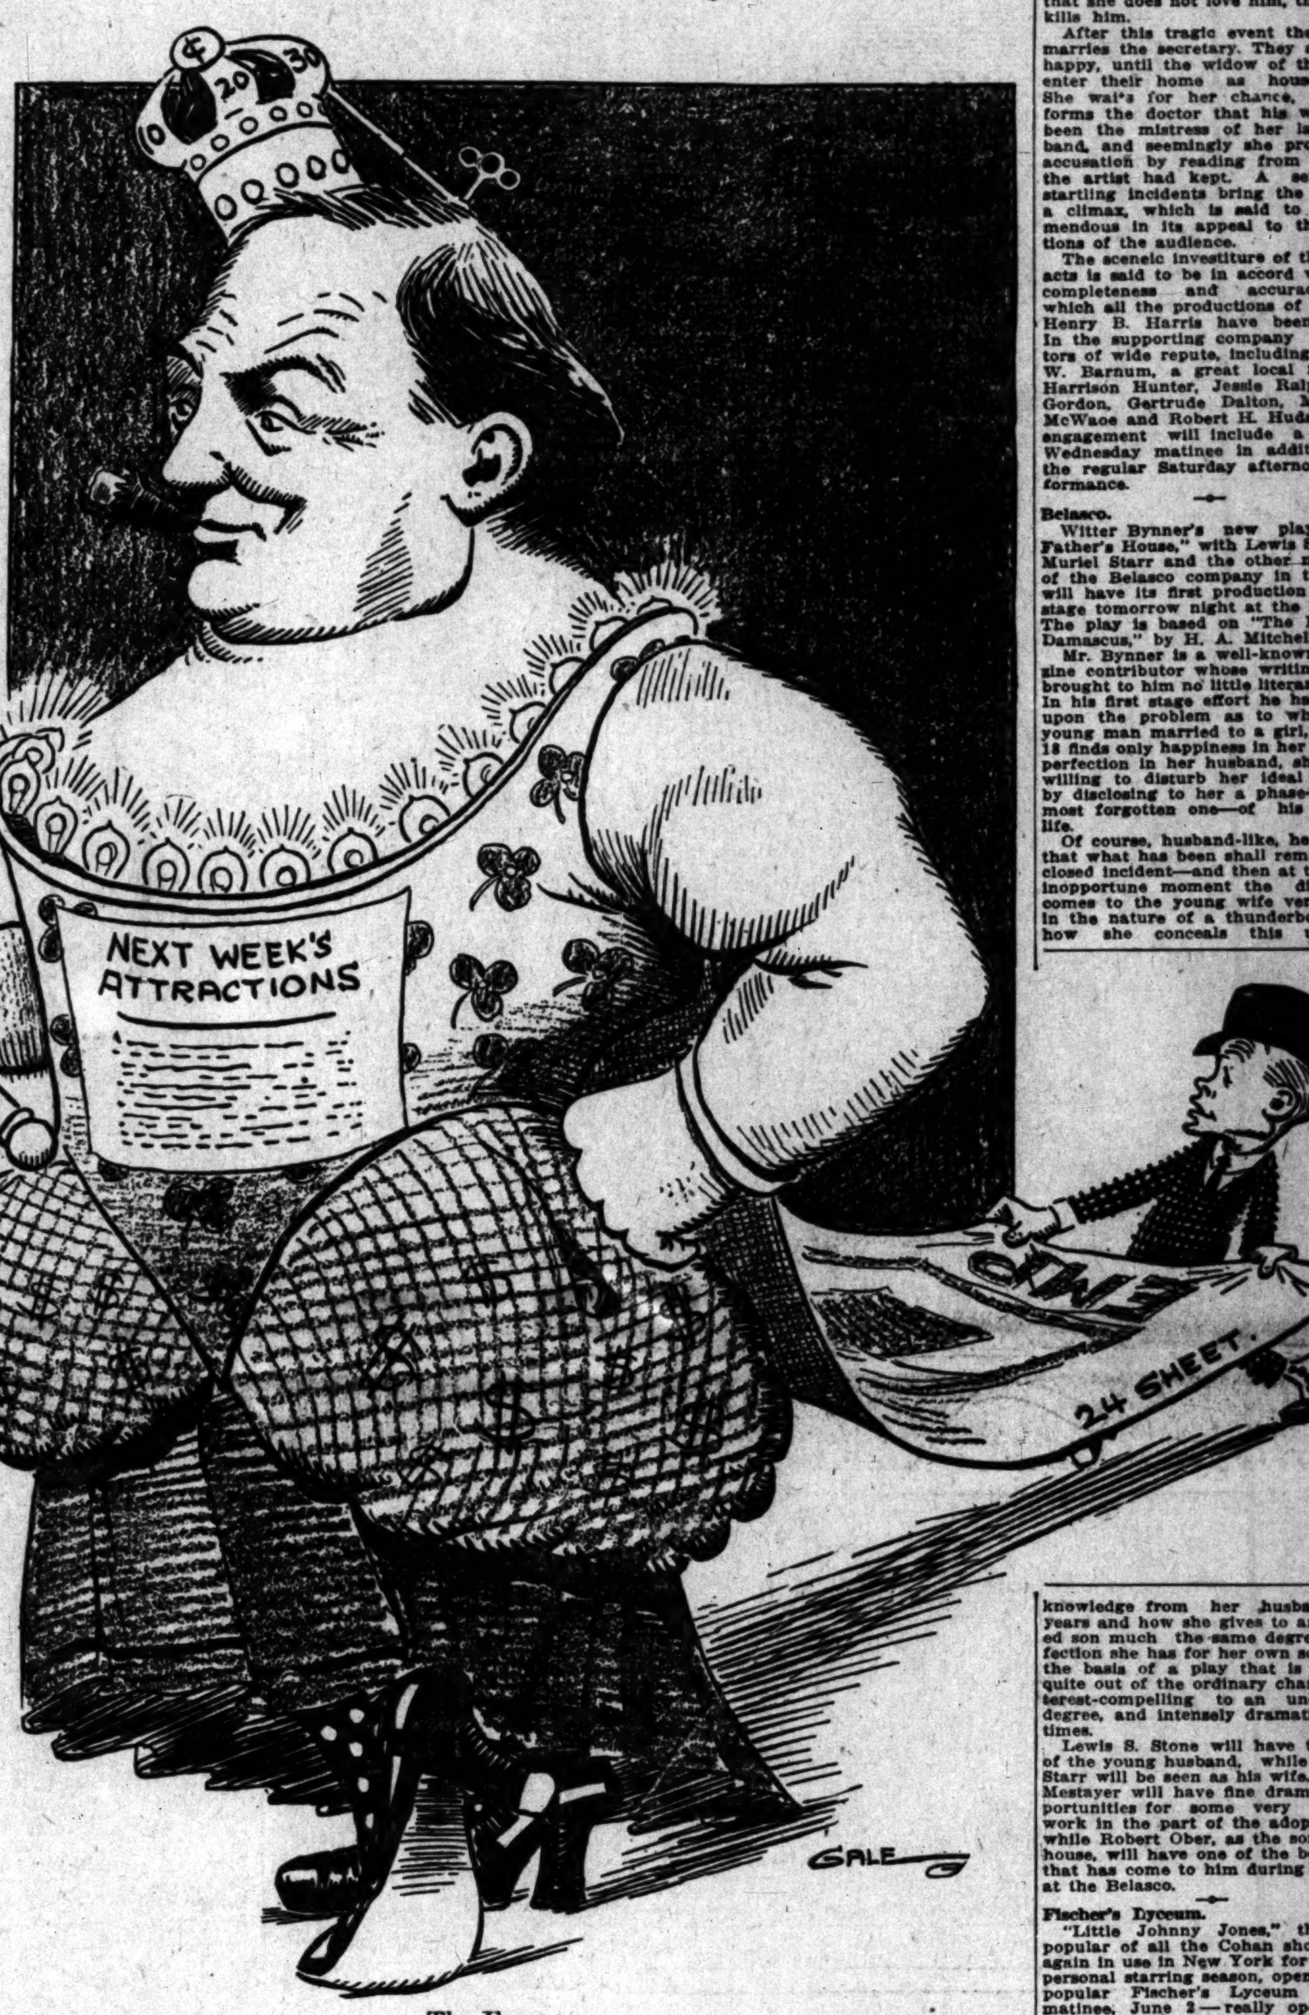
"Do I win?" asked Deane, brushing himself and putting a few sprung rounds back into his chair, after the tumult and the shouting died.

"You win," I said, "but I have gained far more than 30 cents worth of human knowledge."

Hall Caine has been spending the spring holiday in Rome, a city which he knows well and likes. He spent a good while in it before, in order to write his story, "The Eternal City." He has, on the present occasion, been finishing his new novel, which we may look for in book form during the autumn.

Samuel Merwin was named by Arnold Bennett last winter as one of the three American novelists of most promise—a prophecy which lends additional interest to Mr. Merwin's new novel, "The Citadel," just published.

The Deane of Three-a-Day.



The Empress.

The Week.

HELEN WARE IN "THE PRICE."

"HIS FATHER'S HOUSE" AT THE BELASCO TOMORROW.

"Little Johnny Jones," Via the Fischer Lyceumites—Continuances of the Mission Play and "Peg o' My Heart"—Orpheum, Empress and Pantages Vaudeville.

The Mason Operahouse will have for its attraction beginning tomorrow night, the young emotional actress Helen Ware, in George Broadhurst's "The Price." The high promise of the brilliant future which Miss Ware gave by her acting in "The Road to Yesterday," and as Annie Jeffries in "The Third Degree," is being borne out, it is said, by her interpretation of the role of Ethel Toscani in "The Price."

The premiere of this powerful drama at the Hudson Theater, New York, early in the season, witnessed the unusual spectacle of the metropolitan critics vieing with one another to be the first to hail Miss Ware as the greatest emotional actress of today. This will be Miss Ware's first stellar appearance in Los Angeles.

"The Price" deals with modern folk and conditions. It has in the primary plot four people—an artist, his wife, his secretary, and the young doctor friend. The artist and his wife are badly mated. Into their household comes the attractive young secretary, who quickly wins the love of the artist. She believes that she has a like attachment for him, until the advent of the doctor reveals to her that her feelings for the artist are not those of genuine love, but rather of gratitude for his kindness, and admiration for his genius. When she confesses to the artist that she does not love him, the shock kills him.

After this tragic event the doctor marries the secretary. They are very happy, until the widow of the artist enter their home as housekeeper. She waits for her chance, and informs the doctor that his wife had been the mistress of her late husband, and seemingly she proves the accusation by reading from a diary the artist had kept. A series of startling incidents bring the play to a climax, which is said to be tremendous in its appeal to the emotions of the audience.

The scenic investiture of the three acts is said to be in accord with the completeness and accuracy for which all the productions of the late Henry B. Harris have been noted. In the supporting company are actors of wide repute, including George W. Barnum, a great local favorite, Harrison Hunter, Jessie Ralph, Roy Gordon, Gertrude Dalton, Margaret McWade and Robert H. Hudson. The engagement will include a popular Wednesday matinee in addition to the regular Saturday afternoon performance.

Belasco.

Witter Bynner's new play, "His Father's House," with Lewis S. Stone, Muriel Starr and the other members of the Belasco company in the cast, will have its first production on any stage tomorrow night at the Belasco. The play is based on "The Road to Damascus," by H. A. Mitchell-Keays.

Mr. Bynner is a well-known magazine contributor whose writings have brought to him no little literary favor. In his first stage effort he has seized upon the problem as to whether a young man married to a girl, who at 18 finds only happiness in her life and perfection in her husband, should be willing to disturb her ideal of him by disclosing to her a phase—an almost forgotten one—of his earlier life.

Of course, husband-like, he prefers that what has been shall remain as a closed incident—and then at the most inopportune moment the disclosure comes to the young wife very much in the nature of a thunderbolt. Just how she conceals this unhappy knowledge from her husband for years and how she gives to an adopted son much the same degree of affection she has for her own son, form the basis of a play that is at once quite out of the ordinary channel, interest-compelling to an uncommon degree, and intensely dramatic at all times.

Lewis S. Stone will have the part of the young husband, while Muriel Starr will be seen as his wife. Harry Mestayer will have fine dramatic opportunities for some very effective work in the part of the adopted son, while Robert Ober, as the son of the house, will have one of the best roles that has come to him during his stay at the Belasco.

Fischer's Lyceum.

"Little Johnny Jones," the most popular of all the Cohan shows, and again in use in New York for his own personal starring season, opens at the popular Fischer's Lyceum Sunday matinee, June 2—really opens this time, after several postponements. But, because it has been postponed, is all the more reason to expect a wonderfully delightful show, in that incessant rehearsals have kept it right up to perfection, and the production Sunday ought to be a marvel in smoothness and delight for all concerned.

"Johnny" will serve again to put to the fore May Boley, who, in the new show, will play Goldie, Johnny's friend, and later, in disguise, the Earl of Bloomsbury. What May Boley will do in trousers, with a good comedy role such as this, ought to be a caution, and meanwhile she will have her longed-for chance to wear real good gowns.

Reece Gardner will play Johnny, Jane Urban is cast as Florabelle Fly, Madison Smith as Anstey (the gambler,) Bob Lett is the fat comedy player (the unknown,) Herbert Cawthorne is the Tammany politician, and there are good parts for all the rest, including Lon Cheney, Laura Oakley, Charles Dudley, and so on through the cast.

"Johnny" overflows with good song numbers, from the opening, "'Op in Me 'Ansom," on through "Good-by, Flo," and the typical Cohan "Life's a Funny Proposition," and all these will be given their proper value, as will the scenes, including the Cecil, London, the dock and the sailing ship, and the finale in Chinatown. Colorful as these are, the utmost scenic splendor may be expected, and "Pop's" fame as a costumer will be staked on the dressing of his assortment of girls and boys.

"Johnny" is a really well-plotted show, with a consistent story, and in its unfolding the dramatic talents of the Fischer company will be shown at their best. This is especially true as applied to Gardner, May Boley, Bob Lett and Smith, who carry the main plot. Of course, much will be made of the many song numbers and these will be worked up with all the vim and abandon of chorus and dance, especially the latter, on which Lon Cheney has labored for weeks. The production may well be considered a fit follower of "Tillie," the so-far biggest musical comedy hit of the age in Los Angeles.

Burbank.

The real hit of the Burbank's spring season is Hartley Manners's new comedy, "Peg o' My Heart," which had its first performance on any stage at the Burbank last Sunday, with Laurette Taylor in the role she will play in the New York production of the comedy in the fall, and with Henry Stanford in the part of Jerry, for which he has been secured for the Gotham presentation of Peg.

A second week of "Peg o' My Heart," commencing this afternoon, is a simple necessity to take care of the crowds that have heard of the charm and rare fascination of Mr. Manners's new play.

The idea that the theater-goer of the period wants only those plays that have what is popularly termed "a punch," and that no comedy can succeed that does not include a misunderstood wife or husband, is shattered by the success of "Peg o' My Heart."

Fashions exist in theatricals as well as in wearing apparel or automobiles, and the newest fashion in stage performances seems to be along the lines established by "Peg o' My Heart"—a simple story well told in a simple, straightforward way, with adroitly-drawn characters quite unlike the average people seen in plays; a play with smiles and laughter that are called forth by the quaintness of little Peg's clearly-defined ideas of life, with here and there a touch of real pathos that causes a momentarily quickened heart throb or the suggestion of a tear that is instantly and happily brushed aside by the laughter that follows on the heels of one of Peg's flashes of Celtic wit.

Persons who look for the melodramatic or the strenuous in their theatrical entertainment won't find much to their liking in "Peg o' My Heart," but to that vast army of playgoers who relish a refreshingly novel, wholesome, sprightly comedy played as few comedies ever are played, "Peg o' My Heart" will come as the most delightful offering of the year.

The cast of "Peg o' My Heart" includes such well-liked players—besides Miss Taylor and Mr. Stanford—as Emilie Melville, Roberta Arnold, Lola May, James Corrigan, Donald Bowles, Robert Leonard and others.

During the successful career of "Peg o' My Heart" Miss Taylor and the Burbank company are preparing "Barbaraza," another new play by Hartley Manners, but far removed in story, treatment, locale and every other department of the drama from "Peg o' My Heart."

—o—

"The Mission Play."

The sixth week of John Steven McGroarty's "Mission Play" will begin in its own handsome theater at San Gabriel tomorrow afternoon, June 3.

The run of this brilliant dramatic allegory of Southern California's history has been absolutely unprecedented in the annals of Los Angeles theatricals. Miles removed from the city limits—to say nothing of the Rialto-like center of town—every week's patronage has shown a steady increase, and the manifestation of interest from afar has multiplied tenfold.

The "Mission Play" is now being enacted by a cast which is practically perfect. This cast is headed by Lillian Burkhart as Senora Josefa Yorba, and Ben Horning as Padre Junipero Serra. Both of these players give absolute characterizations—creations, if you will—which for breadth of thought, completeness of conception and fervent dramatic power have never been excelled in the history of local theaterdom—and local dramatic annals have furnished some mighty strong examples, too.

Santa Barbara and San Diego have both made bids for this production, entire, and in two instances the set dates have been pushed back to accommodate the apparently omnivorous appetite of Los Angeles citizens and tourists for this impressive spectacle. These alterations of contract cannot be continued much longer, however; the "Mission Play" will very soon be "on the move."

Orpheum.

The Orpheum will inaugurate the midsummer season with the week beginning Monday matinee, June 3, when five new acts come to edify and delight the big theater's vaudeville audiences. Especially fine acts are due for the whole of the summer season, announcement to be made from time to time, and the coming week's bill may well be taken as a sample of the "dog days'" line of entertainment to bb offered here.

Topping it is Mlle. Fregoleska, known as "the Hungarian nightingale," former prima donna soprano with the Paris Grand Opera Company, a soprano of superlative voice and charm of manner, whose delightful singing will certainly be a big operatic feature. It is many months since the Orpheum has presented a singer of this caliber—one never before heard outside of grand opera.

A feature of her bill will be the "bell song" from "Lakme," an aria few attempt because of its difficulty, from an opera almost never sung for the same reason.

"Dinkelspiel's Christmas," a classic in vaudeville playlets, returns with the same admirable cast as played it before and made it memorable, headed by Bernard Reinold. The act is the best George V. Hobart ever wrote; it bristles with humanity and fun, and is certain to be re-welcomed as heartily as it was on its initial visit, when it created a sensation for its human qualities and its delightsome laughter.

Stuart Barnes, he of the mobile "map" and the clever gags, comes to talk in merry measure and sing in equal strain. He devotes most of his patter to that episodical period when a chap first falls in love. No one need be told that this affords unlimited possibilities, or that Mr. Barnes, who is so very well known, loses no opportunity.

The Holloways, foreigners, are acrobats and cyclists extraordinary, the girl in the troupe being a new feature and adding much to the rest. They work on a tight wire and do mostly new and unheard-of tricks. Delmore & Light are clever chaps who entertain with voice and piano—a style of act now exceedingly popular and of which they are expert exponents.

Ada Overton Walker and her dusky entertainers, Rosina Caselli and her midget canines, and the Harvey de Vora trio, with John Dough, remain. The music will be especially fine, including Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," and the pictures of the world's happenings of today, though often imitated, still remain the only original motion review of events of the world now.

—o—

Empress.

George Ade's comedy triumph, "The Mayor and the Manicure," the famous Richardini troupe, Barnes and Baron, and Tokio Kisshe, will be the four fine features of the new eight-act Sullivan and Considine bill opening at the Empress Theater tomorrow afternoon.

"The Mayor and the Manicure" is well known to every vaudeville lover as one of the most substantial comedy successes in vaudeville today, and it will be capitally presented in the hands of James Fulton, Mattie Choate, and a splendid supporting company. The piece is full of the delightful Ade brand of humor and slang.

As gymnasts, the Richardini troupe is not excelled. They are returning for a tour of the Sullivan and Considine circuit, after having won success on the continent. Their gymnastic feats are reputed to be of a most unusual and different sort, while a feature of their performance is the work of Wilma Richardini, the Music and Musicians.

DIVA DILLON TO BE HEARD.

LOCAL DRAMATIC SOPRANO AT MAJESTIC THEATER.

Has Achieved Long-Continued and Permanent Success Abroad—Concert, Society Chaperoned, Will Feature Ballads and Well-Arranged Operatic Repertoire.

Los Angeles musicians have for some time regarded Florence Dillon as about the most successful local singer who has sought a professional career on the foreign operatic stage, and this recognition of her exceptional success abroad doubtless has much to do with the keen interest that is being manifested in Miss Dillon's first public appearance in this city, at the Majestic Theater, next Friday night.

Miss Dillon was called home by the death of her father, the late Judge Henry C. Dillon, while she was fulfilling an engagement at the Royal Operahouse, Malta. A week or so ago she rendered several selections at a reception given by Mrs. Hugh Livingston Macneil, and everyone present was enthusiastic over the rare beauty, purity, range and power of her dramatic soprano. This single local appearance was the occasion of overtures being made for Miss Dillon's engagement as soloist at one of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra's concerts in the fall, a distinction the local prima donna will probably have to forego on account of her operatic work.

Miss Fannie Dillon, well-known composer-pianist, will assist her sister at the concert at the Majestic Theater and will be heard in one of her original compositions. The accompanist for Miss Dillon will be Will Garroway.

Miss Dillon's programme will be as follows: "Dich Theure Halle," "Tannhauser," "Elsa's Traum," "Lohengrin" (Wagner,) Florence Dillon; "A Song of Love" (Mrs. Beach,) "Sunrise," poem by Henry Van Dyke (Fannie Dillon,) "Sunset," poem by Kate Wisner McClusky (Fannie Dillon,) Fannie Dillon; "Nina" (Pergolesi,) "Serenata" (Tosti,) "Santa Lucia" (author unknown,) "'O Sole Mio" (Capua,) Florence Dillon; Sonata Op. 27, Allegro Maestoso, First Movement (Fannie Dillon,) Fannie Dillon; "Tacea la Notte," "Il Trovatore" (Verdi,) "Vissi d'Arte," "Io Questo Lama," "La Tosca" (Puccini,) "Mi Chiamano Mimi," "O Buon Marcello," "La Boheme" (Puccini,) Florence Dillon.

—o—

Organ Seventh.

The seventh public service of the Southern California chapter of the American Guild of Organists will be given in St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral tomorrow evening.

The majority of the programme will be given by Leonard Smith, assisted, however, by Albert F. Conant and P. Shaul-Hallett.

—o—

Lyric Club.

The Lyric Club will give its closing concert, for this season, at the Auditorium on the evening of June 14, under the baton of Jean Baptiste Poulin.

The programme will include Chaminade's "Evening Prayer in Brittany," with incidental solos by Mrs. John W. Thayer and Mrs. W. M. Conklin; the Elgar-Page "Thou Sweet Music," a baritone solo by William James Chick, Shelley's choral arrangement of the flower duet from "Madame Butterfly," Herman's "Summer Night," Bliss's "Requiem of a Rose," Manney's "Song at Sunrise" with incidental solos by Mrs. George E. Ragland, the Grieg-Harris "First Meeting" and Max Bruch's "Fair Ellen" with soprano and baritone solos by Mrs. B. F. Land, Jr., and Mr. Chick.

Young Karl Klein, son of Bruno Oscar Klein, composer and pianist, will make his first local appearance. The scion of the house of Klein is said to be a budding virtuoso of unusual attainments.

"Little Children."

"Children, Little Children" is the tender title of a very successful new song, written by Mrs. B. H. Baruch, with music by Mrs. Genevieve Farnell Bond.

The song received its first public interpretation last Tuesday, when it was sung by nine young girls at the evening session of the California State Congress of Mothers at Pomona.

Dorothy Pauline Bingham.

Miss Dorothy Pauline Bingham, a talented 13-year-old girl (pupil of Miss Jessie L. Hodges) was heard in recital at Miss Hodges's piano normal last Friday evening. In the excellent programme Misses Helen and Dorothy Walker, readers, took part.

—o—

Cogswell Recital.

Horatio Cogswell has issued invitations for a song-recital to be given by his pupil, Miss Nellie M. Lawson, at his home, No. 1244 Van Ness avenue, tomorrow evening.

Miss Lawson has a rich and beautiful mezzo-soprano, and will be assisted at the piano by Miss Gladys Aghorn.

—o—

Moore's Band.

Moore's band at Eastlake today will present a programme including Chiaffarelli's "Symphonic" march, Geise's "Angel of Love" meditation, Tobani's "American Fantasy," the Kela-Bela "Tempelweihe" overture, Stewart's "Hawaiian Patrol," a Polish dance by Scharwenka, Godfrey's "Souvenir de Wagner," and Thome's "Simple Aveu."

Alexander Heinemann,

Lieder-singer, who will be heard at the Auditorium on the evening of Tuesday, and again on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Juliet Borden,

Whose wedding to Lieut. Irving Hall Mayfield will be solemnized in October.

JUNE brides, who have held the center of the social stage for some time, will play second this week to the girls and boys returning from school in the North and East. One large and fashionable party has already been given for these "homecomers" and the next fortnight will be gay with parties in their honor.

Miss Marie Bobrick charmingly entertained with a luncheon of twenty-two covers in honor of the return of Miss Madeline King, daughter of Mrs. F. W. King, who has been East to school.

Then there is Miss Eileen McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, who will soon return to be present at many informal affairs. Miss McCarthy will be one of next season's debutantes, and the parties between now and then will be of an informal nature. With her parents she is now in Canada, and their return is expected soon.

"Comings and Goings."

A tour of the world is being planned by Mrs. Ralph Hagan of Lake street. This will be for her charming young niece, Miss Gladys Arend, who will pass much time in travel before making her formal debut. Miss Arend will leave shortly for a summer's outing at Catalina, and upon her return, Mrs. Hagan plans to leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Phillips of Berkeley square, have returned from an outing in San Francisco, and are again at home to friends.

Mrs. W. E. Ramsay of Western avenue returned a fortnight ago from a four months' tour abroad, enjoyed with her daughters, the Misses Katharine and Marjorie. The Misses Ramsay stopped over with friends in the East, and arrived in Los Angeles last evening.

Miss Ethel Shaw of Severance street is expecting from St. Louis Miss Marguerite Galbreth, who will be her guest for a month. Miss Galbreth will arrive the early part of this week, and a gay time is expected.

Dr. and Mrs. James D. McCoy of No. 1196 West Twenty-eighth street will motor this summer to Coronado and Santa Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duque of New Hampshire street, with their three daughters, the Misses Evangeline, Helen and Adaline, and also their sons, will leave July 1, for Santa Monica, where their summer will be enjoyed.

Mrs. Kate S. Vosburg and Murray Vosburg of No. 2345 South Figueroa street, left recently for New York and yesterday sailed from that city for Paris. They will also visit London and other large and interesting cities.

Sheldon Borden and his daughter, Miss Juliet of South Hope street, who, by the way, is engaged to Lieut. Irving Hall Mayfield, will pass the summer at Catalina and San Francisco.

Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth of No. 1103 Lake street will pass a fortnight in June, motoring, with her husband in San Francisco. August and September she will enjoy at Lake Tahoe and San Francisco.

Mrs. Harry W. Vermillion has returned from a pleasant sojourn in Berkeley, where she went to attend the commencement exercises of the University of California, her grandson, David Vermillion, having been one of the members of the graduating class. While in the northern city Mrs. Vermillion shared honors with Mrs. Theodore Nicholai at a handsome luncheon of thirty covers given by Mrs. Nicholai Betts at the Palace Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholai have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Betts, for some time, and only recently returned to their home in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Sherer of No. 643 New Hampshire avenue will leave this week for the Yosemite Valley, where they will pass a month. Upon their return they will visit San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. George I. Cochran of Harvard boulevard have been visiting in New York for several weeks, and are now en route to Europe, where they will travel for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Feintuch and Miss Vert Feintuch and Mrs. Eleanor Nightingale are also en route to Europe, where they have planned a merry outing. Their trip will continue through the summer months.

Mrs. Louis Hosteller, wife of United States Consul Hosteller of Hermosillo, Mex., will reach this city early this month for her annual summer visit. A sojourn at one of the beaches is included in the plan, and Mr. Hosteller will join her in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel W. Myrick of No. 667 West Twenty-eighth street who entertained a few friends informally at bridge Friday evening, left the following day for Ocean Park, where they will pass four months.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Mott of No. 2629 Portland street, with Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Paul Chandler of No. 639 West Twenty-eighth street, are enjoying a brief outing at San Francisco.

J. T. Dewar, H. J. Batcher, Jr., and Edward Bastheim of this city are enjoying a pleasant sojourn in New York. While in the East they are at Hotel Astor.

George Zobelein of this city sailed from New York last week for Germany, where was his former home. Mr. Zobelein will also visit other countries.

Miss Elizabeth A. Root of No. 3016 Vermont avenue left last week for Salt Lake City, where she will pass a month with friends.

Mrs. William Grant Fitch is domiciled at Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, where her summer will be enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bossert of No. 1125 Forest avenue have returned from a two weeks' motor trip through the northern part of the State.

For Miss Borden.

Miss Arreen Barker of Hotel Hershey Arms will preside Thursday at a theater party at the Belasco, followed by tea at Hotel Alexandria. Miss Juliet Borden, whose betrothal to Lieut. Irving Hall Mayfield was recently announced at a smart luncheon given by Mrs. Louis Tolhurst, will be present as special guest. Other young people who have been asked are Miss Katherine Stearns, Miss Marquerite Drake, Mrs. Forest Stanton, Mrs. Tolhurst and Mrs. Arthur Macfarlane.

To Receive.

Madam Swaine, Mrs. Cornelius Van Alen Sidell, Mrs. Edgar Lacy Swaine and Mrs. Charles Seymour Swaine, who gave a large reception May 11 at the Ebell clubhouse, will be at home to friends at No. 1319 Manhattan place the first and second Fridays in this month.

In Springfield.

Mrs. William F. Herndon and daughter, Miss Pearl, of Hollywood, are visiting friends in Springfield, Ill. Last week they were guests at a reception given by Gov. and Mrs. Deneen at the executive mansion. A particularly interesting feature was

"The Melodigrand is the most wonderful piano I have ever heard."

Harry Girard

Director of the Los Angeles Musical College, and well known musician and composer.

Melodigrand
The Piano "Incomparable"

"In tone, I consider it the most finished product of the piano world today."

Thomas Taylor Drill

Director of choral work, Egan School of Music and Drama, and a leading musical authority.

When the combined judgment of the foremost musical authorities in Southern California is expressed in favor and preference of one particular piano it is readily apparent that this one piano must possess some very decided and really remarkable qualities of superiority over any and all other makes. Such a condition as this exists, and the Melodigrand piano, the recipient of such an extraordinary testimonial of distinction and laudation, is undeniably entitled to this position of prestige and distinguished preeminence, by intrinsic excellence, absolutely unequalled in any other high grade piano in the world today.

Into the Melodigrand Piano have been incorporated new scientific features of construction, which not only amplify the volume and character of the tone, but at the same time greatly increase the durability of the instrument. There has been attained in the Melodigrand a superiority of tone which has enraptured universally all musicians who have had an opportunity to familiarize themselves with it. It delights all music lovers who hear it.

Those who are considering the purchase of pianos, and who desire to secure the best to be had, are invited to carefully compare the Melodigrand with the products of any other maker in the piano world. We can assure them a degree of pleasure and satisfaction in the selection of a Melodigrand not obtainable in any other instrument. Prices of Melodigrands are as follows:

Bungalow style, $385 and $395—Colonial Uprights, $450 and $475—Imperial Uprights, $500 Corinthian Uprights, $550 and $575—Grands, $700 to $1000—Player Pianos, $685 upward—Grand Player Pianos, $1200 up.

Off for Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Paul of West Washington street, left Friday for Montreal, where they will sail for a two years' trip on the continent. They will land in Scotland and from there go to England.

Luncheon Delightful.

Entertaining Wednesday at her home, No. 1711 Westmoreland avenue, Mrs. O. E. Dutton gave a luncheon of twenty-two covers, decorations for which were pink roses and ferns arranged in a large brown basket, with pink sweet peas strewn over the handsome cloth. Cards ornamented with hand-painted colonial dames marked covers for Mrs. D. E. Garno, Mrs. Ogden and Miss Ogden, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. Tom Newell, Mrs. Connell, Mrs. Cochran, Mrs. Bilharz of Arden, Iowa, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. C. H. Ingraham, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Stassford, Miss Hunt, Mrs. Jefferies, Mrs. McClaghlin, Mrs. Stotts, Mrs. Stahl, Mrs. Baird, Mrs. Altie and Mrs. Otten.

Magnolia Whist Club.

Mrs. A. Alexander, No. 320 Jefferson street, entertained with a luncheon at her home Tuesday afternoon, complimentary to the Magnolia Whist Club. Red carnations were used for decorating, and also lent their bright touch to the dining-room tables. After luncheon, the guests passed the afternoon playing whist, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Peebles and Mrs. Alexander. Those present were Mrs. B. F. Hanrihan, Mrs. Eunice Cyrenius, Mrs. Sarah Berberich, Mrs. Emma Peebles, Mrs. Winifred Wood, Mrs. Minnie Noel, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. White, Mrs. Dolan, Mrs. Sarah Farrel and Mrs. Wells.

Masquerade Ball.

Striking and elaborate costumes, others comic, representing past and present time, were seen at the masked ball given at Lake View Inn, Elsinore, Monday evening, honoring the sister and son of G. A. Covey, who are his guests from New York City. Dancing was enjoyed until 11, when all unmasked and were served dainty refreshments.

Another Luncheon.

Pink and lavender sweet peas, arranged in an Austrian glass bowl, were used to ornament the luncheon table, which had as a hostess Miss Myrtle Ouellett, of No. 1344 South Figueroa street, who entertained complimenting the members of the St. Cecilia Club. Covers were laid for Miss Kie Julie Christin, Mrs. George Crandall, Mrs. Harry Duffil, Mrs. Elmer Grey, Miss Willy Smiper, Mrs. Harry Baxter, Miss Sadie Douglass, Mrs. Roy Kellogg, Mrs. Philip Zobeelin, Miss Jessica Lawrence, Miss Rose Chilcote and Mrs. J. W. Thayer. Miss Ouellet delighted the guests after luncheon with several selections on the harp.

Betrothal Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen German of No. 4237 Moneta avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ola, to D. E. Gilbert. The service will take place the evening of June 29, at the home of the bride-elect's parents.

In Miss German's honor Miss Estella Failyear of No. 643 East Washington street, entertained with a miscellaneous shower last week. Garlands of roses and carnations were festooned gracefully about the rooms where the young guests were entertained with music by Mrs. E. Huston and Miss Gladys Berendes, a clever musician from Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Steinhauer Hostess.

Complimentary to members of a card club to which she belongs, and also for a few friends, Mrs. Carl Steinhauer of No. 4714 Santa Monica boulevard, entertained Friday with a pleasant afternoon. An artistic profusion of American beauties adorned the home. Plates were laid for Mrs. James K. Adams, Mrs. Frederick R. Vogel, Mrs. A. Hoalland Jones, Mrs. Bert Dow, Mrs. A. Jennings Brown, Mrs. Glen Marks, Mrs. Sterling Pierce, Miss Florence

Mrs. Marquis Hostess.

Elaborate in appointment was the luncheon of eighty covers given Tuesday by Mrs. August Marquis at her beautiful home on West Twenty-fifth street. The drawing-room blazed with hundreds of American Beauties, while Scotch bloom in the hall and many little electric lamps in yellow shades added to the pretty effect; Maman Cochet roses in the living-room were delightfully pretty, and quantities of Cecile Brunners transformed the dining-room into a fragrant bower. The tables were radiant with spring flowers grown in the garden, Mrs. Marquis having brought the seeds from Switzerland on her recent trip abroad. Games were played following the repast and prizes fell to Mrs. Hauerwass, Mrs. Frederick H. Rindge, Jr., Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Strelitz, Mrs. Boynton, Mrs. Barman and Miss McCray. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. A. H. Koebig, Mrs. M. W. Everhardy, Mrs. Ralph Hagan, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. Greppin, Mrs. Woollacott, Mrs. E. J. Brent and Mrs. Strelitz. Young girls who punched scores included the Misses Doris Jones, Alma Weisenbach, Muriel McCray, Sutor, Cecile Greppin, Vallcot and Gladys Arend.

Another Chance for Men to Get $20 and $25 Suits for $16.50

We relieved a certain manufacturer—one of the largest in the country—of a heavy surplus stock—and through this, secured a lot of high-character garments at a price that would seem ridiculous should we quote it. The advantage is yours—don't fail to take it.

The maker's offer was liberal—but no matter how liberal it had been, if the suits were not up to Hamburger high standards the offer would never have been considered for a moment. If we allowed ourselves to be tempted by price lowness alone, we would defeat our own purpose. We aim to serve you with suits that bespeak clothes-correctness—clothes-perfection clear through. That's what this purchase brings you. These are suits of equal merit in quality, making and style.

You'll find extremely clever models in blue, tan, gray, brown and fancy mixtures—the fabric is there—and so is the tailoring.

The Girl Graduate
Her Own Book

SOCIETY.

white messaline with a tunic of chiffon, she carried a shower of lilies of the valley. Miss Nellie Mize, a cousin, assisted as maid of honor, and was gowned in a pretty white marquisette and carried an arm bouquet of yellow blossoms. Lynn Morris, of San Francisco, was best man, and the ring was carried in a large rose by little Ethel Kinney. The entire home was decked with yellow and white blossoms. A trip to San Diego and Santa Barbara will be included in the wedding journey, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris will then go to Bakersfield, where they will reside temporarily.

Club Party.

Members of the "Younger Set Five Hundred Club" were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Dodge of No. 691 East Fifty-second place, recently. After the games, prizes were awarded to George Melrose, Mrs. James P. Curry, Mrs. George Melrose and Adrian Bell. Dancing was later enjoyed, and the guests were the Misses Grace Holcomb, Florence Clayton; Messrs. Olin Johnson, Ray Salyer and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Currt, Mr. and Mrs. George Melrose, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Dodge.

Miss Burke to Wed.

Miss Ruth Burke, the attractive and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Wellington Burke of Halldale avenue, has chosen June 19 for the date of her wedding to Stubert Biddle Stephens of Kansas City, Kan. The service will be read at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd Dunsmore of Halldale avenue, the groom-to-be's father, Dr. David Stubert Stephens, who will come south for the wedding, officiating. Little Donald Dunsmore will carry the ring in a lily and Mr. Dunsmore will give Miss Burke away.

Another Wedding.

St. John's Episcopal Church will be the scene June 5 of the wedding of Miss Belle Hutchinson, daughter of Mrs. A. L. Hutchinson of No 1970 Park Grove avenue, and Walter Koll. Mrs. Cyril J. Kupser has been asked to serve as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Frances Johnson and Dorothy Ming. Cyril J. Kupser will be best man, and the ushers' duties will be performed by Harley Eastman, Harvey Koll, Jack Warner and Ray Dudley. Following the church service, which will be in charge of the rector, Rev. Lewis G. Morris, a reception to members of the bridal party and intimate friends will be given at the family home.

Mrs. Preston Hostess.

Mrs. R. A. Preston of Arkansas had as guests Friday evening members of the Golden Evening Club whom she entertained in their clubrooms at the Golden apartments. This interesting hostess used exclusively in decorating hybiscus blossoms and huckleberry branches. The games were played by Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gridley, Mrs. Mary Frye Seely, Mr. and Mrs. Chester, Mr. and Mrs. Godhelp, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Karger, Mr. and Mrs. Samuels, Mr. and Mrs. Weiner, Mr. and Mrs. McGill, Mrs. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Wynne, Mrs. Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Hyman.

Home Wedding.

Seventy-five relatives and friends witnessed the wedding Tuesday evening, May 21, of Miss Lucy Anna Lindsley and S. C. Sault, solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Lindsley of No. 6617 Denver avenue. The home was beautifully decorated with choice cut flowers and ferns. In the living-room, where the service was held, a lattice arch of ferns and Shasta daisies was attractively arranged. Rev. J. B. Habbick, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in white crepe meteor satin with an overdress of baby Irish lace. A pearl necklace was the only ornament. Her shower was of bride roses and maiden-hair. Miss Ella Ludwig assisted as maid of honor and was attired in pink marquisette over pink satin. She carried Cecil Brunners. Little Dorothy Dee and Chester Kastner carried the two rings in baskets of Cecil Brunners, and Muriel Dee was flower girl. E. S. Davidson of Salt Lake City was best man, and Thomas R. Murchison and Brook Johnson were ushers. After June 15 Mr. and Mrs. Sault will be at home to friends at No. 6617 Denver avenue.

Westlake Bridge Club.

Members of the Westlake Bridge Club were entertained last week by Mrs. Leah Brewer at her home, No. 2360 West Twenty-second street. The successful prize winners were Miss Phyllis Kirschner and Miss Eleanor Stanton. Others who contested were Mrs. Gardner Narbonne, Mrs. George Burkhardt, Mrs. Frank Murphy, Mrs. Phillip Colby, Mrs. E. Maxwell, Mrs. Edward Graham, Mrs. Grace O'Brien, Mrs. Walter Lacy, Mrs. A. Roe, Mrs. Jonathan Wright, Mrs. James A. Justice, Mrs. Allington Hemming, Miss Florence Whitney, Miss Rita Miller, Miss Doris Kirschner, Miss Eugenia Rixon and Miss Carolyn Bruns. The home was enlivened with American Beauties, which were used in the drawing and living-rooms, and pink enchantress carnations brightened the dining-room, where luncheon was served.

Rimpau-Johnson Wedding.

Although marked by simplicity the wedding Thursday evening, in a quiet little chapel in Hollywood, of Albert Edward Rimpau, son of Mrs. R. B. Rimpau of No. 1540 St. Andrew's place, and Miss Wilhelmina Johnson, was of more than usual interest, owing to the prominence of the groom's family. Young Rimpau's people have made this city their home for years and are among the old and respected pioneers. At the conclusion of a trip to San Diego, Mr. and Mrs. Rimpau will make their home in Hollywood. The service was attended by members of the two families only and the groom's sister, Miss Marguerite Rimpau, and Fred Grayson, were the only attendants.

Bridge Party.

Miss Gail Sipes, daughter of Mrs. Jasper Sipes of the Burlington apartments, was a charming hostess Wednesday afternoon, when she had as guests members of the Chi Omega Sorority and friends at a bridge party. Luncheon was served on the roof garden, where the tables were gay with pink roses. There were present the Misses Helen Swenson, Gladys Johnson of Chicago, Marie Cline of Chicago, Frances Barrier, Helen Judson, Ruth Brown, Florence Judkins, Violet Nebelung, Belle Hart, Alice Dodge, Helen Pinkham, Dagmar Neilson, Lucille Ames, Mary Sorrelle, Sarah Ringham, Helen Runyon, Edith Runyon, E. Swalley, Helen Sanborn, Helen Mills and Sara Hussey and Mrs. Blanchard.

"Imperial" Dining and Living Room Tables the Finest in America—Many Styles at Special Savings This Week!

—"Imperial" Dining and Living Room Tables are recognized throughout the United States as the finest tables on the American market today. They are the "last word" in table construction and finish. There are more "Imperial" made tables sold in Los Angeles than any other make, which proves their popularity with all classes of buyers. We have been receiving large shipments of these tables in the past few weeks, and our stock is unusually complete. Only yesterday we placed on our floors two solid carloads of beautiful "Imperial" library tables in Colonial and Mission designs, of which we have specially priced a number for this week.

Those contemplating buying dining room, living room or library tables should not fail to see our fine display of this famous "Imperial" line. Note well the many special values offered below. Don't purchase elsewhere until you have learned the advantages and economy of investing in this famous make, and during this special sale—

Without a Single Exception the Greatest Values Offered This Season on High Grade Silk and Serge Dresses

Lot No. 1 Includes Fine $11.95 to $17.50 Dresses $8.95

Here's a case of a tremendous overstock which good shopkeeping demands reducing at such a time as on Spring Stock Clearing—even though the price DOES NOT ACTUALLY COVER THE NEW YORK COST. There are pongees, foulards, changeable and chiffon taffetas, and a variety of clever serge dresses trimmed with lace collars, ratine, etc., in a great variety of effects. If you'll but see them you will be as enthusiastic about them as we are, for we repeat it—the values have positively not been equaled in this city.

Entire Stock High Grade Dresses

Ranging from $20 to $37.50 Included in This Beautiful Lot at $14.95

These values are simply wonderful, and we are preparing to do a record-breaking business upon this big collection of high-class, exclusively designed and faultlessly made dresses. There are fine taffetas, pure silk pongees, figured messalines, crepe meteors, embroidered broadcloths and fine serges in this lot, and scarcely two dresses in the entire lot just alike. The Clearing Sale price would not cover the cost of materials in any one of these beautiful dresses. Don't miss seeing them, Monday, at $14.95.

$25, $29.50, $32.50, $35 Suits $18.95

There are plain and fancy materials that are just right for summer wear, in grays, blue grays, tan, navy, cream, Bedfords and English checks. Some are in the popular Norfolk styles, some fancy trimmed with Ratine and heavy laces. Truly wonderful values at $18.95.

OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Hollywood.

THE wedding of Miss Lela Alda Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Douglas of No. 175 North Wilcox, and Dr. Charles Francis Ferry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Ferry of Oak avenue, occurred at the beautiful home of the bride's parents at 7 o'clock Monday evening. Although the affair was a quiet home wedding and witnessed by over twenty guests, the gowns, supper and decorations were elaborate in every detail. The bridal party descended the stairs through the hall to the living-room, where they met the groom and the best man. The ceremony took place under the arch way which was outlined with asparagus plumosus fern and tied in the center with an immense white tulle bow. The bride was lovely in a white satin gown, made en train, with an overdrapery princess lace, trimmed in pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, and lilies of the valley, and wore orange blossoms in her hair. Her only ornament, a beautiful pearl pendant, was the gift of the groom. Miss Douglas was given away by her father, Miss Mary Douglas, her sister attended as maid of honor, and was attired in a gown of pale green marquisette over white messaline. Miss May Douglas of Pomona, cousin to the bride, presided at the piano. The groom's best man was Fred Weddington. In all the main rooms, a scheme of yellow, was carried out. Scotch broom and quantities of fern were effective in the living-room and den, while mustard was artistically arranged up the balistrade on the stair case in the hall. Yellow ribbon and tulle fell from the chandelier to the four sides of the dining table. The centerpiece consisted of coreopsis and fern, while the same color scheme was carried out in the place cards, favors, cakes, ices and bon bons.. Mr. and Mrs. Ferry left immediately for a two weeks' auto trip through Southern California. Mrs. Ferry's going-away gown was a handsome tailored brown and tan whip cord suit, with accessories to match.

Miss Marian McPherron of No. 155 North Cahuenga avenue delightfully entertained the members of the Kappi Phi Sorority, with a miscellaneous shower, in honor of Miss Marian Cooley of Los Angeles, whose marriage to Van Cleve Parrot will occur in South Carolina after a three months' trip abroad. The Kappi Phi colors, yellow and white, were carried out in the decorations, with daisies. A delicious luncheon was served after which Miss Cooley was showered with many pretty gifts.

"The Obstinate Woman" a drawing will be presented before the Woman's Club next Wednesday, June 5, under the direction of Mr. Henaberg. At this meeting the club will hold its annual election of officers, and directors for the ensuing year.

Members of the D.A.R. and a few friends, were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Alfred Guido Schloesser at her home, Glengary Castle, No. 306 Argyle street, Saturday afternoon, from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. The Schloesser castle was attractively decorated with roses. Dainty refreshments were served in the dining-room and during the afternoon punch was served in the patio.

Miss Luigina Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ingle Carpenter, gave a Japanese party in honor of her 7th birthday, at the home of her parents, No. 535 Yucca avenue. Games were played on the lawn and later, delicious refreshments were served under the trees. The table was prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns, parasols and fans, and were later given to the guests as favors.

Branden Finney entertained forty guests at a picnic party at his home, No. 137 South La Brea avenue, Saturday night. Games and music furnished the amusement for the evening.

Mrs. J. C. Richardson of Tamarind avenue chaperoned six members of the Uni Zoo Ee Club girls at a delightful week-end party, at Manhattan Beach, last week. Those present were Lillian Gross, Eulalie Gross, Florence Isaacs, Ruth Hoegee, Phylis Richardson and Mildred Isaacs.

Miss Blanche and Josephine Nelson were honored guests at a party given by their cousin, Miss Emily Peterson of No. 917 Cole avenue, last Friday evening. The affair was called "A Trolley Trip to Funville," and the different rooms represented the points visited. Miss Peterson was the conductor and Misses Eureka and Viola Nelson acted as baggage clerks, while Miss Phillips was the portor, and Mrs. F. H. Brooks acted as the chaperone. In the living-room Cecil Bruner roses were used, while the other rooms were prettily decorated with Shasta daisies, sweet peas and roses. On the veranda, where punch was served, Shasta daisies and mustard were banked.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert C. Kinney of No. 452 Hillcrest road gave an informal afternoon Saturday, in honor of the members of the faculty of the Twenty-first-avenue intermediate school. Yellow wild flowers made ef-

Claremont.

MONDAY night at the Claremont Inn, Joseph Danner Taylor entertained at dinner the members of the Areopagus Society and Dr. James A. Blaisdell and Mr. A. M. Brace. The banqueting room had been decorated by Mrs. Worth Merritt in canyon brakes and ferns. Honeysuckle was extensively used in combination with the ferns and on the table were masses of white carnations and greenery. A number of toasts were responded to at the close of the banquet, while an orchestra played during the serving of the courses. Those present were the Dr. J. A. Blaisdell and the Messrs. A. M. Brace, G. E. Merritt, George Babcock, L. E. Alimisis, R. E. Gardner, R. E. St. Clain, H. W. Berg, E. W. Bougher, R. E. Gibson, A. R. Kopp, L. E. Flinspach, F. M. Eakin, Claude Craft, J. G. Simmons.

Oldest Jewelry House in Southern California

S. NORDLINGER & SONS

631-633 So. Broadway

Opposite the Orpheum

SO many useful suggestions for Wedding Gifts could be offered by this foremost Jewelry House that it is impossible to allude specifically to more than one Department. If you intend giving Silver—and you could choose nothing better—our comprehensive Silver Department will show you many things that will be sure to delight the bride-elect.

So we suggest a Casserole, in one of our many pleasing patterns—an Almond Set—a set of Ramekins—an Olive Set, simple or elaborate—a Bread Tray of some rich design—one of the new Bonbon Baskets—a set of Knives, Forks and Spoons of fine quality—a Carving Set—a Silver Set for the dresser. These hints are selected at random from our imposing cases.

Bear in mind that Silver selected here may be depended on to give abiding satisfaction and permanent service. Articles purchased of us nearly half a century ago are in daily use in many Los Angeles homes. Initials are engraved without charge.

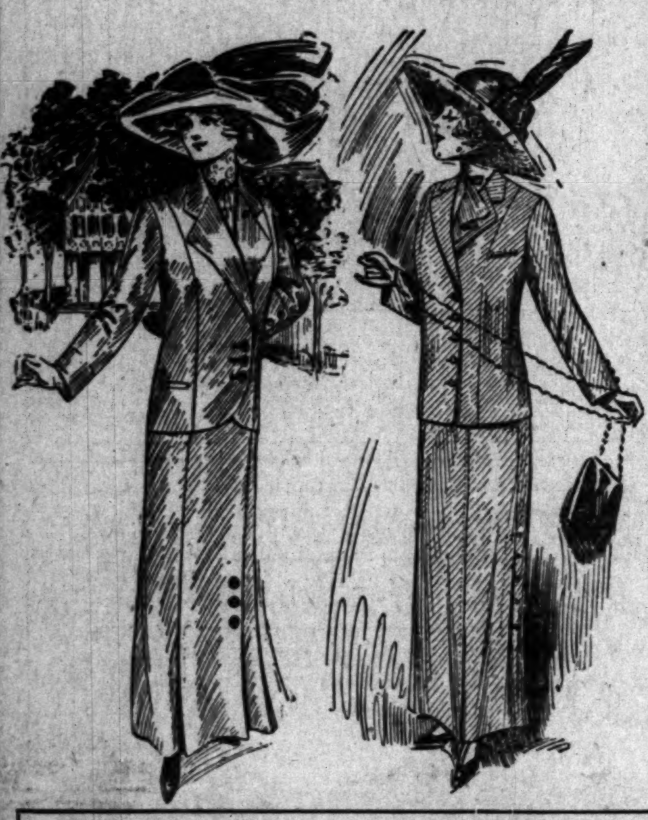
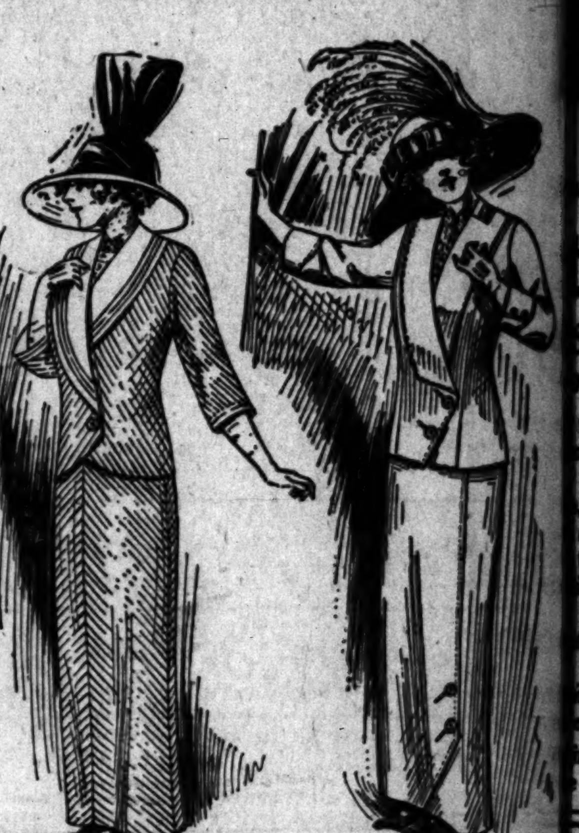
Women's Eyes Will Snap With Excitement When They See the Savings That This Advertisement Heralds





---It's astonishing---almost revolutionary---but certain causes have combined to bring about certain results and to provide an economy event of almost unprecedented proportions for the women of Southern California.

—The most extensive distribution of women's suits Bullock's has attempted in June—at the most remarkable pricing, according to real value, will commence on Monday morning.

Over One Hundred Fine Individual Fashions Will Be Out at One Price $24.50

—and such fashions! The masterpieces of artists in the style-creative world, designed and finished by tailors of renown to sell at 50% more.

—Over 25 white suits—nearly as many in navy blue—suits in mixtures—tans, grays, stripes—ever so many real imported patterns.

—Foreign cloths—serges, cheviots of summer weight—suits of clever mannish materials—whipcords—two-toned effects—every coat silk lined—many even finished with silk-covered shields. But it's the personality—the style—the subtle, indescribable something that lends distinction and individuality to a garment—that makes every suit in this event a feature of note.

—There are suits in the cutaway effect—and those with one and two-button fastenings; there are suits with the long roll lapels, silk covered or plain collars; there are suits with no-lapel rounded fronts.

—There are suits with coats and skirts to represent the most prominent ideas of fashion for midsummer wear—ideas that are to be found in exclusive creations only.

—There are suits! and suits! and suits! that women will fall in love with because of their beauty alone—and when they see them marked $24.50—!

—We're frank in saying that we expect the greatest volume of selling that this department has ever had in June—because we have never been able to put out such values in June before—and the suits themselves are among the most attractive and desirable that we have had to sell at any price this year.

—Realization in this instance will be greater than anticipation.

—Manufacturers will over-enthuse and over-produce—mistakes are human, and will continue to be—but the opportunity that looms large before every woman in Southern California on Monday is that of buying a beautiful summer suit at $24.50 that would ordinarily cost at the lowest estimate 50% more.

—See windows on Broadway—plan to visit the second floor salons as early as you can.

The Millinery Salons Have Caught the Selling Spirit of June

—"Wings" to Summer Hats on Monday.
—Price Wings—and how they will fly.
—You know the beauty and character of Bullock's Summer Millinery.

—Just think of Bullock Hats at 50 per cent under worth (as ever so many of them will be)—some even more than 50 per cent and others almost 50 per cent under worth.

—Can't you imagine what a day it will be!

There will be 125 Hats at $9.75
Over 90 Trimmed Hats at $7.45
Just 55 Trimmed Hats at $12.50
Midsummer Styles Reduced to $17.50
20 Beautiful Creations at $25.00
And a Few "Magnificents" at $49.50

—Covering a range of style, color, mode of trimming, so that every woman should be interested in visiting the Millinery salons.

—Then there will be—

300 Milan Shapes at $1.65—In black, white and burnt—medium and small sizes.*

200 Milan Shapes at $2.45—In black, white and burnt—and others* $3.75 and $4.75. Astonishing.

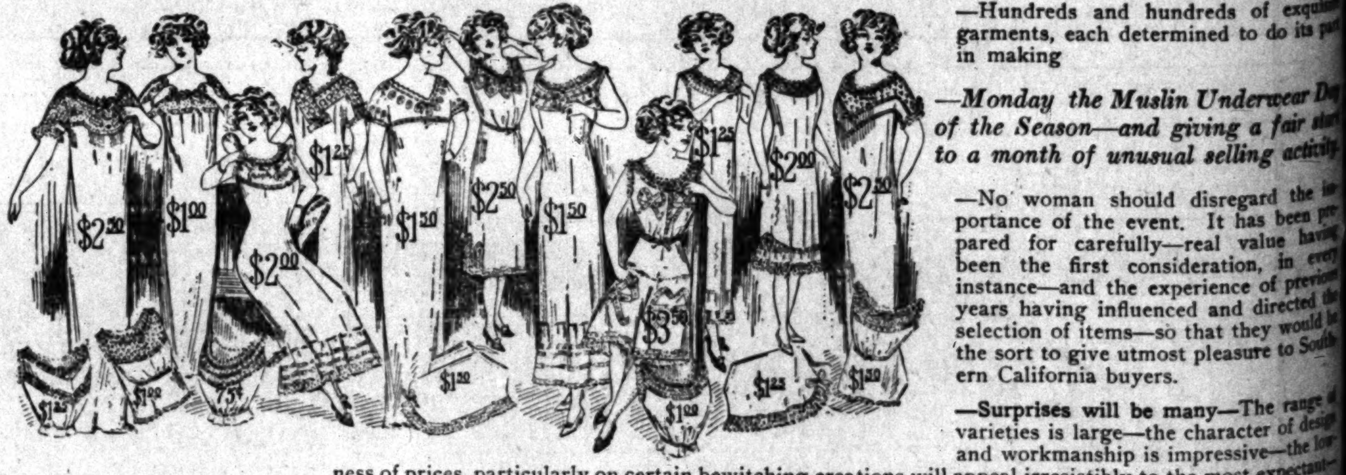
—What, with the rare Suit Values, at $24.50! the June Muslin Underwear Event! these Striking Millinery Offerings! Do you wonder we're preparing for extraordinary business on the Second Floor, Monday?

June!---and More Great News!

The Beautiful Snow White Undermuslins Break Through the Barrier Into Summertime. An Army of Unusual Values

—Ruffled, ribboned, trimmed with laces and embroideries in marvelous ways—or just plain, simple, practical effects planned to delight those in whose minds service is foremost.



—Hundreds and hundreds of exquisite garments, each determined to do its part in making —Monday the Muslin Underwear Day of the Season—and giving a fair start to a month of unusual selling activity.

—No woman should disregard the importance of the event. It has been prepared for carefully—real value having been the first consideration, in every instance—and the experience of previous years having influenced and directed the selection of items—so that they would be the sort to give utmost pleasure to Southern California buyers.

—Surprises will be many—The range of varieties is large—the character of design and workmanship is impressive—the lowness of prices, particularly on certain bewitching creations will appeal irresistibly to the most expectant—

Ratine!

The Management Puts It Up to Us

HEAD WAITER

—You've called me the head-waiter. Well, I am, for I will be waiting anxiously to hear that you have made this, your sale, bigger than ever.

—You have the affairs of this sale in your hands. I'll stand by and watch your progress.

—I've been told you have steaming-hot values for every day, so as to overcome the records of last year. Certainly you will need extraordinary values to make a bigger success than you achieved last year.

—I want to award the cash prizes to the Department Manager who not only has made the best showing in point of total sales, but who has rendered the best service to the customer.

—I am strong for service. You must keep it ever before you that everything will go smoothly in this the greatest sale of the year.

ARTHUR LETTS Broadway Department Store

Think of 40c to $2.00 Ribbons, 29c

—And you have the story in a nutshell of one of my most attractive features in this sale.
—The widths range from 2½ to 9 inches, and I want to go on record as saying that it is the greatest value I have ever put over in this department.
—Look at these fancy floral Jacquards. These 9-inch wide plaids and the novelty stripes. If every item in this sale is like this we won't be able to accommodate the crowds. W. W. PENRY, Mgr., Ribbons, Laces, Neckwear and Embroideries.

Shadow Laces at 15c, 19c and 25c

—Another truly remarkable value that I offer. Just when Shadow laces are at the height of demand. I offer 4000 yards at these prices.
—Bands and edges from 2 to 8½ inches. For waists and trimmings. I closed out a big line from a New York importer. At these prices you are saving about half. Aisle 1.

Chemisettes or Sleeves' Worth 25c and 50c at 15c

—Shadow lace chemisettes, some with sleeves to match. Truly worth 25c and 50c. 60 dozen, while they last. Have you heard of such a low price as 15c for a Chemisette or 30c for Chemisette and sleeves.

$2 to $5 Chiffon Auto Veils $1.45

—I had 20 dozen of these, and they're worth everything I say they're worth. Big range of colors. Fine variety of styles. Hemstitched and bordered effects. If you intend buying an Auto veil this is your opportunity.

1500 Yards Wide Embroideries 25c

—Here I offer you 16 and 17 inch Swiss and Nainsook embroideries, corset covering and flouncing, bold, open and semi-blind designs.
—1500 yards of one of the best embroideries I've offered in many and many a day. 25c.

ARTHUR LETTS Broadway Department Store

SOCIETY.

Diego has arrived for a two-months sojourn in San Jacinto.

Mrs. C. B. Woodhead is enjoying a visit from Mrs. Mary E. Gard, of Springfield, O.

C. M. Pierce of Los Angeles spent several days in San Jacinto, on business, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vosbury were Los Angeles visitors for several days during the week.

Frank E. Hand and wife of Los Angeles are spending a ten day's vacation in San Jacinto. Mr. Hand is a supreme officer of the Independent Order of Foresters.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Pool entertained the Evening Whist Club at their home on Main street, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. C. M. Hannahs entertained the Embroidery Club at her home on San Jacinto avenue, and on Friday the club was entertained by Mrs. Jabez Kiest.

Mrs. S. A. M. Kumler and Mrs. A. C. Coffeen entertained the Afternoon Whist Club at the home of Mrs. Kumler on Main street.

Miss Mabel Hatcher returned the first of the week from Berkeley, where she has completed her work at the State University. The young lady will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hatcher.

Miss Irma Malone arrived home Wednesday evening for an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Malone.

Mrs. Mary Fowler leaves Saturday for a visit of several weeks with friends in San Diego.

Mrs. Walter F. Sanders and mother, Mrs. E. H. Brier, left this week for a vacation at Long Beach.

Pasadena.

AMONG the few noteworthy social functions of last week are those which have been enjoyed almost exclusively by the members of the younger society set, the largest affair having been given by Mrs. Walter A. Barnes of North El Molino avenue and Miss Mabel Seibert of North Madison avenue at Annandale Country Club in honor of Miss Ethel Hinds whose marriage with Robert Cassamajor will be solemnized this month. Wild mustard and golden poppies were used in profusion in decorating the assembly-room and dining-room, where refreshments were served, after games of bridge and auction bridge. Among the guests were Mmes. Edward J. Sheehan, Henry Doty, George A. Vedder, Edwin Rafsnyder Sorver, Henry Thayer, Anson Lisk, Roydon Vosburg, Samuel Martin, Fred C. Nash, Lawrence Jones, Henry Meyer; Misses Anita and Gladys McLachlin, Carolyn Tompkins, Gertrude and Vivian Caunt, Florence Doolittle, Anita Hertel, Jessie McCament, Beryl Smith, Louise Lockwood, Elizabeth Childs, Edith Edminson, Helen Rowland, Katherine Cook, Janet Smith, Marjorie Palmer, Dorothy Hinds, Elsie Bolton, Marcia Hawley, Marjorie Moon, Sara Slavin, Genevieve Stehman, Marie Lockwood, Louise Frost, Marguerite Hatch, Abbie McHenry, Mabel Ayers, Agnes Braden, Rita Orton, Geraldine Barry, Margaret Mears, Irene Grosse, Louise Hawkins, Bessie Mattison, Marion North and Dorothy Foster.

Mrs. Lutie Wright Benton was the hostess Wednesday at her home in Congress place at an auction bridge party, which was enjoyed by the younger society matrons and maids. Garden roses and sweet peas were used in decorations of the rooms where the card tables were placed. Among those present were Mmes. Samuel Martin, George Vedder, Edwin Bartlett Shidler, F. M. Seamons, Harry Pyle, William Burnham, Lawrence Macomber, Allan Stelle, Joseph Azarian, Benjamin Douglass, Clarence Austin, Boydon Vosburg, Anson Lisk, Benjamin O. Williams, Ernest Cronin, David Blankenhorn; Misses Irene Vedder, Ethel Randall, Louise Hawkins, Elizabeth Wotkyns, Geraldine Barry, Marjorie Derby, Gladys Gardner, Genevieve Stehman, Marjorie Sinclair, Pauline Lutz, Ethel Love, Julia Holmes, Bessie Mattison, Margaret Sherk, Hygiene Sawyer, Elizabeth Stehman, Louise Sherman, Jessie Sabin, Grace Clark, Louise Barber and Gladys McLachlin.

The Lambda Kappa Gamma sorority of the Alpha and Beta chapters of Los Angeles and Pasadena gave a delightful dance Saturday evening at Annandale Country Club when the decorations carried out the sorority colors in white, lavender nad gold. Pennants and floral wreaths and festoons added to the decorative effect. The patronesses were Mmes. H. G. Brownfield, G. W. Gilbert, W. B. Grad, W. W. Swarthout, H. B. Ford, Henry Mahan and Wilhelmina B. Nichols. There were two hundred present.

Mrs. A. R. Shephard, assisted by Mrs. F. E. Hose, acted as hostess Tuesday afternoon at the informal weekly tea day at Altadena Country Club, and among those who entertained at cards or otherwise there that afternoon were: Mmes. George W. Sturdivant, Henry Goss, Thomas B. Wright, F. C. Melton, David Blankenhorn, A. T. Welles, Shirley Vance Martin, Helen Belford, T. P. Phillips, Charles A. Goodyear, Alexander Duer, D. H. Girouard, C. N. Post, Charles Mears, Misses Katherine Wright and Jane Griffth. At the Valley Hunt Club tea Monday Mrs. David R. Van Slych presided over the tea cups, and several tables were arranged for bridge. Those who were present were: Mmes. C. C. M. Crichton and her house guest, Lady Rothes; Henry Goss, John Visscher Eliot, I. B. Winslow, Walter S. Wright, W. D. Lacey, J. Dawson Thomson, John W. Edminson, Joseph D. Condit, Walter H. Lutz, E. B. Schidler, William St. John Ranney, J. M. Johnson, Lawrence Macomber, D. M. Clayton, Katherine Devoe, Misses Hygiene Sawyer, Edith Edminson, Gladys Gardner, Lillian Kennedy, Genevieve Stehman, Margaret Reynolds, Elsa West, Elizabeth Speer, Cora Auten, Evelyn Lutz.

Mrs. A. J. Burnette entertained at her home on North Euclid avenue Tuesday afternoon in honor of her house guest, Mrs. Oliver W. Adams, of Holyoke, Mass. The guests entertained themselves with needlework and a dainty luncheon was served with 5 o'clock tea. Among the guests were: Mmes. Herbert Ives, Harry T. Prinz, A. G. Paine, G. H. Gilchrist, Daniel F. Fox, Thomas Barnes, Misses Edith and Elizabeth Daniel and Mary Tuttle.

The Sunset Card Club was entertained Wednesday evening by Mrs. Clarence Bye at her home on North Orange Grove avenue. Tables were provided for sixteen players, including Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sperrow, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mason, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Bye, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burns, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hogan, Miss Nell Graham and Ralph Van Hove.

Mrs. C. I. Ostrander of Ohio street was the recipient of a pleasant surprise party Monday evening, when forty of her friends came in unexpectedly to bid her farewell, as she, with her little daughter, left Wednesday for the East to spend the summer. Music entertained the company, as a quartette, composed of Messrs. Arnold Crowell, Kennedy, Anstell and Leonard Barlow, gave several numbers; Gail Mergenthaler sang a solo, and Miss Alma Sanders acted as accompanist at the piano. Those making up the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haver, Mmes. Corbin, Saxe, Ostrander, Misses Edith and Jane Ostrander, Pearl Cadwell, Gladys Johnson, Irene Clearwater, Margaret Fuller, Hildreth Jurgens, Ethel Raske, Abbie Gregory, Bertha Krumm, Eva Hill, Alice Pierson, Bessie Pierson, Hazel Zein, Laura Gilispie, Sylvia Dutton, Mary Ricardi, Alma Sanders, Grace Ray, Romania Ray, Messrs. Paul Caldwell, Ray Haver, Earl Crowell, Wade Sanders, Frank Ansell, Stanley Kenney, Fred Morgan, Henry Caldwell, Leonard Barlow, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane C. Gilliam entertained informally with a dinner at their home in the Maryland Apartments Tuesday evening, covers being laid for eight. American Beauty roses adorned the table, and the guests adorned the table, and the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. John Harris Booge, Mrs. I. B. Winslow and Miss Bates.

Miss Marion Toedt, who, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Toedt, left Wednesday morning for Albany, N. Y., where they expect to remain, was the recipient of several pleasant farewell functions last week. One was a motor party given by R. B. Howell on his ranch at Covina. The party included Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Sherk, Callie Smith, Marguerite Torrey and Toedt, and Messrs. Harvey Bissell, Leigh Guyer, Joe Goss, Livingston Wotkyns and Harlan Cristy, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Azarian.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Wallace threw open their grounds at Oak Knoll Tuesday evening for the entertainment of the Y.W.C.A., the guests of honor being Miss Mayme Scott, the retiring secretary, and her successor, Miss Jane Felts. Scenes from "As You Like It" were given by members of the Y.W.C.A. expression class, and Greek dances by Miss Lucile Halwick. A picnic supper followed, and there were about 200 present.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Hogan and children left Monday for their summer home, "The Ancorage," near Louisville, Ky.

Misses Dorothy Davis, Ellen Eason, Pauline Woltz, Arlena Beal, Dorothy Washburn and Helen Drew, juniors at Miss Orton's Classical School for Girls, entertained at the Rose Tree Tea House, Tuesday, at 5 o'clock tea in honor of the seniors of the school, Misses Ruth Merrill, Mary McCay, Emma Linder, Catherine Hoffman, Pauline Roehrig, Margaret Kling and Emily Clayton. Shasta daisies and yellow roses carried out the class colors in floral decoration, and the informal affair was greatly enjoyed by the young girls and the teachers, Miss Orton and Miss March, who were also present.

Mrs. Holloway I. Stuart entertained at her home on San Rafael Heights Tuesday afternoon with six tables of bridge. The house was charmingly decorated with flowers, and refreshments were served at the card tables after the games. Those present were: Mmes. Henry H. Sinclair, John W. Edminson, E. Bartlett Schidler, Fred R. Harris, Edward H. Strafford, Edward Taylor, Clinton Churchill Clarke, F. B. Wetherby, F. G. Cruickshank, Helena Childs, H. C. Barroll, Walter Raymond, Hampton L. Story, Edward Mackay, F. W. Kellogg, Eben Pratt Clapp, Torrey Everett, Phillip L. Auten, Arthur H. Woodward, Walter S. Wright and J. Foster Rhodes, and Misses Elsa West, Evelyn and Pauline Lutz.

Miss Alice Pratt Allcutt entertained a few friends Saturday afternoon at auction bridge at her home on North Euclid avenue. Miss Ena Nissen won the prize awarded, and others present were Mmes. Edward J. Sheehan, Lane C. Gilliam and I. B. Winslow, and Misses Ada Benney, Johnson and Bates.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McHenry and daughter, Miss Abbie McHenry, left Wednesday for their summer home in Dennison, Iowa.

Mrs. Gertrude Macey and Miss Elizabeth Greer left Friday for Mirimar, where they will spend a portion of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Murphy of Palmetto drive left Saturday for an extended eastern visit.

One of the pretty social functions of last week was the last meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Whist Club, which was held Tuesday at Hotel Maryland and was a luncheon followed by cards. Pink and white sweet peas were used in decoration and covers were laid for Mmes. D. J. Balfour, Edward Hobart, George Adams, John R. Davis, Arthur Leavitt, Alfred Miller, Harry Rose, Robert Hardy, Charles Rhone, Harry Gifford, Roy Munger, Walter Sebree, Howard Kelley, Fred Hudson, C. W. Bishop, George Bush, Robert Thomson, Norman Marsh, John D. Reavis, John W. Monohan, George Huffman, Ernest Sutton, W. D. Newerf, B. F. Huntington, Jessie Shoebottom, C. W. Bishop, Mary Stringfellow, Frederick Warner and Florence Blood, and Misses Bertha Bobyshell and Florence Gifford.

Santa Monica.

MR. and Mrs. D. G. Stephens are expected home in a few days, after a visit to Cuba and the islands. They had intended making a longer stay, but the political troubles there made a longer visit unpleasant. Mrs. Stephens will be asked to take the chairmanship of the committee that is now inquiring into the matter of preparing a commission form of government charter for this city.

Mrs. Orr Lang has returned to her home in Chicago, after a winter spent on the strand. She expects to return to make her home at this beach.

Mrs. Foster Elliott was the speaker before the Santa Monica Women's Club Monday afternoon. Her subject was 'Conservation," and the talk was illustrated by means of stereopticon slides secured from the Forestry department of the government. She said the annual consumption of timber was three times greater than the forests were producing it and the moral was clear that unless heroic efforts at both conservation and reforestation were not made the supply must soon become exhausted. Wood pulp for use in the manufacture of newspaper was stated as being one of the greatest consumers, the appetite of one daily paper of large circulation utilizing the entire product of 2080 acres of timber. Recent floods would not have been possible with their attendant loss of life and property if the hillsides had not been denuded of their forests, affording no holding ground for the flood waters. She entered at considerable length into explanation of the details of the world's greatest army of fire fighters—the forest rangers.

Miss Marie Melt of Pasadena was the guest of beach friends during the week.

Mmes. H. J. Slater, S. J. Egleston and G. H. Hutton have returned from Paso Robles where they attended the convention of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gorham has departed for New York City, where she will remain during the next six months.

Mrs. Fred Corkill has arrived from Inyo county and will spend the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Winnett have returned from San Francisco, where they had been visiting for a month.

Mrs. G. A. Smith has gone to Everett, Wash., where she is to pass the summer season.

L. M. Hutchinson has departed for Mexico, where he will inspect mining properties.

SOCIETY.

Sierra Madre.

THE clubhouse was the scene of a brilliant gathering of society people Thursday when in response to over two hundred invitations, beautifully dressed women enjoyed the elaborate reception given by Mrs. Orson Merry Cadwell, Mrs. Alpheus S. Moore, Mrs. Clyde Weithers Mitchell and Mrs. Albert John Rust. The entire lower floor was converted into a veritable mass of bloom. The walls were covered with pink and white roses and Shasta daisies, while hanging baskets were suspended at near intervals from the ceiling. Potted palms lined the entrance and were placed in every available space. All daylight was excluded, and the soft glow of the electric lights on the beautiful decorations enhanced by the various colored gowns worn by the guests was a most pleasing effect. Before a solid mass of fern covering the huge fireplace in the reception room Mmes. Cadwell, Moore, Mitchell Rust and Garey received the guests. The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. W. J. Lawless, Mrs. L. L. Krebs, Mrs. W. H. Ingrahom, Mrs. C. H. Baker, Mrs. E. Hallett Johnson, Mrs. C. W. Jones, Mrs. F. D. R. Moote and Mrs. Bourne. On the stage in the auditorium which was converted into a bower, was stationed an orchestra which rendered soft dreamy music during the afternoon. A special feature was the excellent reading "When Knighthood was in Flower" by Miss Edith Florence Hockin. A large number of Los Angeles and Pasadena society people were present at this affair.

Mrs. John Mason entertained with an afternoon of bridge whist Saturday in honor of her daughter Mrs. George Elizabeth Chesnut of Platte City, Mo., Elizabeth Chesnut of Platte City Mo., who is a guest at the Mason home. Dainty decorations were in the reception rooms and dining-room. There were six tables. After cards refreshments were served and the prizes awarded to the winners. The guests were; Mmes. W. J. Lawless, G. Letteau, C. C. Montgomery, L. L. Krebs, G. Hallett Johnson, W. H. Ingraham, C. H. Baker, Goodfellow, C. W. Jones, Fairbanks, L. C. Torrance, E. H. Lamphear, A. J. Rust; Misses Woodward, all of Sierra Madre. Of Los Angeles; Mmes. L. O. Swope, Everyhardy, Wilson, Moses and the Misses Swope and Morrow. Also Mrs. Spratley, Mrs. Phelps and Miss Phelps of Santa Monica.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Camp were host and hostess at a charmingly appointed dinner party given at their home Saturday night. The dining-room was artistically decorated in pink roses. Covers were laid for eleven. The guests were Captain and Mrs. J. A. Osgood, Prof. and Mrs. John Hart, Mrs. Elizabeth Borglun, Miss Annis B. Coffey, Danet, Dorothy Camp, Mr. Scott.

At a meeting of the Woman's Club Monday, the election of officers for the coming year took place. As their was but one nomination for each office so the nomination was practically equivalant to election. The installation of the officers will take place at the next regular meeting. The result of the election was as follows; President, Mrs. W. H. Ingraham, first vice-president, Mrs. F. J. Hart, second vice-president, Mrs. Winters; corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Dennison; recording secretary, Mrs. Rowland D. Laws; treasurer, Dr. Abbie Mace Betts; auditor, Mrs. J. W. Keys; directors; Mrs. H. I. Hawxhurst, G. Hallett Johnson, Mrs. James R. Allen and Mrs. Arthur Johnson. A large and appreciative audience enjoyed the splendid talk given by Mrs. Katharine Pierce Wheat on The Woman who Toils. She drew a vivid picture of the pitiful circumstances of the woman who is compelled to toil for her daily bread in illy ventilated mills and factories, of the long hours and hard labor, and the scant provision for comfort. Mrs. Wheat also spoke of the shop girls who are obliged to be on their feet all day, and in most cases no chairs or stools are provided that they may have a moment's rest. She also told of the women who make our shoes, the nature of the work being such that it distorts the muscles of the hand so that it loses all resemblance to a human hand. Mrs. Wheat thinks that women's clubs and organizations should take up this line of philanthropy and help their less fortunate sisters as this is surely women's work. Mrs. W. J. Lawless, Mrs. J. A. Osgood, Mrs. Edgar W. Camp and Mrs. Cabot Yerxa will attend the San Francisco Biennial as delegates from the Sierra Madre Woman's Club. Probably several more club members will attend the convention as guests.

Miss Katharine Mason entertained friends with a jolly picnic supper in the Little Santa Anita Canyon Wednesday night. The party made the trip in automobiles. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all. The guests were; From Sierra Madre, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lawless, Mr. and Mrs. G. Hallett Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. George Letteau, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Krebs, Mrs. John Mason, Misses. Katharine Torrance, Dorothy Camp. Messrs. Raymond Andrews, Fred Hinton, Lawrence Nourse, Victor Hill, Louis Torrance, Charles Schwartz, Charles Camp, Herbert Ingraham, Marshall Wright. Los Angeles guests were; Mrs. L. O. Swope, Misses Margaret Sarah and Stella Swope, Miss Dona Moses, John Moses and Mr. McDaniels. Also Miss Elizabeth Chesnut of Platte City, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Baker and family have left for the East. Mr. Baker will make one of his usual business trips, Mrs. Baker and the children spending the summer at a Massachusetts beach. Miss Charline Baker leaves shortly for a tour of Europe with a party of friends.

Inglewood.

RICHARD J. MOHR, Post 198 G.A.R., its auxiliary W.R.C., No. 119, and a large number of school children very fittingly and impressively observed Memorial Day in Inglewood. A splendid Memorial Day address was delivered by Attorney Freeman H. Bloodgood, Inglewood's brilliant orator and friend of the "soldier boys," after which the company repaired to Inglewood Park Cemetery where salutes were fired over the graves, patriotic songs rendered and the graves of the soldier dead decorated with beautiful tributes.

About forty of the Christian Endeavors of the Presbyterian Church planned and executed a very pleasant surprise Tuesday evening on John and Glenn White at their pretty home on Queen street. These popular young men, active members of the society, are soon to leave for their former home in Oregon. A most delightful evening was spent by the young people, with games and music. Delicious cake and ice cream were served by the young ladies of the party.

The eighth grade pupils of the Inglewood grammar school gave their class play, "Nathan Hale," Friday evening in the beautiful grammar school auditorium to a very large and enthusiastic audience. The scenery for this play attracted more than passing notice as it was the work of these clever eighth grade pupils, they having made the frames, stretched the canvas and painted, very artistically the four large scenes required, and which, because of their merit, will be retained as permanent stage properties of the school.

The Inglewood Union High School class of 1912, thirteen in number, will present their class play, "The Sophomore," next Tuesday evening in the Masonic auditorium. This same class the largest in the history of the school, will be graduated from the school on the evening of June 7, at the High School auditorium.

The members of the Inglewood Woman's Club enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. A. F. Monroe on Grevillea avenue.

Miss Grace Eshelman, who has been home for the past two weeks visiting her father, Dr. B. F. Eshelman, returned, Wednesday, to her school work in Pomona College.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Hill and son Roy, left Inglewood Thursday for their old home in Washington, Pa., where they expect to spend several weeks visiting relatives and friends.

W. A. Hackett and family, who have been residents of Inglewood for the past year, left Tuesday for their new home in Alhambra.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Mosher were the over-Sunday guests at a house party given by Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Barlow at their summer home at Hermosa Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson attended the "Mission Play," at San Gabriel Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Brown and daughter, Miss Madeleine, of South Pasadena, were the guests of Inglewood friends last Sunday.

Tropico.

MRS. J. E. BAHRENBURG has had as guests, from St. Louis, Mesdames E. Smith, A. Blake, L. Housman and L. Bahrenburg and one of the features this week was a dinner given in honor of these guests. Her spacious parlors and dining-room were resplendent with garnitures of flowers, of which her gardens show choice collections. The decorative scheme for the reception-room was pink roses and smilax; the parlor, white flowers and greenery, while the dining-room shone brilliantly in red roses and ferns. Covers were laid for eight. Those who were complimented were: Mesdames A. Buisseret, Lizzie Bahrenburg, E. Smith, L. Housman, A. Blake, N. C. Bahrenburg and N. E. Bahrenburg; Miss Agnes Buisseret; Messrs. N. C. Bahrenburg and J. E. Bahrenburg.

Miss Marjorie Imler will go to Imperial Valley Saturday to pass her vacation days with relatives and friends.

Rev. M. M. Eshelman, several months ago, thought he would like to go to a place that he would like better than Tropico; so he exchanged his home here with a Mr. Boon, for a place in Ashland, Or. Each went to his respective new home, feeling happy over the change; but now they have re-exchanged, and both are back in their old homes, contented.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gregory will leave next Saturday for a stay of a month on the desert.

Mrs. Chadwick, and dauhter, Florence, mother and sister of Mrs. Robert Danner, are here from San Pedro, visiting at the Danner home.

Mrs. F. H. Davis, who has been ill for several weeks, is contemplating a visit to Balboa Beach, as soon as she is able to travel. She will take her children, and pass the summer there.

Miss Stella Miller has gone to Pomona to visit for a month with relatives and friends. The evening previous to her departure, her young friends surprised her by gathering at her home, and making merry until the midnight hour.

N. P. Banks, W.R.C. of Tropico, is making preparations to celebrate "Flag Day," June 14, in a manner by which, not only the young, but the old, as well, will receive a lesson in patriotism and loyalty. It has long been their desire to have Miss Frances Richardson of Los Angeles, come out and give her famous "Flag Lecture," and, as she promised to do so when she returned from the North the ladies hope to secure her for that date.

Elsinore.

ON ACCOUNT of the many social events and entertainments scheduled for the next two weeks, it has been decided to consolidate the evening meeting and the Strawberry Festival, which the Parent-Teacher Association was planning to give on separate dates, and to hold the meeting on the evening of Wednesday, June 5, in the Bank Hall.

Mrs. W. F. Kirkpatrick and sons of Minifee were in Elsinore Sunday, guests of Robert H. Kirkpatrick and family.

Mrs. Nathaniel Ross and Mrs. James King and daughter Dorris of Los Angeles returned home Monday after a few days' visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ray.

Elizabeth Cloud Miller of Los Angeles will be here Friday night, the 31st inst., under the auspices of the Elsinore Woman's Club, and will give a Shakespearean recital.

Miss Mae Smith entertained the Aloha Club Saturday afternoon at her home on Graham avenue, the following members being present: Mmes. Evan L. Miller, C. S. Wright and Misses Ruth Frothingham, Jessie Green, Wavia and Pearl Macomber.

W. Smith of Lindsay and Macy Smith of Whittier arrived Saturday for a week-end visit with their sister, Mrs. Carlisle Gibson.

W. Smith of Lindsay and Macy Smith of Whittier, brothers of Mrs. Carlisle Gibson, who have been her guests for a few days, went to Riverside Monday, where their sister, Mrs. Henry Gamble, resides.

Mrs. H. E. Hannah returned from Whittier Monday. She was accompanied home by her daughter, Mrs. Wayne Loomis, who will remain for an extended visit.

Mrs. Frank Cambern of Los Angeles came in on the Sunday train to visit with her nephew, M. L. Cambern. She was accompanied by Miss Buckley, a Riverside High School teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Carver Peck and Mrs. Peck's mother, Mrs. Susan Barkhurst leave Saturday for Los Angeles, where they will remain during the summer.

Mrs. Anna Burnham, who has been visiting friends in San Jacinto for several weeks, returned home Sunday noon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dickey of Hollywood are guests at the Parkhurst home on Grand avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Root and family returned Monday from a trip to Laguna.

Beverly Hills.

THE prettiest affair ever given at the beautiful new Beverly Hills Hotel was the musicale Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Benjamin Lombard Harding and her daughter, Mrs. James E. Woolwine, received about 250 guests. Assisting the hostesses during the afternoon were Mmes. Robert Pierce Sherman, W. S. Hook, Jr., Thomas Lee Woolwine, W. G. Cochran, Woods Rayburn Woolwine, Herman Janss, Henry Owen Eversole, Hamilton B. Rollins, Z. D. Mathuss, S. S. Salisbury, Raymond Stephens, F. H. Case, Thomas C. Ridgway, Leo Chandler, Charles Hopper, Albert

Nothing Succeeds Like Success

SWELLDOM'S TWELFTH

Semi-Annual Clearance

HALF-PRICE SALE

1/2 Off Current Retail Prices

OUR Twelfth Semi-Annual Half-Price Clearance Sale which started last Monday was not only a success in the way the ladies of Los Angeles responded, but

The Most Unqualified Success

---from our point of view---of the number of garments disposed of

WHEN you consider that a $25.00 regular midseason selling price means in the neighborhood of $10.00 less than the selling values elsewhere—you may conceive the saving opportunity offered you now. For $11.25, as a price picked at random, you secure a suit for which a tailor would charge you $85.00 to give you the same quality of material, style and fit.—We could not afford to do this in season and stay in business—but at this time of the year we are glad to take a loss in money—while every woman buying at this ½-price sale becomes a walking advertisement and enthusiastic booster for the Swelldom.

1/2 Off Current Retail Prices

IF you are one of the hundreds of women who could not be waited on last week—owing to the unprecedented rush—here is your opportunity—if you come early—to secure a beautiful tailored suit, Silk or Wool Dress—or Wool Coat at exactly one-half of its regular retail price.

IN this Sale we offer you our entire stock of Spring Goods for less than they cost us for the truthful as well as good reason—that WE MUST dispose of our Spring Goods at any price—to make room for new Lingerie and Linen Garments arriving daily.

BEHREND'S GREATEST SPRING CLEARANCE

Very Choice Indeed

Suits, Dresses and Coats in Sacrifice Sale

Every year there comes to every merchant the time when his stock must be unloaded, when his racks and shelves must be cleand in radiness for incoming goods, regardless of the mere cash loss involved. That time has come to us now and we offer you, Monday, values in ready-to-wear apparel that, to the best of our knowledge, have never been approached in Los Angeles. This is a sale of determination. We are BOUND to close out our stock. And these Monday prices demand your attention and your consideration. One last word, be here early; doors open at 9:00 o'clock.

Suits at $15

These are the very cream of our entire suit stock. Their values run up as high as $40, and they are worth every cent of that price. It is only by seeing them priced for $15 that you can realize the magnitude of the clearance sale that we are now effecting.

Sale Petticoats at $1.50

All colors in fine silk petticoats worth $3.50, and the entire stock will be closed out, beginning Monday, at $1.50. At this price you can afford to buy petticoats now for next season's wear.

Others at $2.95

$7.50 Skirts $2.95

Skirts in all-wool serges and fancy worsteds, every color that is appropriate for street wear. And remember they are worth $7.50.

$12 Skirts $5

These in voiles, in the best French serges, and in the newest and most durable mixtures. While they last they will be sacrificed at $5.

Crutcher, Edwin S. Rowley, Charles O. Nourse and Titian Coffey; also the Misses Mary Burnham, Harriett and Marjorie Severance, Edith Maurice and Helen Newlin. Placed about the reception-room, where Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Woolwine received their guests, were immense baskets of Scotch bloom grouped with rare shrubs. Tables, daintily decorated with pale-pink sweet peas and fern, were placed on the side veranda, where a lovely collation was served.

Miss Mary Manning entertained fourteen guests with a charming birthday luncheon party at the Beverly Hills Hotel, Wednesday afternoon. The luncheon was served in the private dining-room. A handsome group of delicate pink sweet peas graced the center of the table. Artistic hand-painted cards marked the places for the honored guest, Miss Marian Clark, Mrs. Walter Raymond, Mrs. V. C. Turner, Mrs. Gregory, Mrs. Henry Fuller, Mrs. J. B. Elliott, Mrs. W. E. Grattan, Mrs. DeWitt Lacey, Miss Noble, Miss Cleveland, Miss Cora Auten, Miss Elsa West, all of Pasadena, and Miss Ruth Anderson. The guests enjoyed bridge whist during the afternoon, for which prizes were awarded Miss Cleveland, Mrs. Turner and Miss Auten.

Mrs. R. U. Foster of Hollywood gave a dinner party at the hotel Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Renten Reynolds of Long Beach. Mrs. N. L. Jones and Mrs. H. W. Adams were among the other guests.

Miss Mabel Densmore has left for a short visit to San Francisco and then she will go to her home in New York City, where she will be married to J. H. Hill, a prominent business man of San Francisco. They expect to locate somewhere in or near Los Angeles.

A special parlor car left the Beverly Hills Hotel at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, carrying over fifty guests to San Gabriel, where they enjoyed the Mission Play.

Recent guests to arrive at the hotel are Col. and Mrs. B. F. Holmes of Pasadena and Salt Lake, Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Niles and daughter, Katharine, of Calumet, Mich.; Mrs. H. D. Rockefeller of Chicago, H. Seeban, a big sheep and cattle merchant of Helena, Mont.; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bishop and son, John Bishop, Jr., and daughter, Elizabeth, of St. Louis, who intend making their home in California; Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Drake and daughter of Chicago, and Mrs. J. G. South Pasadena.

AN ELABORATE affair was the luncheon given at Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, Tuesday, complimentary to the Tuesday Afternoon Luncheon and Whist Club. Hostesses were Mrs. George Bush, Mrs. Howard Kelley, Mrs. Robert Thompson and Mrs. Florence Porter Blood. Three large Japanese baskets filled with pink and white sweet peas, the handles tied with pink tulle, graced the center of the table, and connecting each were festoons of asparagus ferns. The place and score cards combined were Harrison Fisher heads. Following luncheon tables were arranged in the lobby for whist and prizes were captured by Miss Bertha Bosbyshell, Mrs. E. F. Hobert, Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Miss Florence Gifford, Mrs. Roy Munger, Mrs. Robert Hardy, Mrs. Mary Stringfellow and Mrs. Florence Porter Blood, the guest prize by Mrs. Fred Hudson, and the high score prizes by Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Mrs. E. F. Hobert, Mrs. Norman Marsh and Mrs. Robert Thompson. Special guests present were Mrs. Samuel Holloway of Cedartown, Ga. Mrs. Mary Huffman of Neleigh, Neb., Mrs. Thomas A. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garrison, No. 1727 Bushnell avenue, have gone to Pomona for a month, where they are the house guests of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Story.

A jolly programme was laid out by the appointed committee, George C. Bush, Norman F. Marsh and B. F. Huntington, for the members of the Surprise Club at their regular meeting last evening. After assembling at La Senda station on Huntington drive, they were taken in automobiles to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gillette on Fair Oaks avenue, where a burlesque intercollegiate track meet was held on the Gillette field, Harvard, Princeton and Yale being represented, with Yale carrying off the honors, and presented with a "solid lovely cup." Following this was a stereopticon exhibition, consisting largely of cartoons of the members, drawn by Mr. Marsh, and pictures of each as children. From here they were taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bush on El Centro street, where an electric sign, "Poodle Dog Inn," greeted the guests. The large living-room had been transformed into a palm room cafe, all rugs taken out, pictures down, etc. Here the committee acted as waiters and served their guests in professional style, made all the more realistic by the ease and facility with which they pocketed the "tips" offered. Included were Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Reavis, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gillette, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Whitmore, Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Wilcoxon, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Gortner, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Axtman and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Harrison of Los Angeles. A feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Whitmore, who leave shortly for a trip abroad, of a large bouquet of American Beauty roses, to which was attached a shower of steamer letters. A hammered copper plate, the handwork of Mr. Bush, filled with bon bons which the committee made, was presented to each lady.

Mrs. David A. Vail, No. 1830 Spruce street, has issued invitations for a dancing party to be given at her home, Friday evening, June 7, complimenting her nieces, the Misses Mae and Dorothy Foster. Miss Ashby of Indianapolis and Miss Mary Karnehan of Los Angeles will also be special guests.

American Beauty roses in a Japanese basket, also strewn in charming profusion over the handsome cloth on the long table, gave a most festive air to the luncheon at Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, Tuesday, when Mrs. Mary Stringfellow, Mrs. Richard Mahon, Mrs. Robert Gortner and Mrs. John W. Monahan entertained complimentary to the Monday Afternoon Luncheon and Bridge Club. Place cards, the hand work of Mrs. Monahan, were ladies in fancy costumes. After luncheon tables were arranged in the sun parlor for bridge and prizes were awarded to Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Mrs. William Council, Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mrs. Mary Stringfellow, Mrs. Robert Gortner, Mrs. J. W. Monahan, Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Mrs. Charles Hudson, Mrs. Carl McStay, and the guest prize to Mrs. W. R. Wheaton. Special guests present were Mrs. Robert Hardy, Mrs. William Harrison, Mrs. Clarence Berry, Mrs. A. T. Jergins of Los Angeles, Mrs. Thomas A. Lewis of New York City, Mrs. Samuel Holloway of Cedartown, Ga., Mrs. W. R. Wheaton of Fresno, Mrs. Norman Marsh, Mrs. George Patterson, Mrs. Walter Sebree, Mrs. David Vail, Mrs. F. C. DeLano and Mrs. George Bush, and members Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Mrs. John D. Reavis, Mrs. William Council, Mrs. Carl McStay, Miss Charlotte Butterfield, Miss Ellen Butterfield, Mrs. Frank Stephens, Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mrs. Ernest Sutton, Mrs. Charles Hudson and Mrs. Fred Hudson of Los Angeles.

Redlands.

THE practical philanthropy class held its last meeting of the year Tuesday morning at the Y.M.C.A. The hour was devoted mostly to general discussion of matters that have come before the class and a general gathering up of the thread of the work. Mention was made of the movement instituted by the men's class of the Congregational Church in regard to the use of the schoolhouses as social neighborhood centers. The matter was deferred until next year, as the people will probably prefer using the parks during the warm weather. The suggested pavilion for one of the parks was discussed. Coeducation and its relation to the moral wellbeing of school children was brought before the meeting. Animated talk about the poolrooms kept the members much interested and brought out many suggestions as to improvements in the question of whether or not minors would be allowed in poolrooms, at which hour they should close, whether it would be better to have them open and unscreened as saloons are, and whether Sunday closing should be enforced. All these brought out the ideas of the class workers.

Monday was home day for the members of the Contemporary Club, as they wished to meet once more before parting for their summer vacations. They gave a Salmagundi party, which means a mixture. A short club session was held in the early part of the afternoon, at which a report of the meeting of the State federation at Paso Robles last week was read by Miss Mary Hamilton. Following the business session the women repaired to the tearoom, where they indulged in all sorts of contests. Mrs. J. M. Wheat won the prize for gaining the largest number of points. A fine programme was given under the direction of Mrs. William Taltavall, Miss Scott and Mrs. J. W. Bishop.

Miss Mabel Howland was virtually kidnapped by a party of friends, who gave her a surprise party before her departure for the East next week. She was persuaded to go to Sylvan Park with Miss Maude Heisey, where the young women "nabbed" the two and took them to another part of the park, where a dainty feast had been prepared. Those in the party were the Misses Mary Ferguson, Lena Clinton, Clio Brant, Grace Beck, Vera Watts, Clara Kime, Edith Judd, Lena Williamson, Mabel Howland, Elsie Woehr, Edna Freel, Opal Kime, Clara Henry, Maude Heisey, Messrs. Charles Ary, Harry Miller, Grover Clem, Ben Ary, Paul Smith, Bert Davis, Harrison Harvey, Tommy Taylor, Bob Master and John Nix.

MISS BERTHA VOEGTL of Indianapolis, Ind., who has been the guest of Mrs. F. J. Mueller for some time, left for Los Angeles for a visit with her sister, Miss Nellie Voegtl, before returning to her eastern home.

The Entre Nous Card Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Robert Strain Monday afternoon. The game of five hundred was played, Mrs. Holloway winning the prize.

A very pleasant whist party was held at the Corona Country Clubhouse Wednesday evening. About forty guests attended. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. George Blair, and the gentlemen's, by Clarence White.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. R. S. Billings gave a very pretty afternoon tea in honor of her guests, Mrs. Charles Rogers of Santa Monica, and Mrs. W. A. Nunn of Corona.

The Catholic ladies held a pleasant social at the home of D. W. Ewing on Monday evening. R. S. Billings won the men's prize and the ladies' prize fell to Miss Walsh.

Riverside.

UNUSUAL activity in social circles has characterized the week just ended. Class festivities have marked the approach of graduation season; various clubs have participated in the pre-vacation gatherings; brides-to-be have been feted; brides have celebrated their nuptials, and scores of picnics have clustered about the Memorial holiday.

Among the affairs attracting widest interest was the brilliant fete given on Friday by the members of Twig Nine of the ever fruitful Charity Tree. The fete was held at Windsor ranch, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. James Mills, and engrossed the attention of the social world both afternoon and evening. In the afternoon the gathering was of a social nature, the financial aspect appearing only in the dainty confections and cooling drinks which were dispensed from attractive booths arranged about the spacious lawns. In the evening a unique variety of attractions invited the eye and tempted the purse. The tennis court had been converted into a midway, where a Spanish dancing girl, a Gypsy fortune teller, an art gallery and a minstrel show vied in their efforts to entice the public. On the broad veranda a stage had been constructed for the convenience of musical and histrionic artists, who presented an excellent programme, and the Indian band from Sherman Institute played at intervals during the evening. Members of the twig having the successful affair in charge are: Chairman, Mrs. James Mills; Mrs. L. C. White, Mrs. J. H. Holland, Mrs. A. E. Davis, Mrs. W. M. Gillick, Mrs. James Shaw, Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Mrs. R. C. Mills, Mrs. C. E. Rumsey, Mrs. C. H. Lewis, Miss Elizabeth Handy, Miss Cunningham, Miss Dorothy Cunningham and Miss Frances Seaton.

Members of the Wednesday Morning Club gathered for their eleventh annual breakfast Wednesday noon in the refectory of the Glenwood Mission Inn. Fifteen tables, decorated in sweet peas and Queen Ann's lace, were occupied by the guests, who numbered eighty. Mrs. Miguel Estudillo, president of the club, gracefully welcomed the members and the special guests of honor, Mrs. Ella L. Westland, president of the Southern California District Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Russell J. Waters, retiring State president of the federation. Mrs. L. F. Darling cleverly performed the duties of toastmistress, and those responding to toasts were: Mrs. Colin MacDonald, Mrs. P. J. Bollinger, Mrs. Horace Porter, Mrs. A. D. Bell, Mrs. John Jahn and Mrs. F. E. de Nyse. A delightful feature of the affair was the presentation of a handsome silver loving cup to the recently-retired president, Mrs. F. E. Densmore. Following the breakfast the ladies enjoyed a social hour in the music-room with music and games.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew W. Irvine entertained a company of seventy at their home, Stel-Lew-Vine, Wednesday evening. The guests were members of the teacher training classes of the Calvary Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Irvine is president. The spacious home was attractively decorated for the event with flowers suggesting the different class colors. The reception hall and parlor were in yellow and white, the library and living-room in pink and white and the dining-room in green and white. The entertainers for the evening were the sixteen young ladies of the class of 1913 and the programme they presented was pleasing and instructing. There was a Bible contest in which scriptural quotations were guessed and exercises between rival classes of the department besides a musical programme in which Miss Vera Ramsey, Miss Frances Fraser, Messrs. Harold and J. Douglass Wilson, Miss Alice Wilson and Miss Florence Patterson participated. A happy little surprise of the evening was the presentation of a handsome cut glass dish to Miss Mabel Ross, a bride-elect member of the class. Refreshments were served by the class of 1913. Others who assisted the hostess were Mrs. F. E. Ross, Mrs. L. W. Zinn, Mrs. J. R. King, teachers of the department, and Mrs. M. M. Harlan, a member of the class of 1911.

Miss Mabel Ross, who will become the bride of J. Douglass Wilson on June 18, was the recipient of a linen shower on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Randolph Mitchell on Aurora Drive. In deference to the colors chosen by Miss Ross for her wedding, the floral decorations were in pink and white. The shower of daintily embroidered linen was concealed in a white parasol suspended in the hall until the arrival of the bride-to-be when it was overturned and the contents were literally showered upon the head of the complimented guest. The afternoon was passed in social chatter over fancy work and at its close a dainty collation was served in the dining-room. The friends who gathered about the prettily-spread table were Miss Mabel Ross, Misses Nellie Ross, Florence Patterson, Lorna Devans, Aileen Kirkpatrick, Elsie Wallace, Iris Ramsbottom, Alice Wilson, Lilian May Wilkinson and Randolph Mitchell.

A wedding which took place at the Episcopal parsonage on the afternoon of Memorial Day united in marriage Hiram J. Wambold, editor of the Laguna Valley News at Elsinore, and Miss Agnes Josephine Whyte of Buffalo, N. Y. The bride arrived from the East only an hour before the wedding, which was conducted by Rev. Milton C. Dotton. The only witnesses to the ceremony were the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wambold, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Crane and Mr. Delbert Crane of Elsinore. Mr. and Mrs. Wambold left for an outing at Catalina and Coast points during the afternoon. On their return they will live in Elsinore.

MISS MARY HANNA, whose marriage to George W. Campbell of Riverside will be solemnized in June, was given a kitchen shower Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Cyril Y'Ren on North Eighth street. The shower was given by the Philatheas of Jewell Memorial Church, of which Miss Hanna is a member. Miss Hanna is popular in church, society and lodge circles, and many are the social functions which are being prepared in her honor.

One of the prettiest affairs of the season was the whist party given at the home of Mrs. M. A. Hebberd of East F street Wednesday afternoon, the hostesses being Mmes. Hebberd, A. E. Copeland and C. W. Curtis. The guests of the afternoon numbered about one hundred. Mrs. E. W. Smart of Los Angeles assisted in receiving. Misses Bertha Hartley, Thelma Riley and Helen Garner assisted the hostess in serving. The decorations were most artistic, Shirley poppies and red carnations being used in the library and hall, roses, sweet peas, asparagus fern and ivy in the parlors, while lavender prevailed in the dining-room, where the mountain lupin was found. The first prize, a colonial brass candlestick, was awarded to Mrs. Leon Horonitz of San Bernardino, Mrs. W. W. Wilcox winning the consolation, a mounted photograph of the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lewis of Eldorado Springs, Mo., and L. H. Schmidt of Flora Vista, N. M., were guests of honor Tuesday evening at a whist party given by Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mead of North Ninth street. The ladies' prize, a cut-glass spoon tray, was won by Mrs. Walter McNair; the gentlemen's prize, a fountain pen, by S. S. Lightfoot, while the consolations were awarded Mrs. Walter Shepard and Prof. G. M. Green.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hines entertained a few relatives at dinner Sunday at their home on East Colton avenue. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Yarwood and sons, Claude and Paul, of San Bernardino; Erwin Yarwood of Ocean Park, Mrs. Alice Yarwood, Everet Hines, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hines.

Miss Adaline Button was tendered a pleasant surprise party in honor of her birthday anniversary Saturday evening, the affair being given by Miss Ila Rollins at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Johnson of East G street. The guests included Misses Adaline Button, Fern and Hilda Wood, Mabel Jones and Ila Rollins, Messrs. Fenton McCollough, Everet Hines, Lester Dearing, Jesse Phelps and Harry Stone.

Mr. and Mrs. James Doty entertained the members of the Baptist Young People's Union, Monday evening, at their home, on the corner of Eighth and C streets. The evening was spent with games and music.

Duarte.

THE MUSICALE given Friday evening was one of the most enjoyable events of the week and was participated in by a group of talented people who delighted the large audience which assembled in the auditorium. The platform was prettily decorated with masses of greenery and cut flowers and the galaxy of entertainers numbered Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Downe, Miss Van Osdel, Miss Ethel Baird and Miss Isis Carter, who contributed music numbers. Prof. Chickering rendered several excellent readings and a fine chorus of children's voices was directed by Mrs. Hughes Connell in the rendition of pleasing numbers. After the musicale, society folks lingered to enjoy the reception, during which frozen dainties and assorted cakes were served in tempting fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter K. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Sarwine motored to Santa Ana for the week end where they spent an enjoyable outing with friends, returning to Duarte the first of the week.

Miss Ethel Baird entertained at "Mount Olivet" Thursday with a Five Hundred party in honor of a number of young ladies. The rooms were ornamented with a profusion of the spring's lovely offerings of roses and the prettily attired maids and matrons spent the afternoon at cards. Prizes were awarded to Miss Eloise Armstrong and Miss Anna Crews. Afternoon tea was served on the broad porches and on the terraces that surround the Baird home.

Saturday evening the Misses Alice and Nellie Wilson entertained the members of the Royal Daughters Society at the country home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell H. Wilson, on Mountain View avenue. An interesting musical and literary programme was followed by supper and a jolly social hour.

Thursday a large number of Duarteans joined in making a pilgrimage to Fish Canyon, where a luncheon al fresco was enjoyed at 1 o'clock, followed by a happy afternoon spent in climbing the canyon and in social converse. About thirty participated in the May festivity.

Among the Duarte folk who attended the ball given in Los Angeles Monday evening by the Daughters of the Empire in celebration of Queen Victoria's birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carter, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Downe, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Storrs, Mrs. J. A. Maddock, Miss Enid Handyside, Miss Marjorie Maddock and Gerald Young.

The twenty-five members of the Duarte Reading Circle were tendered a delightful May reception Tuesday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 by Mrs. Samuel Price at her pretty home. Fragrant flowers and greenery were employed to decorate the rooms and after the guests were all welcomed, Mmes. Charles A. Shrode and C. H. Sarwine contributed readings for the entertainment of the guests.

Brawley.

DELIGHTFUL indeed was the meeting of the W.C.T.U. of Brawley which was held Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the First Presbyterian Church of this city. Following an interesting programme, Mrs. Mae Plush and Mrs. Anna Best were elected delegates to the State convention of the union, which will be held in San Diego, next week. Mrs. Mabel Bostwick and Mrs. Minnie Sebille were selected as alternates. Later the entire membership and guests, under the supervision of Mrs. Blakeney, flower superintendent, arranged a number of beautiful bouquets which were taken to the various sick and "shut in" members of the union, as well as to others in Brawley, who are indisposed.

Mrs. J. W. Sexsmith entertained with a party at her home Friday afternoon, when the birth anniversaries of two of her sons were celebrated. The afternoon was most delightfully spent in playing games and enjoying a musical programme. The guests included Misses Lenora Lewellen, Abba McDaniel, Rosa Bodine, Helen Lewellen, Laurette McDaniel, Bessie Bodine, Octa Looney, Florence Phillips, Hilda Bennett, Merle Stilgebouer, Ruth Bodine, Elsie Looney, Lela Smith, Grace Sexsmith, Lorny Bodine, Ruth Smith and Ruth Sexsmith; Messrs. Ray Lewellen, Charlie Phillips, Charlie Moore, Raymond Phillips, Bruce Sebille, Dean Stilgebouer, Louis Smith, Lloyd Bass and Carl Brashear.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Colvert entertained with a dinner party, dainty and replete, Sunday evening when with the host and hostess were seated Mrs. J. M. Bridenstine, the Misses Bridenstine, P. M. Potts of Holtville, and G. W. Buckmaster of Brawley.

Mrs. Myrtle Herd Willoughby of King City is the house guest of her father, S. C. Herd, at his ranch home in Water District No. 5.

Miss Charlotte Phelps, who has been passing the winter months in Brawley, left for her home in San Jose, the latter part of the week, where she will spend the summer.

Miss Gertrude Wallace terminated a delightful visit in Brawley, when she left for Ontario, where she will spend the summer months.

Miss Alta Knight left for Los Angeles Tuesday morning, where she will pass her summer vacation.

Among the visitors who have been visiting Brawley the past was C. R. Rockwood, whom Harold Bell Wright so cleverly portrays as the "Seer" in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which book has made Wright not only famous, but has depicted the reclamation of this great desert so graphically and gives to Mr. Rockwood the honor that is justly due him, as C. R. Rockwood is the man responsible for the Imperial Valley irrigation, and the reclamation of the desert one of the dreams that Rockwood had as early as the '70's.

REV. ORVILLE J. NAVE of Los Angeles, retired chaplain of the United States army, entertained a large audience at the Methodist Episcopal Church Thursday evening when he delivered his lecture on "The Morale and the World's Standing of the United States Army." Rev. Nave is a veteran of the Civil War, Indian and Philippine wars and a noted speaker.

Friends and members of the Rialto Whist Club were the recipients of delightful week-end hospitality extended by Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Lingle, who are enjoying an outing at their ranch home in Lytle Creek Canyon. Beautiful wild flowers adorned the rooms. After a delicious supper the guests enjoyed whist. Prizes were won by Mesdames Nealy, Robertson and A. B. Lackey. Sunday an ideal day was spent, a pleasing feature being the chicken dinner served at the long table under the beautiful pepper trees. Places were laid for the thirty guests.

A success of the past week was the May Day programme given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavorers of the Congregational church Friday evening. After selections of music and readings the crowning of the pretty May queen, Thelma Robertson, who came with her pretty little attendants and train, who paid her homage, came the tableaux which closed the programme.

Mrs. Amy Tolle was the hostess at a pretty family reunion and dinner Sunday. Covers were laid for sixteen. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harding and Mrs. Vederstorm of Highland.

Miss Ruth Kingman was the complimented guest at a delightful party Monday evening at the home of Miss Nina Sedgwick, who had invited friends as a surprise to the guest of honor to assist in the celebration of her birthday anniversary. After music and contests refreshments were served at a prettily decorated table around which were seated Misses Helen Hoover, Belle Barnard, Amanda Tinkler, hostess, and guest of honor, Messrs. Clinton and Albert Kingman, Lionel Harris, Marion Hoover and Ralph Sedgwick.

Mrs. N. L. May, president of the Rialto Woman's Club, entertained the members of the Executive Committee and chairmen of the standing committees Wednesday afternoon at her home. Vacancies on the committees were filled and plans made for the coming year's work.

SENORA FEDERICO A. PEZET.

Wife of the Minister from Peru Who Has Come to Washington—Senora Pezet is Mistress of the Language and Takes Her Place at Once Among the Important Latin-American Hostesses.

BY MARGARET B. DOWNING.

Senora Pezet.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Minister from Peru and his charming wife and son, have received a cordial welcome on their second coming. Mr. Pezet was first secretary of the Peruvian legation for five years and left Washington in 1900 to become Minister to the republics of Central America. He did not sever his ties of friendship but through all these years has kept up a brisk correspondence with many Washingtonians. When his only son, called George Washington Pezet, because he was born on February 22, and because his parents are fervent admirers of the great neighbor to the North and its founder, was of college age he was placed at Harvard, where two years ago he graduated with high honors. Young Mr. Pezet has since resided in Boston intending to take up literature as a profession. He has already written some excellent dramas and one he hopes to have produced this autumn. He is now in Washington with his parents and will remain until the legation is moved into summer quarters on the North Shore some time in July.

"I return to Washington," remarked Senora Pezet, "as one comes back to a dearly loved spot filled with pleasant memories. I find the city changed but not sufficiently so to make me feel strange except in a few locations. In a way I feel as though I left only a few months ago and I take up the thread of affairs with zeal and energy engendered by a complete rest. My home city is Lima, one of the oldest cities of the New World and one of the most fascinating. Less than fifty years after Columbus discovered this vast empire for Spain, the first stone of the Cathedral of Lima was laid by Pizarro, in January, 1535. I have not lived in Lima consecutively for more than twenty-five years. But I make frequent visits and I am amazed to see how modernized we are becoming and that without losing the picturesqueness and air of antiquity which is our principal charm. We have now a population of 25,000 and are increasing steadily and along the best lines. We have all that a modern city can desire, electric light and public tram service, wide shaded streets, handsome new building blocks. In the residential section the ancient order prevails and the homes wide, low and commodious. Many of the abodes have court-yards filled with the splendid flora of our seaboard.

"Lima is filled with treasures of art, with ancient manuscripts and rare old books and it is really worth a visit from the historical standpoint alone were its other many attractions eliminated. The cathedral dedicated to Saint John the Evangelist began when Pizarro founded the city. It required ninety years to build and it is one of the grandest ecclesiastical monuments in the New World. The cathedral was completed and consecrated in 1625 but it was almost demolished by an earthquake in 1746. It has been again restored and has some costly art treasures, a genuine Murillo, which hangs over the high altar and some wonderful gold and silver plate for the altar vessels and furnishings. Lima has the oldest university in the New World, that of San Marco, founded by the Spaniards in 1551. It is a seat of learning revered throughout South America, has at present eight faculties including theology and has always in spite of many political upheavals in the country remained autonomous and independent of the government. Lima had a printing press in 1567 and we are very proud of a catechism issued from the Jesuit press at Juli on Lake Titicaca in 1577 and which is the first book ever published on American soil.

"History was made in Lima during these centuries, though, of course, the prosperity of the city followed the fortunes of the Spanish viceroys. The world at large has recently heard all about San Martin when Argentina celebrated the centennary of that hero's exploits. We built well in every way and our country is striding forward and taking a prominent place among the nations. Spanish architecture prevails and the mother country still exerts an influence in every direction. A walk through our city is almost like one through a city of Spain, though the American spirit of progress and activity is dominant. We have a fine statue of Columbus in one of our parks, another to Bolivar and to our liberators connected with the defeat of the Spaniards on the second of May, 1866.

"It may be the lingering Spanish influence which has kept our women from taking part in the so-called feminista movement which is agitating all the world. It would be misleading to say that Peruvian women are not interested. We take a keen interest in all that relates to the progress of the world and especially do we note what is engrossing the attention of our North American sisters. But the two points of view are so radically different that I can find no standard of comparison. The Latin woman is heart and soul tied up in the fortunes of her father, husband, or brothers or sons. She works with the masculine part of her family and for him but in a different way. I think we know just as much about politics as American women but we could never imagine ourselves taking an active, that is, a directing part. It seems to us that our labor is at home, along social and philanthropic lines. We give much time to the planning of fetes, of dinners and visiting is a part of our daily routine, like eating and sleeping. We delight to take our men along and, indeed, if the social intercourse were as it is here, mainly among women, I do not believe we would take the trouble to keep it going. But we think that after the serious occupations of the day, home should be bright and sunny for the father, husband or son, as loving care and deep forethought can make it. Therefore, we either have friends to dinner or we go to good friends to dine. Then we dance, go to the play, visit among each other, and make a new day for our men. They joyfully accompany us, enjoy themselves, uplift their souls and minds by spirited, sprightly conversation, good music, or a play, which awakens new thoughts and ambitions and so are refreshed to take up the next day's burden.

"This is the Latin woman's idea of helping our husband and aiding the public policies. Then we devote much time to organized charity, to works of philanthropy which are so woven into our daily duties that we perform them as a matter of course. We Latins love to dance, to go out in the warm sunshine to listen to music, and to talk of the problems of the day and how to meet them. But to vote or to seek a public career is far from our thoughts. We have kept apace of the times, in that woman can get as deep an education as they are capable of absorbing. They can get government positions and where thirty years ago, when a woman was deprived of her natural support, father or husband, she became a charge of the State, now there are hundreds of avenues opening to her to gain a good living."

Senor and Senora Pezet two years ago celebrated the silver anniversary of their wedding, but to see the senora suggests that she has discovered Ponce de Leon's spring of eternal youth. Being a perfect blonde, with deep blue eyes and fair skin, an unusual type for a Spanish-American, though often seen in Spain, she looks as though she were entering her twenties. She was married very young, so young that she declines to give the exact figure. It might, she says, cause too much of a spirit of emulation among her young friends. Since coming to Washington the middle of last month, much time has been given to getting a comfortable home for next season. This Senora Pezet succeeded in accomplishing, and the Peruvian legation is one of the artistic houses built and for a time occupied by Mrs. Christian Hemmick, then Mrs. Alfred Clifford Barney. It is on R street, near Twenty-third, and is attractive in every detail. The vestibule reminds one of the quaint homes in Holland; every shade of tiling has been used with striking effect. The drawing suite is large and exquisitely furnished in white and gold and leading from the main salon to the banquet hall is what seems a green alley, where growing plants, a running fountain and satyr heads and fauns give a wonderful reproduction of life in the open. The banquet hall is in old Flemish oak, after the manner of ancient chapter houses in Flanders.

Senora Pezet is the daughter of the late Jose Maria Corbacho of Lima, a prominent citizen and one who held many offices of trust. She bears the pretty name of Coraline, shortened into Cora. She was educated at home by governesses after the way of the Latins, who never send their children away from home until they are well grown and her marriage to the minister, who was the son of a neighbor, occurred before she reached the dignity of attending a boarding school. She spent a few months, however, with the Madams of the Sacred Heart and since coming to this country, she frequently visits establishments of that order near Philadelphia and New York.

Senor and Senora Pezet have fond hopes of their son, George Washington Pezet, who has already developed a remarkable talent for the drama. He writes entirely in English and at present is engaged on a short comedy dealing with themes which interest Pan-Americans. He is a tall, slender youth bearing a marked resemblance to his mother. He was less than 10 when he left Washington and has made only rare visits since. He finds many of his old playmates still here, and, like him, now through with books and engaged in the serious duties of life.

The Pezets have been feted ceaselessly since their return and have given several receptions and dinners. But they intend to defer their entertaining until next season. Senora Pezet has all the accomplishments of the gentlewoman of Spanish blood and is a much sought guest at every variety of entertainment. She is an exquisite dancer and in the days before her grave young son had attained the dignity of manhood she liked to trip the charming steps of old Spain. Now she occasionally joins in a stately measure but generally is contented to be a spectator. She is a gracious hostess and her home will be an important center next year. The Peruvian minister is a writer of distinction and has always been accounted one of the forces in the republic. He has been in the diplomatic service since he was a mere boy, and now occupies the Foreign office of Lima controls. Both he and his wife are musical and frequently entertains friends with the plaintive airs of the South with a mandolin accompaniment.

Ireland levies no tax on conveyances. Many Irish motorists contend that until the portion of the Act of Union relating to conveyance of taxes is repealed, they need not pay revenue taxes on their cars. The Automobile Association and Motor Union has had this matter under consideration for some time past and its officials hope to issue a statement thereon shortly

"There Shall Be no More Sea."

We shrink from memory of their latest strife,
Our hearts bend low,
Bowed by the mystery of death in life
We cannot know.
But faith, resplendent 'mid the gloom and graves.
Remembers One who walked upon the waves,
Lifts with celestial confidence her prayer.
Assured His mercy interposed to bear
Each soul away,
It, last, dread conflict o'er,
Calm and triumphant to a wreckless shore.

We would withhold that priceless human gift,
And through our tears
Hallow the unmarked tomb where courage swift
Paid life's arrears.
But faith replies: The sea shall yield her dead;
He rules the waves, He hath the heavens spread;
There in His keeping they are safe as we,
And He hath said, "There shall be no more sea."
And while we grieve,
Love looks toward the light,
Hope's seven-hued bow irradiates the night.

—[Emily Beatrice Gnagey in Pittsburgh Gazette

The Immortal Kiss.

Oft have I dreamed of that immortal kiss
The Syrian youth gave to his goddess frail;
Of how his earth warm love could not avail
Against his doom for that one moment's bliss.
And from no more than such a dream as this Sprang Nineveh and Babylon, pale
Myths of hanging gardens, and many a tale
Of the purple passion of Semiramis.

What matter toil and tears and endless strife
And death, when one chance touch of love can ope
Such glorious vistas to the mortal eye?
So out of dreams comes, forth mysterious life,
To decorate the world with golden hope
And paint love's radiance in the eternal sky.

RICHARD DE HAVEN
KING OF LIFE READERS
I was born with a strange and remarkable power—power not meant to gratify the idle curious, but to direct, advise and help men and women who are in trouble and suspense concerning the every day affairs of life.
$5.00 LIFE READING $1.00 (Reduced fee for this week only.)
I give just as careful and complete a revelation of your business, love and domestic affairs for $1.00 as I do for my regular fee of $3 and $5. I am taking the reduced fee plan to introduce myself and my work more extensively to the people of this city, where I have established my permanent home.
MY WORK SPEAKS FOR ITSELF
While I have the indorsements of hundreds of the most noted men and women of America, I deem them of little value, since I stand alone upon the merits of my work. Any person who can believe their own eyes and ears cannot help but know that I am a man of high ability and indisputable power excelled by no man on earth in this line.
MASTER OF STRANGE POWERS
There are strange and mighty forces which men and women can use to better their conditions. These forces are called personal manetism, mental telepathy, semi-hypnotic suggestion, etc. All this I teach to any one who wishes to use it for a legitimate and honorable purpose.
WHAT I DO FOR $1.00
I tell what condition your business is in and how to promote it. I tell you of any move, journey, position or change of any kind which may be before you and how to act to obtain the best results. I tell you exactly what your acquaintances think of you, who to trust and who to shun. In short, I tell you everything you called to find out, and that, too, without asking you a question or you speaking a word.
I guarantee to develop mediumship to its fullest degree in those who have any latent power whatever. If I do not succeed as above stated, I ask no fee for my work and time whatsoever.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY SYDNEY FORD.

A FEW years ago when college training for women became a popular thing, a wail went up from those opposed to it that higher education would rob the cradle, that college-bred women would not care for motherhood, and a lot of other arrant nonsense. I remember that, in refutation of this, there was produced in one of these leading magazines a double-page portrait of an annual party of the alumnae of one of the women's colleges, every one of whom had in her arms a baby—and sometimes another cuddled at her feet, or leaned over her shoulder. All told, there were, I believe, some forty children in the group—every one of whom had a college-bred mother.

A similar cry has frequently arisen concerning the clubwoman of today. "Who takes care of the babies while she is attending her club?" "Are there any babies?" "Do clubwomen care for children?"

Perhaps the best answer to this question—at least if you want an ocular demonstration—would be to attend the session given once a year by the big women's clubs of Los Angeles when the children of the members are guests. The Christmas party at Ebell, for instance, when a perfect garden of human flowers blossoms in the big auditorium, or that children's gathering the other day at the Friday Morning Club, or the annual children's party at Highland Park Ebell.

Club Children a Feature.

Last Friday afternoon at the placing of the Averill bell, the most picturesque part of the ceremony was conducted by club children, or rather I might say, grandchildren, for every one of the little folks who helped, with one exception, could claim a clubwoman for a grandmother. There was Master Norman Averill, who unveiled the bell. He is the grandson of the founder of the club, Mrs. Anna S. Averill, in whose honor the bell was placed. The three little girls who wound the floral rope about the bell are also club children. One of them is the grand-daughter of the president of the club, Mrs. B. F. Nance; another, little Laura McDowell, is the grand-daughter of Mrs. Florence C. McDowell, a prominent member of the club, while tiny Leah Clampitt, just four and one-half years old, is the daughter of Mrs. E. H. Clampitt, who has long been a club member. Little Leah enjoys the distinction of being a member of the club, as she was presented with a ten-year membership card when she was a wee baby.

It was a happy idea of the club to thus arrange that the children of the members should bear a part in the dedication ceremony of the birthday bell erected in honor of its founder.

In spite of alarmists, of club and colleges, every normal woman knows, whether she acknowledges it or not, that the highest, and sweetest, and most sacred privilege of womanhood is motherhood.

Bachelors Adopt Babies.

Not long since I was somewhat startled to hear that an old friend of mine in New York—a girl bachelor by the way—had adopted a child. She is a professional woman and a litterateur of such ability that her annual income may be computed in four figures. She has always been wholly absorbed in her work but now, at middle life, she discovers that, with abundance of means and a constantly-growing leisure, a child is the solution to the problem of loneliness.

When in Switzerland a couple of years ago—in a Lucerne pension—my vis-a-vis at table was a very attractive and capable-appearing young Englishwoman on the sunny side of middle life. She was devoted to the beautiful little girl who always sat by her side—a charming child with long, dark curls and big brown eyes whose quaint and correct speech was the delight of us all. I noticed that the little thing always addressed her guardian as "god-mother" and after they had taken their departure for London, I learned that the child had been adopted by this single woman, who had an independent fortune.

In the current issue of Harper's Bazaar Constance Kirby tells of the growing class of adoptive mothers springing up in the person of prosperous spinsters who would probably describe themselves as having been too busy and absorbed in their various professions to marry, but who now long for a child to love and care for. Homeless children are now regularly in demand by this interesting class of young foster-mothers. One of the most remarkable is Miss Mary Hildreth of New Hampshire, who is foster-mother to nine children. She herself was one of a family of eleven, and believes in companionship for little folks. She has a large farm and a comfortable house and her family is growing up in great contentment.

The story is told of one young New York woman just past girlhood who has an ample income, and who wished to assume the guardianship of some child without taking it into her own home which, under the circumstances, was impossible. A struggling mother, who was so very poor that she had practically made up her mind to yield to an institution her two children, a boy and a girl, was found, and the fairy godmother under took to pay for their support and education. By this seemingly miraculous means, the mother is able to keep her children and properly care for and educate them.

Another disinterested lover of children is a New York bachelor who wants to be an uncle on an anonymous scale and has acted as patron to twenty-two lucky little girls during the past two years. He has never seen his little proteges except by photographs and he himself is known only through the checks which provide for their maintenance. He makes one stipulation—his foster-children must all be girls.

Summer Jaunts of Clubwomen.

As clubs close the summer plans of members come to the surface, and flittings to the seashore and the mountains, eastern trips and European tours beckon alluringly. Yesterday Miss Victoria Witmer, president of the Symphony Club, left for Boston. She will attend commencement at Harvard where two nephews graduate this month and will join there Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Storrow who went East several weeks ago. Mrs. Storrow it will be remembered was Miss Letha Lewis and is a niece of Miss Witmer's.

Mrs. W. G. Cochran accompanied Miss Witmer on her eastern trip and after spending some time in Boston, will visit at her old home in the Middle West.

They Will Study France.

The Ruskin Art Club has already issued its outline of study for next year, which will be concerning France.

Although this club is chiefly devoted to art, nevertheless it always goes deeply into the history, geography, geology, civilization, literature and political conditions or the country under consideration. In the study of the French republic the club will find a field rich in literature and in recognition of this, three months will be given to the study of French literature.

The Programme Committee has been increased to five members, Miss Laura Emery and Mrs. George Sinsabaugh, having been added to the original three of last year—Mmes. H. W. Clough, E. S. Hodgin and Miss A. E. Wadleigh. The Hospitality Committee has also been increased from five to seven, the following ladies serving under Mrs. J. W. Hendrick, chairman; Mmes. A. C. Bradley, I. L. Hibbard, W. H. Housh, S. C. Hubbell, W. S. Taylor and W. J. Washburn.

The officers remain practically the same as last year, the only changes being that of first vice-president, which is now filled by Miss Victoria Witmer, whose place as second vice-president last year is now filled by Mrs. E. S. Hodgin, and Mrs. W. S. Urion has been made curator, her place as librarian last year being now held by Mrs. H. T. Fennell.

Miss A. M. Donovan, Mrs. W. S. Urion and Mrs. T. M. Walker have been newly elected to the directorship of the club. The Housekeeping Committee for the coming year is headed by Mrs. A. H. Randall and includes Mmes. H. G. Brainerd, A. S. C. Forbes, F. L. Kennedy, J. W. Nethery and H. P. Sweet, and the Membership Committee is made up of Mrs. D. C. Barber, chairman, and Mmes. O. F. Brant, W. K. B. Brown, Richard Clemson and C. C. Wright.

The Women of China.

One of the June programmes of the Friday Morning Club—that of the 14th inst.—will be one of great interest. The speaker will be Mrs. H. W. Boone, of Shanghai, and her subject will be "The Chinese Women of Today." Mrs. Boone is clearly competent to deal with this subject as she has lived in China about thirty years. Her husband, Dr. Boone, is president of St. Luke's Hospital at Shanghai.

In this connection it is interesting to note that, at the Methodist General Conference, just closed at Minneapolis, the reports from China awakened unprecedented interest. One of the delegates, Dr. Li Bi Cu, who, it will be remembered, visited Los Angeles a few years ago on her return to China after graduation from the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia, was called to the platform for a speech and given an ovation as she made her way down the crowded aisles to the front. She addressed the great audience composed of hundreds of the most gifted clergy and scholars of the Methodist church, making a profound impression by her appearl for the womanhood of that great Empire which is just awakening to modern thought and civilization.

"I think," said this educated Chinese woman, "that no nation can help the women of China as much as the United States, through the work of its missionaries. We want more missionaries to help us uplift the womanhood of China so that the two great republics may unite to elevate the womanhood of the world."

Badger Club Annual Meeting.

Mrs. Clarence H. Pease has arranged a musical programme to be rendered at the annual luncheon of the California Badger Club, which will take place next Wednesday at the Beverly Hills Hotel. There will be a saxophone solo by Miss Ida Weber, with Mrs. C. A. Blackmar as accompanist; soprano solos by Miss Josephine Nell, accompanied by Hilda Nolte, pianist. The principal speakers will be Mrs. W. T. Lewis of Racine, Wis., the founder of the club in 1902, and Mrs. William Baurhyte. The musical numbers will be given before luncheon is served.

Hollywood Club Closing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Miller gave a reading of "The Blue Bird" before the Hollywood Woman's Club last Wednesday, delighting a large audience. A 1 o'clock luncheon followed given under the direction of the House Committee, of which Mrs. A. L. Leonard is chairman. The meeting this week will be held in Wilcox Hall and after the election of officers, a play, "The Obstinate Family," will be given by a local dramatic club under the direction of Mr. Henneberry. The closing meeting of the year will be in the form of a luncheon at Beverly Hills Hotel on June 12.

Mrs. Brant Entertains Ruskin Art.

The Ruskin Art Club was delightfully entertained on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. O. F. Brant, No. 3131 South Figueroa street, the occasion being the closing session of the club year. The programme, which was arranged by Mrs. Brant and Mrs. W. B. Brown, dealt with Belgium of today.

Mrs. W. H. Council gave a brief talk on the commerce and industry of Belgium; Miss Lucy Marks spoke of its canals and waterways, and Mrs. C. E. Day described the coast towns and the Ardennes. Miss Marie Crow, by special request, gave a charming account of her recent visit to Japan, touching upon the history of Japanese painting and wood carving, and exhibiting many curious and beautiful objects collected during her stay in the Orient.

On Wednesday, also, Mrs. George Sinsabaugh, No. 3118 South Figueroa street, entertained with a daintily appointed luncheon in honor of the board of directors of the Ruskin Art Club.

Healthfulness of Laughter.

[Christian Herald:] Merriopathy is the science of the healing laugh. Merriopathy is better than homoeopathy or allopathy, for curing all the gloom diseases and grouch complaints that make life miserable. Some illnesses need drugs, some need the surgeon's knife, some can be cured with a good laugh, some can be smiled away, but neither you nor I ever knew of a sickness that was cured by a frown.

The wise physician well understands the therapeutic value of fun and a cheerful spirit. Medicine may be a necessary and powerful agent in the treatment of illness, but it may fail where fear and melancholy join hands with the disease. Laughter is one of the best medicines in the world and lengthens the life as well as brightens it. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine," said the wise man; consequently we may employ it in many chronic cases without fear. Set the gloomy, discouraged, neurasthenic invalid to laughing. Study constantly how to provoke smiles. Cause a few thrills of humor to run, however weakly, through the veins and to tickle the risibles. The hostile forces of disease and worry and discouragement can be driven back by the benevolent microbes of mirth-

Ancient Linen Found.

[Kansas City Star:] Excavators in Egypt have recently found sheets of linen in tombs that date back to the eleventh dynasty, or 2500 years B.C. The cloth is still clean and white and the fiber as sound as it ever was, although it must have been woven 4500 years ago. This linen is older than the Iliad. It was woven 2000 years before Confucius was born and more than 1700 years before Rome was founded. We speak of some of our institutions as "venerable," but they are all in their babyhood compared with these linen scraps

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Dressing the Bride.

So, after the bath, the slave-girls brought
The broidered raiment for her to wear,
The misty izar from Mosul,
The pearls and opals for her hair,
The slippers for her supple feet,
(Two radiant crescent moons they were,)
And lavender, and spikenard sweet,
And attars, nedd, and richest musk.
When they had finished dressing her,
(The Eye of Dawn, the Heart's Desire!)
Like one pale star against the dusk,
A single diamond on her brow
Trembled with its imprisoned fire.

Note.—This colorful fragment of verse was written by Thomas Bailey Aldrich. In the Household Edition of his works, published by Houghton Mifflin Company, it is accompanied by an excellent illustration by Frank D. Millet, the American artist who lost his life in the wreck of the Titanic.

Pictures by Pages.

A small but very choice exhibition of pictures is that which is now being held at the Steckel gallery, and which closes on June 15. There are only eight canvases, none of them large, all from the brush of Jules Pages. They came, very recently, from Paris, where Pages, who is a Californian, lives, paints, and also instructs in the Academie Julian.

These pictures were exhibited a month or two ago in the Nicholson gallery in Pasadena, and if you will hark back to some previous issue of Art and Artists (exact date unknown to me) you will find a full account of them. It's good to know that they have been sent down from Pasadena and are now placed where picture lovers of Los Angeles may have favorable chances to study them. Their present arrangement gives them the necessary isolation. Each may be looked at without confusion to the spectator, without intrusion from its nearest neighbor. Would that all pictures could be hung like these! What a solace to the painter, what a comfort to the public!

The brilliant note of red found in "Coming Home from Church, Bruges," is duplicated and intensified in the picture which hangs on the opposite wall, "Fisherman's Hut, Brittany." Both canvases are characterized by cool foreground shadows. There is a duller note of red in "The Old Canal on a Gray Day, Bruges," a warmer gray in the walls and walks. Bright notes of color are also found in "My Garden at Brehat," a canvas of naive intimacy. Blossoms of purple, red, deep orange and white show their lovely spots and masses amid the green foliage along the wall of the stone cottage.

A very different mood is expressed in "At the Entrance of the Village, Brittany," whose cool grays are livened by only a few touches of sober green in the blinds of tht houses and in the trees seen above the fences.

Two rich and lovely Brittany interiors grace the same wall that holds the scene from the artist's garden. The rooms have the mellowness of time, are subdued by memories poignantly sad and happy. The room in the house where Ernest Renan was born is especially beautiful.

Jules Pages is an accomplished technician, and his pictures are always interesting.

In Long Beach.

Mrs. R. Herbert Jackson, who has always worked untiringly for the cause of art at Long Beach, has now been placed in charge of the library picture gallery, which is open every day, free to the general public, during library hours.

The last exhibition held there was that of the Dutch pictures of Deber[illegible], loaned by J. F. Kanst of Los Angeles.

Said Mrs. Jackson to me the other day, while we were having a little chat about art in general, and about art in Southern California in particular:

"It will be the policy of myself and committee to keep the exhibits right up to standard, for we believe that the presentation of inferior work in art is as bad for the eye as inferior music or an out-of-tune piano is bad for the ear.

"It often requires a long and tedious education to develop a ragtime taste up to an appreciation of the classical in music, and the same experience obtains in art—from daub to masterpiece. A right beginning is half the battle won.

"I feel that I am the pioneer in good art in Long Beach, as I was chairman of the art and craft section of our Long Beach Ebell Club for three years, with four exhibits a year. Then followed the founding of the Virginia gallery, of which I was in charge, and now I desire to make this gallery so high in standard that no matter how ignorant or inexperienced one may feel he can rest assured that what he finds here is the very best, and that he may absorb it without fear of injury."

Drawings By the Masters.

Hugo A. Possner, a painter from Boston and Providence, came to Los Angeles a month ago, and has just opened a studio in the Copp building, in one of the north galleries formerly occupied by Daniell, for his display of pictures.

Possner has already held a one-picture exhibition here, showing only one picture—and that, alas, was suppressed almost as soon as it was hung up. This was during Shriner week. The picture, displayed in the window of a downtown store, represented a human fist clutching a handful of greenbacks. The money was so realistically rendered that Possner was politely requested by the police to withdraw the picture at once under penalty of arrest and punishment. The artist found out that it is unlawful to exhibit publicly any photographic representation of United States money.

The painter has a very interesting scrap book, now to be seen in his studio. This contains a collection of drawings in guache, pencil and ink, and, though they are unsigned, they have every indication of being by the famous old masters of art. The collection was begun over a century ago by an Englishman on his continental travels, and has been added to up to the present time by members of the family. Possner was so interested in the book that when its last owner died in Providence, R. I., a few years ago, he bequeathed it to the artist.

I hope this wonderful scrap book will become one of the permanent treasures of our contemplated museum of art.

Pictures in the Royal.

There is a notable showing of pictures by American painters in the present exhibition of the Royal Academy in London.

Edwin A. Abbey's last work, "Education of Isabella, the Catholic," has a conspicuous place on the wall. It is a striking picture, both artistically and in point of popular interest, and is well worthy of being the last work of this great painter and illustrator.

J. J. Shannon shows six large portraits of women: Countess of Shaftesbury, Viscountess Boyne, Mrs. G. L. Bevan, Mrs. Henry Barber, Mrs. J. T. Wigan and Mrs. Hussey.

John Sargent's three canvases are all small, but they show a masterful breadth of treatment, and all are flooded with sunshine. "Breakfast in the Loggia," "Cypresses" and "Bringing Down Marble From the Quarries of Carrara,' are the titles.

Mark Fisher has six canvases, Cyrus Cuneo, two; Alfred Parsons, R. A., four studies along the Danube, made on a recent trip with Frank D. Millet, who was lost on the Titanic.

Among the sculptures, there is a bold football group by R. T. McKenzie of the University of Pennsylvania, which he calls "Onslaught." The group is small in size, but the figures are full of life and vigor, the players being tangled in a struggle.

ART NOTES.

In the public library of Alhambria, Ethel P. Bailey recently showed a series of artistic photographic studies of wild flowers of Southern California. Miss Bailey has made a decided success in her interpretations of the beauties of our native wild flowers.

Frank F. Stone, the sculptor, whose studio is at No. 719 Gale street, is putting the finishing touches to the model for the bronze bust of the late E. H. Edwards, known as the "pioneer of Lone Pine." The bust, which is larger than life size, is to be placed in the plaza of Lone Pine.

From June 25 to August 3 Nell Brooker Mayhew will conduct an outdoor sketching class on Tuesdays and Fridays. She will also give talks on art to her classes. The vicinity of Los Angeles will comprise the sketching grounds.

The Palette Club of the Los Angeles School of Art and Design held its May meeting last Tuesday evening, when Hector Alliot and H. Lovins gave short talks. Alliot spoke on California architecture, Lovins, who is soon to be made instructor of painting in the school, told stories of his friend and teacher, Robert Henri, and spoke of the work and methods of William M. Chase and Jean Mannheim.

Anna Lukens of Pleasant Drive, Beverly Hills, will show oils and water colors every Thursday and Friday, from 2 to 3 p.m., during the month of June, in her home studio.

Joseph Greenbaum has just begun a full length life size portrait of Mrs. Charles Wellington Rand. The lady is standing in a corner of her music room, and is dressed in a black evening gown. The portrait promises to be one of Greenbaum's best.

William Swift Daniell has closed his picture galleries for the summer. He is looking about for a desirable studio at Long Beach, where he proposes to sketch during the hot months.

Frank Coburn will open a studio at Santa Ana for the summer, closing the studio in the Copp building.

Ralph Davison Miller has gone to San Francisco, where he is holding an exhibition of his landscapes.

Leta Horlocker contemplates going to New York about June 15.

Ernest Browning Smith spent last week sketching at Laguna Beach.

An auction sale of pictures was held at Kanst's last week.

Three exhibitions closed yesterday—at Blanchard's, at the Woman's Clubhouse, and at the Royar gallery.

At Steckel's, after June 15, pictures by various well known American painters will be exhibited all summer, beginning with those of Rollo Peters and Jules Pages.

Sea Fever.

I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by;
And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail's shaking,
And a gray mist on the sea's face, and a gray dawn breaking.

I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied;
And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying,
And the flung spray and the blown spume and the sea gulls crying.

I must go down to the seas again, to the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way where the wind's like a whetted knife;
And all I ask is a merry yarn from a laughing fellow rover,
And quiet sleep and a sweet dream when the long trick's over.
—[John Masefield in St. Louis
Times.

A Prayer in Armor.

Lord, give me a place in the world's great fight,
The fight for the good and the true;
A place where the wrong outrivals the right,
And there's a soldier's work to do.

Make strong my heart, and tender as strong,
Prayer-tempered and toned for the fight;
With love for the man whose monstrous wrong
I loathe, and must dare to smite.

And when with earth and its strife
I'm through,
Let me leave it a safer place,
With a clearer field for the good and the true,
And the kingdom of love and grace.

To Lonely Youth.

For all the ribbons and curls
You are not like those other girls—
Dear heart, you cannot laugh as they,
Who never know what makes you gay;
You must be lonely, often; yes,
And learn to love your loneliness.

Yes, lonely—wistful eyes!
Oh, child,
Vexed by the windy heart and wild,
Youth hurts you, and must hurt you.
Yet
Hold to your dreams; nor once forget
They shall be utter youth for you
When other's dancing days are through,
Hold to your dreams!
What if, tonight
You seemed so stupid, and the light,
Young laughter lashed you? Some day, sweet,
Your turn shall come! your turn, to greet
High friends, deep love; no puppet-play,
But love's last pain and pride, some day,
And night like this, tired heart, will seem
The last queer shadow of a dream!

And yet (great eyes and tear-wet curls)
You would be like those other girls!
So be it! Run! Blow out the light,
But—no more tears! You child, good-night!

THE DRAMA.

strongest woman of the twentieth century.

Barnes and Baron are two comedians, well-known to local audiences who are returning with a wealth of good, bright fun-creating material and who will undoubtedly prove one of the biggest hits of the new bill.

The sensational portion of the new bill will be furnished by Tokio Kisshe, the little Japanese juggler and slack wire walker. Kisshe provides a genuine thrill with his mile-a-minute back slide from the roof of the theater, over the heads of the audience to the stage.

Of exceptional interest to all lovers of the best music will be the appearance on the new bill of Rae Eleanor Ball, a young woman violinist who has scored a veritable sensation in the Northwest, with her perfect playing, charm and beauty.

A whole lot of bright, snappy fun and popular melodies will be offered by Jimmy Dealy and Hattie Barlow, one of the cleverest teams that has come over this circuit.

Ballerini's dogs, a troupe of highly trained animal actors, will furnish much entertainment and amusement for both the older folks and little ones, while the news pictures will show many interesting views of events that are occupying the attention of the world.

Pantages.

Van's Scotch Minstrel Maids, the headline act of the new Pantages bill, offers the double attractions of a minstrel show and a musical comedy. The quality of the minstrel features is ensured by the presence of Lew Pistol, who has made the success of more than one big minstrel organization, and O. H. Cushing, equally well known, shouldering the responsibilities of tambo and bones, and Howard Cushing, the silver-throated baritone, as interlocutor. A long list of singing numbers interspersed with dances, is shared among the principals, and the Scotch lasses who constitute the chorus.

Klein, Ott and Nicholson are a trio of comedy musicians with individuality in both their music and comedy features. The comedy member of the act is master of mirthful pantomime whose voice and actions contribute equally to the festivities.

European vaudeville contributes the Vanoss troupe. They are hand and head balancers, who put some of the real sensational stuff that is an occasional necessity in a vaudeville programme. It is difficult to imagine a better organization than the Vanoss troupe in their specialties.

Ralph Connors, ventriloquist, is commonly described as "The boy with the educated dummy." He is an eastern favorite who now makes his first western appearance with the Pantages circuit.

Elsie Murphy is a magnetic little person with a big voice, and while she is classified in the vaudeville index as a "coon shouter" the term ought to be qualified with some softening adjective to indicate the refinement of both singer and singing.

Robinson Brothers and Wilson in a Rathskeller act, will furnish a further installment of fun. This act has just completed an engagement of twelve weeks in one theater in San Francisco, which should guarantee their entertaining quality.

There will be a clever Vitograph comedy on the Pantagescope and the Pantages' orchestra will dispense the usual quota of ragtime joy.

KOLB & DILL.

Kolb & Dill, the favorite German comedians, with their fine company and chorus of sixty-five, will, after an absence of two seasons, return to Los Angeles and the Majestic Theater one week from tonight, opening their limited engagement on Sunday night, June 9, in their recent big success, "The Girl in the Train."

The announcement of the return of these famous funmakers will create a great amount of interest among the lovers of the best in music and fun, for they are unquestionably the most popular and clever comedians this side of Broadway.

The sale of seats for the engagement of Kolb & Dill will open at the Majestic box office tomorrow morning, June 5. Manager Montrose already has hundreds of requests for reservations for the engagement, which will mark the opening of a short summer season of music and mi[illegible]

BACK COVERED WITH MASS OF PIMPLES

Burned and Itched So He Could Hardly Stand It. Tried Medicines, Etc., Nearly 3 Years. In Eternal Misery. Started Using Cuticura Remedies. Now Has No Sign of Skin Disease.

Corbin, Kan.—"My troubles began along in the summer in the hottest weather and took the form of small eruptions and itching and a kind of smarting pain. It took me mostly all over my back and kept getting worse until finally my back was covered with a mass of pimples which would burn and itch at night so that I could hardly stand it. This condition kept getting worse and worse until my back was a solid mass of big sores which would break open and run. My underclothing would be a clot of blood.

"I tried various blood medicines and other remedies and salves for nearly three years and I was not getting any benefit. It seemed I was in eternal misery and could not sleep on my back or lean back on a chair. I was finally given a set of the Cuticura Remedies by my brother who recommended them to me very highly. I started using the Cuticura Remedies and inside of two weeks I could see and feel a great relief. I kept on using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and also the Resolvent, and in about three or four months' time my back was nearly cured and I felt like a new being. Now I am in good health and no sign of any skin disease and I am fully satisfied that Cuticura Remedies are the best ever made for skin diseases. I will always recommend them to anybody who will use according to directions. I would not be without them." (Signed) W. A. Armstrong, May 26, 1911.

For eczema, rashes, itchings, irritations, inflammations and other unwholesome conditions of the skin and scalp as well as for every purpose of the toilet, bath and nursery, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are indispensable. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

Dandruff Causes Scalp Itching

Clogs the pores of the scalp, prevents the hair from obtaining proper nourishment—causes it to fade and eventually to fall out. And besides, it's irritating and annoying to have your scalp itching and burning all the time.

IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Drawing Teacher to Study in Europe.

Miss Mary S. Morse, assistant supervisor of drawing in the public schools, is planning to spend her vacation in England and Scotland, and will also attend the International Art Congress at Dresden. She will leave the city on June 8.

Supervisor of Domestic Science.

Miss Etta P. Flagg, supervisor of domestic science, left on Thursday for an extended visit of eastern city schools, with a special view to studying the different methods of presenting home economics subjects in their vocational phases.

Said Miss Flagg: "We want in this city to inaugurate the very best methods in the trade school to be erected here, next year. We already have an excellent basis in the work of Macy-street trade school, where both boys and girls are doing order work along woodworking and sewing lines. We want to train the boys and girls to earn their livings."

Miss Flagg will visit the trade schools of New York City, after which she will proceed to New England, visiting the excellent State Trade Schools of Bridgeport and New Britain, Ct., the Boston Trade School, and the schools of Springfield and Brookline.

As school nurseries and penny lunches are still in the experimental stage in this city, Miss Flagg will also investigate these fields of work during her trip.

San Francisco's Manual Supervisor.

Miss Anna Murray, supervisor of sewing and primary manual training in San Francisco, has visited the schools of Los Angeles, this week. She went to Polytechnic and Avenue 21 on Wednesday, visiting the manual arts departments of these schools, and expressing herself as delighted at the work she saw. On Friday, in company with Miss Ella Nevell, assistant supervisor of manual training, she visited Miss Weatherholt's room in Cambria-street school, to view the application of the Templet method of paper cutting in the lower grades, as worked out by Miss Nevell.

Teachers' Summer Classes.

The Board of Education has announced courses for teachers, in connection with the summer school. The following are in addition to those already announced in The Times:

Mr. R. E. Wiatt will have charge of the commercial course, Mr. J. C. Beswick of the woodshop, and another expert, whose name will be announced later, will conduct the course in ornamental gardening. These courses will be free to city teachers, while those from the outside will be called upon to pay a small fee. Registrations should be made early with Theodore Fulton, Manual Arts High School, to allow the making of necessary assignments to teachers to the work. The classes will be held in Polytechnic High School.

Sale of Baskets.

Seventh-street school has been doing some practical work in basketry during the last year, and the products will be exhibited and sold on next Monday and Tuesday. These baskets are made of reed, are of all sizes, and taseful in design, all the work from desiging to constructing, having been done by the children.

Merchant of Venice Great Hit.

"If we don't get busy, these youngsters will put us right off the Rialto," exclaimed a Poly mask-and-sandal boy, on the occasion of Berendo's rendering of the "Merchant of Venice," last Wednesday evening, at the Poly auditorium.

The extreme youth of the performers made their excellent performance all the more remarkable. "Lancelot," (Jack Holtz) only 12 years old, gave the whimsical clown to perfection; while Leslie Gaynor's "Portia" was beautiful, especially in the reading of the "mercy" lines in the court scene. Hustoff Peterson's Shylock was an excelent portrayal. Morris Ankrum, 14 years old, played Bassanio very cleverly, and Warren Martin's Gratiano was most pleasing. Another 12-year-old ector was William Combs, as a delightful "Lorenso," and perhaps nobody received more applause than pretty little Hasel Klinker as the volatile "Jessica." George Burrall "Antonio" was skilfully done, and received special applause.

Miss Anna H. Gould, instructor of oral English at Berendo, deserves unstinted praise, for the rare talent she displayed in training the children for the play, which, by the way, was given without one child having to be prompted—a somewhat unique achievement in school histrionic affairs.

Fourteenth Intermediate Exhibit.

A tremendous success was the exhibit held on Wednesday.

Particularly attractive was the Japanese work in the drawing department; while the sloyd exhibit of a large cushioned Davenport and other furniture was greatly admired. A dainty cooking booth and luncheon table represented the domestic science department; and dresses and hats, in beautiful design and coloring, represented the millinery classes.

The programme of music, dialogue and folk dancing was most delightful.

Avenue Sixty-two Social Center.

"Standing room only" was the sign displayed at the meeting held Saturday evening, May 25. The 500 seats in Social Center Hall proved wholly inadequate to hold the largest audience this institution has yet experienced. Fully 300 chose to "stand it out" rather than miss the greatest treat of the year. This proved satisfactory for the folk dancing, but the excellent lecture was somewhat nullified by the restlessness of the standing crowd, who were already physically tired by the day's work. The problem now before the Executive Committee is to provide room for the increasing patronage. The advisability of opening the schoolrooms to accommodate classes in music, folk-dancing, debating, sewing, millinery, cooking, sloyd, gymnastics, business branches, etc., will be considered by the Executive Committee at their regular meeting Tuesday, June 4. To many of the committee this seems best, not only on account of the crowds, but because it will obviate the difficulty of entertaining "mixed audiences"—audiences of largely different ages and desires.

In order that the above may be the more thoroughly discussed, the Social Center for June 14 will probably be for adults only. Table games and a home products exhibit will probably serve for part of the entertainment for the evening.

Polytechnic High School.

Prof. Bentley of the education department of Stanford visited the exhibits of work at Polytechnic Wednesday evening and expressed unusual pleasure in the actual professional work done in architectural design, illustration, pottery, metal work and surveying. The last-named work, done under Mr. Evans's supervision, includes maps of San Pedro harbor, Occidental campus, the grounds of the various city schools and many other localities round about. Prof. Bentley suggests that the great problem for the colleges now is to provide some vital interest for students who come from schools where activities have produced actual results, otherwise they will hardly feel that to go to college is to make an advance.

The Scribblers' Club held a meeting Friday afternoon at which a weird programme was presented. Every member dealt with the supernatural and much originality was evidenced. Helen Byron, the president, presided, and the secretary, Lawrence Seymour, read a clever report of the last programme. The following original numbers were given: "A Nightmare," Dick Morgan; "The Buccaneers, and the Ghost," Iri Brett; "Ghosts," Marian Newton; "Loveliness," Alice Rogers; "A Sketch," Dorothea Dimlea; "A Spooky Tale," Annette Glick; "Just a Spook," Wiley So Relle; "At Evening," Lawrence Seymour.

June 10 is the date decided on for the Scribblers' Club semi-annual dinner, which is to be held in the lunch house at "Poly." This is the seventh gathering for sociability and post-prandial wit and some of the members who joined in previous years are no longer amateurs, but are writing regularly for local newspapers. One, Ellis Fuller, is a globe trotter for a press syndicate. The dinner serves as a reunion and is eagerly looked forward to each season. Last year's president, Daniel Zimmerman, now of Highland, is to be the guest of honor. The after-dinner programme will consist of several parts, the principal section being devoted to reviews of the "Six Best Sellers of 1940." These, it is taken for granted, will be the work of members of the present Scribblers' organization, and will be made to include up-to-date (1940) zoology, botany, philosophy, history, poetry and the novels of love and adventure. Nursery rhymes up-to-date is another feature and a third will be a mock-serious study of the influence of the Scribbler movement in literature.

The Civics League is making great preparations for its banquet Saturday night. There will be elaborate floral decorations both in the lunch house and in the gymnasium, where a dance is to follow the speech-making. M. Clifford Howard, president of the Evening City Club, and author of "The Passover" and "Sex Worship," will give the principal address. J. H. Francis and Stephen I. Miller will also speak. Carl Shafor will preside, as he is the chief executive of the league.

The illustrations for the Poly "Student" are not only ready but printers' proofs show them to be of unusual excellence. The book is to be decorated after the Moorish style, and the drawings are by Paul Williams, Esther Schirmer, Bayard Taylor, Evelyn Mondon, Mary Dale, Paul Ickes and others.

An auditorium call for girls was held Friday morning at which Miss Ruth Sterry spoke on "Civic Interests."

The Mask and Sandal Society will present "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines" in the auditorium next Friday evening. Don Cameron and Eunice Arens take the principal parts. Norman McPhail, Hope Nash and Dick Morgan, all favorites with Poly students, are also in the cast.

Los Angeles High School.

The graduating class, almost three hundred strong, will hold its commencement exercises at the Temple Auditorium on the evening of June 21. The address of the evening will be delivered by Col. J. J. Steadman of the Board of Education. Mrs. Susan Dorsey, vice-principal of the school, will present the class on behalf of the school.

The regular monthly meeting of the Star and Cresent, the famous old Literary Society of the school, was held last Monday afternoon instead of Friday. The meeting was one of the best of this term. Miss Howell's readings being especially well received. The programme contained the following numbers: Selection, orchestra; call to order, Franklin Lee; reading of minutes, Dorothy Goodrich; cello solo, Miss Larooka Conwell; readings, Miss Maud Howell; vocal selections, Chesney Carver.

The classes in bontany under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Palmer have just given the patio of the "Annex" a thorough overhauling. All the plants, with the exception of a few of the trees and the ancient wisteria vine, were taken up, the roots separated and the beds thoroughly fertilized. With its fountain and green tropical plants, the patio is one of the hidden beauty spots of the school grounds.

Pupils selected from the various classes in German presented a play in German during the third period Friday. Friends and parents of those taking part in the play, together with pupils of the school crowded the Assembly Hall and evidently enjoyed what they saw or heard.

The Graduating Class will present "The Road to Yesterday" as its class play. Two performances will be given in the Assembly, June 14. The cast, which is unusually strong is being coached by Miss Leno Cooper, one of the teachers of expression.

According to observations and data furnished by the classes in zoology there are not only an unusual number of western tauagers, but also a bountiful supply of wood warblers in Los Angeles this spring. The winter visitants, notably the intermediate white crowned sparrows and the Audubon warblers were not as numerous as last year, but they prolonged their visit. Some of the sparrows remaining until well into May.

Manual Arts High School.

Memorial Day was celebrated at the Assembly on Wednesday. The following numbers were given by the members of the faculty and the student body: Piano solo, Miss M. E. Groves; vocal solo, "Thou Art My All," and Slave Song, by Rosamand R. Rice; Markham's Lincoln, Lenore Bierdell; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, Harry Reinecke and vocal solo, Olive Wilson.

Announcement has been made of the immediate resignation of the principal's secretary, Miss Rosamand R. Rice, who changes her residence for San Diego. As announced above Miss Rice made her farewell to the students at the Memorial Assembly in a beautiful vocal number. She has been intimately connected with the office at Manual Arts where her sterling worth has been appreciated by the executive and teaching staff.

Preparations are being made for Visitors' Day. A good programme is arranged for.

The girl carpenters are making ten dozen fern baskets for the gymnasium arcades. A beautiful table for the domestic arts department and furniture for the rest rooms have been made by the boys.

The woodshops are in receipt of a number of framed pictures of machinery from different local firms. They will be hung and used in connection with class-work.

The Girls' Riding Club is planning to end the season in a joint ride with the club by the Girls' Collegiate.

DEFENCE OF TRUSTS.

BIG BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT. Charles Norman Fay. Moffat, Yard New York.

He also sho that every trust which has sought fatten by the forcing of prices by the dissemination of an infer commodity, has failed. The law supply and demand is as inexorable the law of gravity, and governs tru as it governs smaller enterpris Furthermore, Mr. Fay shows that basis of the "popular" moveme against big business is to be found the envy of those who have been u successful in business, or incompete in judgment, and that this moveme has been fanned into flame by an u scrupulous demagogy. He goes dee er and points out that this attack u on commercial ability can result on detrimentally to the very people wh are making the fight.

The prevalent superstition th trusts are monopolistic, and that un scrupulous dealings take the place ability and efficient service, is blaste by the history of trusts which hav endeavored to operate along thes lines, and have failed. No better ex ample of this failure is to be foun than in the record of the typewrite trust, which formed in 1893. Mr Fay was not in the trust, but an out sider, independently bucking the com bination. Here was a trust which ha every advantage of being a monopoly since there was no difficulty known to commerce which was not present in an acute form in any attempt at com petition with it; but the moment two new makes of typewriters were put on the market, which met the current prices and gave the service of the trust machines, immediately the public bought those articles. The trust was necessitated to reform. It underwent a general housecleaning and threw out its inferior machines; it lowered prices; and today its share of the world's output is only about 25 to 35 per cent. Thus the minute that legitimate competition, no matter how small, enters the market, the trusts are necessitated to meet it. There is no possible way for trusts to monopolize efficiency. It was the same with the steel trust and the sugar trust. Their normal size was not proof against competition. The independent concerns found no difficulty in selling their goods, provided they met the trust prices with the best class of material, and the successful bucking of both the steel and the sugar trust by smaller combinations has proved conclusively that size can never insure against competition, and that inflated capitalization cannot demand inflated prices—but to the contrary, that any attempt on the part of a trust to force prices, or to produce inferior goods invites and stimulates competition the world over.

Mr. Fay points to the history of the white lead trust, which was formed in the early eighties, and the American Can Company, and the International Mercantile Marine Company, formed by the great Morgan house in 1902, to show how any form of legitimate competition can completely riddle a combination, no matter how much money there is back of the trust, and no matter what its size. The failure of these three trusts shows that the law of the survival of the fittest, which is and ever has been the basis of all commercial activities, holds even in the largest of trade combinations.

In this connection, an interesting quotation from the 1910 census is made, and I copy it here as an eloquent argument against the so-called robbery perpetrated against the poor man. Of the 92,000,000 people in the United States, 35,000,000 were employed bread winners; therefore, the entire cost for Big Business, for interest on capital, for profits, divided and undivided, was, in round numbers, $65per annum per bread winner. Estimating that even half of the capitalization of Big Business was nothing but water, then 28 per cent. of the $65, or $18.20 per annum per bread winner, would be the predatory "velvet" of the trusts. Is this sufficient to lay the high cost of living at the doors of Big Business?

The idea, fostered by socialists and unsuccessful merchants and manufacturers, that combinations monopolize and depend upon that monopoly for their trade has gained much popularity of late; but on inspection this idea is soon relegated to the limbo of similar ideas regarding the unscrupulousness of Big Business. Mr. Fay shows that, with the exception of the Pullman Company, the Mercantile Marine Company, the Harvester Company, the Tobacco and Standard Oil trusts, the powder and the shoe machinery trusts (all of which give reliable, efficient and reasonably priced service,) there is not a trust in existence which does not have to meet strong competition. DEFENCE OF TRUSTS.

BIG BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT. By Charles Norman Fay. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

CHARLES NORMAN FAY'S book, "Big Business and Government," is an excellent antidote for inefficients who cry out against big business, for newspapers which pander to the prejudices of the illiterate, for platitudinarians, for Socialists, and for other misinformed and hysterical persons who denounce the practices of all capitalists.

While "Big Business and Government" is in the form of an apologia for the trusts, so much hard common sense, so much careful reason, so much logic, so many facts and statistics have been brought into its pages that it forms an arresting document of counter-argument for the chronic complainers. Mr. Fay is neither a professor of statistics nor a mere theorist. The mathematics of Karl Marx and the platitudes of Dr. Washington Gladden fail to impress him. He knows trusts from the inside as well as from the outside. He has been intimately connected with some of the largest enterprises in America, and has also suffered the fate of being an unsuccessful competitor against the trusts. Having the double point of view of the capitalists and of the small business man, he is able to see the matter in its entirety. His book is the outcome of long experience and observation.

In the first place, his book does much to quash the general idea that a trust, no matter what its methods and prices, can monopolize business. Mr. Fay shows definitely that efficiency is the only sustaining quality in any business, no matter what the size or scope of that business. He points out that the only successful trusts are those which kill competition by legitimate means; namely, by cutting prices, by giving better services, by extending credit, and by dealing in superior goods. He also shows that every trust which has sought to fatten by the forcing of prices and by the dissemination of an inferior commodity, has failed. The law of supply and demand is as inexorable as the law of gravity, and governs trusts as it governs smaller enterprises. Furthermore, Mr. Fay shows that the basis of the "popular" movement against big business is to be found in the envy of those who have been unsuccessful in business, or incompetent in judgment, and that this movement has been fanned into flame by an unscrupulous demagogy. He goes deeper and points out that this attack upon commercial ability can result only detrimentally to the very people who are making the fight.

The prevalent superstition that trusts are monopolistic, and that unscrupulous dealings take the place of ability and efficient service, is blasted by the history of trusts which have endeavored to operate along these lines, and have failed. No better example of this failure is to be found than in the record of the typewriter trust, which formed in 1892. Mr. Fay was not in the trust, but an outsider, independently bucking the combination. Here was a trust which had every advantage of being a monopoly since there was no difficulty known to commerce which was not present in its acute form in any attempt at competition with it; but the moment two new makes of typewriters were put on the market, which met the current prices and gave the service of the trust machines, immediately the public bought those articles. The trust was necessitated to reform. It underwent a general housecleaning and threw out its inferior machines; it lowered prices; and today its share of the world's output is only about 25 to 30 per cent. Thus the minute that legitimate competition, no matter how small, enters the market, the trusts are necessitated to meet it. There is no possible way for trusts to monopolize efficiency. It was the same with the steel trust and the sugar trust. Their normal size was not proof against competition. The independent concerns found no difficulty in selling their goods, provided they met the trust prices with the best class of material, and the successful bucking of both the steel and the sugar trust by smaller combinations has proved conclusively that size can never insure against competition, and that inflated capitalization cannot demand inflated prices—but to the contrary, that any attempt on the part of a trust to force prices, or to produce inferior goods invites and stimulates competition the world over.

Mr. Fay points to the history of the white lead trust, which was formed in the early eighties, and the American Ice Company, and the International Mercantile Marine Company, formed by the great Morgan house in 1902, to show how any form of legitimate competition can completely riddle a combination, no matter how much money there is back of the trust, and no matter what its size. The failure of these three trusts shows that the law of the survival of the fittest, which is and ever has been the basis of all commercial activities, holds even in the largest of trade combinations.

In this connection, an interesting tabulation from the 1910 census is made, and I copy it here as an eloquent argument against the so-called robbery perpetrated against the poor man. Of the 92,000,000 people in the United States, 35,000,000 were employed bread winners; therefore, the entire cost for Big Business, for interest on capital, for profits, dividend and undivided, was, in round numbers, $65 per annum per bread winner. Estimating that even half the capitalization of Big Business is nothing but water, then 28 per cent. of the $65, or $18.20 per annum per bread winner, would be the robbery "velvet" of the trusts. Is it sufficient to lay the high cost of living at the doors of Big Business?

The idea, fostered by socialists and unsuccessful merchants and manufacturers, that combinations monopolize and depend upon that monopoly for their trade has gained much currency of late; but on inspection the idea is soon relegated to the limbo of similar ideas regarding the unscrupulousness of Big Business. Mr. Fay shows that, with the exception of the Pullman Company, the Mercantile Marine Company, the Smelter Company, the Tobacco and Standard Oil trusts, the powder and the shoe machinery trusts (all of which give reliable, efficient and reasonably priced service,) there is not a trust in existence which does not need to meet strong competition. By figures and citations, he shows that the commercial position of these trusts is maintained wholly through their moderate prices, the superior quality of their goods, their facilities for doing business, their service and credit, and their powerful organization.

Taking up the matter of the oft-reiterated oratory concerning "special privilege," Mr. Fay says: "Let the reader look for himself at the big trusts and say what single privilege any one of them enjoyed or now enjoys that was not, at the beginning, open to everybody, except rights under patent and trade-mark laws, conferring monopoly, and tariffs shutting out foreign competition; all of which are in conformity with our settled public policy, for the promotion of invention, the protection of the fruits of past industry, and the development of our domestic trade."

This perfervid cry of "special privilege" comes largely from those shortsighted and incompetent persons who do not and did not take advantage of the opportunities open to them. Upon investigation this denunciation as criminal of men who have taken advantage openly of existing laws proves little more than whining. "Special privilege" does not explain the success of trusts in a single instance. The power of combination does not signify an ability to destroy competition; and monopoly is merely another word for efficiency. With the exception of the powder trust, Big Business has succeeded in proportion to its actual superiority to Little Business, and even the powder trust's stronghold upon trade is due more to its broad facilities for delivery, storage, and safe handling of explosives than to its monopolistic activities. In short, only as a trust proves itself to be an actual benefit to the community can it prosper.

Into the forced competition so many elements enter as to make legislation along this line either inconsistent or ineffective. All attempts at enforced competition have proved failures. Competitive principles are too complex and too much a part of the individual. In the matter of tobacco, for instance, a man buys the kind he likes best; he buys it where it is most convenient for him; and he buys it of the man who personally is pleasing. Because of these many personal, and often whimsical, elements which enter into the law of competition, complete monopoly is as impossible in commerce as it is in the more sentimental affairs of life, such as preferring blondes to brunettes, or felt hats to derbies, or apple pie to tapioca puddings. The law of supply and demand has to be met, even by trusts, and no form of monopoly, however extensive, and no amount of over-capitalization, can ever alter the great balance of compensation.

The labor union trust is no exception to the general laws underlying any form of enterprise, and its failure in the past has been due to those very conditions which have accounted for the failure of other trusts. Statistics reveal the significant fact that far less than one-tenth of the laboring men in the United States are unionites. Even in this small proportion, success might have been greater had the principle of unionism been "efficiency" and not "inefficiency." The labor trust's idea has been to render the smallest equivalent of work for the largest amount of pay. Taking the record of 37,000 strikes and 1500 lockouts, we find that in every instance where the labor unions have won their success has been the result of their willingness to make their labor efficient, and that in every case in which they have lost their defeat has been due to their attempt to foist inefficiency upon the market. In every instance, however, wages adjusted themselves automatically in accordance with the law of supply and demand. Had the labor monopoly been conducted with the same breadth of purpose at the bottom of other trusts, labor unions might today be successful organizations. But they have failed, like every other great organization which has endeavored to foster incompetency and inefficiency; and they will continue to fail until they adopt the businesslike methods of those very trusts against which they are waging their bitter and unscrupulous warfare. The power of the labor trust has been as overestimated as the power of other trusts, for it has had to meet vigorous competition. It has been shown that the attempt to control the labor market by trade unionism does not materially affect results.

An instance of organized efficiency is shown by the fact that the slaughter-houses of Chicago can bring cattle all the way from Texas and Montana to Chicago; dress, hang and ice the beef, and then haul it back to the very towns whence it came and (after paying freight two ways) compete with the beef grown and dressed on the spot. It stands to reason that this method could not be successful unless trust business was done with a maximum of efficiency and a minimum of profit. The accusation of socialists and malcontents that the advance in the price of meat has been due to the monopolistic manipulation is shown to be ridiculous by the fact that in England, where there is no beef trust, prices advanced over 75 per cent. between 1896 and 1908. The fact that farm lands have doubled in value since 1900 is overlooked by the muckrakers.

The author of "The Stake," who writes under the pen name of Jay Cady, is an active business man, whose daily life is occupied with important responsibilities. The writing of fiction is his mental recreation, and the incidents and events of each day form a panorama from which he is able to draw some of the character sketches which are found in his works. In "The Stake," which is a story of the New England coast, the quaint New England characters all have prototypes in real life.

W. Morgan Shuster's forthcoming book, "The Strangling of Persia," is based upon British and Persian State papers, supplemented by a private diary kept by the former treasurer-general of Persia during the entire period of his stay in the country.

From Atlanta, where she has been spending a few weeks, comes the news that Corra Harris, author of "The Recording Angel," is writing a new story. Mrs. Harris calls the book "The Co-Citizens," but she refuses even to guess when it will be finished.

OWEN JOHNSON.

Some Biographical Facts and Characteristics of the Author of "Stover at Yale."

Owen Johnson,
Author of "Stover at Yale."

A BIG man physically, broad shouldered and poised, a crack golfer, a man who can box and swim; a big man intellectually, with the culture of France and Germany as well as an intense interest in real American life of the streets and counting-houses; a big man emotionally, loving even the college society systems whose abuse, he declares, is so injurious to the American educational system—such is Owen Johnson, the author of "Stover at Yale."

He is the product of the best in American life. His father, Robert Underwood Johnson, is the editor of the Century Magazine. An uncle, Henry Underwood Johnson, United States Representative from Indiana, was one of the first insurgents, and his grandfather, Judge Nimrod Johnson, was Governor of Indiana.

Owen Johnson was born in New York City—one of the few writers thus distinguished, though so many live in that city; 1878 was his birth year, making him only 34 in 1912. Young though he is, he has been writing steadily for seventeen years, and instead of being a beginner, is one of the most sternly trained writers in the world.

A WRITER AT 6.

In fact, his literary career was started at the age of 6, when he received $1 for a story published in St. Nicholas—a sum which then seemed greater than the ten to twenty thousand dollars he now receives for a serial. With the son of Richard Watson Gilder, the boy Johnson published a paper, made by hand even if not made "Roycroftie," called "The Chimney Seat," for the benefit of the Washington memorial arch. The date of issue was given as "published as often as we can get it out." Two numbers were issued.

Johnson attended the Morse school, New York, then Lawrenceville—whence came his famous stories, such as "The Varmint." Here he founded the "Lawrenceville Lit.," a college paper with an idea behind it for he demanded of his contributors that they write of things they really knew as they really saw them; "interpret, don't invent," he demanded. Already he had reached the principle which still in "Stover at Yale" is behind his writing.

SCHOOL-DAY PRANKS.

Johnson was by no means all literary in Lawrenceville, though he had begun to love culture for its own sake. A good many of the devious wiles attributed to various boys in his Lawrenceville stories are reminiscences of his own pranks.

At Yale, Johnson was editor-in-chief of the Yale Lit and a fraternity man—though he joined in the attack on the sophomore societies as he pictures Dink Stover doing. He began his first novel, "Arrows of the Almighty," in his senior year, published it the following year, and went to Paris for three years, where he wrote "In the Name of Liberty." Returning to this country, he wrote "Max Fargus," a powerful tale of New York shyster lawyers and their victims, as realistic as "Stover" or the Lawrenceville stories, but, unlike his sturdy optimism of today, colored with gloom as intense as that found in Masefield or Andreyeff.

His first great success was with his Lawrenceville stories, "The Prodigious Hickey," and others. Meantime he had also strayed into other fields. It was he who persuaded Nazimova to learn English and stay in this country. One of the favorite plays in Nazimova's repertoire is "The Comet," by Johnson. He recently adapted from the French of Donnay "The Return of Jerusalem," in which Mme. Simone made a decided success. Now a number of theatrical managers are speaking of the dramatic possibilities of "Stover at Yale," which may be dramatized for next season.

A FIGHTER.

Owen Johnson is not merely a writer—he is a thinker and a fighter for his opinions. Not only is he a thorough-going realist, with a sense of humor, but he wants to see remedies applied to the evils which every realist cannot help seeing. He calls "Stover at Yale" his most important novel, because it not only deals with collegiate problems and personalities, but also faces the big problems of democracy as it applies to America in general. In "Stover" he is thinking of how "our motored aristocracy" has come to rule American cities, from San Diego to Bangor, just as much as he is thinking of fraternity rule on the pleasant New Haven campus, though he happens to have chosen that latter spot for the scene of his novel. At the same time, of course, Owen Johnson is not a propagandist; he is an artist, and a maker of interesting tales.

Mr. Johnson divides most of his time between a beautiful New York studio apartment, his summer home at Stockbridge, where he chases a golfball over the Berkshires, and Europe, where his wife, known on the stage as Esther Cobina, sings in grand opera.

A HUMAN HIGHBROW.

Most biographies of authors devote no small space to the author's opinions. But that Johnson hates hasty and machine-made fiction; that he has a conscience (which once made him tear up a whole novel because he couldn't get it just right;) that he is a lover of Turgenieff and Flaubert, Balzac and Pouskkin; these are evident enough from his own writing—his significant novels and plays. Johnson is, however, not what gay Dink Stover would call a "high-brow." That is, though he does love the strenuously intellectual in art, he does not make of himself a bore by frowning on the homely taste of "just plain folks." For, first of all, he has a sense of humor. Not only in the pranks which make up most of "The Tennessee Shad," and diversify the more serious "Stover at Yale," does that shine forth, but in his daily life. An anecdote for proof:

In golf there is a rule that a ball falling into a pool of rain water, or "casual water," may be drawn out. Now it chances that Johnson was golfing with Julian Street at Stockbridge. Street was in his merriest mood, and one of his stream of epigrams made Johnson laugh so hard, just as he was driving, that the ball landed in long grass. Solemnly Johnson went over and brought the ball to the edge of the grass patch. "Hey—for why?" protested Street. "Taking the ball out of casual remarks," replied Johnson, in defense.

BOOK NOTES.

Fans have been looking forward to the appearance of Christy Mathewson's "Pitching in a Pinch," just published by the Putnams, as one of the events of the baseball season. Like John N. Wheeler, who writes an introduction to the volume, one feels that "introducing a reader to Christy Mathewson is a superfluous piece of writing and a waste of white paper." Suffice it to say that in "Pitching in a Pinch," the star pitcher of the New York Giants has written the real book of the big leaguers, a book in which the style of play of Matty's formidable opponents is told by one who is a master of the fine points of the game. The contents gives a good indication of the interesting experiences on the diamond that may be looked for in this volume: The Most Dangerous Batters I Have Met—"Take Him Out!"—Pitching in a Pinch—Big League Pitchers and Their Peculiarities—Playing the Game from the Bench—Coaching, Good and Bad—Honest and Dishonest Sign Stealing—Umpires and Close Decisions—The Game That Cost a Pennant—When the Teams Are in Spring Training—Jinxes and What They Mean to a Ball Player—Base-Runners and How They Help a Pitcher to Win—Notable Instances Where the "Inside" Game Has Failed.

The late Prof. William James of Harvard finally gave utterance to a doctrine which he regarded as of more fundamental importance than his widely known "pragmatism." He called it "Radical Empiricism," and his new book, which will be published immediately by the Longmans, is a consecutive and orderly exposition of this tenet. William James's books are said to have a special vogue at present in that part of London society which is known as "Intellectuals," sharing that vogue with the productions of Bergson.

Benson V. Lossing is a name more familiar to readers of the last generation than to this, perhaps for the reason an author's name is not intimately associated with the kind of book he wrote. The sale of his remarkable library this week has called forth many anecdotes of him—one that he travelled over 8000 miles in the thirteen original States to collect the material for his "Pictorial Field Book of the Revolution." Another elaborate journey was necessary before he wrote his "History of the War of 1812." Lossing also was the author of "History of the United States For Boys," and of the ten-volumed work of "Harper's Encyclopedia of United States History."

Doubleday, Page & Company anounce the publication this week of three more books of their long Spring list. They are: "A Son of the Sun," by Jack London, illustrated by Fisher and Ashley, a series of stories of the South Seas dealing with the adventures of one man. Considered as a whole, the stories make up a complete novel. "Fairy Tales a Child Can Read and Act," by Lillian E. Nixon, profusely illustrated. "The Merchant of Venice," arranged by Ben Greet, illustrated and decorated uniformly with the other volumes of the Ben Greet Shakespeare.

"Socialism and the Great State," published this week by the Harpers, contains H. G. Well's restatement of the whole range of socialistic thinking. Mr. Wells crystallizes it into his conception of the Great State, and adds a subtitle, "Essays in Construction." Following Mr. Well's presentation of the subject, several other writers take up various phases of the Great State. Among them are Sir Ray Lankester and the Countess of Warwick.

"The Expert Waitress," by Anne Frances Springsteed, which has been a standard manual for years, is republished this week by the Harpers as an entirely new, rewritten, and completely reset book. The author found that the customs and methods of service had undergone many changes. She has made a study of what is most approved among the new forms, and presents "The Expert Waitress" as a modern safe guide.

Now that everybody is reading Bergson, considerable interest attaches to the Longman's announcement of "Modern Science and the Illusions of Prof. Bergson," by Hugh R. S. Elliot, who edited the letters of John Stuart Mill. Other books to be published immediately by this house include Capt. Duchene's "The Mechanics of the Aeroplane," "Selected Addresses,' by Ex-President James B. Angell, and "The Authority of Religious Experience," by Dr. Slattery, rector of Grace Church, New York.

Louise Closser Hale, author of the recent novel, "The Married Miss Worth," and also of "The Actress," sails this week. On arriving in Europe, she will begin a motor tour for pleasure and also for the purpose of gathering material to use in another novel. She will be joined later by May Wilson Preston, who made the pictures for "The Rubaiyat of Bridge," and other books.

New editions of Alice Hegan Rice's "Sandy" and "Captain June," are printing. The forty-fourth edition of that author's first great success, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," is selling.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

"Freckles," the first "best seller" written by Gene Stratton-Porter, has been dramatized, and for the last two weeks has been making a very successful tour of New York State. After the play has been thoroughly tried out, it will be given a metropolitan production. The appealing story has lost nothing by the dramatization, and big things are predicted for it. Mrs. Stratton-Porter's new book, "Moths of the Limberlost," is scheduled for publication in June.

The romantic story of "The Escape of Prince Krapotkin"—"in originality of conception and ingenuity of execution * * * probably unparalleled in prison annals," says Mr. Kennan—will be told in the June "Century" by George Kennan. Mr. Kennan obtained the facts of this narrative from Mr. Ivanchin-Pisarey, who was one of the chief conspirators. "I intended to write down the story years ago," Mr. Kennan said recently, "but Krapotkin himself wouldn't let me, for the reason that the Russian police didn't know how it was managed, and he didn't want them to know."

Fame is not always what it seems. George Randolph Chester walked into a book store in Philadelphia kept by an Englishman, and made some purchases. "Ah, Chester!" said the Englishman, his eyes lighting as he wrote the delivery address. "You have a very famous name, Mr. Chester. It is known all over the world." The author of "Five Thousand an Hour," attempted to blush and look embarrassed. "Why—er—I believe," he faltered. "Yes," went on the bookseller with relish; "I don't suppose there is a corner of the globe where Chester cheese is not known and appreciated. It's such splendid cheese, you know."

Is the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta to have a writer of best sellers, just as the Minnesota Penitentiary produced John Carter, the poet? A highly important question; for the Atlanta institution has, to date, produced only great financiers. Also the problem of crime and high art is involved, together with the question of whether reading of how he won her is better for reformation than shoemaking. The following list of best sellers lacking in the penitentiary library, was compiled by a prisoner, and the warden is earnestly asking for copies: "House of Mirth," "The Shuttle," "The Garden of Allah," "The Lady of the Decoration," "Old Wives for New," "The Jungle," "White Mice," "The Clansman," "Pam Decides," "The Weavers," "Conquest of Canaan," and "My Friend the Chauffeur."

"The Pool of Answers" (one of the plays in Anne A. T. Craig's "Dramatic Festival," a volume in two parts, the first devoted to the consideration of a department for folk-plays in schools and playgrounds; the second presenting forms of plays and festivals appropriate to the progressive school period) is to make its debut on the outdoor stage. The play will be presented on Dr. Wellington Massee's estate in Bronxville, N. Y. It is not to be performed by juveniles, nor as a school fete, but will be elaborately staged. "The Dramatic Festival" will appear early in June under the imprint of the Putnams.

One of the many interesting events of Samuel Merwin's editorship of "Success Magazine," was his six-months' trip through China studying the opium problem. His new book, "The Citadel," which will present in fiction form many of the same problems discussed in Walter Weyl's "New Democracy," follows "His Little World," "The Road Builders," etc., and, in joint authorship, "Calumet K.," "The Short Line War," etc. "The Citadel" was one of the Century Company's issues, May 29.

"One reason which Mark Twain gave for insisting upon his anonymity in connection with the publication of his famous book, "Joan of Arc," says J. Henry Harper, author of "The House of Harper," just published, "was the fact that the public had generally formed the opinion that his pseudonym stood only for humorous entertainmeet, so that a historical romance, like "Joan of Arc," to which he had given years of study and research, would be an imposition on his audience if issued over his usual literary signature."

Prominent adherents of the Montessori method of teaching children are warning the public against imitations of it. Prof. Arthur O. Norton of Harvard, a member of the American Montessori Committee, says, "The great danger is that Dr. Montessori's plan will be tried all over the country by ill-trained teachers, and that, after a year or two, the whole movement will collapse as have many other alleged educational panaceas in the past. Dr. Montessori is entirely right in feeling that the first need now is that of teachers competent to train other teachers." Prof. Henry W. Holmes of Harvard, who wrote the introduction to Mme. Montessori's own book, published under the title of "The Montessori Method," by Stokes, this spring, also comments, "We do not want the Montessori scheme judged by results for which only a little use of the materials has been responsible."

The young man or woman who contemplates combining a college course and self-support will be surprised to learn how practicable is that apparently hard task. In "Working One's Way Through College and University" (McClurg,) Calvin Dill Wilson tells of a Yale student who regretted that his father did not compel him to pay his own way, as he would have obtained more good than he did when his way was paid. Commenting on this, Mr. Wilson says: "This change of attitude toward the self-helpers is one of the most notable facts of present-day college life. Possibly from the beginning of colleges in America, these institutions, or many of them, owned farms, on which certain of the students worked for tuition or board, or both. These 'poor' youths were in a category by themselves and were 'looked down on' by those whose pockets were well lined by their fathers. A line of social difference was drawn between the farming pupockets were well lined by their parents. Self-support now closes no doors of fraternities, athletics, or respect. This surely is a healthy, normal condition in a republic. The Yale bureau explicitly claims that 'the student who is working his way does not lose social standing therefore. A student who has to earn his living, and, in spite of that handicap, attains high rank of any sort, is especially regarded and applauded.' "

WITH THE AUTHORS

So keenly has Corra Harris, author of "The Recording Angel," just published by Doubleday, Page & Co., analyzed the mind and heart of woman in her books, that one of the questions she is always asked by interviewers is, "What do you think of woman suffrage?" To a friend, the other day, Mrs. Harris said she invariably found it extremely difficult to explain her position. "I will say this," she added, "I have a sympathy and a respect for every movement which is grounded in sincerity. As for myself, though, I don't want to be disturbed. I can approve of any activity which is not of gross origin or intention, but I don't want to be in any of them. I first want to be left to my pen, my prayers, and my knitting feelings. I am in a path beside the roadside of life—an observer, but with all friendliness to those who pass by."

C. J. Cutcliffe-Hyne, whose thrilling story of the sea, "The Marriage of Captain Kettle," has just been published, early resolved to follow the sea as a means of livelihood. He was reared in an English coast town, and, although his father was a vicar of the Anglican church, young Hyne did not take kindly to classical pursuits. Life in the open appealed to him strongly, and, although after finishing his preparatory school education he gave up his boyish idea of becoming a sailor, he took an engineering course at Cambridge, because he thought this profession would give him the chance to seek the adventure he loved. He has traveled all over the world, and has been a sailor from force of circumstances, for many times in his wanderings he was without money and was never ashamed to work his passage.

Kate Langley Bosher, who spent the week in New York to meet the booksellers at their national meeting, still denies that she is literary, although she has written three books in three years—"The Man in Lonely Land" having just been published. "At a reception some time ago," said Mrs. Bosher, "I was introduced to a woman who looked me over and inquired: 'Are you the Mrs. Bosher who writes?' I admitted that I was, and hung my head. 'Oh, you needn't feel badly about it,' she said; 'if you don't tell it, nobody would ever guess it from looking at you.' "

NEW BOOKS.

The following are the more important publications among the recent books in all branches of letters. The inclusion of any book in the following list indicates that the book is of especial interest or merit in its particular field:

FICTION.

"A Son of the Sun," by Jack London. (Doubleday Page & Co.) David Grief, a true son of the sun, risks all and wins much in his search for adventure on the islands of the Southern Seas.

"The Just and the Unjust," by Vaughan Kester. (Bobbs Merrill.) The Middle West is the scene of this unusual treatment of a murder and its consequences, by the author of "The Prodigal Judge."

"The Lighted Way," by E. Phillips Oppenheim. (Little, Brown & Co.) The attempt to bring about a revolution in Portugal creates many exciting adventures and mysteries among the financiers and politicians here dealt with.

"The Street Called Straight," by the author of "The Inner Shrine." (Harper & Bros.) Idealistic motives are the guide to conduct in the life of a son of missionaries, and some of his deeds, misinterpreted, lead to romantic complications.

"Eve Triumphant," by Pierre de Coulevain. (G. P. Putnam Sons.) Translated from the French by Alys Hallard. Two American women and their ways in Europe are described from the standpoint of the European in this novel, which has been crowned by the French Academy.

"The Citadel: A Romance of Unrest," by Samuel Merwin. (Century Company.) Deals with social and political conditions of today, and describes the love story of a radical Congressman with a girl working in the biological bureau of the Department of Agriculture.

"Fox Farm," by Warwick Deeping. (Cassell & Co., Ltd.) The pleasures and pains of vagabondage are revealed in this story of a blind man's love for a girl.

BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY.

"Prehistoric Thessaly," by A. J. B. Wace., M. A., and M. S. Thompson, B. A. (G. P. Putnam Sons.) Embodies all the available archaeological evidences regarding the prehistoric period of Northeastern Greece, from Lake Kopais to the borders of Macedonia, with a full account of the authors' own recent excavations.

"Recollections of a Court Painter," by H. Jones Thaddeus, R. H. A. (John Lane Company.) Descriptions of the author-artist's life in many large European cities, with amusing anecdotes of many eminent Europeans with whom he came in contact.

"The War of the 'Sixties," compiled by E. R. Hutchins. (Neale Publishing Company.) Informal anecdotes and incidents of the Civil War gained directly from survivors of both the Union and the Confederate armies and navies.

"My Memoirs," by Marguerite Steinheil. (Sturgis & Walton Company.) The autobiography of a brilliant French woman whose recent trial for murder attracted international interest.

"Life of Edward Fitzgerald Beale, A Pioneer in the Path of Empire, 1822-1903," by Stephen Bonsal. (G. P. Putnam Sons.) A memoir of a prominent pioneer and explorer of the West, and chiefly in the region of Southern California, shortly after the gold period of 1847.

"A Great Russian Realist" (Feodor Dostoieffsky,) by J. A. T. Lloyd. (John Lane Company.) Tells in an interesting manner the story of the great Russian novelist's sad and varied career.

"A History of the Eastern Roman Empire," by J. B. Bury. (Macmillan Company.) An intensive study of the period of Byzantine civilization from the Fall of Irene to the Accession of Basil I (A.D. 802-867.)

GENERAL LITERATURE.

"A Kipling Dictionary," edited by Arthur W. Young. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) Contains nearly four thousand entries of titles, outlines of plots, and records of the names and characters of Kipling's men and women.

"Shakespeare: A Study," by Darrell Figgis. (Mitchell Kennerley.) The author's aim is to determine the influences affecting the great English dramatist and his work, rather than to give mere praise or appraisal of the man.

"The Secret of the Pacific," by C. Reginald Enoch, F.R.G.S. (Charles Scribner's Sons.) Presents evidence in the light of the author's own researches and travels, for and against the assumed Asiatic origin of the Aztecs and Incas.

"Best Books: A Reader's Guide to the Choice of Best Available Books," by William Swan Sonnenschein. (G. P. Putnam Sons.) Revised edition, part II, containing bibliographies of the following subjects: Society, geography, ethnology, travel and topography.

"A Book of Scoundrels," by Charles Whibley. (E. P. Dutton.) Moll Cutpurse, Jonathan Wild, and other brave scoundrels of the past are here dealt with.

"Aeroplane Designing for Amateurs," by Victor Loughead. (Reilly & Britton Co.) An account of the theory and practice of aeroplane designing and building by an aeronautical expert.

"Modern English Books of Power," by George Hamlin Fitch. (Paul Elder Company, San Francisco.) Stimulating sketches on the personality of the great English writers, from Macaulay to Kipling.

"The Great Star Map," by H. H. Turner, D. Sc. (E. P. Dutton.) An account of the international project of making an astrographic, or detailed photographic map of the stars.

"Poetry and Prose," by Adolphus Alfred Jack. (E. P. Dutton.) Essays on representative modern poets—Burns, Wordsworth, Byron, Emerson, and others—embodying an analysis of poetry as the language of feeling.

"Playmaking: A Manual of Craftsman ship,' by William Archer. (Small, Maynard Co.) Practical suggestions for the amateur playwright and students of the drama on the principles and methods of playwriting.

"A History of French Literature," by C.H. Conrad Wright, A. B. (Oxford University Press.) A comprehensive and discriminating survey of French literature from the Middle Ages to the present day, with bibliography and index.

DRAMA AND VERSE.

"The Book of Love," by Elsa Barker. (Duffield & Co.) A volume of miscellaneous verse by the author of "The Frozen Grail and Other Poems."

"Two Plays by Tchekhof: The Sea Gulls and the Cherry Orchard," translated with introduction and notes, by George Calderon. (Mitchell Kennerley.) In these plays, the Russian dramatist is represented at the two extremes of pure comedy and pure tragedy, with his characteristic unconventionality and mixture of both.

"The Sonnets and Ballate of Guido Cavalcanti," with translation and introduction by Erza Pound. (Small, Maynard & Co.) Poems by the friend and inspirer of Dante, rendered into English by a translator who has attracted attention by reason of his puzzling poetic theory and the originality of his meter.

"Poems," by William Sharp, selected and arranged by Mrs. William Sharp. (Duffield & Co.) Embodies the best of Mr. Sharp's verse, published over his own name, rather than the pseudonym of "Fiona Macleod."

Miss Willa S. Cather, author of "Alexander's Bridge," was born in Virginia, and reared in Nebraska, but has spent most of her life in Pittsburgh and New York.

Classified Liners.

Times Classified rates: The rate for inserting Want Ads. in The Daily Times is 1c per word for each insertion; in the Sunday issue, 1½c per word each insertion; minimum charge, 15c; except under following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word, minimum charge 30 cents: "Society Meetings," "Personals," "Special Notices," "Church Notices, Miscellaneous," and "Baths and Massage."

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before 8 o'clock Saturday night. Other classified "Wants," "To Lets," etc., received over counter or by telephone until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads. received after closing hours for each division will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify." Rates, same per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 80,000 copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the [illegible] other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up "The Times" any time of day or night and insure prompt and careful attention.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occurring in telephoned advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times in payment for "liners," as no mistake can be rectified without them.

ONE-TIME NOTICES—

[This classification is especially intended to cover announcements wherein the ELEMENT OF TIMELINESS is an essential feature, such as urgent notices of all kinds, assessment, dividend and company-meeting notices, fraternal-society notices (funeral notices excepted,) special bargain offers, with notices calling attention to advertisements in some other part of the paper, and all events to occur on any certain early date named. No standing advertisement accepted for this classification.]

VARICOSE Veins in the Leg.
Big Knotted Veins, Bad Legs, etc. Cured WITHOUT CUTTING or tying the veins. Average time, two months. No detention from business. No operation or appliance. I can cure 98 per cent. of all cases, man or woman. I must apply first treatment myself. My secret mixture positively cures. I absolutely remove cramps, pain, swelling, tiredness and disease, and it stays so. My cures astonish the people everywhere. Doctors themselves look on amazed and puzzled, for I do what they all believed was impossible. EASY, SAFE, SURE. If I can't cure, I won't take you. Don't procrastinate. Prominent Los Angeles officials and citizens and others far off are cured and abundantly satisfied, and they will be glad to talk with you about it. Patients treated ten to fifteen years ago stay cured. Please send this notice to some afflicted one. O. E. EDICK, M.D., C.M., 815 S. Olive. Hours 10-12. No Sunday hours. Los Angeles, Cal.

PERSONAL—
THE WORLD'S GREATEST PSYCHIC
BYRON L. STANLEY.
BETWEEN SECOND AND THIRD STS.
NEAR ANGELS' FLIGHT.
247—S. HILL STREET—247
ALL READINGS REDUCED FOR SHORT TIME.
$1.00—READINGS—$1.00.

BYRON L. STANLEY fully appreciates that in this day of sensational advertisements there are more false claims and misrepresentations chaperoned through the columns of the daily press than the most hypenitial tongue could utter in a lifetime, until one cannot be blamed for doubting almost everything they read. Therefore he asks you to come to him this very day and let him give you a complete reading, telling you your hope, fear or ambition, better than you could explain yourself. He will tell you the bad as well as the good; keeping nothing hidden from you. He will tell you everything upon matters of love, marriage, divorce, business, health; in fact, he will read your life like an open book.

Before you go into anything of importance or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychics.

ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. IT IS THE CHEAPEST IN THE END. IT IS BETTER TO CONSULT NO PSYCHIC THAN ONE WHO IS NOT ABLE TO HELP YOU. DON'T [illegible].

The name STANLEY is a double guarantee. See the real life reader who [illegible] tells what you desire to know [illegible]. A foolish weakling only will pay for a reading that gives no benefit. [illegible]

Don't struggle [illegible] burden you can divide. A troubled mind begets a morbid conscience. Friendly consolation and timely advice heal the worst of wounds. Be advised and relieved of anxiety.

Realizing that [illegible] has been overrun with pretenders, and that many of its best citizens are anxious to visit a genuine psychic, Mr. Stanley has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.

Finding many deserving people who were not able to pay a large fee he has decided for a short time to place his readings within the reach of all at live and let-live prices.

LEGITIMATE, SCIENTIFIC, ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS OF THE OCCULT INTELLIGENCE OF TRUTHFUL PALMISTRY, FROM THE HAND OF EACH CALLER.

If you contemplate consulting a psychic several things should be taken into consideration—ABILITY, the HONESTY of methods, the FAIRNESS of dealings, the HIGHER degree of work, the ACCURACY of each prediction, the COMMON SENSE used with it, the INTEREST taken in each case, the RESPECT shown to each caller, the fact of SECRECY in consultation, the FEE charged for services.

To whom it may concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. STANLEY, as a life reader of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental psychism. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his advices.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial condition, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

PERSONAL—
PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,
NOTED PALMIST AND ASTROLOGER OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.
REMOVED TO THE NEW STUDIO PARLORS, HOTEL MILTON, 539½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 25 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or to avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—giving dates of these events for the future.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Mary Mannering, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED WORK with his trained judment must in no wise be classed with that of other readers. Therefore do not waste your money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics—those doing dishonest work.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING gives also an ASTROLOGICAL READING.

DR. J. A. LARSEN writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life; I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and reliable of any reader in the United States."

FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was most SATISFACTORY. Your knowledge and skill is REMARKABLE."

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."

MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes for friends of mine."

The interpretation of a Horoscope is a fine art; the percentage of "GENUINE" astrologers is exceedingly small. To know a little of astrology out of books, and to be a skillfully trained, EXPERIENCED ASTROLOGER, are two entirely different things. Therefore, in this work, it depends largely WHO it is that reads you as to the RESULTS obtained.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and hand reading has brought him a LARGE AND SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention. Strict privacy. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can produce. Therefore HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Daily and evening; Sunday, 10 to 2.
STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.

Classified Liners.

Times Classified rates: The rate for inserting Want Ads. in The Daily Times is 1c per word for each insertion; in the Sunday issue, 1½c per word each insertion; minimum charge, 25c; except under following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word, minimum charge 30 cents: "Society Meetings," "Personals," "Special Notices," "Church Notices, Miscellaneous," and "Baths and Massage."

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before 8 o'clock Saturday night. Other classified "Wants," "To Lets," etc., received over counter or by telephone until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads. received after closing hours for each division will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify." Rates, 1½c per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 80,000 copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up "The Times" any time of day or night and secure prompt and careful attention.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occurring in telephoned advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times in payment for "liners," as a mistake can be rectified without them.

ONE-TIME NOTICES—

[This classification is especially intended to cover announcements wherein the ELEMENT OF TIMELINESS is an essential feature, such as urgent notices of all kinds, assessment, dividend and company-meeting notices, fraternal-society notices (funeral notices excepted,) special bargain offers, with notices calling attention to advertisements in some other part of the paper, and all events to occur on any certain early date named. No standing advertisement accepted for this classification.]

VARICOSE Veins in the Leg.
Big Knotted Veins, Bad Legs, etc.
Cured WITHOUT CUTTING or tying the veins. Average time, two months. No detention from business. No operation or appliance. I can cure 92 per cent. of all cases, man or woman. I must apply first treatment myself. My secret mixture positively cures. I absolutely remove cramps, pain, swelling, tiredness and disease, and it stays so. My cures astonish the people everywhere. Doctors themselves look on amazed and puzzled, for I do what they all believed was impossible. EASY, SAFE, SURE. If I can't cure, I won't try. Don't procrastinate. Prominent Los Angeles officials and citizens and others far off cured and abundantly satisfied, and they will be glad to talk with you about it. Patients cured ten to fifteen years ago stay cured. Please call this notice to some afflicted one. C. B. EDICK, M.D., C.M., 815 S. Olive. Hours 10-12. No Sunday hours. Los Angeles, Cal.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST PSYCHIC
BYRON L. STANLEY.
BETWEEN SECOND AND THIRD STS.
NEAR ANGELS' FLIGHT.
347—S. HILL STREET—347
ALL READINGS REDUCED FOR SHORT TIME.
$1.00—READINGS—$1.00.
BYRON L. STANLEY

fully appreciates that in this day of sensational advertisements there are more false claims and misrepresentations chaperoned through the columns of the daily press than the most hypnotial tongue could utter in a lifetime, until one cannot be blamed for doubting almost everything they read. Therefore he says to you—come to him this very day and let him give you a complete reading, telling you every hope, fear or ambition, better than you could explain yourself. He will tell you the bad as well as the good; keeping nothing hidden from you. He will tell you everything about matters of love, marriage, divorce, business, health; in fact, he will read your life like an open book.

Before you go into anything of importance or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychics.

ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. IT IS THE CHEAPEST IN THE END. IT IS BETTER TO CONSULT NO PSYCHIC THAN ONE WHO IS NOT ABLE TO HELP YOU. DON'T [illegible]

The name STANLEY is a double guarantee. See the real life reader, who in truth tells what you desire to know [illegible]. A foolish weakling only will pay for a reading that gives no benefit. [illegible]

Don't struggle [illegible] burden you can divide. A troubled mind begets a morbid conscience. Sympathy, consolation and timely advice heal the worst of wounds. Be advised and relieved of anxiety.

Realising that the city has been overrun with pretenders, and that many of its best citizens are in need of a genuine psychic, Mr. Stanley has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.

Finding many deserving people who were not able to pay a large fee he has decided for a short time to place his readings within the reach of all at live and let-live prices.

LEGITIMATE, SCIENTIFIC, ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS OF THE OCCULT INTELLIGENCE OF TRUTHFUL PALMISTRY, FROM THE HAND OF EACH CALLER.

If you contemplate consulting a psychic several things should be taken into consideration—ABILITY, the HONESTY of methods, the FAIRNESS of dealings, the HIGHER degree of work, the ACCURACY of each prediction, the COMMON SENSE used with it, the INTEREST taken in each case, the RESPECT shown to each caller, the fact of SECRECY in consultation, the FEE charged for services.

To whom it may concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. STANLEY, as a life reader of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental psychism. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his advice.

DR. JOHN WESTERFIELD,
President Indiana State Association of Spiritualists.
Chesterfield (Ind.) September 4, 1898.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 223 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines, that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial condition, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL. MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

PERSONAL—
PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,
NOTED PALMIST AND ASTROLOGER OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION, REMOVED TO THE NEW STUDIO PARLORS, HOTEL MILTON,
539½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 28 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or to avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—giving dates of these events for the future.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Mary Mannering, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED WORK with his trained judment must in no wise be classed with that of other readers. Therefore do not waste your money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics—those doing dishonest work.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING gives also an ASTROLOGICAL READING.

DR. J. A. LARSEN writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life; I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and reliable of any reader in the United States."

FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was most SATISFACTORY. Your knowledge and skill is REMARKABLE."

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."

MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes for friends of mine."

The interpretation of a Horoscope is a fine art; the percentage of "GENUINE" astrologers is exceedingly small. To know a little of astrology out of books, and to be a skillfully trained, EXPERIENCED ASTROLOGER, are two entirely different things. Therefore, in this work, it depends largely WHO it is that reads you as to the RESULTS obtained.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and hand reading has brought him a LARGE AND SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention. Strict privacy. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can produce. Therefore HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Daily and evening; Sunday, 10 to 3.
STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.

AUTOMOBILE CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION, THE LARGEST AND MOST RELIABLE DEALERS IN SLIGHTLY USED AUTOMOBILES.

We have been doing business in Los Angeles for a number of years. We can show you a list of hundreds of our customers who will deem it a pleasure to have you call upon them and make any inquiry about our methods. They are customers who have taken the trouble to tell us that they will be glad to have us refer prospects to them.

There is a certain amount of risk in any second-hand car, but we do not ask our customers to take this risk. We are willing to guarantee everything we sell, and any of our customers know that they can depend upon us to make good any defects the same as though the car had been bought new. We can think of no fairer proposition, and if you will give us an opportunity we will be glad to demonstrate that this feature alone is worth a great many dollars to you.

In giving this list of cars we did not attempt to list everything we have, but only give you a sample of what you will find in our stock. Come in any time and examine them. You are under no obligations to buy, and your treatment will be just as courteous as though you bought several cars.

THOR— THOR.
THE CHAIN-DRIVEN MOTORCYCLE THAT MADE THE BELT-DRIVE TYPE OBSOLETE.

STEEL CLUTCH PERMITS ANY SPEED from 1 to 55 miles per hour. No belts to stretch or slip. Free Engine obtained by use of steel clutch.

The fact that 80 per cent. of all Thor motorcycles sold are being used for every-day service, proves positively their supremacy as the most reliable motorcycle you can buy.

The great demand for a better-than-the-ordinary motorcycle to be used for daily, hard service, in the hands of R.F.D. carriers, inspectors, collectors, salesmen, buyers, deliverymen and all other professions necessitating the covering of a great deal of ground at a low cost, made it necessary for the Thor factory to design this model as one being best adapted for these purposes.

That the 4 H.P. model has made good, we have but to point to the fact that it has won every important endurance contest ever held.

Every business man should have a THOR motorcycle, as it is the cheapest, most convenient and economical investment that he can make. It is ready at a moment's notice—rain or shine—to make quick deliveries to any part of the city.

With a tandem attachment an extra person can be carried for long trips, which makes it ideal evenings or Sundays, when you are on pleasure bound. Owing to the practicability of Thor Motorcycles they are classed as a business necessity.

THE MOTORCYCLE SUPREME.
5 H.P.—THOR WHITE FLYER—7 H.P.

Call and see the motorcycle that has created a sensation in Los Angeles.

We are receiving orders daily for future delivery. Be wise and order now.

Some of the features are: Two oiling systems; 28x2 3-4-inch tires—very low saddle position with the new "No-Jar" Seatpost; new and original spring fork; wide mud guards; double jet carburetor; Bosch magneto; Thor transmission—a combination of chain and gear—will outwear and outpull any other type, and in addition is guaranteed for 20,000 miles.

Thor free engine clutch runs in oil, and enables the rider to start on the steepest hill, no fiber or asbestos lining to burn up and cause additional expense.

The THOR is the ideal motorcycle for business or pleasure.

We stand ready and willing to demonstrate the THOR SUPREME. Let us show you.

FOR SALE — NO HOOF, NO HORSE. 80 per cent. of all horses are lame. 80 per cent. of the lameness is caused by hard and contracted hoofs. Dry seasons are very hard on hoofs. As a hoof softener, toughener, nourisher and grower there is nothing equal to WOOL-FAT. A horse's hoof is from 60 to 70 per cent. water. Grease and water will not mix. That's why ordinary ointments fail. There is no grease about WOOL-FAT, though it sounds so. It mixes readily with water and is very penetrating. WOOL-FAT is also a remedy for split hoofs, quarter cracks, mud fever, scratches, corns, cracked heels, grease heels, and for all kinds of sores and cuts anywhere on any stock. It is not a new thing but has been giving great satisfaction in the East for many years, and for several years here, too. Send for folder with many testimonials of horsemen, vets and others. O better, try it. 4-oz. pkg., 25c; 12-oz., 50c; 32-oz., $1. By mail, postpaid. Easier to keep hoofs right than to cure them. Send for it today. WEST COAST SEED HOUSE, 116-118 E. 7th st., Los Angeles.

FOR SALE—

AUCTION.
30 DAIRY COWS AND HEIFERS 30.
Removed for convenience of sale to the corrals of Wm. J. Tebo at CHINO.

Take S. P. train leaving Arcade depot at 7:40 a.m. to Chino.

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 10 A.M.

This herd has been turned over to us with instructions to dispose of same on above date POSITIVELY WITHOUT LIMIT OR RESERVE.

This herd consists of 30 DAIRY COWS, JERSEYS, HOLSTEINS AND DURHAMS, all well bred stock. 20 of above now fresh with calves at side, balance showing to be fresh in a short time. All young and in good condition, several heifers with 1st and 2nd calf, all good dairy and family cows. Attention of dairymen is called to the fact that this is an unusual sale on account of the fact that these cows have all been culled out from a large herd in order that there would be no question as to when the cows would be fresh, as there is always a question about this at the average cow sale.

THESE COWS ARE NEARLY ALL FRESH WITH CALVES AT SIDE, BALANCE SHOWING TO BE FRESH WITHIN A FEW DAYS.

You are invited to come out and buy a FRESH COW.

DECADE.

COME AND JOIN IN THEM.

That's a pretty strong statement, but it's true, every word of it. You or no one else have seen their like in Los Angeles before, and the opportunity will hardly present itself again for a long time to come. Such low prices coupled with such extraordinary easy terms is indeed a rare combination—especially when backed up by a house with the high class reputation this firm enjoys.

Read this list of good things:

Then come early Monday morning and see them.

Sole and exclusive agents for the famous C. G. Conn Band and Orchestra Instruments.

Following is the unsolicited testimonial of Mr. Carl Edouarde, one of the rising young bandmasters of New York City:

Mr. C. G. Conn, Elkhart, Ind.

My Dear Mr. Conn—I take the liberty of addressing you, to congratulate you for having the greatest factory in the world, devoted entirely to the manufacture of band instruments. You will probably remember me as the conductor of Knapp's Band, and the past two years of my own band, and can conscientiously say that the Conn instruments have made for my band the enviable reputation which we have for being in perfect tune and the tone quality of a great Symphony orchestra. Your instruments of last year were as every one knows the standard of excellence, but this new model has surpassed anything we had ever hoped to see, and is bound to be a revelation to every good artist in the world. It has always been my good fortune to employ only musicians of the highest standard in their respective lines, such as Mr. Schubert Zimmerman, Richard McCann, and several members of the Thomas Orchestra, Metropolitan Opera House, and as they all use the Conn instruments my band is naturally a Conn band throughout. I feel it my duty to write you telling you how much every good band owes to you for making it possible for us to have these perfect instruments, as you have done as much to raise the standard of the concert band as the great composers have, the only difference is that we have many great composers to supply us with great music, but only one Conn to supply us with great instruments. Very respectfully,
CARL EDOUARDE.

CALIFORNIA TRACK TEAM CAPTURES FIRST PLACE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STUART FIELD, LA FAYETTE (Ind.) June 1.—In a desperate battle for points fought under a broiling sun, athletes representing the University of California triumphed over the University of Missouri for first honors in the twelfth annual meet of the Western Intercollegiate Conference Athletic Association today.

The Pacific Coast men piled up a total of 41 1-3 points, while Missouri was second with 29 1-3. Illinois was third with 26; Chicago, fourth, with 15, and Wisconsin fifth with 12½. Coe, through Wilson's splendid work, finished sixth with 10 points; Minnesota seventh, with 8; Northwestern, Ames and Oberlin tied for eighth with five points each; Wabash got 4 1-3 points; Iowa, Purdue and Earlham one each, and De Pauw half a point.

Two new conference records, one in the 120-yard hurdles race, and the other in the two-mile run, were broken.

There were spirited contests early in which Missouri scored heavily through Nicholson's splendid work. He established a new conference record in the first event, the 120-yard hurdle race, defeating Case of Illinois, in 15 1-5s. The former record was 15 2-5s, and was made by Fred G. Moloney of Chicago, in 1902. Another conference mark was shattered when N. T. Metcalf of Oberlin raced to victory in the two-mile run. He clipped nearly eight seconds from the former record, made by F. A. Rowe of Michigan, in 1905, finishing in 9m. 42 4-5s.

Nicholson of Missouri won individual point honors with 10 1-3 points. A victory in the high hurdles, tie for first in the high jump, and third in the broad jump gave him the honors.

Second individual honors as to points were divided between Davenport, of Chicago and Wilson, of Coe, who scored ten points each. To Davenport however, goes the credit of demonstrating that he still is peerless in western colleges in the half-mile and quarter-mile.

After the meet it was announced that the conference faculty had reaffirmed its action, taken at a Chicago meeting two months ago, dropping athletic instructors from the representative athletic board. This action means that Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago, and Athletic Director Ehler of the University of Wisconsin, will no longer be members of the conference board. Dean A. W. Small, of the University of Chicago, and Prof. Beeler of Wisconsin, will fill the vacancies. Stagg has been a member of the conference board for twenty years. It was also announced that Ohio State University had been awarded a membership to the conference.

The 100-yard dash, first heat—Wilson (Coe,) first; Mathews (Chicago,) second. Time, 10s.

Second heat—Linn (Northwestern,) first; Stpitzel (Illinois,) second; Time, 10 1-5s.

The 100-yard dash, final heat—Wilson (Coe,) first; Wood (California,) second; Linn (Northwestern,) third; Torney (Wisconsin,) fourth. Time, 10s.

The 220-yard low hurdles, first heat—Beeson (California,) first; Ballard (Iowa,) second. Time 27s.

The 220-yard low hurdles, second heat—Kirksey (Missouri,) first; Maclise (California,) second. Time 25s.

The 220-yard low hurdles, third heat—Shaw (Northwestern,) first; Thatcher (Missouri,) second. Time, 26 4-5s.

The 220-yard hurdles, final heat—Kirksey (Missouri,) first; Maclise (California,) second; Beeson (California,) third; Shaw (Northwestern,) fourth. Time, 25s.

High jump—Beeson (California,) Nicholson (Missouri,) Ellis (Wabash,) tied for first; Walker, Depauw and Wahl (Wisconsin,) tied for fourth. Height, 5ft., 11 3-8in.

Shot put—Rice (California,) first; Frank (Minnesota,) second; Butts (Illinois,) third; Fletcher (Northwestern,) fourth. Distance, 45ft., 10 3-4in.

The 220-yard dash, first heat—Wilson (Coe,) first; Joslyn (Illinois,) second. Time, 23 1-5s.

Second heat—Wood (California,) first; Cortis (Illinois,) second. Time, 23 1-5s.

Third heat—Linn (Northwestern.) first; Schley (Wisconsin,) second. Time, 23s.

The 220-yard dash, final heat—Wilson (Coe,) first; Wood (California,) second; Cortis (Illinois,) third; Linn (Northwestern,) fourth. Time, 22 1-5s.

One mile run—Farquhar (Iowa State,) won; Wood (California,) second; Brunner (University of Iowa,) third; Calvin (Purdue,) fourth. Time, 4:28 1-5s.

The 120-yard hurdles, first heat—Case (Illinois,) first; Maclise (California,) second. Time, 15 4-5s.

Second heat—Kuh (Chicago,) first; Hasen (Kansas,) second. Time, 16 1-5s.

The 440-yard dash—Davenport (Chicago,) first; Bermond (Missouri,) second; Sanders (Illinois,) third. Time, 49 1-5s.

The 120-yard hurdle race, final heat—Nicholson (Missouri,) first; Case (Illinois,) second; Beeson (California,) third; Kuh (Chicago,) fourth. Time 15 1-5s.

In this heat Nicholson established a new conference record of 15 1-5s., clipping a fifth of a second from the mark made by Maloney of Chicago in 1902.

Nicholson's mark also equals the world's record held jointly by Kranzlein (Pennsylvania,) Shaw of Dartmouth and Edwards of California.

Relay race—Illinois first, Wisconsin, second; Chicago, third; Iowa, fourth. Time 3:26.

Running broad jump—Allen (California,) first; Lambert (Minnesota,) second; Nicholson (Missouri,) third; Nevins (Illinois,) fourth. Distance, 23ft., 1-8in.

Two-mile run—Metcalf (Oberlin,) first; Seaton (Wisconsin,) second; Wood (California,) third; White (Wisconsin,) fourth. Time 9:42 4-5.

Hammer throw—Shattuck (California,) first; Rice (California,) second; Belting (Illinois,) third; Hoover (Wabash,) fourth. Distance 154ft., 8in.

Half-mile run—Davenport (Chicago,) won; Bermond (Missouri,) second; Lindberg (Minnesota,) third; Cope (Illinois,) fourth. Time 1:58.

Pole vault—Murphy (Illinois,) first; Vail (California,) Coyle (Chicago,) and Gold (Wisconsin,) tied for second. Height 12ft., 4 1-4in.

AUTO GOES INTO RUT.

Woman Sustains Wrenched Arm and Bruises, But Driver Is Unhurt—Didn't See Hole in Street.

Mrs. Carrie Walker of the Westonia apartments, was bounced out of an auto when a rut was struck at the end of the paved section of Slauson avenue, yesterday. Mrs. Walker sustained a wrenched arm and bruises.

Harry F. Grosse, No. 350 Hobart boulevard, with whom the woman was riding, was thrown against the steering wheel, but not injured. Grosse failed to notice the rut where the paved portion of Slauson avenue ended, and his machine dropped into the rut while making twenty miles an hour.

James Tullon, No. 645 Alpine street, a 7-year-old newsie, was rolled almost half the way across Second, near Spring street, yesterday afternoon, when he ran into the fender of the First National Bank auto, driven by T. T. Robinson, a collector. The boy escaped with minor bruises and contusions.

PENNSY TAKES FIRST HONORS.

World's Record in Pole Vault Is Shattered.

Jones of Cornell Lowers Half-mile Mark.

Eastern Meet Proves Best in Many Years.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—The University of Pennsylvania won the intercollegiate track and field championships on Franklin Field this afternoon and thus brought new laurels to "Mike" Murphy, the noted trainer, who will guide the American stars at the coming Olympic games.

The Pennsylvanians won by a margin of 10½ points over Cornell, their nearest competitor. The points scored were: Pennsylvania, 28; Cornell, 17½; Michigan, 15; Columbia, 13; Harvard, 13; Syracuse, 12; Dartmouth, 11½; Yale, 10; Wesleyan, 7; Brown, 6; Princeton, 5; Bowdoin, 2; Rutgers, 2; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1.

Five intercollegiate records were broken and with them went one collegiate record and one world's record. The new world's figures were made in the pole vault by R. S. Gardner of Yale. After he and H. S. Babcock of Columbia had broken the intercollegiate record of 12 ft. 8 3-8 in., by going over the bar at 12 ft. 9½ in., the stick was put up to 13 ft. 1in. Gardner, on his second try, cleared it amid cheers. Babcock tried three times, but failed. The former world's record was 12 ft. 10 7-8 in.

In the shot put R. L. Beatty of Columbia exceeded the collegiate record held by himself, making 48 ft. 10 3-4 in., against his old figure of 48 ft. 7 3-4 in.

C. D. Reidpath of Syracuse lowered the intercollegiate record of 48 4-5s. in the quarter-mile event to 48s. In the half-mile run J.P. Jones of Cornell lowered his intercollegiate record from 1m. 54 4-5s. to 1m. 53 4-5s.

P. K. Withington, Harvard's runner, won the two-mile race and lowered the intercollegiate record of 9m. 25 1-5s. to 9m. 24 2-5s. Results:

The 120-yard hudles, final: Won by Wendell (Wesleyan;) second, Edwards (Pennsylvania;) third, Havens (Rutgers.) Time, 15 3-5s.

Shot put, final: Won by Beattie (Columbia,) 48ft. 10 3-4in.; second, Kahler (Michigan,) 44ft. 4½in.; third, Bartlett (Brown,) 44ft. 1-4in.

Two-mile run: Withington of Harvard, won, time, 9m. 24 2-5s, breaking Berna's intercollegiate record of 9m. 25 1-5s.; McCurdy (Pennsylvania,) second; Helmbaugh (Michigan,) third, and Ball (Dartmouth,) fourth.

TO SEE FOR THEMSELVES.

Local Land Office Officials Make Trip to Imperial Valley to View Contested Half Section.

Register Buren and Receiver Robinson of the local land office, left last night for a trip to the Imperial Valley to look over 320 acres claimed by Mary O'Brien and Edmund Welsh, the points involved being priority of settlement and improvements. The land in dispute lies near Brawley but El Centro, Holtville and other points will be visited.

Mrs. O'Brien is the wife of Thomas O'Brien, one of the largest land-owners in that section. She is so sure that she will be able to make the better showing along the lines demanded by the government that she agreed to finance the trip of the officials. It is the first time in the history of the Los Angeles office that such a tender has been made and accepted by the officials.

AVALON.

AVALON, June 1.—The visiting members of the South Coast Yacht Club entertained the officers and crew of the schooner-yacht Hawaii of Honolulu at an elaborate banquet today. Sixty persons participated in the affair. Arrangements were made for the reception of the guests who attended the ball at the Metropole during the evening. The toast-master of the evening was Capt. Warren D. Wood of Los Angeles.

Handicapped for a ten-mile race over a triangular course, the launches Campbell, Capt. Joe Fellows; Iroquois, Capt. W. D. Wood, with Miss Grace Perkins, mechanician and Snap Shot, Capt. L. D. Baker, left today to complete the race for a silver loving cup.

TOPANGO STAGE TURNS TURTLE, INJURING FOUR.

Party En Route from Santa Monica to Canyon Resort Victims of Peculiar Accident When Brakes on Automobile Fail to Work—Winnipeg Man Buys Big Tract.

SANTA MONICA, June 1.—A thrilling accident befell the Topango passenger stage this afternoon on the up-trip to the hotel in the canyon. With nine passengers aboard the big automobile touring car, the engine refused to act when the machine reached one of the steepest places in the road on the grade. Before the emergency clutches could be brought into requisition to prevent the dashing of the machine down the hill the car had plunged backward off the road and turned a somersault, pinning its luckless occupants beneath the car.

Those who were uninjured succeeded in crawling out and lifting the weight that held the others fast. E. W. Murphy and wife of Los Angeles were among those most seriously injured, he having a broken leg. She suffered a fracture of the arm. W. H. Jones escaped with a few cuts and bruises. Mrs. H. R. Gage sustained nothing more serious than a few bruises and scratches.

The accident happened at the point where at least three other cars have left the road. It is at the steepest grade on the hill and it is here that engines choke on overloaded cars. In the accident this afternoon the car backed down the grade and ran with a rear wheel over an obstruction with such momentum that the car turned a complete flip, landing on a bench at the brink of a precipice not less than 350 feet deep. But for this friendly bench it is probable all of the occupants of the car would have been killed in the fall to the bottom of the canyon.

LOTS OF LOTS.

M. A. Hoover of Winnipeg has purchased through Miles & Tegner for a stated consideration of $58,000, a block of 116 residence lots east of Seventh street and between Nevada and Montana. The land involved in the deal, extending as far east as Fourteenth street, has heretofore served no purpose other than to yield barley and beans. It will at once be improved and sold as city lots. Much building is in prospect. Miles & Tegner report having sold Santa Monica lots during May to the amount of $135,000.

May was the liveliest month the builders of Santa Monica have experienced during many years, the permits issued having brought the total for the year to $840,000. One of the structures was that of the Byrne building on Marine street, a three-story brick which when completed will represent an expenditure of $30,000. Plans have been accepted for a three-story apartment-house to be built for S. A. Temple. This will be 42x84 feet and will cost $12,000. One of the permits was for a $6000 building to be erected at Fourth and Utah streets for John Connelly.

BAYSIDE BREVITIES.

The campaign in the interest of games of chance at the beach, instituted a wek ago, in the interest of the repeal of the anti-gambling ordinance, is being prosecuted vigorously. Those who favor a tight lid will seek at the Monday night meeting of the Council to forestall the repeal of present laws.

Irwin Heights property owners who favor the construction of a competing line of railroad are circulating a petition asking that the City Council proceed with the advertisement and sale of a Fremont-street franchise to the Fawkes Aerial Railway Company. This application is now before the Council and is to receive consideration Monday night.

King C. Gillette, who recently purchased the John P. Jones Miramar manson on Ocean avenue, today added to his holdings by acquiring the north half of the block occupied by Miramar. This block is bounded by Ocean, Second, Nevada and California streets, and has been looked upon for many years as the most desirable hotel site in the city.

Local committees representing commercial and civic bodies are working industriously to make a success of the first commission form of government mass meeting, which has been called to be held in the City Hall Thursday night.

The contract is practically closed whereby the Donatelli Italian band will open a summer engagement of free daily concerts here.

In the High School oratorical contest for the Hutton cup the judges last night gave the award to William Harrison, whose oration embraced the topic, "A Challenge to America."

Marine-street property owners are moving in the matter of securing ornamental clusters of electric lights for the illumination of that street from Oceanfront to Trolleyway. The property owners are to install equipment and the city will furnish the electric energy.

M. Smith of Denver today purchased property having a frontage of seventy-five feet on Ocean avenue and will, during the summer, build a $30,000 apartment-house, near Arcadia terrace.

WATTS BOOSTERS RIDE.

Travel from Town to Town and Tell of Joys of Living in [illegible] City.

WATTS, June 1.—Three carloads of Watts Boosters made the [illegible] over the Balloon Route yesterday for the purpose of calling attention of the people along the way to the [illegible] that Watts is not only on the map but the most important place on it. The start was made from Watts at 9 a.m. Banners with letters [illegible] feet tall forming the words "Watts Boosters" were used on both sides of each car.

At Ocean Park the town was thrown open to the Boosters and the members of the party received every attention. Upon their arrival at Venice the Boosters were met by the Venice Band and escorted up Windward avenue to the pier, and all along the line they were cheered as they marched behind the band. After spending three hours in seeing the sights and doing all the boosting for Watts they could, the special train moved on to [illegible], where an hour was spent in a similar way.

During the day 25,000 pieces of advertising literature were distributed, besides a large number of advertising booklets. The purpose of the trip was to do some advertising for Watts, and those who went on the excursion feel fully repaid for the effort made and the expense incurred. It is already proposed that in a short time another excursion will be organized to go over another route.

NEW FOOTHILL SHOW PLACE.

Beautiful Home Projected for Hillhurst Park.

Place Will Occupy a Sightly Eight-acre Knoll.

Grounds to Be Bower of Rare Trees and Plants.

The first of the many beautiful residences to be constructed in the new Hillhurst subdivision in the Hollywood foothills will be that of William Mead, the owner of the tract. Plans for a fireproof dwelling of palatial proportions and unique arrangement are now being completed for Mead by his architects, Hudson & Munsell. The work of construction will be begun within a short time.

The house will be of reinforced concrete and tile construction throughout and will present a white exterior surface. The roof will be of green tile. The design will incline toward the English mansion types, although no style will be slavishly adhered to, the architects having aimed primarily at harmonising the structure with its unusually attractive and picturesque surroundings. The dwelling will contain two stories and a full basement.

The place will be situated along the top of a rather narrow ridge, the ground sloping in three directions, with the hills of Griffith Park as a background. Landscape windows will be a feature of several rooms, each room showing a different view of the mountains, city and valley. The main rooms will be finished in solid mahogany, the den being in oak. The chambers of the second story will be in white enamel. All the interior ornamentation will be of special design.

The house will face to the south and will look directly down Vermont avenue at a point where this mountain-to-sea boulevard curves around the hills into Griffith Park. The site embraces eight acres, fronting 700 feet on Vermont avenue and 500 feet on Glendower and will be laid out with winding drives and walks conforming to the topography of the ground.

The present home of Mr. Mead at [illegible] street and Franklin avenue is one of the show places of the foothill section of Hollywood, being a bower of plant and flower life. On the four acres comprising the place the owner has in the last ten years developed some of the rarest trees and plants in the Southland. As the site of the new Hillhurst Park home is at exactly the same altitude, Mead expects to carry out a similar landscaping and planting scheme there.

Trees, shrubs and flowers will be planted that thrive only in the frostless section. Among the plants and trees that will be given especial attention are bananas, pineapples, coffee, black pepper, allspice and cinamon. Other tropical growths hitherto never planted in this section are now being secured for the place.

A beautiful feature of the grounds will be a canyon near the house, with a small waterfall and lake. This will be planted to native California ferns and kept in a wild state. A hedge of white Cherokee and Ragged Robin roses will completely surround the place.

Hillhurst Park is comprised of close to [illegible] acres and extends along Los Feliz avenue from a point east of Vermont avenue to a point west of Western avenue. Both the Western-avenue and Vermont-avenue entrances to Griffith Park extend through the property. The northern line of the subdivision lies far up on the sides of the hills at the entrance of the park. The whole of the property is now being improved in the most high-class manner, with paved streets and public utilities. Building restrictions of from $10,000 to $25,000 will be enforced.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The determination of the State Highway Commission to have one of the paved highways contemplated under the State's $18,000,000 issue completed by the time of the 1915 exposition at San Francisco will be viewed with satisfaction by every thoughtful citizen in this great commonwealth. The sooner the dirt begins to fly in this project the better, for nothing will so convincingly advertise California to the world as a perfect good roads system such as that which this State proposes to construct.

The good roads of Europe have annually attracted thousands of American travelers abroad. It is not that the scenic attractions of Southern France and Italy are a bit superior to those of the Pacific slope or that the climate of the Mediterranean shore line is any more alluring than our own; indeed, the supremacy of the old world tourist centers in both respects may be successfully challenged by the natural advantages of the American west coast. Europe, however, offers to the wealthy motorist endless reaches of roads that are as level and as ideal for travel as the finest of city boulevards. Hence the difficulty of inducing the easterner with money and leisure to accept the idea of "Seeing America First."

The benefits derived locally from the construction of those parts of the Los Angeles county good roads system which are now open to travel are already apparent. Hundreds of tourists who formerly confined their motoring jaunts to the eastern States and a host who have formerly gone abroad have found the automobile paradise in the vicinity of Los Angeles. Every real estate broker in the city will bear testimony to the important part played by these good roads in determining men of wealth and prominence from every section of the United States and even from foreign countries to establish their homes in Southern California.

World's Greatest Highway.

The State highway system of California will constitute beyond any question the world's greatest automobile boulevard. Two routes, one skirting the shores of the Pacific from San Diego to Siskiyou and one following the valleys of the interior and parallel to the coast road, are contemplated. Both are to be constructed with a hard surface pavement from fifteen to twenty-four feet in width and with wide and substantial "shoulders" on either side, and will be such roads as those which have stood the test of centuries in Southern Europe.

The system will be the making of every city and town along either route and will offer transportation advantages to vast and important agricultural districts which should long ago have come to the front. It will, therefore, be more than an automobile speedway, although that feature alone offers a sufficient justification for the creation of the proposed highways. This is made sufficiently evident by an observation of the general advance in property values and the era of development that have followed the coming of good roads in hundreds of backward communities throughout the country. The short-sightedness of protesting against the construction of good roads out of public funds on the score that they were to be used by the comparatively few who can afford to own automobiles has long since been clearly demonstrated.

Benefits Far-Reaching.

Already the contracts have been let for nearly forty miles of the valley road, this to be constructed in four sections. This is a wise method, as it will demonstrate to different districts the advantages of the system and the sooner lead to the filling in of the gaps.

Several counties in Central and Northern California are awakening to the possibilities of the project and are arranging to construct county systems to tap the great State highways and to bring their hitherto backward districts into close touch with the rest of the State. It is already apparent that the results of the great State bond issue are going to be more far-reaching than the most ardent friends of the movement had ever dreamed of anticipating.

California, it is absolutely certain now, will within the next five to ten years be crossed and criss-crossed with a great network of paved boulevards, and will rival of those portions of Europe which have been building good roads for centuries. The wisdom of having as much of this road building as possible completed and ready for the inspection and use of the tens of thousands of world travelers who will visit the San Francisco exposition must be apparent to all.

Pueblo to City.

One of the most interesting documents relating to the material advance of Los Angeles that has recently come to the attention of the Fact and Comment man is a one-page transcript of the daily records of Los Angeles county for a single day in October, 1879. The sheet was published by Isaac S. Smith and cost the subscribers $1 a month or $10 a year. It contained the daily findings of Brooks, Clarke & Russell, searchers of records and conveyances, with offices in the Allen block at the corner of Spring and Temple streets.

On the remote day in question this early Los Angeles publication reported the filing for public record of two transfers of real estate and of three agreements. Two notices of action were published at the same time, and the filing of a single mortgage was mentioned. The judgments recorded numbered two.

It is interesting to note that of the ten documents referred to three concerned Wilmington realty, the present harbor district in that day boasting almost all the real activity there was in the way of buying and selling. Of the two notices of action one related to the foreclosing of a mortgage on fifteen acres at the corner of Pico and Grasshopper streets. For the enlightenment of the present generation, J. A. Graves, vice-president of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank, and who himself drew up every paper recorded on the October day thirty-three years ago, explained to the writer that Grasshopper street and the present Figueroa street are one and the same.

After carefully studying the age-yellowed transcript preserved by Mr. Graves, the Fact and Comment man picked out at random a copy of the Los Angeles Daily Journal for one of the days of the past week. In the synopsis of the documents filed for record were named 274 transfers and over 100 agreements. Over 150 notices of action were mentioned. The mortgages filed numbered 112, and the judgments docketed twenty-five. Thus has Los Angeles advanced from a sleepy pueblo to a great world city within the years of business activity of a man who would laugh at the mere suggestion that he was getting old enough to retire.

TWO IMPORTANT DEALS.

Sales on Broadway and East Fifth Street Aggregate Consideration of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Two important realty transactions were concluded during the past week through the agency of W. B. Merwin & Co., the aggregate consideration involved in the deals being approximately $300,000. The larger of the two transfers was the sale for Herbert E. Earlscliffe to J. W. McKinley of 40x165 feet on the east side of Broadway about half way between Third and Fourth streets. The price paid, $168,000, covers the fee to the property, the two-story improvement on which is held under a fifty-year lease by Harry Gray of Pasadena. The lot will, within the next two years, he improved with a substantial structure of six or more stories in height.

W. B. Merwin & Co. and David Blankenhorn & Co. yesterday afternoon concluded the sale for C. C. Chapman to a syndicate of Pasadena capitalists of the northeast corner of Fifth and Wall streets, the consideration being given at $130,000. The lot has a frontage of sixty-eight feet on Fifth and of 118 feet on Wall, and is improved with a four-story building known as the Hotel Chapman, and which is now under lease. The improvement is said to pay 8 per cent. net on the purchase price of yesterday. The Crown City buyers acquired the holding for purposes of investment.

TO OPEN NEW TRACT.

Twenty-five Bungalows to Be Erected in Subdivision at Corner of Florence and Figueroa.

Swank & Letton report the sale to R. H. Mouser and P. J. MacDonald of a tract at the corner of Figueroa street and Florence avenue. The buyers will begin at once on the street work, and within two weeks will commence the construction of twenty-five bungalows which will cost about $2000 each.

Florence avenue is one of the longest cross streets in the city and Figueroa street is soon to be converted into a boulevard 100 feet in width. The latter improvement will add materially to the advantages enjoyed by the district in which the new tract is situated.

TENANTS NOTIFIED.

Occupants of Howe Corner Asked to Leave Preparatory to Clearing Site for Big Skyscraper.

The tenants of the buildings on the Howe corner at Sixth and Spring streets were yesterday given notice to vacate the premises before the close of six months. Immediately upon the expiration of this period the old and dilapidated structures on the Spring street frontage and the modern four-story block on the Sixth street side, at present occupied by the Howe Bros. Hardware Company, are to be razed to the ground, preparatory to the beginning of the actual construction of the great skyscraper home of the Merchants National Bank.

Steel for the new structure is to be ordered at once and will arrive in the city some time before the site has been cleared. No architect for the building has as yet been selected.

The announcement in yesterday's Times of the sale for $1,000,000 of the Howe corner was the sensation of the year in downtown real estate circles. It was generally known that R. A. Rowan & Company had an option on the holding and that negotiations were under way for disposing of it to local buyers. At one time it was widely believed that the Central National Bank would secure the corner, but the negotiations to this end, although they progressed smoothly for a while, never resulted in a definite deal.

The buyers of the site, W. H. Holliday, president of the Merchants National Bank, Marco H. Hellman, vice-president of the same institution, and J. H. Adams & Co., secured the corner expressly for the purpose of providing a newer and larger home for the big Third street banking house, which has long been cramped for room. The entire first story and basement of the new building will be used by the bank and the quarters to be fitted up will be as magnificent as any in the West. The thirteen upper stories will be divided into offices. The building will front 120 feet on Spring by 156 feet on Sixth and will be of absolutely fireproof construction. Its cost will be over $1,000,000.

SALES LIST LARGE.

Leading House and Lot Men Report Good Demand for Better Class of Residence Property.

Giles & Kells, managers of the house and lot department of the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, report the following recent sales of residence property, aggregating $108,000.

H. J. Irwin to James Mayzie, 50x146 feet, north side of West Seventh street, east of Wilshire place, $3700. E. A. and R. E. Cowan to J. W. Bandhauer, vacant lot on east side of Westmoreland avenue, north of Wilshire boulevard, 60x177 feet, $5230. H. R. Kells to Arline L. Bailey, 55x155 feet, south side of West Seventh street, west of Hoover, $5500. Mary C. Brown to Dr. W. F. Huddel, 53x150 feet, east side of Figueroa street, near Twenty-second street, improvements nominal, $11,000.

W. F. Kramer to J. Kittredge Wheeler, new nine-room residence, No. 3974 Ingraham street, $9000. Calvin A. Willson to Katherine Powers, corner Vermont avenue and Eighth street, 100x145 feet, $7500. M. C. Versteeg to G. E. F. Anderson, 50x150 feet, east side Commonwealth avenue, near Third, for $2000. Opal L. Dempster, to Sol. Rich, 50x160 feet on west side of Kingsley drive, near Third street, $2650. F. M. Webb to H. A. Culloden, nine-room residence, No. 1615 Gramercy place, lot 73x178 feet, $8750.

Christ Church to C. R. Horne, No. 975 Hoover street, ten-room house, lot 68x150 feet, $10,500. E. M. Rebard to Catherine Sullivan, 50x150 feet, east side Normandie avenue, near Forty-eighth street, $925. F. L. Dwyer to C. A. Ross, seven-room residence, Vermont avenue, in Wilshire district, lot 60x160 feet, $5700. Mennell and Hancock to Ida C. Bellina, seven-room bungalow, No. 146 Dillon street, $5000. Mrs. R. E. Riggs to Helen S. Sylvester, ten-room residence, northwest corner Wilshire boulevard and Manhattan place, $27,500. E. W. Gilbert to A. D. Smith, 60x150 feet, west side of Crenshaw boulevard, near Sixteenth street, $2500.

Several of the buyers of vacant property will improve their sites at once.

PAYS CASH FOR ACREAGE.

Matilda and H. E. Haddock of Lankershim have sold thirty acres on San Fernando road, near Second street, Lankershim, to a local capitalist. The consideration is understood to have been about $25,000, cash. C. M. Northrup & Son represented both buyer and seller.

BUYS VALUABLE CORNER.

Woman Acquires Improved Site at Jefferson and Hope—Other Sales Reported by Realty Firm.

Mrs. Mary H. Latham of Memphis, Tenn., has bought the southwest corner of Jefferson and Hope streets, a frontage of 154 feet on Jefferson, by a depth of 125 feet on Hope, for a reported consideration of $25,000.

The site is improved with small stores, with apartments above, and returns a rental which yields a good per cent. upon the price paid. The deal was made through Joseph Rowlett Williams and J. E. Rhodes of the George C. Peckham Company.

The same company reports other sales as follows: One-acre chicken ranch at Inglewood to Grace Eccleston, $1850 cash; fifteen acres, on Live Oak ranch to Peter Johnson, $8000; one-acre Farmdale tract, to William Rapp, $775; five-acre tract in Orange Park, Ontario, to Leon L. Wells of Providence, R. I., $2000; two lots in Peckham's Moneta-avenue square, to Lizzie Ellenbush, $1250; house and lot in Tropico boulevard tract to G. T. Harrower of Cleveland, O., $2000; house and lot in Glendale, to Susie J. Caulfield, $1850, and four and one-half-acre ranch in La Fresa tract, Moneta, to J. W. Vogel, $5000.

MAY BREAKS RECORD.

Month Just Closed One of Greatest in City's History—Year's Building Valuation Over Eleven Million.

During May, 1330 permits were issued in this city, calling for an aggregate expenditure of $2,277,861 for new buildings. The figures broke all former May records, the best previous totals being those of last year when 1011 permits, representing a valuation of $1,915,529, were issued.

Of the May permits, 551 were for new dwellings of one, one and one-half and two stories, these houses representing a total valuation of $1,198,269. New apartment-houses of three and four stories, represented a valuation of $468,242. The only large single item was that represented in the permit for the $243,000 addition to Bullock's.

To date for the year, the building department has issued 6253 permits for new structures, whose aggregate cost is $11,325,937. The figures for the corresponding part last year, up to then the banner period, were 4608 permits and $8,766,053 valuation.

BOARD VISITS VALLEY TRACT.

Approximately $400,000 has been expended upon Michillinda, the picturesque residential suburb in the San Gabriel Valley. This figure includes the purchase price of the 157 acres comprising the tract, the cost of grading 38,800 feet of streets, the laying of approximately ten miles of cement curbing and the construction of about eight miles of cement sidewalks. In addition a large sum has been expended upon rare plants and shrubs for the extensive Michillinda parks and parkings, and put into the making of an artificial lake, located midway in the tract, and fronting on Huntington boulevard. This lake is now completed, water having been turned into it during the past week. Development work still is going forward vigorously and before the tract is completed its owners declare it will represent an expenditure of practically half a million dollars. Work now is in progress upon the first two homes and the building of many others will begin within a few weeks. A trainload of members of the Los Angeles Realty Board visited Michillinda last Tuesday as the guests of the James B. Forbes Company, owners and developers of the tract. The start was made from the Forbes offices in the Security building, the party going out in a special train over the Monrovia line of the Pacific Electric. Arrived at the tract automobiles were in waiting to take the visitors on a tour of inspection. Luncheon was served later at tables laid under the orange trees in Michillinda Park, overlooking the lake. Before the Michillinda property was acquired by the California-Michigan Land and Water Company it was a part of the famous old Chapman ranch.

PLAN SEVENTY-SIX HOUSES.

The Los Angeles Investment Company has started the work of subdividing twenty acres at the southwest corner of Slauson and Vermont avenues, one of its thirty-two tracts. This property will be divided into 145 lots and seventy-six houses will be quickly put up. The property is now known only as Tract No. 1506, but will shortly be given some more picturesque name. It is adjacent to a subdivision being laid out by another real estate company and the street work and the development of small parks will be uniform in both of these properties. Street work is now under way.

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY in each home.
It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.
We build homes from the modern five-room cottage, at $900, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely, what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.
We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Redondo and San Pedro, on easy terms.
We make no additional charges for our Architectural services, if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

Three real bargains sold last week
Here are some more.

A REAL BARGAIN.

Wilshire District—$2950.

The owner obtained this property on a trade and cannot use. New six-room bungalow situated on a 50 ft. corner lot on high ground. The inside lots 42 ft. wide are worth $1000, so the 50 ft. corner is worth at least $1250. We are in the building business and could not duplicate the house for less than $2500 without profit. This shows the property to be worth at least $3750. Bank first mortgage of $1800 shows conservative value of $4000.

Let us show you Monday. $500 cash will handle. Balance to suit.

$2950. STILL PAYING RENT? $2950.

In the North Wilshire district, just completed, an unusually attractive bungalow, five rooms and hall, connecting bedrooms, bath and kitchen, lot 50x125; hardwood and polished floors throughout; beam ceilings, paneled walls, bookcases, seats; very large swell front buffet with leaded glass and long mirrors; large brick mantel. Complete buffet kitchen with ventilating hood, bedroom, bath, hall and kitchen, all finished in white enamel.

Just $300 cash required and $25 per month.

SOUTHWEST—MODERN BUNGALOW—$2400.

When we offer you a new five-room modern bungalow, situated in the beautiful southwest on a 50x150 ft. lot, well built and finished in every detail for only $2400, requiring only $500 cash and the balance to suit, it is worth investigating at least, isn't it?

A CHANCE FOR SOMEONE!
Owner Must Sell. Make Us An Offer.

You never see a bargain advertised without some excuse being offered. This owner is not "going East," neither is there "sickness in the family," nor "circumstances are such," but the owner needs money, and he is open to any reasonable offer on his new 6-room modern bungalow, situated near Radium Springs. On a 50 ft. lot, worth $1000, cost $2650 to build.

A real bargain for someone with discernment. See this Monday.

$3250—SOUTHWEST THE BEST YET!—$3250.

If you want a home—here it is. Cottage of four rooms, better than new. Nicely furnished. This price also includes over 100 chickens, fruit trees, and a first-class garden. Sandy fertile soil. Remember, this—the lot is 50x135. This is a lovely little home in built up district. Only $500 cash required. Balance $25 monthly, including interest.

WILSHIRE DISTRICT—7-ROOM BUNGALOW.
Owner wires "Get Offer."

We are custodians of a beautiful new seven-room bungalow, situated on a 50x150 ft. lot, terraced 4 feet above the street.

Large living-room and music-room, across the front. Beautiful dining-room with French windows opening onto side "Patio," dainty breakfast-room, convenient kitchen and two charming bedrooms. Decorations and fixtures are the best. Hardwood floors throughout. Has never been offered for less than $6000. What will you give?

$4750—NO SLEEPLESS NIGHTS HERE!—$4750.

In the heart of the most beautiful suburb, 1 block from Hollywood boulevard, on a lot 50x171, we have a new 6-room bungalow that is far above the average for the price we are asking. Description by us will do it injustice.

Don't forget in Hollywood during the heat of summer there is always a cool breeze from the ocean, and every night we "guarantee" to be a SLEEPY one. Five-cent fare now. Reasonable terms.

JUST ONE LIKE THIS.

The prettiest bungalow in town! That's it! Also the best value for the money we have seen. It lies on Gramercy place, fronting east, in a splendid neighborhood. It has everything a home should have; all hardwood floors, beautiful finish; especially selected lighting fixtures and built-in conveniences; three bedrooms, a breakfast-room and a fine bath, basement and furnace; last, it has a cement drive and garage with extra lavatory and toilet; in fact, it's complete and charming, and a great big bargain. Ask us to show it to you.

NEAR EIGHTH AND FIGUEROA.

$7500.

Let us show you this little pick-up right in the heart of the city; the lot alone is worth $8000, and it has a good 7-room home on it; for a small apartment you cannot find anything better; it's only five minutes' walk from the center of the city; twenty-five hundred dollars cash, balance to suit. Act on this quickly if you want to double your money.

CAHUENGA BOULEVARD SNAP.

$8750.

A real colonial home of nine rooms, located on Cahuenga blvd., just off Sixth, on a lot 60x150 feet; this is a real home and looks more like $12,000 than $8750. See this with us Monday. $1500 cash, balance to suit.

WILSHIRE SACRIFICE.

$9600.

The location of this home will convince you of its real value; on Harvard blvd., between Fifth and Sixth sts., on a 60x150-foot lot, this home of nine rooms could not be duplicated for less than $12,000. It is strictly modern in every particular and almost new, but you cannot appreciate its points of excellence without making a thorough inspection. The living-room is 15x35, beautifully beamed and paneled; the dining-room and breakfast-room have all the down-to-date features; four large, sunny bedrooms, sleeping porch, garage large enough for two machines, cellar and furnace, complete this handsome property. Very easy terms can be arranged.

ANOTHER SPLENDID WILSHIRE BUY.

$10,700.

East-front home on lot 70x150 feet, between Wilshire and Sixth; the adjoining lot sold for $6500 only a week ago. The house is strictly modern and almost new; has eight large rooms, hardwood floors, etc.; is of Swiss chalet style, and one of the best-located homes in the Wilshire section. When the boulevard is paved, it should sell readily for $12,500. Very easy terms may be arranged. Inspect this property with us at once, as it won't remain on the market long.

MANHATTAN PLACE HOME.

$12,800.

It's a real beauty of ten rooms, handsomely finished in choicest hardwoods, with three baths, two of them tiled. This home was purchased less than a year ago at $14,500, and now the owner is about to leave the city; hence this sacrifice. The lot is 60x150 feet, located in the best block near Wilshire blvd., has five bed chambers, large garage, cellar, furnace and automatic heater. Reasonable terms may be arranged.

HOME NEAR THE HARVARD SCHOOL.

$16,000.

Something new! Something different! Right up-to-the-minute! Cement marble dust finish, Colonial—it's a real beauty. Nine rooms, three tiled baths, two dressing-rooms, complete servants' quarters on the first floor, large cellar, furnace, Ruud heater and garage. The interior finish on the first floor is in quartered oak and mahogany, with seven-coat ivory enamel on the second floor. The sixty-foot lot commands a beautiful view of the mountains and is located near Dorchester and St. Andrew's. Terms may be arranged.

CORNER HOME NEAR WILSHIRE BOULEVARD.

$20,000.

Nearly new, and the owner paid $25,000 for this home a year ago. But she is going abroad at once and this is your opportunity to get a property which will suit you and at the same time save the $5000 which it would cost you in addition to the above price to duplicate the place. And it is impossible to get another corner in this desirable neighborhood—right at Seventh and New Hampshire. The entire lower floor is finished in oak and mahogany, with a large billiard-room on this floor. Upstairs are five large, beautiful bed chambers and three baths. A cellar, furnace, automatic heater and two-story garage with servants' quarters complete the home. $5000 cash, balance long time at 6 per cent.

IN BEAUTIFUL BERKELEY SQUARE.

$45,000.

A magnificent 12-room residence, on a lot 80x280 feet; this house is of solid cement, and fully fireproof; the interior is finished in selected solid mahogany and oak on the first floor, and colonial finish upstairs. It contains every modern convenience, including three beautiful bathrooms, service elevator, etc. The garage is also fireproof, has man's room and bath, and is large enough for three machines. The above price includes expensive hangings and drapes, purchased especially for this house.

Don't fail to see this one if you want a real home.

THE ASSOCIATED SERVICE COMPANY
REPRESENTS HUNDREDS OF OWNERS WHO ARE OFFERING THEIR HOMES FOR QUICK SALE AT AN ABSOLUTE NET PRICE.

This is made possible through the co-operation of Selling Owners and this Association is a Clearinghouse for their properties. There is no commission to be paid, and no heavy selling expense to inflate values. YOU—AS THE BUYER—DEAL DIRECT WITH THE OWNER—AND SAVE THE COMMISSION—A TREMENDOUS FACTOR IN BUYING A HOME.

It doesn't make any difference how modest or how pretentious a home you are planning to buy, it is a duty you owe yourself to FIRST investigate, then inspect the splendid properties offered by these owners. These homes are located in every desirable residential district of Los Angeles and environs. They comprise every style of architecture and type of building. Many are just from the builders. They range in price from $1800 to $50,000 and can be bought on terms to suit any pocketbook.

HOME HUNTING SIMPLIFIED THROUGH THE SAYLES SYSTEM.
We can save you money—and we can save you the time, trouble and annoyance of "Home Hunting." This is a centralized bureau for your convenience. We have a distinct service to render the prospective buyer, and this service is FREE.

OUR EXHIBITION FILES CONTAIN EVERY DETAIL AND FACT THAT YOU OUGHT TO KNOW ABOUT THE HOME YOU ARE BUYING. THE PROPERTY OF EVERY OWNER REPRESENTED BY THIS ASSOCIATION HAS BEEN EXAMINED BY OUR OWN ARCHITECT-BUILDER.

Photographs of the interior and exterior of each house, floor plans, room dimensions, closet space, arrangement, conveniences, general construction and finish, fixtures and decorations, etc., etc., are some of the details we can lay before you. Simply tell us your requirement and we can undoubtedly submit properties to meet it.

"THE HOME BUYERS' BULLETIN."
This publication is issued by this company for the benefit of Home Buyers. It contains photographic views and adequate descriptive announcements of the many homes offered for sale by builders and owners. If you are planning to buy a home now—or in the near future—you want, and we want you to have "THE HOME BUYERS' BULLETIN." See that your name is on our mailing list, so we can send you every issue. Just drop us a line or phone in, but do it NOW.

PARK

has numberless advantages to recommend it as a place for homes. Every member of your family, from children to grandparents, will find some attraction, some reason for preferring this locality. The playgrounds, the educational and social interests, the beautifully cultivated lawns and driveways, appeal to each in succession.

Added to all this, the price is most reasonable. Terms will the reach of ALL.

In all our experience we have never seen a more desirable homesite addition than

EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE.

It is Healthful.
It is Highly Improved.
It is Attractive.

The children call it "dandy." The old folks say "most desirable." The heads of families realize that it would be next to impossible to duplicate, and waste no time in arranging terms.

A high opinion of Mitchel's Exposition Park Square is the natural result after one visit to the tract. With seven car lines providing cars at intervals of only 30 seconds the question of transportation is settled.

The Manual Arts High School and the University of Southern California close by dispose of the educational factor.

"THE PRICE"

LOS ANGELES HARBOR! ! !

BEST CORNER IN WILMINGTON!

PAYS 5 PER CENT. NOW.

We have been fortunate in securing the agency of the most strategically located business corner in Wilmington, with new, modern, up-to-date improvements.

When the Panama Canal is finished and business is done over the city docks, the value per front foot of this property will be equal to or greater than the best property in San Pedro today, which is four times the price on the property.

This property could not be duplicated today for $15,000 more than the price, and the income can be increased to double in the near future.

$25,000 cash will handle this property. The balance can remain on a long time mortgage at a low rate of interest.

Eagle Rock.

FOR SALE—

FIVE-CENT FARE FOR
EAGLE ROCK.

The L. A. Railway Co., in recognition of the enormous increase of travel on the Eagle Rock line, has arranged to grant a five-cent fare (on books) to the end of the line. These books will be good for any member of the family and will cost $1.50 for 30 rides.

By the attainment of this concession, Eagle Rock has moved into the extreme front rank as Los Angeles' most popular suburb. Gas, electricity, pure water, good roads, both telephone systems, a high-class population, and finally five-cent fare, form a most complete chain of attractions.

Now add the natural advantages of Eagle Rock: High elevation, gorgeous scenery, fine bracing climate, free from fog, and a beautiful tree growth, and what more can be desired?

Better see us while present low prices prevail.

Residence Lots from	$275
Acreage from	$1000
Business Lots from	$1000

Easy terms. All street work done.

A RANCH WITH A GUARANTEED INCOME

We have something unusual to offer. It is very seldom that you can purchase property under these conditions. Read the following:
24½ acres, 2 miles south of El Monte, 18 acres full bearing walnuts; 6 acres full bearing apples, best winter varieties; all in the best of condition. The soil is a cool, moist loam and requires no irrigation whatever. Fine 2 story house, barn and other outbuildings. The owner will give a secured guarantee of a $4000 income yearly for the next four years. Price $30,000; will take a good bungalow up to $5000, $10,000 cash and balance to suit. Let us show you this property and you will be convinced of its merits.

SPECIAL BARGAINS.

85 Acres—This tract is a subdivision of the famous Baldwin Ranch and located within a few hundred yards of the thriving town of Puente and during any season of the year you can drive to Los Angeles dry shod, via the Valley boulevard, one of the good roads systems. Think of what this means. The soil is second to none for quality, and will produce any California product. Nothing better for alfalfa, vegetables, potatoes, strawberries or citrus fruits. As this tract is only 5 minutes' walk from schools, bank, stores, depot, it is unquestionably a fine homesite, or will sell readily if subdivided into small tracts. And, last of all, the water supply for irrigation is not surpassed by anything in Los Angeles county, being furnished by a pumping plant operated by electricity and delivering 180 miner's inches of water. Will sell the tract as a whole in 20-acre lots, on easy terms, at a price $100 per acre less than anything else of equal quality in the district. Do not delay but investigate this opportunity at once. Let us show you what is "doing" in the vicinity of Puente. It's the coming city in the San Gabriel Valley.

$52,250—100 acres, solid to alfalfa, located in the El Monte country, very deep sediment, loam soil, pumping plant on the ranch, pumps 175 inches of water with complete pipe system. Here is a money maker. Will sell 50 acres or all. Easy terms.

$4500—10 acres south of El Monte, subirrigated land, no irrigation required to grow potatoes, celery, alfalfa, etc. Terms $2000 cash, balance 3 years.

$5500—10 acres, a subdivision of the Baldwin Ranch, will grow anything without irrigation, good California house (new), barn, etc. Only 1½ miles south El Monte, 10 miles from city.

$10,000—10 acres full bearing soft-shell walnut orchard, one mile from El Monte, one block from public school, ¼ mile from car line, fair house, barn, etc. This grove is paying a fine income and cannot be duplicated for price, or quality.

$40,000—100 acres, 1½ miles south Buena Park; choice sediment soil; A1 alfalfa or walnut land; fine irrigation well. Terms.

$7500—At El Monte, 10 acres, 7 year-old walnuts, all in good condition, fine stand of alfalfa between trees, abundant supply of water for irrigation. Terms ½ cash.

$4500—10 acres, near Puente, newly seeded to alfalfa, 125 inches of water for irrigation; excellent location; ½ cash.

FOR SALE—

RICHGROVE.

"THE HOME OF THE EARLY ORANGE."

$100 AND $125 PER ACRE.

The earliest and choicest orange district in the State. The rapid strides in citrus fruit culture made at Richgrove of late together with the immense amount of water obtained in irrigating wells has awakened the interest of investors throughout the country.
Let us show you the possibilities of this district now before prices are advanced. Several hundred acres of oranges and lemons are being planted this season.
Anyone investing now will get their money back many times over, meanwhile develop an orange grove and it will bring you a big handsome income every year.

10, 20 AND 40-ACRE TRACTS.

We sell and give possession of ten acres for $12.63 down and $12.63 a month of the $100 land thus giving the purchaser eight years to pay for the land. By all means see Richgrove before buying. Excursion every week. Call or write for illustrated booklet and map.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—
SOMETHING DIFFERENT.
320 acres good alfalfa land, eight miles east of Lancaster, in Los Angeles county. In artesian belt; has good four-room California house, hall, porch and cellar, wainscoted, burleped and ceiled inside; also surface well. Price only $20 per acre, one-half cash, balance three years at 7 per cent., or will take up to $3000 in trade first-class Hollywood, Santa Monica or Long Beach clear lots, $1600 mortgage three years, 7 per cent., balance cash. If sold direct, saving commission, will repaint house inside and out and reburlap or paper to suit purchaser. This land will be worth double at opening of Panama Exposition in 1915, as good cheap land in Los Angeles county is getting scarce. To back up statement will enter into bona fide, mutually binding contract with buyer to repurchase land in June, 1915, at $30 per acre, plus new improvements at inventory, or will loan, at option of owner, $20 per acre, taking first mortgage as security. This means over 15 per cent. per year guaranteed compound interest from increment alone on present price of property. It will actually be nearer 20 per cent. This proposition is DIFFERENT and cannot remain open long. For further particulars and views of house and land, see or write the Owner, WALTER F. LINEBERGER, 437 W. A Part of the "Lucky" Baldwin Lands

It is worth your while to thoroughly investigate the many advantages which our land presents. We know the soil is absolutely the best in the country. We know there is no hardpan under the surface. We know the water supply is abundant and ample for all time.
Permit us to demonstrate these facts to you.
Grow oranges, lemons or walnuts; raise alfalfa, potatoes and all vegetables. Chickens thrive wonderfully well in this valley, owing to the dryness of the climate.
The only acreage near the big city which will have gas and electricity, and the proposed new electric car line will pass the rancho.
Both the Salt Lake and the Southern Pacific now serving the land.
20-minutes ride. No fare by book.
Terms are easy. Write for booklet.

FOR SALE—
MERCED COUNTY IRRIGATED LANDS.

Join our excursion to see the cream of the great San Joaquin Valley.

Sandy, sediment soil.

The land has been farmed for more than 30 years, and is considered the best in that great valley for raising sweet potatoes, all kinds of fruit, alfalfa and berries. Nothing better for dairying and hog raising.

A perpetual water right goes with our land and an abundance of water is always provided for irrigation purposes.

We are in the heart of more than 100 square miles of improved colony homes, and the formation and soil is all the same, and it will not take you long to convince yourself that we are offering the very best.

Will you call at our office and talk things over with us, and at your earliest possible convenience go with us to see what is being done by others, and what can be done by you?

Our prices are from $125 to $150 per acre, including water, and we will allow 7 years to pay for the land, or if it is desired, we will accept a payment of $10 per acre and the balance in monthly payments. In making these terms, we do not raise the price of our land, but are selling to you at a lower price than other good land is selling for, and our terms are the most reasonable being offered in Merced county.

We will take pleasure in telling you all about it, furnish you with new and attractive literature containing testimonials from numerous farmers, and also go with you to show the property.

Come and talk with us.

IMPERIAL VALLEY—

FOR SALE—
IMPERIAL VALLEY.
(See Bliss About It.)

Having ranched in the Imperial Valley the past three years and handled real estate during the same period, I think I know something about the GOOD land, the BETTER land and the BEST land (there is no BAD land in this valley.)

I have an extended list of improved ranches ranging in price from $75 to $300 per acre, according to quality of soil, location and state of improvements. Some of these will consider an exchange. Below I give a brief list.

240 acres improved hog ranch	$42,000
160 acres highly improved ranch	$22,500
160 acres ready for corn crop	$12,000
80 acres well improved, El Centro	$10,000

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY—

LINDSAY, PORTERVILLE, TERRA BELLA SECTION.

We have just returned from an extensive examination of the above district. Our investigations were along the line of verification and further search into the future of this delightful, money-making country. The second cutting of alfalfa is under way and wheat harvesting going on. The land values, too long held way below actual valuation, are now undergoing readjustment, and prices will soon double.

The orange grower can still secure some of the best land in the State, with abundant water close to the surface, and absolutely immune from frost, at $100 to $125 per acre. 40 acres immediately planted and properly cared for will make a fortune in three years.

The alfalfa devotee can see here some of the very best lands for his purposes in the world. Those skeptical should investigate. This advertisement is simply a call to those who desire the best lands in the prettiest section in the entire San Joaquin Valley to make an honest investigation. We ask nothing but that you go with us to Tulare county and have a look. If you don't buy it will simply mean that you are absolutely flat broke. One night's ride takes you there. One day gives you an idea of this magnificent country, and another night on the sleeper and you are here again, making arrangements to return there to live and get independently rich.

We have large acreage, with guaranteed water, at a price of $65 per acre.

320 acres of as fine orange land as lies outdoors for $75 per acre. Think of this! It will cut up and sell at once in 40-acre tracts for $125. If this land were to lie there inactive for 18 months it would double in value.

600 acres magnificent alfalfa land, level as a floor; $90 per acre.

A new power company is coming into this section, which will furnish power as low as $30 per horse power per year.

Any man with the inclination to get independent and desiring to better his every condition, including that of health, can get information at this office, which will set his feet in easy places and enable him to acquire a home in this most rapidly-developing county in the entire State.

Choose your line of endeavor, oranges, peaches, apricots, olives, alfalfa, potatoes, wheat, anything which soil, water and ideal climate will shove ahead of any section elsewhere, then come in and get posted. We accompany you to the properties.

GOVERNMENT LAND—

WE CAN POSITIVELY SHOW YOU FINE, level sagebrush land, lying from 3 to 5 miles from railroad shipping point, domestic water 20 to 40 feet, pumping water at 200 to 600 feet with less than 20-foot lift, rainfall nearly 14 inches. There is no other place in the country where you can use your homestead right and get good land that will raise good crops without irrigation. Remember! This land is not in the middle of nowhere, but under 5 miles from the railroad. Settlers we have located are now living on the land, others moving in. We go every Saturday, and if you are from Missouri, we want the opportunity of showing you.

NEECE-EVERETT COMPANY,

IMMO, RUNEY & CO., 13 Hamilton Bldg., Portland, Or.

YOUR LAST CHANCE—
To get government land, close to the city, in the San Antonio Valley. We can locate you close to good neighbors, who have developed plenty of water. We are only one of many who are making their home and spending their money in the development of the valley. We know the good and the bad land. We will be your neighbor, we can satisfy you if you want land equal to any of the high priced lands in California. Come to the office and talk it over, then go see the land and talk to people on the ground; they can tell you. LORS, 344 Bradbury Bldg.

HOMESTEAD AND DESERT CLAIMS—
SOIL VERY PRODUCTIVE. WILL GROW anything. Only a 75-mile ride from Los Angeles by automobile. Two excursions weekly. We take chances on water and put down wells, and guarantee water to suit. If you have been thinking of using your right to government land, don't think any longer, but do it now. We guarantee a correct survey and give you thirty days time to investigate. Cut this out and bring it with you and submit to Wm. Rohde,

ORANGE AND LEMON GROVES—
For Sale—Exchange—Wanted.

FOR SALE—
10 acres, 3 miles from Covina on good street. Five acres set to navels and five acres in Valencias. Large walnut trees across the front. The soil is the very best and the water right is ample. Good house and barn. If you are looking for a home in this famous locality, you cannot do better than see us while we have this grove for sale. Price $15,000.
10 acres for $32,500. The price seems high, but we can show you how this grove has paid over $30,000 in the last six years and this year there is about a $7000 crop. There is a $5000 Valencia crop now on the trees that will go with the place. The grove is planted two-thirds to Valencias and one-third to navels. The trees are all full grown, and in great condition. There is a fine 8-room house on the place with all modern improvements, and considering that it is only 1¼ miles west of Covina on the car line, the location is ideal for a home. This place is absolutely a topnotcher and will pay you to investigate.
60 acres for $75,000, situated in the famous Charter Oak District, one-half mile from the packing-house, and two miles from Covina. A Pacific Electric depot is situated on the property giving direct and frequent communication with Los Angeles. The property is situated above the general level of the valley, is entirely free from frost, and commands a fine view of the mountains to the north. It is planted to 1592 navels, 1931 lemons, and 647 Valencias. The trees are all three years old, except 84 lemons and 278 Valencias, which are fine one-year-old trees. The trees are from fine selected stock and in tip-top condition. The soil is a deep and uniform clay loam, soil best adapted for lemon culture. The water right is good, and a complete system of pipe lines affords a perfect irrigation arrangement. Streets surround the place on three sides.

Home 10946. Broadway 2468.

FOR SALE—POULTRY RANCH, WELL ESTABLISHED, profitable business, clearing over $3000 yearly; 5 acres sandy loam in center of rapidly growing locality. Plenty water, excellent transportation facilities, all conveniences. Over 2000 thoroughbred chickens in fine condition and free from vermin; substantial buildings and practical arrangements all through. Large incubator capacity, doing a highly profitable business in baby chicks, as well as with eggs for hatching. Balance of eggs are shipped to one firm at 4 cents above market price. The place is well known and advertised and the good will of the business is a valuable asset, but for personal reason will sell below inventory, about $5000, half cash. This is the best proposition on the market and if you are thinking of going into poultry raising here is your chance to step in and make money from the start instead of spending from one to two years' time, lots of work and a great deal of money to bring a new place up to paying basis. Better investigate this if you have the cash required. Address OWNER, H, box 68, Times Office.

FOR SALE—$1500; 3-ROOM NEW COTTAGE on acre and half ground, in small town, 30 miles out; water piped over entire place; some stately oaks grace the grounds, and a charming outlook makes this a most desirable place of residence. Do not overlook the fact that now is the time to prepare for next winter's business. Last year many waited too long, the result was a wild scramble for houses, with none to be had, everything was tied up.

We have the following houses to offer for lease, some in course of construction, and others with plans ready to start, when the right tenant is found.

We have four new locations where we can build to suit tenant. Plans at our office now. See us Monday.

HOTEL.
Plans ready, 100-room hotel, Class "A," $9 a room; 10 years' lease. Main street, near Seventh.
APARTMENT.
50 rooms, West Pico street, near Figueroa street, building to be on property line, all outside rooms, large windows in all kitchens and baths. Rent $7, 10 years' lease.
HOTEL.
60 rooms on East Fifth st., west of San Pedro street. Growing hotel district, 10 years, $6.50.
APARTMENT.
25 rooms, Adams street, near Main, 10 years' lease; $5. This is a very attractive proposition for a small investor, can be quickly sold for a profit.
WILL BUILD.
Will build north of Tenth and east of Flower st. The limit in Class "C" four stories, either as a hotel or apartment house. Probably $8 a room, will pay interest on the investment. Plans now being prepared. Additional information at our office. Remember, north of Tenth and east of Flower st.
APARTMENTS.
Flower street, inside lot, within 200 feet of the new hotel we recently leased on the southwest corner of Pico and Flower sts. Will build apartment house to suit you, even to the rent.
APARTMENTS.
Westlake. A corner with three open sides, limit class "C" construction. Owner stands ready to spend money like water, in order to have the best house in Westlake section. Price $8. We also have four or five other locations in Westlake district, where we can build to suit.
HOTEL.
A corner, between Eighth and Tenth, and between Grand ave., and Figueroa st. Class "A" hotel. Priced based on rate of interest on investment.
HOTEL OR APARTMENTS.
A corner, two blocks from Seventh and Main sts. Will build to suit. Hotel or apartments.
APARTMENTS.
Pico and Alvarado sts. A corner. Something near the Potter now in course of construction; will build to suit.
HOTEL.
We can build 150 to 200-room hotel, class "A" construction, with 1000 feet air line of Fifth and Hill sts., at $8.50 per room. This positively cannot be duplicated in the city. More information at our office.
HOTEL.
A corner, class "A" hotel; 9 stories high, at $9. East of Figueroa and north of Seventh st., and right downtown.
APARTMENTS.
We will build 40 rooms on Fremont ave., near Sixth st. Rent $7; long lease; many new and unusual features will be introduced in building. Exceptional location for this size house.
FOR SALE, FURNISHED.
A new downtown, furnished apartment house of 75 rooms, with long lease, at $7.50, furnishings at cost. Full particulars at our office. No information over phone. ½ cash will handle this.
FOR SALE, FURNISHED.
5-year lease on new 60-room hotel, on a corner, downtown, less than $6 per room rent. Well furnished and full. Small bonus. Easy terms.
We have many locations where the owners have signified a willingness to build, we are constantly searching for more.
It does not pay us to work on propositions we cannot deliver.
If you are in the market for a hotel or apartment lease it will pay you to see us, we can help you make money.

FOR EXCHANGE—
Have you a house, or other property in Los Angeles, that you would like to turn into a number of acres of rich productive alfalfa land with water? If so, here is an opportunity to trade in your equity on 20 or 40 acres of as rich alfalfa land as there is anywhere—land in a rapidly growing section, where conditions are so favorable you cannot fail to make good if you make the effort. The land is located between two railways in Kern county, and a deeded interest will be given in a plant furnishing more than the necessary water. Level, deep soil, and no hard pan. Your property will be accepted at a fair valuation, and the price of the land will be the same to you as to anyone buying on the regular payment plan. An equitable exchange—a proposition which will allow you to get your capital where it will work for you. Address K, box 218, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

FOR EXCHANGE—$55,000, BEAUTIFUL orange grove, pretty cottage on elevation overlooking entire ranch. One of the best equipped home places in Southern California. Estimated crop 10,000 boxes. DEAL WITH US—
IT WILL PAY YOU WELL.
When you need money you want to know where you can get it the moment you need it. Under those circumstances you have enough trouble, and we make it easy and pleasant for you to come to us and get the amount you require.
EASY TERMS.
When you come to us for money your terms and payments are made to suit your individual circumstances. If you can only afford to repay a small amount weekly or monthly we make the terms accordingly. Why let the want of a little money destroy your peace of mind; we loan to owners of household furniture, pianos, live stock, etc., to remain in your possession. If you have a loan elsewhere we will advance you the money to pay them and more if desired. Regardless of what others advertise, see us, it will pay you well. Call, write or phone. Our agent will call. Phone Main 4945.

A LOAN FROM US
Saves Money.
If you want money on FURNITURE, PIANO, horses, wagons, live stock or other personal property, without giving up the possession or use of same.
BORROW FROM US AND SAVE MONEY.
Our plan gives you a definite amount to pay each month, including both principal and interest, and you know just where you stand at all times, and if you find that you can pay before the loan expires you will receive a substantial rebate on the total cost. In this way a loan can be paid off much quicker and cost much less than the customary loan providing for payment of interest only. The reputation we have firmly established with those who know us is
A SQUARE DEAL ALL THE TIME.

REASONS WHY OIL COMPANIES SELL STOCK.

The question is often asked why oil companies are organized and why they offer stock on the market for sale. Why local parties do not take up all the oil enterprises.

If people would stop to consider a moment we think there would be no occasion for questions of that kind. It takes money to open up oil territory, and the oil men in organizing companies, are doing just what the railroads, large industrial enterprises, including iron, steel, coal and others in the East, are, by simply arranging their affairs so that small interests can be conveyed to separate individuals, and in that way secure the necessary capital to carry on the business of the company. Stocks are offered to general investors because no one has sufficient capital to successfully operate the property, however valuable the property may be.

Only a short time ago the British government went to New York City to raise some $5,000,000. These bonds are a good investment, yet the government went abroad. The bonds of a prosperous town or city may be gilt edged, yet they are placed to outside money markets. The Pennsylvania Railroad is an excellent investment, yet not one-fifth of its stock is owned in Pennsylvania. The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad securities are as staple as government bonds, yet the recent inventory of the estate of Cornelius Vanderbilt showed that he owned less than one-fiftieth of its stock. Standard Oil Company's stock has sold as high as $800 per share on the curb; it is not even listed security, yet it has paid as high as 80 per cent. dividends per year, and John D. Rockefeller owns less than one-third of the stock of the company he organized.

Make your savings earn something. It is not what you save that makes you rich; it is what that saving earns.

Recently the Los Angeles Times and other newspapers and journals throughout this State published a list of the listed oil companies of California, and it sets forth the fact that these companies have paid better than $35,000,000 in dividends to date.

If you held 1000 shares in any of these listed companies, your returns would be anything from a fair income to a yearly fortune. The records of the fortunes made in oil bring out two facts which are worthy of attention:

First—The greatest percentage of profit is made by the man or woman whose judgment prompts the purchase of a stock interest during the early stages of the development of an oil company, and whose persistence hold on to that stock until the days of big production arrive.

Second—The small investor has an equal chance with a large capitalist, and often makes a greater percentage of profit on the money he invests because he gets in on the ground floor. Procrastination is the thief of time. It is up to you to act, we have shown you the way.

Now, the Pan-American Oil Company is offering a very limited number of its shares at 5 cents because it is maintaining two camps in the Maricopa Oil Fields on Section 33-12-23, in one of which it has a well all its own down about 2600 feet and is entering the old rock, and in the other camp, the company is successfully cementing off the water in the well that penetrated the oil sand, and as we have often stated, threw an 8-inch stream almost to the Crown Block, indicating an immense producer, possibly 10,000 barrels daily.

The Field Superintendent believes this well will be in the coming week, and furthermore six-sevenths of this great production goes to the Pan-American Oil Company. But all this costs cash money for the men's wages, of whom we employ a big force, who must be paid promptly, and then the supply men's bills are cash every 30 days or so. It is evident expense goes on, and although a big production is assured it will require sixty days more before oil can be contracted to the big selling agencies, and the first cash returns received, so it must be plain to all that money must be raised on the stock, although we offer it at one-third its actual value, but of course this sacrifice will only last until we get the first returns on our oil.

Our needs are your opportunity to get a bargain. Our lessees, the El Dora Oil Company and California Amalgamated, have three wells. The El Dora's Well No. 1 is producing 800 barrels daily. These lessees, according to contract, will pay the Pan-American Oil Company royalties for 19 years to come. These lessees have leased 30 acres from the Pan-American Oil Company.

Send or call about Wednesday for the history of the Pan-American Oil Company. It is mighty "interesting reading."

A Coal-den Opportunity.

Books just opened for the first block of stock in the Pioneer Anthracite Coal and Supply Co. Stock now on sale at the office of the company,

306 GERMAIN BLDG.,
224 S. Spring st., Los Angeles, Cal.

This company owns free and clear 124.4 acres of land in the heart of the Pilot Knob anthracite coal fields of Routt county, Colorado. The land contains 8 seams of coal, 10, 8, 14, 7, 9 and 12 feet, or a total of over 60 feet, within 360 feet of the suface, 35 feet being anthracite and 25 feet bituminous coal suitable for steamship, manufactories, smelters, blacksmithing and domestic purposes. Reports on file in our office, by the following well-known geologists and mining engineers show it to be as fine coal as is produced in America:

W. Weston, M.I.M.M., Dr. E. A. Hewitt, E.M., Prof. Authur Lakes, E.M., D. J. Morris, S.G.C., and R. E. Hicks.

Railroads for which the original owners have waited for over 25 years will reach the field this year.

The Moffat road will soon have 18 miles of road constructed to the field. The Laramie Hahn's Peak and Pacific is now building and will reach our land, going directly across, by October. Los Angeles will have this clean hard coal on her market by December 1.

By a very conservative estimate of the coal contained in our tract, there are at least 50 tons of coal at 2c per ton behind the par value of each share of the capital stock.

You are invited to call and see samples of the coal and geologist's reports, maps, etc., and have the proposition carefully explained to you.

Prospectus and information on application. A limited amount of the treasury stock is offered for a few days at 65 cents the share for development purposes. Get in early and secure yours. Work to start on the property at once. We must be ready for the railroad as soon as they get to us.

PIONEER ANTHRACITE COAL & SUPPLY CO., Home Phone A4674.

"HOME BUILDERS" GUARANTY SHARES have many privileges which distinguish them from the shares sold without the guaranty. They are convertible into cash under the written terms of the Guaranty and are assured an earning of at least 8 per cent. per annum. They may also be used in the purchase of property or other securities held by the Company and have a standing loan value of 50 per cent. of the current selling price. This Guaranty is given only to original purchasers by "HOME BUILDERS GENERAL AGENCY," who issues it. Assets amounting to over $150,000 are held to assure the fulfillment of this Guaranty.

"HOME BUILDERS" stock, whether Guaranty shares or not, is the best investment in the local market today. If you can buy "HOME BUILDERS" shares without the Guaranty for less than the price of Guaranty shares it is a fortunate purchase, and will yield you a good dividend, but when you buy Guaranty shares you have an added protection and will participate in the profits of the GENERAL AGENCY which the other shareholders do not possess. Guaranty shares are sold only by "HOME BUILDERS GENERAL AGENCY," 129 South Broadway. Correspondence and inquiry solicited. Phones: Home 10962, Main 696.

STOCKS AND BONDS—
And Mortgages.

PICK AND DRILL—

Have you bought yourself any Pick and Drill yet? Mark my word, here is a red-hot issue. The public hasn't had a chance at a good mining stock for so long that it is slow to recognize one. Pick and Drill is one of the best things that's happened since the palmy days when Mohawk drove the people stark mad; when parents robbed the children's banks and sold the family horse to buy the stock at 25 and 50 cents a share, and had the grim satisfaction of seeing it go to twenty dollars. Mark it down in your hat band that Pick and Drill is another Mohawk. I am telling you that the ore bodies exposed on the 600-foot level would drive a Croesus nutty. And if this mine were in Goldfield, instead of Arizona, it would call for a night shift of brokers. The stock has advanced in two weeks' time 600 per cent., but it hasn't fairly crawled out of its grave clothes yet. When the public wakes up to the fact that here is one of the great mines of the day forcing itself into the limelight with its big bodies of high-grade gold ore and immense copper ledge, it will believe what I am trying to impress upon it, that Pick and Drill is a whale of a mine, booked for big things. Buy it for an investment. If you haven't got the money, borrow it, sell your automobile, cancel your summer vacation—any way under the blue sky to get it; and within a few months' time men of means will want, at high figures, what you got as a Christmas gift. There's some big news coming—watch for it. Buy Pick and Drill for fancy profits and permanent dividends.

FOR SALE—

COLGAN-HENDERSON FURNITURE CO.,
L. A.'s Greatest Bargain Furniture Store.
734 South Main street.

Great discount sale now on.
Everything in our store reduced from 20 per cent. to 33 1-3 per cent.
Everything marked in plain figures.
Some things below cost.
Dressers that we have too many of—one kind below cost to get rid of some of them.
To reduce the stock on that particular kind.
And if they suit you you save one-third on the regular price and our goods always were cheaper than most stores.
The same, with iron and brass beds, we find we are overstocked on certain kinds of iron and brass beds and have cut the price to cost and less for a quick sale.
And don't forget your credit is good.
These prices go whether you pay cash or buy on time.
Ours is the liberal credit store.
Where your credit is good.
Buy all the goods you want and make a small payment down and a little each week or month, as you get your pay, and we will furnish your home completely with the best kind of goods.
If you need anything in the housefurnishing line there is no use to put it off any longer. Come in and open an account today.
Fair treatment assured and everything guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded.
Big stock of refrigerators on hand. Come and get one today while the stock is large and the price low.
We sell the best gas range in this city for $15 with four large burners and 1 simmerer on top, large 18-inch oven below and we deliver and connect, free, any place in the city.
You have to pay $30 elsewhere for a poorer stove.
Remember, we have the lowest rent in L. A. for the same size floor space. Have unlimited means to buy in large quantities and pay cash and get the best price obtainable.
We are therefore in a position to sell cheaper than those who pay higher rent and pay more for their goods.
You owe it to yourself to give us a call and see our goods and get our prices and terms before you buy.
We know we have all the big furniture stores in L. A. beat on prices and we want you to know it. So come and see us.

LAKE MAY EVAPORATE.

Light Rainfall and Lighter Snowfall in Tulare Region Will Bring About Strange Condition.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

HANFORD, June 1.—In the belief of many who keep close tab on conditions, many thousand acres of Tulare Lake lands, which for several years have been submerged, will be left high and dry this year owing to the comparatively light rainfall and the fact that in the mountains the usual amount of snow that melts and flows through Kings, Tule and Kern rivers into the lake is missing this season. This freak lake, which at one time had almost entirely dried up, may be preparing for the same process again, although there is no assurance that successive seasons like this one will follow. A large rim of land now submerged has but a very few feet of water upon it and it is this land which some believe confidently will be left high and dry by evaporation this summer. Lands are now being farmed on the lake shores which two years ago were under water, and the water is reported to be receding more rapidly now than for some time past.

NEW RATES.

Under the new rates ordered by the State Railroad Commission, as the outcome of the so-called San Joaquin Valley cases, the first-class freight tariff from Los Angeles to Hanford is raised from 71 cents to 72 cents, while the lower-class rates are reduced considerably. The new and old rates between Los Angeles and Hanford are as follows:

	New Rate.	Old Rate.
First class	72	71
Second class	61	66
Third class	50	61
Fourth class	45	57

Under these rates increased business by the Los Angeles jobbers in this territory will probably result, although rates between San Francisco and Hanford have also been cut by the commission's order.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The City Trustees, in order to ascertain public sentiment on the proposal to call a bond election to secure money with which to improve and extend the sewer system, have hit upon the novel plan of mailing return postal cards to the voters, asking that they signify their opinion as to whether they would favor the issue and whether they think the issue would carry. The bonds were submitted to an election before the present Trustees came into office, but were defeated, so the new board wants to know the chances for them carrying at this time before incurring the expense of another election and preparations of new plans and specifications.

News was received here today that Mrs. A. L. Raney, wife of the former manager of the Raney drug store, was painfully injured at Sacramento yesterday when run into by an electric automobile. She is said to have become confused in a congestion of traffic and stepped right in the path of the machine

The first immediate result of the periodical inspection of dairies in this county by State Inspector J. S. [illegible] was the payment of a $25 fine in Justice Ferguson's court today by Joe Prandini on a charge of maintaining an unsanitary dairy.

The presentation of "H. M. S. Pinafore" by the Hanford Liedertafel Society at the Ashby last evening was successful in every way. Splendid training and ability was demonstrated by the principals and chorus of a half-hundred voices, under the direction of Charles A. J. Brown.

forward with pleasurable anticipation to the entertainment which has been arranged for the next two days.

Many of the visitors are making their first trip to California and these are delighted with their first impressions of the sunny southland. George T. Manson, president of the Okonite Company of New York and a dominant figure in electrical affairs in that city has been in this city three times before. The first time was more than twenty years ago. "It is a wonderfully attractive and fascinating country," he said last night, "whenever winter comes I want to get back here and stay until the cold weather in the East has gone. The climate and the natural beauties are wonderful, but I also admire the spirit and enterprise of your business men. I regard the growth of Los Angeles since the time when I first saw it as nothing short of marvelous."

Special cars will leave the Pacific Electric station this morning to convey the visitors to Mt. Lowe. The cars will go by way of Pasedana, where those who remained over night in that city may join the party, Altadena, Rubio Canyon, where the incline railway will be used, and then by trolley to Alpine Tavern where luncheon will be served. On the return trip a stop will be made at the Cawston ostrich farm.

EASTERN LIVE WIRES SOUTHLAND'S GUESTS.

Train de Luxe Brings Vanguard of Delegates on Way to Convention of National Electric Light Association. Entertainment Begins With Chamber of Commerce Reception—Two Days' Trips Planned.

TRAVELING on one of the most-luxuriously-appointed trains that ever crossed the continent, 110 representatives of the leading electric corporations of the Atlantic Coast arrived in this city last night on their way to attend the annual convention of the National Electric Light Association in Seattle next Thursday. The trip will be resumed at noon, by way of Redondo Beach, to Long Beach where luncheon will be served at Hotel Virginia. The steam plant of the Southern California Edison Company will be visited in the afternoon and a trip to Wilmington and San Pedro Harbor has also been arranged. Monday night the train will proceed northward to Seattle.

The train is magnificently equipped and is furnished by the New York Central Railroad Company. It is under the supervision of a representative of that company. The itinerary of the trip covers five weeks from the time of leaving New York and Boston and the total distance travelled will be 9134 miles.

MADAME YAW WILL SING.

Splendid Concert to be Given for Benefit of Lark Ellen Home for News and Working Boys.

Ellen Beach Yaw will be heard at the Auditorium the evening of June 15, when she sings for the benefit of the Lark Ellen News and Working Boys' Home. Assisting her in this concert will be Francis Moore, pianist, and Miss Ruth Hayward, protege of Madame Yaw and a young woman who has been heard with high favor on her previous appearances in this city. This trio should offer a capital entertainment, and one no doubt which will tax the capacity of the great house in which they are to present their choice programme.

It was fifteen years ago that the Newsboys Home of this city, then five years old, was given the name under which it now does its excellent work. Madame Yaw heard of the noble charity at that time and as she has always been great friends with boys, and especially with newsboys, she gave a concert for its benefit. Appreciating the honor done the home as well as the handsome sum which the concert netted the institution, the little band of women responsible for its existence called it Lark Ellen after the great singer and by this name it has been known at its Eighth and San Pedro, its Twentieth street and its Eagle Rock locations.

By good management the board of directors were able two years ago to purchase and pay for fifteen acres of land on Prospect drive, out Eagle Rock Valley way, but within the city limits. This property is already of great value and will rapidly increase. In the meantime the fine large place will be used as a farm on which the boys may release their energies to any extent. They are sent to school while they are under the age of 15 years and the farm, of course, is a great place for them in the summer.

At present the home has twenty-four rugged young residents, which is all that it can possibly be made to accommodate. Any homeless boy is eligible to admission and there is no bar against a youngster because he may have come under the influences of the street. This is exceptional. Most institutions prefer boys without a street record as associates for more fortunate children. The home is superintended by Miss Edith Anderson, the board of directors consisting of Mrs. E. A. Whittlesey, Miss Nellie Avery, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Vieira, Mrs. G. N. Turner, Miss Mary C. Housel and Dr. R. H. Burton. The funds raised by the concert will be expended in the purchase of chickens and in outfitting the farm generally.

AIM HIGH, SHOOT LOW.

Boys Try to Bag Bird Perched in Tree, but Bullet Wounds Lad Standing on Ground.

Daniel Clark, No. 1223 Selma street, a school boy, was shot through the left arm while playing under a tree with two chums near Daisy Lake, yesterday. The bullet was fired by one of three other small boys, and was intended for a bird perched on a limb high in the tree under which the boys were playing.

With Clark were Alvin Donnelly, No. 1229 Selma street, and Bobbie Sewan, Avenue Fifty-four and Buchanan street. Wade and Brooks Mofart, No. 317½ West Fifty-second street, and Tom Leslie, No. 3124 Granada street, were the hunters. They ran away when they learned they had shot Clark. His two companions used their handkerchiefs to stanch the flow of blood, and carried him to Dr. Smith's office, No. 6306 Eagle Rock avenue.

Chinese Native Sons of the Golden State to Conduct Opening Ceremonies Today.

Members of Los Angeles Parlor, Chinese Native Sons of the Golden State, will hold a grand opening this afternoon and evening at No. 333 Apablasa street.

The afternoon meeting will be followed by an elaborate banquet at 9 o'clock. Many of the leading Chinese merchants of San Francisco are expected to participate in the festivities.

A number of Los Angeles city officials have been invited to attend. Law Yuen, president of the parlor, will preside. Addresses will be delivered by H. N. Ling, E. L. Hue, Ray P. Craig and J. J. O'Shannessy, honorary members of the parlor. Tom Gunn, the Chinese aviator, arrived yesterday from San Francisco and will be a guest.

NO DISAGREEMENT HERE.

Tufts's Step-Daughter's Case Is Suited Successfully and Courtship Ripens into Marriage.

Among the most interested spectators at the trial of Gorham Tufts, Jr., on Friday was his step-daughter, Mary Scranton Roe. Her devoted companion was Horace Frank Scruby of Denver, whose stalwart build proclaimed him an athlete. Miss Mary was intensely interested in the outcome of the trial, but few in the courtroom knew, and least of all Tufts, that she only awaited the result of the jury's deliberations to wed.

The ceremony was quietly performed at the Tufts home, No. 21 Chester place, yesterday, by Rev. Charles Seccomb. Tufts was not present as the entente cordiale existing between himself, his wife and her daughters has been fearfully strained, but there was a merry little party at the home to wish the bride and groom good luck and happiness.

The romance began when Scruby met Miss Roe at a football game at the University of Chicago during a game between the Maroons and Minnesota University eleven, in which Scruby played. The young man proved an ardent wooer, and while Tufts was on trial for embezzlement he was constantly in attendance with his fiancee. He is well-known in eastern collegiate circles and is a fine athlete.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Jennie H. S. Roe Tufts. Her father was the late A. J. Roe, a Texas lumberman.

Method in Delay?

AWAITING AID FROM MEXICO.

Magon Brothers to Be Tried Beginning Tuesday.

Member of Madero's Cabinet Is Their Relative.

His Good Offices Expected to Have Influence.

The long-delayed trial of the titular heads of the Mexican insurrecto junta, Ricardo Flores Magon and Enrique Magon, brothers, and Librado Rivera and Anselmo Figueroa, is to be begun in the United States District Court, Tuesday.

For more than a year the Federal government has been endeavoring to bring them to book on charges of violation of the neutrality laws.

The delay is alleged to be due to efforts of Jesus Magon, a member of President Madero's Cabinet and a brother of two of the accused, to stave off the trial as long as possible in the hope that international affairs would so shape themselves as to enable him to help his relatives.

Jesus Magon is Secretary of the Interior of Mexico and it is understood he is using his good offices in behalf of his brothers. President Madero is openly committed to the programme of punishing the alleged conspirators who, in the summer of 1911 made his life miserable by their operations in Lower California.

With the arrest of the Magons and the temporary discontinuance of Regeneration there was a falling away of the enthusiasm of the disturbers, it is asserted, but when Jesus Magon was appointed Secretary of the Interior there was a resumption of activities and the paper again appeared.

Jesus Magon is one of the leaders of advanced thought in Mexico and stands high in the opinion of President Madero. The local Magons have had but little in common with their more successful brother. Ricardo Magon, say those who know him, has always been considered the "black sheep" of the Magon family. Several years ago Ricardo, Librado Rivera, and two other "patriots" were convicted of violating the neutrality laws and served a term each in the penitentiary at Florence, Ariz.

It is estimated that the government has already spent not less than $5000 in the Magon prosecution and every effort will be made to begin the trial Tuesday. Forty witnesses have been subpoenaed in behalf of the government, and it is asserted that twice that number will be ready to testify for the defendants. It is expected that when the case is called Tuesday morning endeavor will be made to secure a further postponement by the defense because of the alleged poverty of the prisoners, who assert they have been unable to secure the attendance of witnesses, or have their depositions taken.

Meanwhile, every effort is being made by the defense to open the way for the postponement of the hearing to obtain the good offices of President Madero for the nominal punishment of the Magon brothers in case conviction follows. The bonds in all of the cases are less than $5000 for all four defendants.

SHOES MADE TO WEAR WELL.

Other Improvements at Whittier State School Are Told to Members of City Club—Manners.

F. B. Nelles, superintendent of the State Reform School at Whittier, addressed the City Club yesterday, telling of the improvements in conditions and discipline that he wrought during his incumbency.

The advantages of the new parole system were explained briefly by Maj. Truman H. Cole, commandant of the school.

The improvement in the character of the shoes manufactured at the school was graphically demonstrated by having one of the inmates, of whom several were in attendance with the superintendent, show the old style of shoe and the new style. The showing elicited applause. The new shoe is of better shape and better leather, and, the superintendent said, costs less. The old battered enamelware, cups and pitchers, were shown, and by their side the superintendent placed the chinaware, glass and neat cutlery now used. Better tableware, he said, has improved the inmates' manners.

Tale-bearing, whipping of girls, and such punishments as the Oregon boot—a heavy ring of iron worn on the ankle—have been abolished. The method of dealing with escapes who were captured and returned, he explained, has produced reform there and officers no longer address the boys in angry voices.

AS FOOD FOR CATTLE.

Elaborate Exhibit of the Latest Thing in Spineless Cacti on Display by Burbank's Agents.

An elaborate display representing the possibilities of the spineless cacti perfected by Luther Burbank will be placed on exhibit this morning in the window of the Germain Seed Company, on South Main street. G. A. Mertes, representing the plant wizard, has prepared the exhibit, the cost of which is in the neighborhood of $300 and will be here until the 15th inst., as a demonstrator.

Mertes is of the opinion that within a decade the spineless cactus will, to a considerable extent, replace alfalfa and other fodders as a food for cattle. He says that, under much less favorable conditions, it produces about twenty times the tonnage of fodder per acre as the fodder grasses and needs no irrigation or care, nor even fertile soil. He says that experiment has shown that cattle eat it greedily and fatten visibly in so doing.

There are now perfected thirty varieties of the spineless cactus by Burbank—fifteen fruiting and the same number of forage plants. It is claimed for the fruiting varieties that the product is of exceptional merit as human food. All the different kinds are to be planted between May and September, in dry ground and without water.

RELISH MONKEY MEAT.

Brazilians Eat Denizens of Jungle in Lieu of Better Food Like Lions and Jaguars.

"Monkeys, mountain lions, jaguars and half a dozen other denizens of the jungle are looked on as wholesome food by the natives of Brazil," said Dr. Allen Walcott, yesterday. He is a surgeon of the Madeira-Mamore Railway Company, which is just reaching into the back country in order to give an outlet to the great rubber country of Bolivia.

"Nearly all of the wild beasts to be found in the tropic jungles are looked on as delicacies by the Indians of the territory," Dr. Walcott declared.

"The monkey they esteem an especial rarebit because of the sweetness of the meat, although it is tough. Lion steaks are not bad at all and the jaguar, probably the most ferocious of beasts, is so rarely captured that it is always a novelty to the semi-civilized tastes.

"Deer, wild pigs, tapir and other animals that are considered fine game in any country are to be had in the Madeira country. The Farquar interests, which are building the road, have 4000 men at work."

"The methods used at the Panama Canal by the Americans to bring about a healthy condition of affairs are being followed by the railroad builders," said Dr. Walcott.

"That country is advancing rapidly commercially and in the education of the people. Modern business methods, new schools, the opening of large land tracts, and their colonization are pushed by the Brazilians at the head of the government."

Dr. Walcott will go from here to Oakland to visit a brother and then go on to Boston to continue his studies. He is stopping at the Hayward.

N.D.C. MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The Robert E. Lee Chapter, N.D.C. will hold its annual memorial service at Trinity Methodist Church, Ninth street and Grand avenue, Monday. The addresses and prayer will be made by Dr. R. P. Howell and Rev. J. J. N. Kinney. The public is welcome at a meeting of the chapter next Thursday. The new officers will take their places as follows: Mrs. J. H. Stewart, president; Mrs. F. B. Nellums, vice-president; Mrs. W. N. Perry 2nd. vice-president; Mrs. W. A. Kerley, secretary; Mrs. E. A. Miller, treasurer; Mrs. Franklin N. Morgan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. A. Chase, registrar; and Mrs. A. S. Van de Grift, historian.

There is no real need of anyone being troubled with constipation. Chamberlain's Tablets will cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any unpleasant effect. Give them a trial.—[Adv.

WILL DEVELOP RICH COUNTRY.

Railway Extension Surveyed to Apache Camp.

Tucson's Double Complaint Against Light Rate.

Mexican Extradited for Attacking Chinese.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) May 31.—The survey of a northern extension of the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad has progressed through Mammoth to a point seven miles northwest of Oracle. The immediate objective point is Apache Camp, a mining property of the Copper Queen Company, though private announcement has been made that a feasible route has been found around the west side of the Pinal Mountains from Winkelman to Globe, tapping a rich mining country in which the Phelps-Dodge Company, which controls the Southwestern, already had large interests. In this city, according to Walter Douglas of the Phelps-Dodge Company, the Southwestern will erect the finest station building in Arizona, with beautiful garden surroundings. The Southwestern buildings here are to cost $150,000 and are to be of steel and concrete. Contracts will be awarded June 20.

There is a possibility that the alleged overcharges of the Tucson Gas and Electric Light and Power Company will be doubly submitted to the Arizona Corporation Commission by the city authorities and the Chamber of Commerce. Especial objection is made to the meter rent exacted.

Page Nash, a waiter, committed suicide in this city Saturday by shooting himself through the head in a room in his lodginghouse. Nash had been in ill health.

UNIQUE DISTINCTION.

Roy McFate, in the employment of the Arizona Copper Company at Clifton, is distinguished by the fact that he still lives, though thrown from the top of a high pole by an electrical shock of 2300 volts, about four times as much as ordinarily would cause death. As he fell he was caught in a network of wires, from which he was disengaged by fellow workmen after a telephone message to the works had resulted in a hurried shutting off of the current. The man probably will recover.

The courts have been appealed to under the usury law in a suit against the Tucson Mortgage Loan Company for $237. The plaintiff, Daniel Durack, states that last September he borrowed $22, with 10 per cent. interest per month and that without notice the security he pledged was sold by the company.

In Cananea the judge of the first instance has placed an embargo upon the property of former Mayor E. R. Arnold, to secure the city government for moneys expended by Arnold under the former regime in Sonora, it being alleged that the expenditures at that time were not accounted for to the satisfaction of the present municipal authorities.

EXTRADITED FROM MEXICO.

The Mexican authorities have turned over to the Sheriff of Santa Cruz county, Antonio Marquez, a Mexican, who committed a murderous assault upon Dan Cuen, a Chinese merchant in Nogales. The victim was not stunned by the first blow and his outcry brought assistance. Marquez fled across the line, where he later was apprehended. Especial acknowledgement has been made by the American officers of the courtesy and good will manifested by the Mexican authorities who handled the case.

The well of the Arizona Oil Company at Contention is now down about 620 feet in soft shale, with a strong flow of gas.

The tunnel under the Colorado River is practically complete. It has been lighted by electricity and is being tested for leaks. Work will be started Monday on the surface ditches connecting with the shafts on the California and Arizona sides.

Although many American families have been sent out of the Yaqui delta of Sonora, most of the American farmers have returned to harvest their crops of wheat, barley and garvanzos, worth at least $500,000. Thus far they have been undisturbed and their products are being brought with all speed by the Southern Pacific railroad. Farther south, despite the occasional visits of bandits, at least 500 carloads of tomatoes, cantaloupes and garvanzos will be shipped.

The Tucson Automobile Club is placing signboards at all diverging roads within Pima county.

Manual training will be installed in the Tucson grammar schools upon their reopening, September 23. Hereafter, the departmental system will prevail in the three upper grades of the grammar schools.

A camp of Arizona Boy Scouts with 125 members from all parts of the State, will be established next month in the Santa Catalina Mountains at Mt. Lemmom. The Tucson Chamber of Commerce will assist in raising $500, for a log house, to be permanent headquarters. This will be surrounded by tents.

Dissatisfied with a serious cut in his emoluments, Justice of the Peace J. E. Dutton has resigned and will move to San Diego.

Cornelius O'Keefe of Nogales has been renominated by the President to be Collector of Customs for the District of Arizona. It is said that Mr. O'Keefe is the first collector at Nogales to serve out his full term.

WANTS RELIC OF WRIGHT.

British Admirer Urges Proposal for His Nation to Obtain One of the Original Biplanes.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LONDON, June 1.—A British admirer of Wilbur Wright wants the British nation to obtain one of the original Wright biplanes. He points out that at the South Kensington Museum is George Stephenson's locomotive, the "Rocket," the symbol of the world's transportation revolution of the nineteenth century, and adds: "Why not so possess ourselves of a national memorial to a great man by buying an example of the great transport invention of the twentieth century?"

DEVELOPING BUST

Mlle. Merlyn, America's greatest authority on Health and Beauty Culture, advises deep breathing each morning and night, massaging the parts with Melorose Beauty Cream each night, and each morning bathe the parts with cold salt water. Take White's Vaucaire Galega Tablets four times a day, drink water freely, and within a very reasonable time excellent results will be noticed. It is essential that you take the Vaucaire remedy that contains the GENUINE IMPORTED GALEGA, such as Willard White Company's does, and to be on the safe side ask for this brand, take no substitutes, as they are worthless and a waste of time.

The tablets are more of a food than a medicine, and are perfectly harmless. Easy to take.

Not only does Mlle. Merlyn indorse this method, but also all high authorities on beauty cult, and beauty writers and thousands of women who have successfully used them. White's Vaucaire Galega Tablets are no new experiment.

MADAM DE LE VIE

The world's greatest writer and lecturer on Health and Beauty Cult, recommends only Willard White Company's Vaucaire Galega Tablets for developing the bust and as a general tonic and flesh builder, and maintains that they are much better than the liquid. The Cruel Facts.

FIGURES DON'T SUIT BAY CITY.

Northern Newspaper Suggests Way to Boost 'Em.

San Francisco Wants to Lead in Construction.

Matching Contracts Against Permits Unfair.

That the regular monthly habit of Los Angeles of winning the building laurels of the Pacific Coast is getting on the nerves of the Bay City is evident by an editorial published in the San Francisco Chronicle of May 12. The comment is made in connection with the monthly publicity sheets that are sent out from month to month throughout the country by the California Development Board, and is in the nature of a suggestion to that body in relation to the possibility of making the San Francisco figures loom up a little bigger in the national construction column.

The Chronicle editorial reads as follows: "The California Development Board would do well to disregard the use of building permit figures for this city in printing its comparative statements. An unfortunate fee system discourages the telling of the truth when applications for permits are made, and the city suffers from the understatements which are sent out broadcast. The permits for April, as published by the board, aggregate only $1,916,659, whereas building contracts to the amount of $3,443,334, were recorded during the month. Better stick to figures of contracts. There is no object in understating them and their absolute correctness is guaranteed. The permit statement is valueless and misleading."

In discussing the editorial in question with a representative of The Times yesterday, Mark C. Cohn, chief clerk of the building department, expressed considerable amusement at the suggestion of the northern newspaper. "The public has been repeatedly informed by the Fact and Comment writer of The Times," he said, "what every building inspector in the big cities of the United States knows—that San Francisco now officially pads her building permit valuation every month of every year by adding 25 per cent. of 'undervaluation.' As it is, the comparison between the Bay City figures and those of Los Angeles and other cities is on a basis that is altogether to the advantage of San Francisco and to the disadvantage of every other city. Los Angeles publishes and officially reports her building permit figures at their exact face value. And at that we are beating San Francisco every month, even with the 25 per cent. added to the Bay City totals. If Los Angeles is not complaining about 'undervaluation' affecting the totals, what possible right has San Francisco to raise a kick?

"If the permit valuation is fair to one city it is fair to all," continued Cohn. "We have never objected to San Francisco's padding her statistics by 25 per cent., even though our own figures went out at their face value. It would most certainly be manifestly unfair to Los Angeles and to every other city for San Francisco to foist its contract figures as representative of the building activity of the Bay City, while other cities were reporting the permits actually issued.

"Contracts are sometimes recorded for work that may not be started for years and often for jobs that are ancient history so far as the building department is concerned. The contracts include street work, sidewalks, sewers and a score of things that are not and ought not to be included in the regular building permits. Again it must be remembered that while every builder is required by law to take out a permit for a new building, the taking out of a contract is optional.

"For purposes of real comparison as to the amount of building actually going on in the different cities the reporting of recorded contracts would be valueless. The adoption of such a plan as that suggested by the Chronicle would make San Francisco the laughing stock in construction circles the country over. It is to be hoped that the California Development Board will do nothing so foolish and unfair as to place the recorded contracts of San Francisco county in the same column with the actually issued building permits of other cities as a comparison of the building activity of the different important cities of the United States. Incidentally The Times is to be congratulated for the way in which it has repeatedly shown up some of the publicity mediums of San Francisco for their publication of false and misleading figures tending to make it appear that San Francisco was leading Los Angeles in material advancement."

URGES CHANNEL BUILDING.

Noted French Engineer Declares Dredging of Slough to Gardena Project of Great Importance.

Declaring his conviction that the harbor district and the lands in the vicinity of Bixby and Nigger sloughs are destined in a very short time to become the scene of an industrial activity comparable to that of the greatest manufacturing and shipping centers of the globe, J. A. Hardel of Paris, a noted French engineer, yesterday signalized his faith in the future of Los Angeles by buying from W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. a block of land at Harbor City, together with scattered lots, his whole investment being in excess of $10,000. M. Hardel is at present the government engineer at Cayenne, French Guinea, where he has been instrumental in the opening to the world of the wonderful resources of that practically unexplored country.

"Los Angeles is so situated geographically," declared Hardel, "that it cannot fail to become one of the world's greatest cities. If the city fails to take the benefit of its natural advantages it will be guilty of a shortsightedness that will be nothing short of criminal. Being the first port of entry above the Panama Canal, the city is in a position to become the receiving point not only for the ships of Europe but for the commerce of all of South America.

"The city of Los Angeles must have a deep harbor and a ship canal through Bixby and Nigger sloughs to Gardena. The first essential is being provided. It will be a sin against future generations if the second is not provided at once. Los Angeles must be ready for the world's shipping the moment it comes through the canal, if it would gain that early prestige which is so necessary to future commercial supremacy. Nature has actually done more than half the work of preparing the channel to Gardena. To the engineer the problem of dredging and cutting such a channel, with the necessary basins, is a comparatively simple one. I have been assured that the project would soon be started.

"In the city of St. Thomas, in the Dutch West Indies, the government of Holland is spending $3,000,000 in the creation of an artificial harbor. The city of Bourge in Belgium was an inland place for centuries. In 1900 the city resolutely set about it to dig a channel to salt water and to create a great turning basin. Today the place is one of the important commercial centers of Europe. Very much such a problem as that presented by Bixby and Nigger sloughs has been met by the city of Rouen in France, which has dredged a channel twenty-six feet in depth to Havre and which has as a conquence been transformed from an inconsequential place into a city whose shipping amounts to over 4,000,000 tons a year."

TRADES FOR TEXAS LAND.

Riverside County Holdings Exchanged for Large Ranch in Lone Star State.

Through the joint agencies of F. S. Robinson, C. C. DeLong, George N. Sceets and J. H. Burke, Robert Connely last week transferred to Frederick C. Mathison of this city, 10,230 acres situated in Southwest Texas, just south of Corpus Christi and extending from the railroad to the Gulf of Mexico. The land lies just east of the great King ranch of 100,000 acres and immediately south of the famous Taft ranch. The property is a part of Los Lau Re Los ranch conveyed by the King of Spain over a century ago. The land is said to be particularly adapted to the cultivation of Bermuda onions. Mathison will at once improve the entire tract for the market.

The deal between Mathison and Connely was in the nature of a trade, the former conveying to the latter 2000 acres of choice land adjoining the Murietta Hot Springs in Riverside county, and other parcels in Riverside and Los Angeles counties, together with the remaining lots in the Palo Verde tract. The last-named property was held at $717,600. It is Connely's intention to colonize his new California holdings. The entire consideration in the exchange is given at $1,500,000.

TWO THOUSAND PER CENT. RISE.

CLUNE SITE ON MAIN SELLS FOR HIGH FIGURE.

Film Magnate Realizes One Hundred and Twenty Thousand Dollars on Property Acquired Ten Years Ago for Six Thousand—Skyscraper for Ninth and Broadway.

One of the most noteworthy of recent instances of the increase in value of downtown real estate is involved in the transfer yesterday afternoon of the property at No. 727-29 South Main street, which houses Clune's Film Exchange. The holding was sold by W. H. Clune to W. H. Daum, industrial agent of the Santa Fe Railway, for a consideration of $120,000, the Leavitt Realty and Investment Company acting as agent.

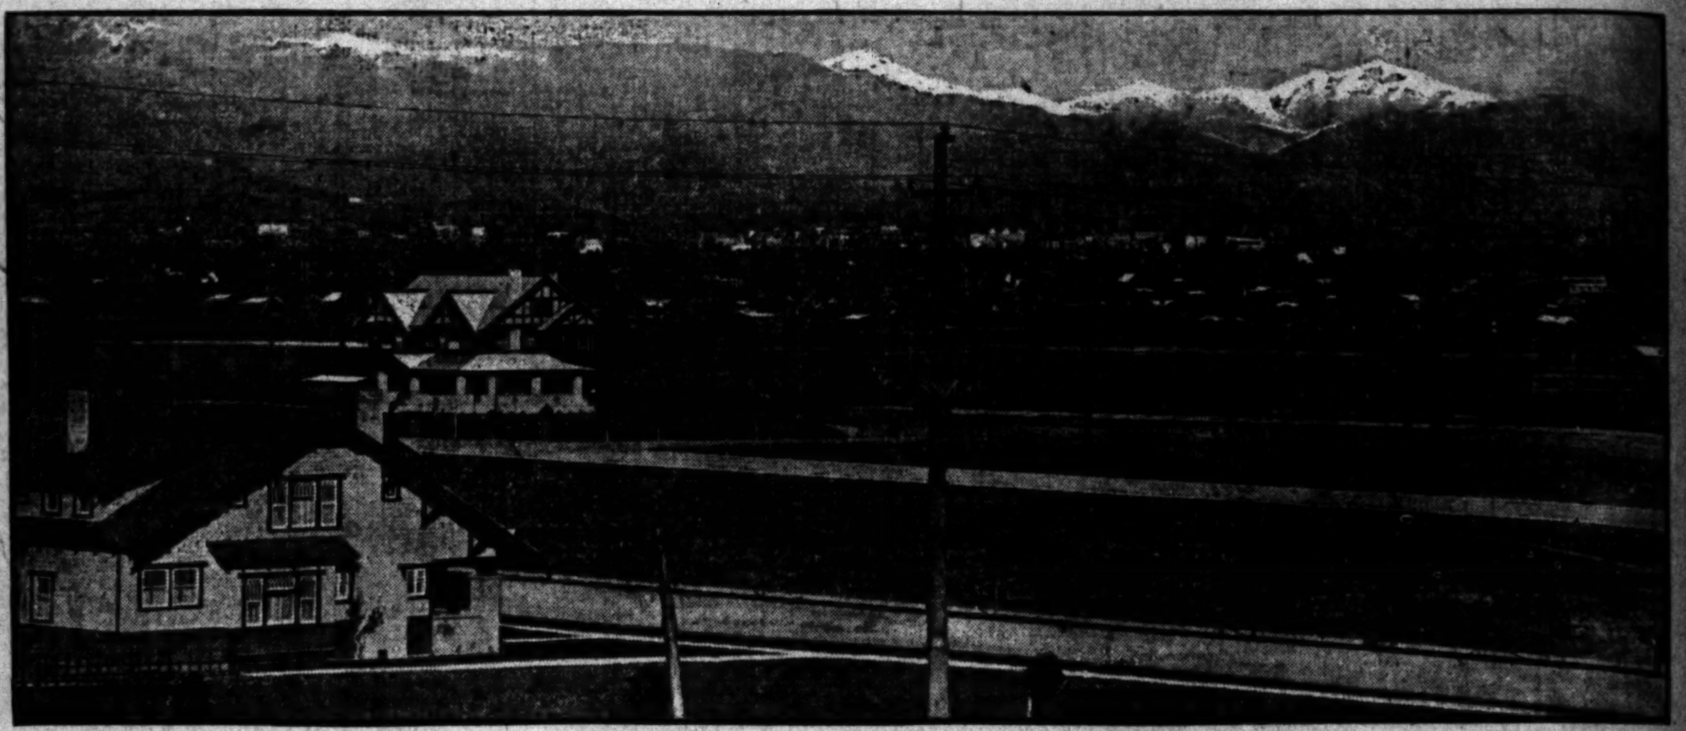
The property was purchased by Clune in March, 1901, for $6000. At the time many real estate agents and investors advised Clune that he was paying entirely too much for the property, several freely expressing the opinion that the ground was not worth $100 a front foot. An old residence then occupied the site of the Pacific Electric building and there was little or no substantial improvement on that part of Main street.

Clune, in discussing the sale yesterday, recalled the time when O. T. Johnson proposed a meeting of W. M. Garland, Abbot Kinney, himself and other Main-street owners with a view to levying an assessment for lighting Main street from Third to Ninth streets. Main at the time was lined with trees, which made the thoroughfare dark and uninviting at night. Committees were invited to interview the different owners on the subject, but before anything definite was accomplished the rumor became current that H. E. Huntington was to erect the Pacific Electric building at Sixth and Main, news which caused property values to leap skyward and the lighting proposition to be forgotten.

At the time the property was purchased by Clune it was improved with an old house, which he razed and replaced with a new building. After engaging in the film and novelty business he remodeled the structure for the purposes it now serves.

The site has a frontage of forty-five feet by a depth of 100 feet. In the sale of it Clune realizes a profit of $114,000, or practically 2000 per cent. It is rumored that the buyer acquired the property for the purpose of adding to other Santa Fe holdings in the same vicinity, and that the entire property is eventually to be improved with a large building in which will be located the Santa Fe ticket and business offices.

Clune announced yesterday his intention of erecting on the property he recently purchased, at the northeast corner of Ninth and Broadway, a magnificent theater and office building, thirteen stories in height. The holding fronts 100 feet on Broadway by 163 feet on Ninth street.



SPEND SUNDAY ON THE CITY'S HIGHEST VIEWPOINT

Save that dollar or two that you intended to spend for carfare on that Sunday trip, and go out and enjoy a few hours on the city's highest viewpoint. This trip will cost you the simple sum of 5 cents. Take a Hawthorne car on Spring, or 48th street car marked "Mesa Drive" on Broadway. If you take the 48th street car, get off at the end of the line; if you take the Hawthorne car, get off at 54th street. You will find yourself on a magnificent mesa, from which you can enjoy a sweeping vista of one hundred miles of mountain range, a remrakable panorama of the entire city, and the whole stretch of country from West Hollywood to Long Beach. The downtown skyscrapers stand out strikingly, and with a good pair of binoculars or opera glasses (which you should bring along if you have them) you can identify every one of the buildings.

In addition to enjoying this remarkable view, you will find the trip highly educational. You will be able to view the remarkable residential development of the great Southwest section of the city. You will see the thousands of new homes that have been erected in this district. You will see the new high schools, the new St. Mary's academy, Exposition Park, the various new car lines, big paving contracts just completed, and a dozen or more other important development projects. You will realize why values in this section of the city have increased several hundred per cent. in the last few years. You will realize why the trend of buying and building activity is logically Southwest. Standing out most prominently among all the residential projects is beautiful, high Angeles Mesa, where over one million dollars' worth of residence lots have been sold during the past year. This subdivision enjoys the highest elevation of any tract in the Southwest section. About half of the subdivision has been sold out. The view from Angeles Mesa has been enjoyed by many thousands of Sunday visitors. Go out today and get in touch with the highest class of moderately-priced property you have ever seen. DIRECTORATE ENLARGED.

Union Realty Company Increases Number of Directors From Five to Nine—Fine Apartments Planned.

The Union Realty Company, with offices in the Realty Board building on South Spring street, has increased the number of its directors from five to nine, the directorate now being composed of Reese Llewellyn, Walter P. Story, F. W. Braun, Robert Sweeney, W. R. Hervey, A. F. Gilmore, A. W. Nash, Philip L. Wilson and W. W. Mines. The list of stockholders contains the names of other men who are well known and identified with the leading financial interests of the city.

An apartment-house has just been designed and will be built by this company on the southeast corner of Court and Flower streets for Harry Arnold. The building will contain three stories and a basement and will occupy a ground space of 40x165 feet. It will be substantial in construction and will open through a large entrance and lobby onto Flower street. The building will contain seventy-eight rooms, divided into two and three-room apartments, each with dining-room, kitchen, bath and dressing-room.

Each floor will have its laundry, linen and grocery rooms and a dumb waiter will connect the basement with the three floors above. The building has already been leased through King & Wells of W. W. Mines & Co.

PROJECT ISLAND HOTEL.

Company Incorporated to Build Tourist Hostelry in Center of Newport Bay—Plans Already Out.

Articles of incorporation were filed on Friday by W. S. Collins, C. H. Collins and L. L. Collins of the Collins Commercial Company, F. L. Peairs and William M. Bowen for the Balboa Island Hotel Company. The capital stock of the concern is to be $200,000. The amount subscribed is $5.

The men interested purpose to build a two-story, 150-room hotel on Balboa Island, the ground for which is to be broken in a short time. The building will be 180 feet long and 140 feet wide, and will be equipped with a roof garden. The company hopes to have the hotel ready for the winter season.

The plans for the island hostelry have been prepared by Dennis & Farwell. A perspective of the building recently appeared exclusively in The Times.

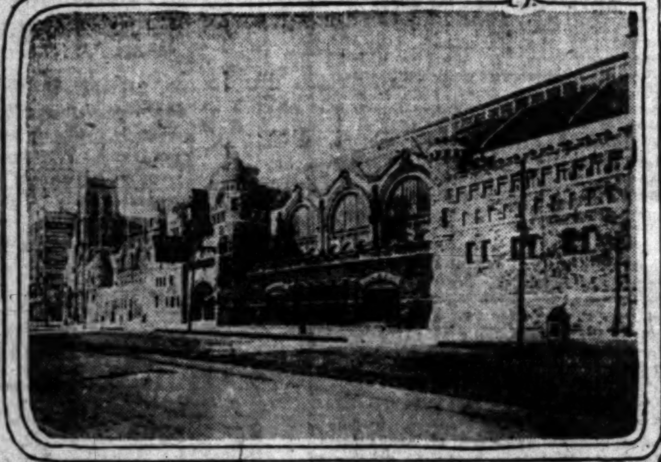
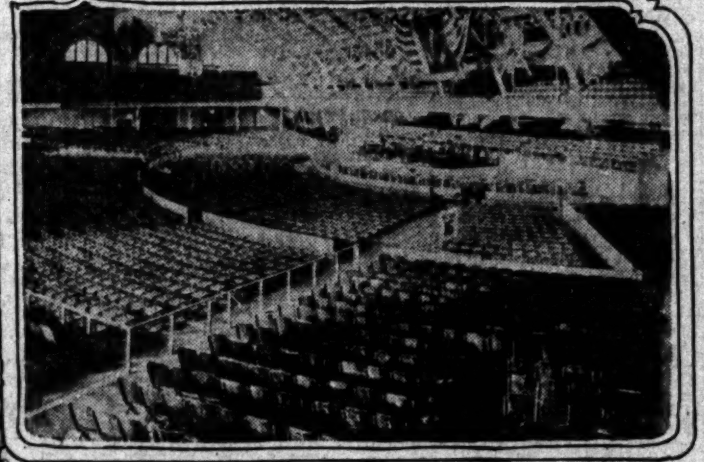
BIGNESS OF THE BIG CONVENTIONS KEEPS MANAGERS ON THEIR METTLE.

Preparations for Seating the Armies of Delegates and Caring for Their Comfort. Great Forces Already at Work—The Vast Auditoriums.

BY SUMNER CURTIS.



Republican Convention Hall, Chicago.



Interior Republican Convention Hall, Chicago.

Democratic Convention Hall, Baltimore.

Meeting places of the two great national conventions.

CONVENTION month has rolled around.

The stages are nearly set for the monster political dramas to open at Chicago only a fortnight from Tuesday, and at Baltimore a week later.

In both mammoth theaters stage carpenters make deafening din of final preparation. Box office men are already on the verge of nervous prostration. Everybody and his brother seems to be pulling a wire to get a card for one big show or the other, and appears indifferent as to whether he shall sleep in a palatial hotel suite or standing up in a vestibule; whether he comes in snug parlor car or astride the truck.

Greater suspense than ever held such multitudes before in all our political history will pervade the thousands crowded upon the terraces of seats rising above the ampitheaters wherein the mighty battles of the giants are to be fought to a finish.

Nearly five months have been spent in preparations for these two colossal dramas. The preliminaries have been in the hands of experienced men—veteran specialists in the fine art of political show managing. The same man who managed the conventions which nominated Roosevelt in 1904 and Taft in 1908 again has charge of the Republican show in Chicago. This is William F. Stone, collector of the port of Baltimore, a man whose unusual executive ability led to his appointment years ago as sergeant-at-arms of the Republican National Committee. And John I. Martin, who has held the same office under the Democratic National Committee for twenty years, is the manager of the convention preparations in Baltimore. His experience covers the first convention that nominated Bryan, in 1896, and all similar Democratic gatherings since that date. Since actual convention management always falls within the province of the sergeant-at-arms of each committee, these men are about the busiest in the land today.

Architects weeks ago completed detailed plans for the rearrangement of each of the vast halls. With these working drawings spread before their foremen, the armies of mechanics have assembled the parts of the great nominating machines with the system and celerity of men building monster engines. Already is known where each of the thousands of chairs will be placed and what their numbers will be; just what spaces will be reserved for aisles. Indeed, I have before me as I write two great plats like those in theater box offices, only ten times as large. They show exactly where each ticket holder at either convention will be seated and how far he will be from the speakers' rostrums.

Take a glance, now, at the monster halls where the two conventions will meet this month.

THE GREAT COLISEUM.

The Republican hosts will gather at Chicago in the big Coliseum, where Taft was nominated four years ago, where Roosevelt was chosen in 1904 and which was first used in 1896 for the convention in which Bryan made his famous "cross of gold" and "crown of thorns" speech, sixteen years ago. When it was completed upon the eve of that exciting gathering it was bragged up as the largest building under one roof in the world.

It is a stately castellated structure, built of stone, and is adorned by round turrets at the corners and flanking the entrances. It occupies a whole block of five and a half acres fronting the tracks of the Illinois Central Railroad, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third streets, at the former of which this railway has a special Coliseum station, where delegates and spectators from afar may leave their trains without the delay of traveling through the city. From this depot steps lead directly into one of the main entrances of the hall.

So vast is the hall that from one end to the other you will be able to count 111 rows of seats, on the main floor alone. And down here there will be so many sections of seats that the alphabet has been used forty-seven times in designating the chairs. Thus there will be that many different "A" seats before the gallery is reached.

The speakers' rostrum, whence will be heard the temporary chairman, and, after him, the permanent chairman and speakers who place candidates in nomination, occupies a semi-circular platform about three-fourths of the way down the hall. At the rear of this commanding station will be three rows of seats occupied by the fifty-six members of the Republican National Committee, which is composed of one member from each State and Territory, and which will be the court to hear contests, as well as the board of managers having charge of the convention until it is turned over to the organization chosen by the delegates. Behind this background of dignitaries will rise a vast bank of seats, twenty-four rows deep and eight-four chairs wide. Here will be seated 1787 guests of the national committee, a galaxy of men including hundreds of the country's top-liners, besides some notables from abroad.

THE PRESS SEATS.

Immediately surrounding the speaker's platform, in front and at the sides, will be chairs and desks for 416 newspaper correspondents, only 250 of whom were provided for at the first convention held in this building, in 1896. These figures will give you some idea of the growth of journalistic enterprise within sixteen years. There will be more than two seats for each of the 190 newspapers and press associations now maintaining telegraph correspondents in the press galleries of Congress. Some of these papers will take an entire staff to each convention, including a managing editor, artists and "dope" writers, while others will be represented by a single reporter.

From the press section, in the hall, pneumatic tubes will carry these scribes' copy directly down to a big telegraph office underneath the speakers' platform. The busy correspondent, sitting at his desk, directly in front of the rostrum, will have an assistant to sort his copy and dump it down the tube, which will shoot it out upon a table at the operator's right arm.

This journalistic army will sit sidewise toward the speaker, on one hand, and toward four great blocks of delegates upon the other.

These delegates—the men who will actually make all of the history to be wired from the convention hall—will occupy the front half of the pit. There will be 1078 of these this year—ninety-nine more than voted in the last Republican convention, 172 more than sat in that which chose McKinley in 1896.

They will sit in four panels of seats forming a block twenty-two chairs deep and fifty chairs wide. Directly behind them will be a similar block reserved for as many alternates—the reserve force whose members will hold themselves in readiness to reinforce the army of delegates should any of these fail to awaken on any convention morning. And directly behind this auxiliary army will be a great semi-circle of seats for 640 spectators, allowed to come in on the ground floor. Surrounding these, as well as the alternates and delegates, will be placed a great horseshoe terrace, from whose slopes will gaze down upon the show a multitude of nearly 3000 onlookers. Upon the main floor alone there will be seated 7941 people, including actors, critics and audience.

Looking down upon these from the galleries will be about 4560 more, bringing the grand total of persons of all classes provided for close to 12,500.

THE CONVENTION HOSPITAL.

The steel trusses supporting the great roof above the heads of this multitude span 215 feet at their base and at their apex are nearly 100 feet from the floor upon which the expectant delegates and alternates will shuffle their nervous feet.

The monster hall is completely equipped for all emergencies. Should Queensbury rules be resorted to to decide differences between rival factions, there will be a complete emergency hospital in on corner of the building. And should such turmoil result in a riot there will be fifteen exits whence the terrified audience can escape from the amphitheater. Should any dark horse trainers start a stampede, there will be seven aisles convenient within the delegates' section alone.

Heretofore the rostrum of this gigantic amphitheater has been placed in the center of one of the long sides of the building. This year it will occupy the end of the hall, giving greater space behind the speakers' stand.

After a lapse of forty years Baltimore again comes into her own as a great convention city. But despite this lapse she still holds the record for the greatest number of conventions of the big parties. This year will bring her total up to fourteen such gatherings, and Chicago's up to an even dozen. Clay and Van Buren each received two nominations in the Monumental City; Andrew Jackson, Polk, Cass, Pierce, Scott, Tillmore, Douglass, Lincoln and Greeley, each, one.

Baltimore owes her prompt and successful preparation for the big show of June 25 largely to the tireless efforts of Robert Crain, who, as chairman of the city's special committee selected for the purpose, was largely influential in raising the $100,000 fund which secured the convention and who has worked like a Turk in assisting the national committee in preparing for the monster meeting.

GREATEST CONVENTION HALL.

It is the boast of Baltimore that her convention hall, the great Fifth Regiment Armory, is the "largest exposition building in the United States." Like Chicago's Coliseum, it is a castellated structure, whose walls are built of substantial stone. It cost $100,000 and has 60,000 square feet of space on its main floor. Maryland's industrial and pure food exposition was held there last autumn. The building is within less than a minute's walk from the Mt. Royal railway station.

The convention will be held in a vast room 309 feet long by 200 feet wide. Contrary to the arrangement of the Republican hall this year, the speakers' platform will be in the center of the long side. Looking from one end of the monster room to the other, the visitor's eye will pass over 128 rows of chairs. On this main floor will be seats for 10,768 people—2827 more than arranged for on the main floor of the Chicago hall.

It is estimated that the Baltimore convention will need fourteen more press seats than that at Chicago. So 430 chairs in the section directly in front of and surrounding the Democratic rostrum will be reserved for the newspaper men.

But the bank of seats behind the stage and the press decks will be smaller also than at Chicago, there being 606 chairs there, compared with 1787 at the Republican convention.

The Democratic delegates will have more room than those of the G.O.P. To begin with, there will be 1094 of these all-important actors in the Baltimore drama, or sixteen more than at Chicago. And to these 1094 Democratic delegates will be allotted 1200 chairs, or 106 more than enough, exactly the same provision being made for alternates, whereas the Republicans will provide for fifty less alternates than delegates.

Delegates and alternates will occupy the center of the pit, as at Chicago, and all recent conventions, and surrounding them on each side as well as the rear, will be block after block of chairs, accommodating, to be precise, 7332 spectators, the grand total upon the main floor being, as stated, 10,768 people.

From the improvised galleries will gaze down upon this city of human beings a vast border of 4408 more spectators. This will surround the hall on all sides save the space directly over the stage and that directly opposite, where a great bandstand is being erected. The original galleries of the armory seated only 800. Thus there has been added upstairs space for over 3600 people.

HOLDS OVER 15,000.

All told, there will be chairs for 11,938 spectators, which, with the delegates, alternates, committeemen and press correspondents, will make the grand total of 15,232 people under the one big roof. Thus the Baltimore hall will accommodate over 2700 more people than will that at Chicago, and the Monumental City will break all previous records for national convention hall capacity.

Surrounding this vast amphitheater is a chain of thirty-five separate rooms. Each of the six press associations will have a room to itself, and others will be used by committees and delegations; also as retiring rooms for guests. Two dozen stairways will drain the galleries of their myriads, while six big doorways will lead from the main floor into the open.

All details of preparation for each monster gathering are being carried out by the sergeant-at-arms under the direction of a Committee on Arrangements. Harry S. New of Indiana heads this committee for the Republicans, while Chairman Norman E. Mack of the National Committee has this extra task imposed upon him by his party leaders.

Arranging the thousands of seats in the two monster halls is but one of the tasks which are vexing Sergeants-at-Arms Stone and Martin. They are daily dealing with plumbers, electricians, outfitters of all kinds, printers, railway men and hotel [illegible] besides the newspapers and politicians. The printing and numbering of the tens of thousands of tickets is an enermous task to be directed. There must be a separate set of these for each day of the convention and they must be struck from engraved plates containing complicated scroll designs, which it would be difficult for any counterfeiter without an expensive equipment to forge. For the Baltimore convention alone over 90,000 tickets have been printed, and the whole supply fills a good-sized dray.

There is also vast detail of arrangement to be entered into with the local police and fire departments, for protective measures; with local hotel men, for the housing of delegations, and with the railroads, for the scheduling of special trains.

ARMY OF EMPLOYEES.

Then there is the matter of appointing attendants to look after the comfort of delegates, alternates, politicians and spectators. First there must be, for each convention, an army of about 150 assistant sergeants-at-arms, apportioned among the various States and recommended by their delegations. Although these men receive neither salary nor even traveling expenses for their trouble, and although they have to toil like Trojans from the beginning to the end of the convention, there is always a vastly greater demand for these commissions than can be filled. Opportunity to wear a badge giving open sesame to all parts of the convention hall is not the chief desideratum among these ambitious applicants. The chance of becoming personally acquainted with influential men is far greater. Such acquaintances lead to opportunities for granting favors which may be paid for by appointments to positions somewhere in the government service, State or Federal.

There is also a corps of doorkeepers to be appointed—two for each entrance to the hall. They, too, serve without pay and their opportunities of enjoying the excitement on the floor of the hall are far less than those of the assistant sergeants-at-arms. Then there must be pressed into service an army of clerks and watchmen and an Amazon force of charwomen, who are remunerated with real money rather than with influence. The sergeants-at-arms themselves receive no salaries for their special work, although their expenses are borne by the national committees.

MILLION WORDS WIRED DAILY.

The most complicated of all convention preparations is the task of making the hall ready for the newspaper men. In the Chicago Coliseum this is not so vexing this year, as mere extensions have to be effected, but in Baltimore, where, as said, an armory has had to be converted into

JUNE RECORD WILL BE LARGE.

Summer Building Lull Fails to Materialize.

Local Draughtsmen Busy on New Projects.

Hotel Leighton Addition to Cost Quarter Million.

With all previous records for May building activity completely eclipsed, there is every indication that the best previous June figure will be discounted by the month which has just begun. It is certain that the total for the month will be substantially increased by the issuance of a permit for at least one large downtown building, and possible that June may boast more than one such structure to its credit.

The most noteworthy construction development of the past week was the announcement of the determination of W. S. Crane and George A. Leighton to at once build a $230,000 addition to the Leighton Hotel at Sixth and Lake streets. The project, which was reported in yesterday's Times, involves the erection of a four-story and basement fireproof building extending from the present structure to Alvarado street, and with a frontage of 230 feet on Sixth street.

The addition will conform architecturally to the present hotel, and will add a dining-room, lobby, 180 guest rooms and 130 baths to its facilities. The interior finish and appointments will be of a most elegant and high-class type. The plans for the improvement are being prepared by John C. Austin and W. C. Pennell, associated architects. Mr. Austin was the architect of the present hotel.

NEW APARTMENTS.

Among the new apartment-house projects on local draughting boards may be mentioned the following:

The Union Realty Company is preparing plans for a brick apartment-house to be built on Ingraham street, west of Wittmer, for William Rhodes Hervey. The building will be four stories on Ingraham and three stories on Orange. It will contain eighty rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths.

H. D. Salveter has prepared plans for a three-story and basement frame apartment-house on Fifth street between Bixel and Lucas for the Bible Institute, T. C. Horton, superintendent. The building will contain seventy-two rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and couch and wall beds. Materials taken from the buildings on the site of the Bible Institute building on Hope street will be used as far as possible.

Dennis & Farwell are taking bids for a three-story and basement frame apartment-house, plans for which were made several months ago, to be built at No. 1211 West Eleventh street for George W. Chandler. Work will be started as soon as the house now on the site can be removed. The new building will contain sixty-three rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and wall beds.

Charles W. Von der Kuhlen is preparing plans for a three-story and basement brick apartment-house to be built on Georgia street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, for Rev. Paul Branke. It will contain sixty-six rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and wall beds.

The same architect has prepared plans and will build a four-story brick apartment-house at No. 624 Bixel street for Mrs. H. Bryant. The building will contain fifty-six rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and wall beds. The improvement will cost about $30,000.

C. C. Rittenhouse is preparing plans for a three-story brick apartment-house to be erected at No. 737 Westlake avenue for H. Stanley Benedict and Gardner H. Narbonne. It will contain about sixty rooms in two and three-roomsuites with private baths and wall beds. The building will be 50x120 feet in size.

Train & Williams are preparing plans for a three-story and basement brick store and apartment-house to be built at Moneta avenue and Forty-eighth street, for A. Anderson. It will contain four store rooms and forty-two rooms in sixteen suites, with private baths and wall beds. The building will be seventy feet square.

Mrs. L. A. Gibbs has taken out a permit for the erection of a two-story frame apartment-house at No. 5215 South Figueroa street. It will contain twenty rooms in two and three-room suites.

Whiting Thompson has the contract for the erection of a two-story brick store and apartment building at Vermont avenue and Forty-first place for E. Victor. It will contain two store rooms and six three-room apartments.

MANY NEW FLATS.

The following new flat projects are reported in the columns of the Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer:

William Frankhauser has the contract for the erection of a two-story, twelve-room frame flat building at No. 124 North Avenue Twenty-four for Mrs. Ella Ewing. It will contain four flats in three-room suites.

Len C. Davis has the contract for the erection of a two-story, twelve-room frame flat building at No. 217 South Cummings street for P. W. Birkhauser. It will contain four flats in three-room suites.

B. Frank Reed has the contract for the erection of a two-story, twelve-room frame flat building at No. 934 West Jefferson street, for H. G. Chilson. It will contain four flats in three-room suites with baths and disappearing beds.

J. M. Haff has the contract for the erection of a two-story, sixteen-room frame flat building at No. 1933 Santa Cruz avenue, for John W. Rannells. It will contain four flats in four-room suites with baths and disappearing beds.

H. Harris has the contract for the erection of a two-story, sixteen-room frame flat building at No. 940 Everett street, for Sarah Berman. It will contain four flats in four-room suites with baths and disappearing beds.

W. V. Morrow has a contract for the erection of a two-story frame flat building in Moneta place, for Mrs. M. H Cochran. It will contain four flats of four rooms and bath each.

Central California.

HOT WEATHER NO DETERRENT

Market Thriving in Season of Expected Lull.

Southland Buyers in Evidence in Tulare Deals.

Mennonites Plan Colony in the Alta District.

PORTERVILLE, June 1.—Despite the advent of hot weather and the opening of the planting season the week just closed ranks as one of the busy weeks of the present year in the realty market, with a large number of small tracts passing to the hands of owners who expect to improve their property. Southern California investors continue to take interest in the Tulare county orange lands, and, as has been the case with the market for the past several months, the majority of the transfers were to land owners of the southern counties.

J. P. Wedel, an orchardist of Uplands, purchased early this week the 306-acre property at Worth belonging to G. T. Frankum. The ranch borders the Tule River and is crossed by the Porterville, Northeastern Railway, a station of which road is within a mile of the holding. About 200 acres of the ranch is considered excellent orange land. Wedel has a force of men developing water on the tract and anticipates planting a portion of it this season, if the irrigation system can be completed. Transportation so conveniently located makes the property particularly valuable for orchard development. The orange land sold for practically $150 per acre.

SELLS TO COLONISTS.

Twenty Mennonites, of the same colony who once purchased lands in the Lerdo country, are reported to have bought the Mrs. S. R. Orr ranch in the Alta district. The colonists paid $150 per acre for the 300 acres of the ranch. The property is fine, heavy alluvial soil and is particularly adapted to the culture of deciduous fruits. The colonist owners will take possession immediately and will start the development of the holding without delay. Surveying for the irrigation system will be started this week.

A new record was set in prices for orange orchards this week when J. G. Anderson, a merchant of Seattle, paid $2000 per acre for the twenty-acre orchard of McLees Brothers on the Lindsay road. The highest price previously reported for mature trees was $1700, this price including some excellent improvements. The McLees orchard consists of ten acres of Washington navels and ten acres of late valencias, together with a half interest in a pumping plant. There are no improvements in the way of buildings, thus making the price of $2000 per acre for the orchard property straight. Despite the large price paid for the property, it is paying good interest on the investment. Anderson expects to make his winter home here on the property.

PRICES ADVANCING.

Prices of Strathmore foothill property has advanced sharply during the past few months, and since the first of the year there has been an increase of from $40 to $50 per acre in the quotations on raw orange land. During the past two weeks the big Strathmore ranch, owned by English capital, has been thrown on the market, 2000 acres of fine orange land being thus added to the Strathmore district.

Wesley Wilcox, of Long Beach, has purchased a twenty-acre tract of orange land in the Strathmore district from Frank Davis, paying $250 per acre for the land. In this sale is given an evidence of the increase in Strathmore orange land prices. Four years ago Davis bought 320 acres of foothill property paying $40 per acre for it. He has sold several small tracts at $200. Wilcox expects to plant his twenty to oranges this spring, if he can complete his irrigation system in time.

H. J. Whiting, of Pasadena, has purchased twenty acres of orange land in the Strathmore district from John Van Emon. Whiting paid $250 per acre for the tract. The land is excellently situated for lemons, being well sheltered. Whiting plans to improve his property.

Ten acres of the Strathmore ranch lands of Balfour-Guthrie were sold this week to W. J. Thompson, a business man of Louisville, Ky. The property cost the new owner $200 an acre. Thompson will plant to early navels and will make his winter home in this district.

Mrs. J. Wobber, who bought 160 acres of raw land here about four years ago, paying less than $75 per acre for it, has just sold twenty acres from the east side of her property, toward the foothills, to a Southern California buyer, whose name is not given out, at $250 per acre. At that price she secured nearly half the price of her land in return for one-eighth of it.

STRATHMORE TRANSFERS.

Many small orange orchard properties were sold in the Strathmore district this week. Among them are ten acres of raw land to H. T. Taylor of Lindsay, to be planted to early navels; five acres to E. V. Vandebogart of Lindsay; five acres to Otis Whiting of Lindsay; five acres to A. W. Green of Lindsay and five acres to G. D. Williams of Visalia. All expect to improve their property at once.

Albert Maas, who is interested in Upper Tule orange property, has purchased a twenty-acre tract of Strathmore district lands and is hauling the material for a fine bungalow home. Maas expects to plant the entire tract to early navels.

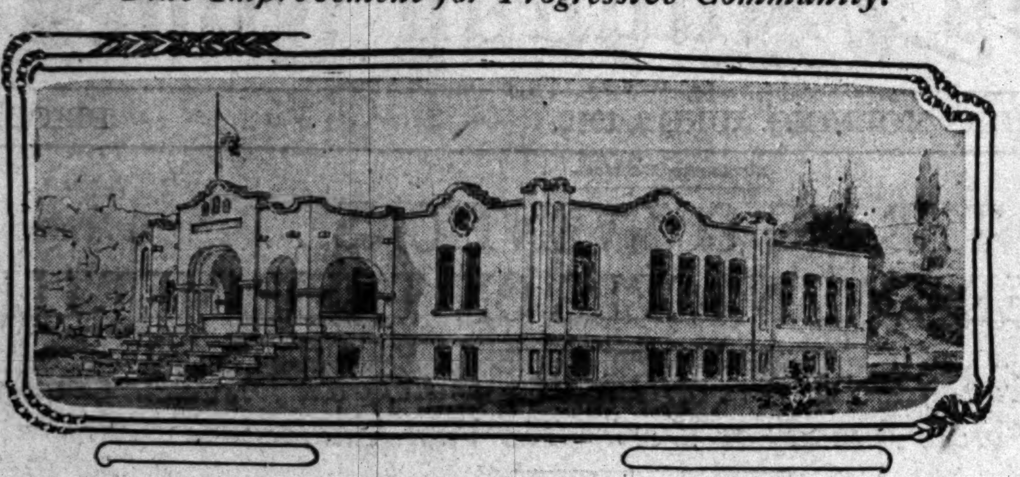
[illegible] Fay of Los Angeles, who recently purchased a 320-acre ranch in the Upper Tule district, has a large force of men at work improving his property and, when his plans have been carried out, will have one of the finest properties on the line of the Porterville, Northeastern Railroad. A fine house, with an extensive parking about it, a large barn, a building for orange sweating, and numerous small buildings, give the appearance of a young village. Fay also has a force of men at work planting out every available foot of the orange land on the ranch to early navels.

G. A. Hart, who was one of the original promoters of the Terra Bella district orange lands, has added to his Tulare county properties by the purchase of 1440 acres of foothill property in the Richgrove district. As Hart is said to have paid approximately $110,000 for the property this will rank as one of the large deals of the week. The tract is improved partly and there is included in the price thirty-five acres of orange orchard. All of the land lies against the foothills and is therefore well adapted to the culture of lemons or avacados, which are receiving considerable attention.

Several score of men have been put to work by the Reid Land Company, the Southern California concern that owns a large tract of land, approximating 3000 acres, in the Richgrove district. This small army is leveling and plowing and trees are being planted as rapidly as the kind of stock they buy can be procured. The Reid people expect to eventually have 1000 acres in early navels.

J. Sub Johnson, a Visalia mining promoter, Ben M. Maddox, manager of a Tulare county power company, and Hugh McPhail, a Visalia realty dealer, have purchased from J. B. Garver 440 acres of alfalfa lands in the West Ducor district. The same investors have paid $10,000 for an option on a tract of alfalfa land aggregating 1440 acres adjoining the Garver tract. The land is being purchased at $35 an acre. Exploration work is being done to locate the water courses and drilling is to be started soon. The entire tract will be put under water. With the exception of one 160-acre tract which is to be retained by the owners as a stock ranch, all of the land will be put on the market.

Fine Improvement for Progressive Community.



San Gabriel Grammar School, planned by Paul V. Tuttle and E. L. Hopkins.

BOASTS NOVEL FEATURES.

Halls to Be Eliminated in New San Gabriel School—Building Will Follow Mission Types.

One of the most interesting of the many new schoolhouses under way in the Southland is that recently started at San Gabriel. The school will accommodate the grammar grades of the district which is building it. Plans for the structure were drawn by Paul V. Tuttle and E. L. Hopkins of this city.

The building will contain four classrooms, together with an auditorium seating about 300. All halls will be eliminated, the auditorium serving the purposes of a general corridor. The auditorium will be provided with a stage, which will be so arranged as to be easily convertible into an emergency room.

The building is designed on mission lines and is of blue-brick construction to the first-floor line, with cement stucco above. The plans call for a composition roof.

The structure will be heated and ventilated by the force system. All the windows will be equipped with Venetian blinds. The wardrobes will have doors that slide upward and will be constantly in sight of the teacher. The basement will contain both lunch and playrooms. The school will represent an outlay upon the part of the district of about $12,000.

Nuabirg, $1400; Mrs. Marie Lelos, $700; Fred Whipple, $1350; Mrs. D. A. Haught, $700; Miss Julia A. Moore, $700; Mrs. J. K. Widdicomb, $1400; Southwestern Dev. Co., $1300 and Southwestern Dev. Co., $1400.

One of the first buildings to be constructed in this new harbor subdivision will be an apartment-house for Mrs. J. Minor of this city, who will expend about $12,000 in the project. Today the Newport Company is running two excursions to the tract.

ORANGE LAND SALES.

Fulton and Elliott report the following sales made during the month of May, in the Orosi Orange Land District of Tulare county: Edward Brubaker of Pomona, 80 acres, $16,000; J. L. Snaveley of Whittier, 40 acres, $8000; Elmer H. Heisey of Glendora, 20 acres, $4000; F. B. Miner of San Diego, 10 acres, $1850; H. E. Cook of Los Angeles, 10 acres, $1500 and Bernard Sudow, $1250. Most of the buyers will plant the land to trees this year.

NO SUMMER LULL.

REALTY MARKET LIVELY.

SOUTH PASADENA, June 1.—That the usual summer lull in realty activity has not become manifest thus far this season is indicated by the number of transactions which are being recorded each day. This condition applies to business and residence property, while the building statistics plainly indicate that there is no abatement in construction activity.

The O. Hibbard Company reports the sale by Ida A. Brittan to P. J. Dolan, both from South Pasadena, of a lot 100x120 feet in size, on the corner of Stratford avenue and Hope street, the reported consideration being $2000. The property is to be improved in the near future with a fine bungalow.

The Camden Court subdivision, near Oneonta Park, recently has been connected with Huntington Drive, by the opening of two new streets in that district. More than $10,000 has been expended in the improvement of the tract and the recent activity has caused a revival of interest in the property.

The Episcopal rectory is nearing completion on Fremont avenue and will form a portion of the Gothic structure of the Episcopal Church of South Pasadena on the corner of Fremont avenue and Monterey road, which is being built piece by piece through lack of funds to complete the whole at one time. When completed the church will represent one of the most finished pieces of Gothic architecture on the coast. The rectory adjoins the present wing of the church, is two stories high, and contains nine rooms. It is surrounded by gardens, and will, when the other wing of the church is completed, be the handsomest church in the city.

Moon Blindness in the Tropics.

[London Standard:] A naval correspondent has written from Port of Spain, Trinidad, stating that in his travels he had come across many cases of moon blindness, caused by men sleeping with the moon shining upon them, such cases occurring principally in the tropics and the Mediterranean.

Strange to say, adds the Trinidad correspondent, men so affected can see in daylight, but cannot do so when dusk sets in.

This spud pays for one acre of land each year
Take the high price of potatoes today—multiply it by the number of bushels per acre the ranchers are reaping from the rich land in this neighborhood—some 350 to 500 bushels to the acre. There you have a fair idea of the big money in growing this crop on North Lankershim Acres.

On adjoining lands last season, potatoes netted from $250 to $300 per acre. Think of the big increase this year. Figure the splendid profits you can make on five or ten acres at North Lankershim.

the contractors are just beginnin work on the several cross streets in the northeastern part of the city.
The paving of Fremont avenue from the sea to the city limits on the east has been temporarily de for a franchise on that street for an aerial trolley railway. The City Council at first decided to advertise this franchise for sale, and the legal advertisement was given a number of publications, when, listening to the protest of property owners, the City Council rescinded its former action and withdrew the advertisement. The result of this was to call the sale off, although the application for a fran

The promoters of the competing line of rail are still busy, and will, by argument, endeavor to encourage the Council to again offer the franchise for sale to the highest bidder. And this opens a new question. While the franchise was asked by the

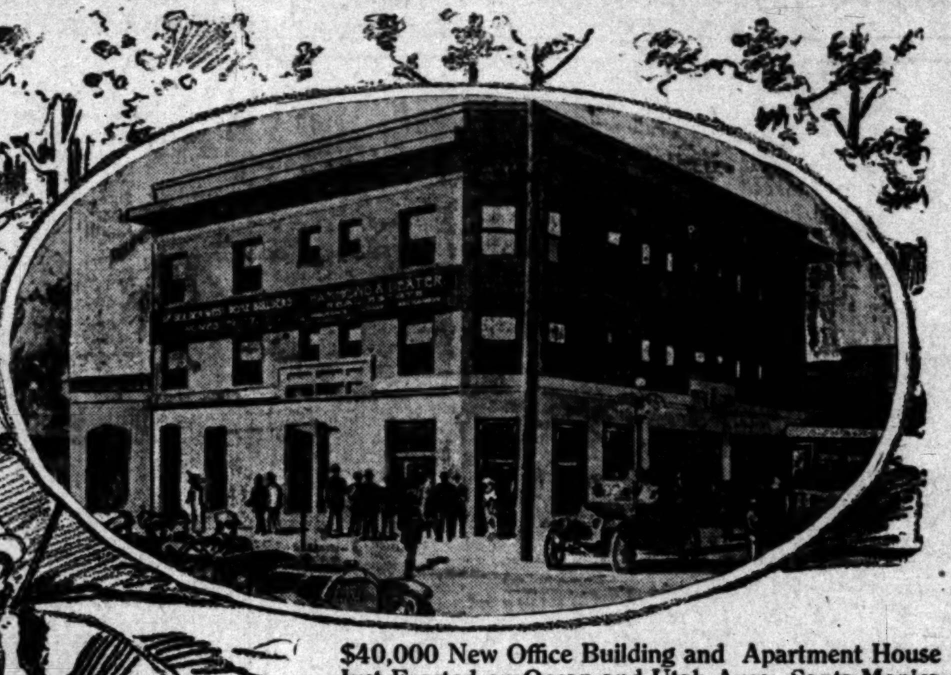
Noted Mountain Resort--Suburb of Santa Monica--Now Owned and to Be Improved by Big Santa Monica Company

Topanga Promises to Become One of the Most Prominent Mountain Resorts of the United States



$40,000 New Office Building and Apartment House Just Erected on Ocean and Utah Aves., Santa Monica

The Golden West Home Builders of Santa Monica and Los Angeles, have just taken over the Topanga Development Company, promoters of the well known Topanga Camp, Health and Pleasure Resort, just twelve miles from the city of Santa Monica.

This magnificent sweep of nature, Topanga, consisting of one hundred and sixty acres of some of the rarest and most picturesque mountain scenery there is, lies at an elevation of 1150 feet above the sea.

It consists of glorious canyons; a crystal mountain stream that one crosses and recrosses twenty-eight different times in either going to or from the camp; a splendid hotel and a host of Swiss cottages.

For the health seeker or the pleasure seeker, it would be difficult to rival the unusual and many varieties of advantages to be derived in this ideal retreat from the cares, the hurry and the noise of the world abroad.

Here the stately eagle hangs aloft in the air. Here the wild fox builds its den, the mild eyed deer jumps from crag to crag and the piping quail calls to its mate. The whole is a scene of quiet and rest in the very bosom of Nature, and there are no mosquitos, vermin or fog to detract from the charm of the place.

All sorts of relics of the redman may be found throughout, as well as various odd specimens of rock formations and petrifications, which lend no end of interest to the various visitors here. Wave marks against the great rock wall and immense boulders give evidence that there was a time when the ocean swept where now exists this settled community.

In harmony with the other tremendous developments of Santa Monica, into which is pouring a steady stream of gold, unequaled perhaps in any beach city, the Golden West Home Builders are planning big things for this mountain resort, that will establish as a part of Santa Monica one of the most desirable and ideal, health and pleasure, mountain resorts on the entire continent.

Already there is here a splendid hotel, affording every possible convenience to even the most exacting city man and city woman as to the baths, cuisine and luxurious appointments generally. This splendid hotel among other improvements will be added to by an extensive sanitarium of the very best character.

Tracts have already been subdivided and lots have been purchased for individual mountain homes in Topanga. These will undoubtedly be added to in the near future by other homes of the Golden West Home Builders themselves and others, until it becomes a vast home community.

Yesterday extra stages were added to the usual supply, starting from the front of the new office of the Golden West Home Builders, on the corner of Ocean avenue and Utah street, and going directly to Topanga. The tickets sell at $2 each. It is the plan of the owners that visitors who want to spend the end of the week at this resort will purchase their tickets on Saturday afternoon, spending Sunday in the canyon, returning either Sunday or Monday.

$40,000 OFFICE BUILDING AND APARTMENT HOUSE.

Another property which will add largely to the already numerous office and apartment-house facilities of Santa Monica, is a handsome new apartment-house and office building combined, which represents a fortune in expenditure. This building, which was built by the Golden West Home Builders, occupies one of the corners of Ocean and Utah avenues.

It is three stories high, and represents one of the finest examples of modern architecture and solidity of construction, in Santa Monica, which means there is none better elsewhere for the amount of money it represents. The Golden West Home Builders of Los Angeles will make their Santa Monica headquarters in this building.

Still another property which this same company has just completed its negotiations concerning, is a lease for some years on the territory extending from the Pacific Electric tracks to Colorado avenue, and from Second street to the center of Third street. This property promises more big developments for Santa Monica, in the near future.

The Golden West Home Builders are at present building in Santa Monica somewhere between twelve and fifteen bungalows, homes and apartment houses. These represent some of the finest examples of architecture in California, from the simplest ones to the most pretentious. Many of the ideas and plans embodied in them are direct copies of some of the most famous pieces of architecture abroad, while others are various Americanized variations of Swiss, French, Italian, English, Austrian and other schemes of building.

Back of the success of this immense building activity, stands the superior facilities of the Golden West Home Builders over those of other building concerns in California. They not only have their own immense lumber yards for the supplying of all of the wood for their building, but they also have their own plumbing establishment, and various other such subconcerns, which make it possible for them to practically supply every atom of material in the houses they build, from the least important detail to the completed building. Every such suborganization has its own superintendent, to insure the unquestioned quality of the work represented.

It is this line of facilities that is making for Santa Monica one of the most valuable assets of which she can boast, and it is due to such facilities that the residents and owners of Santa Monica can point with pride at her buildings, as buildings that answer every requirement put upon them as to beauty and durability. Every detail is in absolute harmony with the most modern methods of architecture.

There is no wonder that with such facilities as this back of a firm, it would increase and expand until it would be necessitated having a Los Angeles office, as well as one in Santa Monica, as has the Golden West Home Builders.

MILES OF NEW STREET WORK.

PAVING OF OREGON AVENUE TO BE BEGUN SOON.

Competing Bidders Will Ask for Fremont-avenue Car Franchises. Plans for New City Jail Accepted. Sewer Main to Be Carried Under High Hill.

SANTA MONICA, June 1.—So much street improvement work is in immediate prospect that contracts soon to be let promise to carry the operations late into the fall season. The final establishment of grades along Oregon avenue for a distance of three miles has been completed, and just as soon as the formal details can be carried out a contract will be let for asphalt paving, together with the construction of concrete sidewalks, curbs and gutters and the planting of ornamental palms in the parking space. The paving of this highway from the beach to the city limits at the Sawtelle line on the east will provide another direct boulevard to connect with Wilshire boulevard and Los Angeles. Work is being rushed on the paving of Montana avenue from Seventh to Sawtelle, and the contractors are just beginning work on the several cross streets in the northeastern part of the city.

The paving of Fremont avenue from the sea to the city limits on the east has been temporarily delayed by reason of the application for a franchise on that street for an aerial trolley railway. The City Council at first decided to advertise the franchise for sale, and the legal advertisement was given a number of publications, when, listening to the protest of property owners, the City Council rescinded its former action and withdrew the advertisement. The result of this was to call the sale off, although the application for a franchise is still before the Council awaiting action.

The promoters of the competing line of rail are still busy, and will, by argument, endeavor to encourage the Council to again offer the franchise for sale to the highest bidder. And this opens a new question. While the franchise was asked by the Fawkes corporation, it is said that there will be at least two other bidders when the time for bidding arrives. Other monorail and elevated trolley lines are exploiting their devices, and several of them are proposing air lines between Los Angeles and the beach as inducements to intending stock buyers.

Plans have been accepted and the city will soon be ready for bidders on City Hall improvements that are estimated to cost $15,000. The municipal headquarters will be enlarged by the occupation of the vacant portion of the city property adjoining the present City Hall on the west. Here a modern jail will be erected. The new building will also contain accommodations for the police department and the Police Court.

A bond election involving the city has been called for the purpose of raising funds for the construction of a sewer main for the drainage of the Marine-street back-country. The expense will be something more than [illegible],000. The main sewer will be a short one, but, as it will have to be laid through a tunnel below a ninety-foot hill, the work will be expensive. The laterals to connect with it will give an outlet for the waste of a desirable residence section that has in the past been hampered. The source of water supply for a portion of the beach is in wells located back of this hill, and in order that the water sources might not be polluted the Board of Health placed a ban on cesspools. The tunnel through the hill was the only solution of the problem, unless the city desired to run the main around the hill. This would have carried it for a considerable distance in Venice streets, and the fear of complications between the two cities was responsible for the decision in favor of the more expensive proposition.

Rapidly the broad concrete walk that fringes the shores of the bay is being extended, and will one day reach from Playa del Rey at Ballona Harbor on the south to the mouth of the Santa Monica Arroyo near Port Los Angeles on the north. Work is to be started at once on an extension of 1000 feet that will carry the improvement from the municipal pier at Colorado avenue to and beyond the site of the old North Beach bathhouse. The proceedings have been started and by September 1 the continuation of the walk in front of Sunset Beach and the Mitchell-Lankershim holdings will be commenced. At these points the walk will be reinforced on the ocean side with a concrete bulkhead.

GOOD AMERICAN BUSINESS

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

American business thought it was doing very well when in 1911 fiscal year, its exports to foreign countries had a value of $2,049,000,000, but this fiscal year (closing June 30) their value will exceed $2,200,000,000, or more than $151,000,000 (nearly $3,000,000 a week) greater.

The ten years' Bureau of Statistics record is:

1912	$2,200,000,000
1911	2,049,000,000
1910	1,710,083,998
1909	1,638,355,593
1908	1,834,786,537
1907	1,853,718,034
1906	1,717,953,382
1905	1,491,744,641
1904	1,435,179,017
1903	1,392,231,302
1902	1,355,481,681
Increase in ten years	845,000,000
Increase in five years	347,000,000
Increase in three years	562,000,000
Increase in two years	490,000,000
Increase in one year	151,000,000

The $151,000,000 increase this year over 1911, the previous year of high record in exports, is both astonishing and encouraging in view of the fact that the last half of this fiscal year has been (and still is) so badly upset by national politics, strikes, strike riots, I.W.W.'ism, and almost all the other ills which it is possible for the national body to be heir to.

It is notable that while American business in imports has increased by $850,000,000—1912 over 1896—the export branch of it has gained fully $1,300,000,000, or $450,000,000 more than the imports gain. In 1896 our exports exceeded our imports by $103,000,000 while this fiscal year the excess is $600,000,000, or $497,000,000 better for us. If that is not good American business what is?

This fiscal year's principal line-up in exports will be:

Raw cotton (our great world lead)	$565,000,000
Iron and steel manufactures	260,000,000
Meat and dairy products	160,000,000
Breadstuffs	135,000,000
Copper	110,000,000
Mineral oils	100,000,000
Lumber and timber	90,000,000
Cotton manufactures	50,000,000
Coal	50,000,000
Agricultural implements	40,000,000
Cars and carriages	40,000,000
Leather	40,000,000
Tobacco	40,000,000
Fruits and nuts	25,000,000
Vegetable oils	20,000,000

The largest increases for the year occur in iron and steel manufactures, each about 20 per cent., and in copper and mineral oils, each about 10 per cent., all the percentage increases relating to values only.

In the year's imports the principal lineup is:

Coffee	$120,000,000
Sugar	110,000,000
Rubber	100,000,000
Hides and skins	95,000,000
Chemicals, etc.	90,000,000
Cotton goods, fiber manufactures and raw silk, each from ....$50,000,000 to	65,000,000
Tin, fruits and nuts and wood and its manufactures, each about	45,000,000
Art work, copper goods, raw fibers, wool, diamonds, each between ....$35,000,000 to	40,000,000

Tea, spirits, wines and liquors, raw cotton, leather, paper, meat and dairy products, furs and fur skins, fish, cocoa, imported during range downward from $20,000,000 to $10,000,000. The chief increases over 1911 occur in art works, over 50 per cent., hides and skins, 40 per cent., sugar, 15 per cent., tin, 20 per cent., and coffee, about 30 per cent.

Where the 1912 exports went:

Europe	$1,350,000,000
Increase over 1911	42,000,000
North America	506,000,000
Increase over 1911	43,000,000
South America	125,000,000
Increase over 1911	16,000,000
Asia	115,000,000
Increase over 1911	20,000,000
Oceania	70,000,000
Increase over 1911	4,000,000

American goods are exported (profitably so) to all the countries of the world and increased sales were made in 1912 to nearly all the leading commercial countries. The reverse is largely true with regard to our imports, which total $1,600,000,000 this fiscal year.

If all the foregoing is not present good American business, what is?

Not only this, but the steel trade is looking up; tonnage premiums ($1 to $2 a ton) are being paid for prompt shipments. Locomotives are being ordered in lots of twenty-six to fifty. The structural steel market is active. The Steel Corporation is booking orders for a huge volume of new business—averaging 67,000 tons a day, or 24,000 tons in excess of average daily shipments. Pending contracts for railroad equipment aggregate about 400,000 tons of rails, 65,000 cars, and 350 locomotives.

Bank clearings are a good business barometer. Reports from all over the country show gains therein. The Los Angeles gains reported daily are large; $8,000,000 in one week recently.

WILL DREDGE NEW BASIN.

Large Sum to be Expended In Creation of Better Harbor Facilities at El Segundo.

EL SEGUNDO, June 1.—A new Pacific Coast operating base costing several thousand dollars, will be erected for the Marconi Wireless Corporation of New York at El Segundo, if negotiations on at present between the El Segundo Land and Improvement Company and the wireless concern are satisfactorily concluded. The station will be a duplicate of the Sandy Hook branch of the Marconi Company, and will be the most complete on the Pacific Coast.

A large sum of money will shortly be expended by the El Segando Land and Improvement Company for the dredging of a "Turning Basin" on the west side and abutting the Standard Oil Company's mammoth wharf at El Segundo. The turning basin is made necessary in order to prevent all possibility of the Oil Company's tank steamers from grounding while making or leaving the wharf.

For the past week experts from the Pacific Coast Dredging Company of San Francisco have been at El Segundo getting an idea of the work necessary in order to prepare estimates. The slope of the shore in the vicinity of the wharf is gradual, and for that reason a vast amount of sand will have to be removed. It is planned to have the turning basin 800 yards in size. It will abut the wharf on the south.

It is the intention of President McCray to have the basin dredged to a uniform depth of forty feet. This, it is believed, will be ample to permit the big Trans-Pacific tankers to come and go with their cargoes without fear of grounding. The dredgers will be put to work as soon as possible in order that the basin may be cleared by the time the wharf is finished.

Just what will be done with the sand removed by the dredgers is a question that both McCray and the Pacific Coast Company's experts are endeavoring to decide. To dump the sand on the beach at El Segundo would be to spoil the bathing. The interior property is sufficiently high and does not need it. To dump it into the ocean at any point close to the project would be dangerous, as the tide actions might sweep it back again. The only feasible method of disposing of it at present appears to be to carry it out to sea on lighters.

WILL BUILD FINE HOME.

BUSY WEEK IN BUILDING.

PASADENA, June 1.—Of the permits issued by the City Building Inspector here last week, those for improvements to cost $1000 or more are:

E. S. Hunter, of Chicago, fourteen-room, two-story, frame dwelling and garage, at No. 355 Waverly drive, $17,385; Carry Anderson, story and one-half bungalow, No. 431 North Hollison avenue, $1400; Mrs. Mary C. Hutchinson, five-room, frame bungalow, No. 858 Sunset avenue, $1200; A. A. Fleming, story and one-half, frame dwelling, No. 1003 South Orange Grove avenue, $2500; the Mansfield Company, two-story, eleven-room, frame dwelling, No. 80 South Euclid avenue, $1650; Charles B. Moody, one-story, five-room, frame bungalow, No. 1259 Summit avenue, $1600; City Builders' Investment Co., five-room, frame bungalow, No. 128 Stevenson avenue, $1700; City Builders' Investment Company, five-room, frame bungalow, No. 1294 Stevenson avenue, $1700 and Joseph J. Buell, one-story, five-room, frame bungalow, No. 1797 Summit avenue, $1750.

UNUSUAL ACTIVITY.

GOOD ROAD HELPS TOWN.

POMONA, June 1.—The little settlement of Sparta, three miles west of here, is taking on unusual activity in the building and land planting line. George Long, a cattleman of Imperial, has purchased twelve acres of the former Lynch ranch, which he will plant to oranges. He will also build a modern home on the property.

Mrs. S. R. Fryer has set fifteen acres and James Fryer, twenty acres to Valencia and Washington navel oranges. R. H. Humphrey is planning numerous improvements to his home, having bought additional land.

The Spadra Lime Works has resumed operations after several months idleness and fifteen men are now employed at the plant. Since the completion of the new county highway from Los Angeles to San Bernardino traffic through the settlement has greatly increased and the carefully recorded statistics of an old resident show that an average of over 100 automobiles hourly travel over the county thoroughfare.

S. T. Kelsey, general sales agent for the Santa Paula Rancho, reports that direct city telephone connection with Lemoore is being installed on that property and that a fine roadway to Guernsey will be built immediately. The construction of the nine and one-half miles of roads, which subdivide the property, is well under way. Over 1100 acres of Santa Paula Rancho land, located in Kings county, twelve miles southwest of Hanford, have been sold since the tract was put on the market a few months ago, he states.

BIGNESS OF CONVENTIONS.

a convention hall, the problem has been most complicated. Many miles of telegraph wire have had to be strung, new loops and instruments placed in position, and, in fact, an entire new line has had to be installed —not a two-wire line, but one carrying many cables, each of separate wires.

A generation ago a set of twenty instruments sufficed to carry the news from a convention hall, but now 130 sets of sounders and keys have to be mounted for this business. The press associations and telegraph companies have selected from among the great cities East and West their most expert "code senders," men who can send 3500 words an hour on the wire. They will be sent to the Chicago Coliseum in a fortnight and be packed off from there directly to the convention hall in Baltimore. This force will include America's greatest masters in the art of sending telegrams, an art far more difficult than that of receiving, as is attested by the fact that there are a dozen expert receivers to one expert sender.

More than a million words will be wired out of the convention cities daily while the great nominating bodies are in session. Many of the great metropolitan dailies will have a half dozen special wires apiece. The force at each of the hotels in the convention cities will be trebled, and several hostelries housing newspaper staffs will be equipped with private wires working directly into the newspaper offices in New York.

"Bulletin wires" will also be run from the convention halls to connect with all of the big newspaper offices in the country. It is along these wires that the first announcement of each convention choice will be sped to the multitudes hovering in the streets of hundreds of cities. Then, each formidable candidate not attending the convention will have his private wire to the convention upon which his hopes are pinned. Thus he will keep in direct touch with his lieutenants at a time when a minute's delay might result in his political death. President Taft, in the White House, will actually know more about what is going on each moment upon the floor of the Chicago Coliseum than the thousands seated in the galleries overlooking the delegates.

Each of the special correspondents seated in the press sections of the conventions will leave the routine of the proceedings to the press association supplying his paper. He will cover only the striking features, and where he has a staff of assistants one will be penning a general word picture of the scene before him, another will be describing incidents especially dramatic, another will be following up special developments as they reveal themselves, while others will watch the doings of particular delegations in which interest happens to be centered. And outside the hall still more will cover the numerous conferences which are constantly going on between leaders who play the game under cover and who very often are the real arbiters of political destinies. It will cost the newspapers of the country several hundred thousand dollars to report either of the big shows.

ARLINGTON SQUARE.

Sales in Arlington Square are reported by Emil Firth as follows: To G. Murre, northwest corner of Arlington street and Santa Barbara avenue, $1200; Robert F. Nelson, fifty-foot lot on Arlington street, $950; P. Lafaurie, fifty-foot lot on Arlington street, $950; William H. Prather, forty-foot lot on Arlington street and forty-foot lot on Second avenue, $800 and $750, respectively, and Otha C. Oddell, forty-foot lot on Second avenue, $775

JUNE RECORD.

Plans are by the Architectural Designing Company, Grosse building.

Frank Trost has taken out a permit for the erection of a two-story, twelve-room flat building at No. 945 East Forty-third street. It will contain four flats in three-room suites, with baths and wall beds.

R. R. Wilcox has prepared plans and has the contract for the erection of a two-story, sixteen-room frame flat building at No. 1431 Malvern avenue, for Miss L. Swain. It will contain four flats in four-room suites with baths and disappearing beds.

Frances Davies has secured a permit for the erection of a two-story, twelve-room flat building at No. 3950 La Salle avenue. It will contain four flats in three-room suites with baths and wall beds. Plans are by Frank Miller.

J. W. Dennis has prepared plans for a two-story frame flat building which he will have erected at No. 776 Kensington road. The building will contain sixteen rooms divided into four flats, each with bath and concealed beds.

E. M. Baker has secured a permit for the erection of a two-story, twelve-room frame flat building at No. 1421 Catalina street. It will contain four flats in three-room suites with baths and disappearing beds.

James Reynolds has secured a permit for a two-story, twelve-room frame flat building on Fifty-second street, near Moneta avenue. It will contain four flats in three-room suites with baths.

The C. F. Borton Company has prepared plans for alterations and additions to the frame residence at No. 1036 East Twenty-second street, for E. V. Coultard, converting it into a two-story flat building, containing four four-room flats with baths.

W. H. Wood is preparing plans for a two-story, twenty-room frame flat building, to be erected on Bonnie Brae street, near Sunset boulevard, for B. Nordcliffe. It will contain four flats in five-room suites with baths and disappearing beds.

OTHER BUILDINGS.

Carl Leonardt has been awarded the general contract for the erection of a two-story and basement fireproof warehouse at Holly and St. James streets, for the California National Supply Company. The building will be 60x200 feet in size. Train & Williams are the architects.

Hunt & Burns have completed plans for the proposed hospital to be erected at Sunset boulevard and Vermont avenue, for the Children's Hospital Association. There will be three buildings of reinforced concrete and one frame structure. Provision will be made for about 100 patients. A perspective of the group appeared in last Sunday's Times.

J. C. Smith is preparing plans for a one-story brick store building to be erected on Hill street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, for the H. W. Hellman estate. It will contain five storerooms and will be 71x75 feet in size.

The Alta Planing Mill Company has the contract for the erection of a one-story brick building on First street, near Hewitt for J. A. Forthman. Morgan, Walls & Morgan are the architects.

J. C. Austin and W. C. Pennell have completed plans for the auditorium to be erected at Adams and La Salle streets for the West Adams Heights Methodist Episcopal Church. The auditorium will seat about 600.

The Architectural Designing Company has prepared plans for a one-story brick building to be erected at Thirty-first street and Vermont avenue for Kuck & Golden. The building is designed for a postal substation.

Bids are being taken for the erection of a two-story and basement concrete and brick fire engine house, to be constructed on Western avenue, between First and Second streets, from plans prepared in the city building department.

J. E. Kunst has prepared plans for a moving-picture theater in the building at No. 369 South Main street, for the Portola Theater Company. The auditorium will be 49x100 feet, with a seating capacity of 700.

TWO GALA DAYS.

Great Celebration to Mark Success of New Planada Townsite—Five Thousand Visitors Are Expected.

PLANADA, June 1.—Next Friday and Saturday will be gala days at this place, for both days have been set aside for a grand celebration of the achievement of the newest and liveliest town in Merced county. It will be the first big civic event ever held here. The local Chamber of Commerce has raised approximately $10,000 for the event and its success is assured.

J. Harvey McCarthy, of Los Angeles, the founder of Planada, is enthusiastic over the big celebration. Among other features of the two days' jollification mentioned by Mr. McCarthy are a gigantic barbecue, presided over by Joe Romero, concerts by the Royal Marine Band, ten big circus acts, including a great animal show, balloon ascensions, an aviation meet and automobile races.

A tent city has been erected to take care of the 5000 or more people who are expected to attend the two days' spectacle. Enormous eating booths have been constructed and in these the host will be fed on the approved cafeteria plan. The event will be terminated with a big banquet given by Mr. McCarthy at the Hotel Claustan.

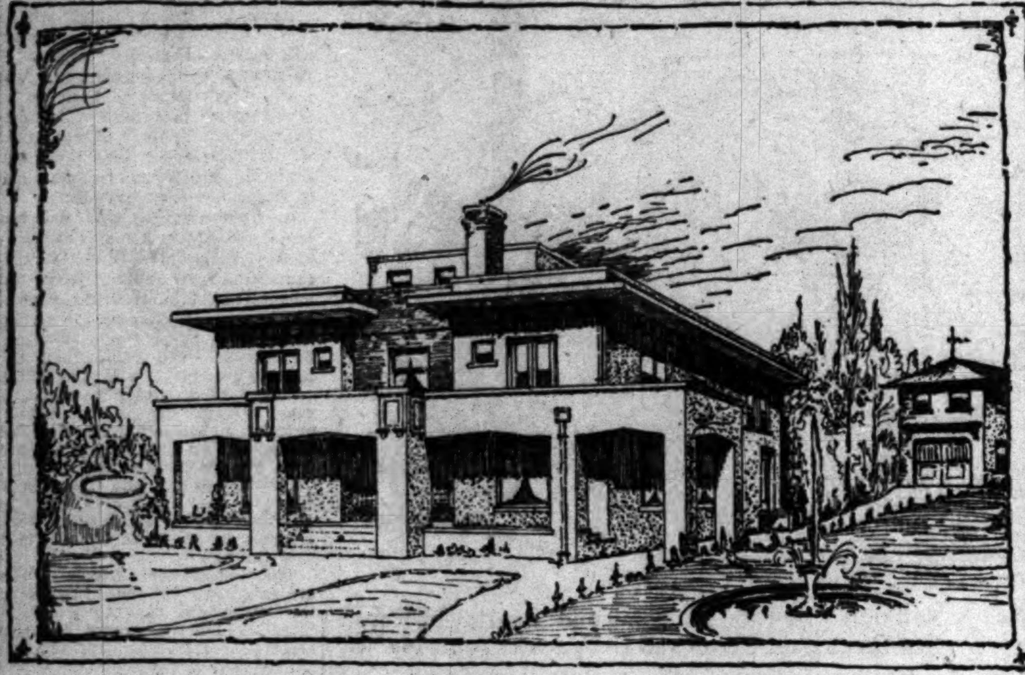
COUNTRY PLACES PLANNED.

Four new houses, all of an exclusive design for country places, were started early in the week at Brentwood Park, under direction of J. A. Campbell and the Braly-Janss Investment Company. Within the last several weeks many improvements have either been completed at Brentwood or put under way. New and large gardens, park curbs, and street work have given added beauty to the subdivision. The four houses just started are between San Vicente boulevard and the brink of Santa Monica Canyon. They will command a wide view including the ocean and the Crescent Bay cities to the west and a valley sweep to the outskirts of Los Angeles on the east. Dr. Herman Janss, who has just completed a visit through Cuba and Florida, has brought with him a number of unique ideas for tropical and water gardens, and that will be worked out in a way to prove harmonious with the Japanese gardens already established at Brentwood.

VERMONT SQUARE TRANSFERS.

Schulman & Fox report the following sales: Southwest Land Company to George S. Bennett, southeast corner of Forty-sixth street and Western avenue, 45x130 feet, $1300 cash; H. W. Baker to a local investor, seven-room residence at No. 1432 West Forty-eighth street, $4500 cash; Jennie Hoftner to Jacob Kamp, southwest corner of Forty-seventh street and Normandie avenue, 45x135 feet, $1700 cash; C. C. Haskins to Helen Pattillo, seven-room bungalow at No. 1565 West Forty-eighth street, $4700; Adeline Stadler to Fred Ripley, 45x130 feet on the north side of Forty-seventh street, between Harvard boulevard and Western avenue, $1200 cash; Adeline Stadler to Myron E. Rose, 45x130 feet on the north side of Forty-seventh street between Harvard boulevard and Western avenue, $1200 cash. Bennett, Kamp, Ripley and Rose will improve their sites at once.

Handsome Fireproof House for West End Tract.



Home to be erected by George J. Cote in Palm place.

PLANS VILLA HOME.

Prominent Realty Man to Erect Fireproof Dwelling of Mission Type in Palm Place Tract.

George J. Cote will begin at once the erection of a $10,000 home in Palm Place, a villa subdivision west of the city, extending from the Venice Short Line to Washington boulevard. The villa will be of a modified mission style and two stories in height. It will be built of hollow tile and concrete, and will contain fourteen rooms, with sleeping porches and a garage.

The dining-room and breakfast-room will be finished in Circassian walnut. The floors throughout the house will be of hardwood. The living-room will be 18x36 feet in size.

The lot is large, being 105x220 feet, and will be laid out in lawns and planted to rare shrubbery and flowers. Several other fine dwellings are projected in the same subdivision.

Glendale.

REALTY VALUES STILL SOARING.

MARKET CONDITIONS BEST IN SEVERAL MONTHS.

Week's Transfers Represent Big Figure — Long-Needed Grammar School Secured by Voters—Tuesday Afternoon Club Buys Site for Fine Building.

GLENDALE, June 1.—The realty market in this city is more active than it has been for months. Never in the history of the city have so many visitors been seen on the Glendale streets. There has been a steady increase in the values of realty here for the past three or four years, but during the past week or so realty prices have taken a decided jump. Many important sales have been made and others are pending.

The following deals were reported during the past week by the Walker-Middleworth Company: A seven-room residence on Louise street, north of First street, to Luther G. Brown, from William R. Walker, $4000; a seven-room bungalow on Kenwood, between First and Doran streets, to Robin C. Keen of Hollywood, $4000; lot at the southwest corner of First and Jackson streets, from F. McG. Kelly to H. L. Holland, of Marshaltown, Mo., $1300; lot on Maryland avenue, between First and Doran streets, same seller to William R. Walker, $700; exchange of six-room home at No. 1461 Griffith avenue, Los Angeles, for three lots on the northeast corner of First and Brand boulevard and a lot in Wilshire district, valuation, $5500.

J. H. Flower has sold to D. S. Monckton his home property at the corner of Fifth street and Central, consisting of a two-story house and a lot 50x150 feet, the consideration being given at $4500.

I. W. Gardner has sold to R. W. Wells, twenty acres on the north side of Sixth street near the hothouses. The price is fiven at $40,000. The land has no improvements. This acreage is a part of the old Stracy property. Wells will start at once subdividing the land.

Borthick brothers report the sale of a house and lot on Damasco Court, below Ninth street, for Charles Force to Christopher Smith, the consideration being $3000 cash. Through the agency of J. A. Eppinger, the Dill place, consisting of two acres on Verdugo road above Ninth street, has been sold to J. R. Mitchell, of Iowa. The price is reported at over $4000. Chandler & Lawson have sold two of the four fine residences erected recently by them on Riverside drive, the price being $3500 and $3800 respectively N. J. Kelly has sold his house and lot at the corner of Stocker and Melrose streets to A. C. Carr. J. W. Young has sold his store and business on Remington and Sycamore streets to J. L. Martin of Los Angeles.

By securing five votes over the necessary two-thirds votes polled, the residents of Casa Verdugo and North Glendale won a grammar school for their district this week. The election was for $30,000, of which amount $15,000 is to be used to purchase five acres, centrally located, the rest going into the school building.

The Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club has purchased 50x150 feet on Fifth street, between Jackson and Kenwood streets, on which site will be erected a modern clubhouse in the very near future. The price paid for the lot was $1000.

At the meeting of the Glendale Trustees this week, the rate for domestic water was reduced from $1.50 to $1.00 for the minimum of 800 feet, and from ten cents for each additional 100 feet to six cents. This new rate will go into effect next Monday evening. Hereafter, meters must be furnished to local residents free of charge.

A largely-attended meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce was held in I.O.O.F. Hall Friday evening, at which it was unanimously decided to boost for the new proposed incline railway to be erected up Mt. Verdugo from a point about 100 feet north of Verdugo Park. For this enterprise, M. Z. Hartranft has given a free right of way and L. C. Brand, who owns the summit of the mountain, has donated several acres as a hotel site at the top of the incline. A number of local residents are now selling stock in the enterprise.

The conduits have arrived for the ornamental lighting system for this city and work on laying them will start immediately. Work is now in progress in the extension of the Glendale municipal lighting system into West Glendale, a territory recently annexed to this city. This work will be completed within three months.

J. H. Flower is rushing to completion his new two-story brick block on Brand boulevard between Second and Third streets, which will cost $10,000. The two storerooms on the main floor have already been leased, one to Mr. Shilling of Pomona for a dry goods store, and the other to Mrs. E. M. Norton, who will open a needle-work and fancy goods store. The upper floor consists of three flats, one of which has been rented. This building will be completed by the middle of June

THE RAILWAY WORLD.

[Bankers' Magazine:] The 2,100,000 freight cars of the railroads of the United States, valued at $2,500,000,000, and capable of holding 147,000,000,000 pounds at a time, are sufficient to form a single train around the earth at the latitude of Chicago.

In them are hauled annually over 1,500,000,000 tons of freight, each ton of which is carried 151 miles. This is equal to hauling one ton almost 220,000,000,000 miles.

The 46,000 passenger cars of the railroads of the United States, valued at $300,000,000, are capable of seating at one time 2,300,000 people, and if pressed for room, would accommodate probably 3,500,000 persons.

They transport annually almost 900,000,000 passengers, each of whom rides approximately thirty-three miles. Practically, therefore, one passenger is hauled 30,000,000,000 miles.

There are 57,000 locomotives, doing service for the railroads of this country, 47,000 of which are used to transport people and wares. The total number is estimated to be worth no less than $1,000,000,000.

The freight and passenger locomotives alone cover 8,500,000 miles in a single year.

The engines consume annually fuel and water enough to cost the public carriers of the country, $278,000,000, the effect of the distribution of which is felt in every nook and corner of the land.

Yet the owners of these vast facilities, rendering so tremendous a service to the people of the country, received for the year ending June 30, 1909, only $236,000,000 in dividends on a total capitalization of $14,000,000,000.

The trackage of the United States, 250,000 miles, would build a railroad from the earth to the moon, and 100,000 miles beyond, or 133 transcontinental railroads.

The rails of the 350,000 miles of our tracks weigh approximately 43,000,000 tons, and would counterbalance the weight of three-fourths of the people of the earth. There are enough to form eighty-two steel roads with which to skewer the earth.

To hold the rails to the ties, in round numbers, thirty times as many spikes are necessary, 300,000,000, as the number of stars which even the keen lens and the sensitive film of the camera have been able to reveal. The cost of these spikes alone is approximately $30,000,000.

Practically 900,000,000 ties, 7,650,000 feet long, receive these spikes.

To transport each passenger the railroads move four and a half tons of equipment, or dead weight, useful only in making it possible to carry a passenger in safety and comfort.

For each family in the United States the railroads ship seventy-five tons annually; this is equal to one ton being shipped a total distance of 11,325 miles.

Each inhabitant of the United States takes approximately ten trips on the railroads yearly of thirty-three miles each. The cost of this service is only 1 7-10 cents per day per capita, and nothing if he does not choose to travel.

Engineers' Wages.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] In view of the locomotive engineers' wage discussion and Grand Chief Stone's claim that an engineer's pay is not commensurate with the responsibility he has to bear, railroad men are calling attention to a report made by Special Agent Ames of the Interstate Commerce Commission. His report is on the average wages paid railway employees in England, compared with the report of average wages paid to railway employees in the United States. England, per day of twelve hours: Engineers, $1.55; firemen, 96 cents; conductors, $1.21; brakemen, 95 cents; switchmen, 94 cents; trackmen, 94 cents. United States, per day of ten hours: Engineers, $4.80; firemen, $2.85; conductors, $4.11; brakemen, $2.81; switchmen, $2.80; trackmen, $1.32.

On the railways of Belgium, which are owned by the government, firemen receive $15.20 to $22.80 per month, the higher wage only after fifteen years' service. Engineers begin at $22.50 per month, and at the end of twenty-four years' service work up to $38 a month. Conductors earn from $17.97 per month to a maximum of $34.70. Brakemen begin as switchmen at 45 cents per day. When promoted they receive $17.10 per month and work up to $22 per month. The average railway worker in Belgium receives 2.22 franks, or 43 cents, a day.

HIRE DOCTORS BY THE YEAR.

SHOULD COPY FROM CHINESE, SAYS FAMOUS PHYSICIAN.

Half the People of Germany Now Have Their Physician Under a Yearly Contract and Fourteen Million of People of England Will Soon Come Under Same Condition.

[Detroit News:] "Americans could learn from the Chinese how to keep in better health than they are now by hiring doctors by the year," said Dr. Woods Hutchinson, optimistic writer on popular and unpopular physical ailments. "Perhaps the medical profession would object, however, if they went the length to which the Chinese nobility goes, and put the doctor in jail if the patient gets sick and behead him if the patient dies."

"You can drink coffee if you like," says Dr. Hutchinson, "provided you don't drink more than three cups at a meal." He drank his full three at breakfast at the Pontchartrain yesterday, and ate hot rolls, egg omelet and broiled ham, while he told how the medical profession, if they had reasonable control over the children, could increase the efficiency of the next generation by 25 to 50 per cent.

"There should always be expensive food given to children," he said. "Cheap food means cheap children."

He was asked if he thought the average doctor would agree to a yearly contract to look after the health of individuals or families and if such contracts were ever made in this country.

"He would hesitate a long while before refusing it, and would probably accept it," was the answer. "A few years ago such a contract would have been considered unethical, against the rules of the union, you know; but now many doctors welcome such contracts, many are made and the time will come when they will be the rule.

"It would be cheaper for the average family, too. It is easy to figure almost exactly how much each family must pay to doctors in the course of a year under the present system of trying to recover the horse after it has been stolen. A doctor could charge much less than this average, because he could then do preventive work. Also he could stipulate in his contract that the family would have to look out for themselves a little; that is, observe the ordinary rules of sanitation and hygiene. That would be locking the barn before the horse ever was stolen.

"It would make people live longer and make them happier while they lived if these preventive measures could be taken. It would make the race more athletic. It would increase the efficiency of the workingman wonderfully."

On the subject of eating and the benefits to be derived from the right kind of food the doctor is especially emphatic.

"Why, just by attending to their nutrition, seeing to it that they ate the right kind of food and plenty of it," he said, "I could almost double the efficiency of a large per cent. of the working class of this country and half the working people of Europe. Of course, to afford the kind of food that would be best for them, they must earn good wages, but it would pay the employer to give them enough money to feed them properly. It isn't simply a question of giving the workingman enough to keep soul and body together. To get the most out of a man he should be given enough to feed himself well and live comfortably."

The example of several Detroit firms in cutting down the working hours from ten to nine a day was cited by Dr. Hutchinson.

"That's fine, that's great," he said. "Anything like that that gives the workingman better living conditions is fine."

Children are very much in the mind of Dr. Hutchinson when it comes to constructive medicine. Through their proper care he sees the regeneration of the race physically and by improved physique will come improved minds and morals.

"By the way, half the people of Germany now have their physician under a yearly contract, and about 14,000,000 in England will come under the provisions of a new law by which they will receive medical service free on payment of annual dues."

The sequel to Inez Hayes Gilmore's "Phoebe and Ernest," which is already in its fourth edition here, and has been reprinted in England, will be entitled "Phoebe, Ernest and Cupid." The stories of the second series have been received with much acclaim, as they have appeared in the pages of the "American Magazine."

Modern Exploration.

TAKE PICTURES OF WILD TRIBES.

IMPORTANT EXPEDITION TO SOURCES OF THE AMAZON.

Algot Lange and Companions Will Make a Study of the Uncivilized People Living About the Tributaries of South America's Greatest River.

[New York Sun:] Up the tributaries of the Amazon to places far beyond where white men have ever gone before, the University of Pennsylvania is sending an expedition which will bring back moving pictures of the savages—there are about 373 tribes of whom civilized men know next to nothing—and to make phonograph records of their speech and music. Algot Lange, who has just written a book on the Amazon country, has been chosen to head the expedition. He and five or six other men will start from New York early in September, and plan to be gone three years.

Lange returned from his other trip in the back country of Brazil late in November of 1910. He was sick with malaria, worn out with the hard life in the wet region along the Amazon. They gave him forty grains of quinine a day after he came to New York, and at last he was ready to write about what he had seen. And now the University of Pennsylvania has detailed him to go back to South America to get ethnological specimens for its museum, bows and arrows, blowpipes, clubs and other weapons, clothing, or as much of it as the natives wear, houses, cooking utensils, musical instruments and other things which will show what the savages use in their daily life, and above all else moving pictures and phonograph records.

These last are what Lange hopes most to get, and he thinks that they will be of endless interest to Americans who cannot look for themselves at the bad country behind the Amazon River. He will take about five miles of moving-picture film, and several dozen blank records. He does not underestimate the danger of procuring the pictures or the records.

"We will have to make friends with the natives as best we can," he said yesterday. "Two of us will go and live in a village until we have got their confidence, and then we will take the pictures and the records. It won't do to try anything until they see that we don't mean harm. I figure that it will take three or four months to do each village."

Lange, who is married and has been living in New York for the best part of the last eight years, goes to Philadelphia to spend the summer fitting out for his expedition. He will take a steam yacht of small draught so that he can go away up the tributaries as far as the cataracts. The boat will be equipped with all things necessary to keep the party comfortable in the soggy weather of the Amazon Valley. She will have her own refrigerator plant, plenty of mosquito netting at the portholes, electric fans and perhaps a wireless equipment. Lange expects to see Commodore Benedict, who is something of an authority on the Amazon himself and who controls a wireless company which serves the cities and villages along the Amazon proper, to see if the exploring boat cannot have a wireless which will work the commodore's stations.

Lange points out that there is a great chance in his party for a young naval officer who isn't afraid of a rough and tumble trip. He wants a man who is at once a navigator, a hydrographer—and there is plenty of this kind of work for a man to do, Lange explains, for the Amazon country is mostly under water for two-thirds of the year—and a good man in the woods. This navigator is probably the man whom Lange will take with him into the real jungle.

"You can't find anybody better for such a job than a navy man," he asid. "He knows just the things I want my navigator to know, and he is willing to take hard treatment from the country."

And he wants a doctor also, who will have a chance to study tropical fevers, beri-beri and the like. Beside these there will have to be a marine engineer, a moving picture man who can develop his own films or those that Lange himself exposes, and who can do stenography and work a typewriter. The ship's cook will have to know how to turn into good food whatever meat the hunters bring in, tapir, anteater, wild hog, water snakes, forest turkey, parrot or monkey. The sixth man will be what Lnage calls a "general assistant" and he will have to know something of ethnology.

The plan is to get away from New York early in September, so that the yacht will reach the Amazon toward the middle of the dry season. It will go up the river 1000 miles to Manaos and then on to the mouth of the River Negro. Commodore Benedict's yacht Virginia was the first steam vessel to go far up the Negro. He made the trip a year ago and found the Negro to be as big a stream as the Hudson.

Lange's yacht will go up the Negro to the first cataract, which he estimates to be about 700 miles from its confluence with the Amazon. There the boat will anchor and he will select one of his men, the man upon whom he thinks he can rely best for the hard work of the inland journey, probably the navigator, and take to a canoe. Lange expects to find such a canoe as he wants somewhere along the Negro. It will be a thirty-foot dugout, a tricky craft called a montaria, with a tough bottom.

With this boat Lange and his companion and three or four natives as canoe men will start on up the Negro. He estimates that there are sixty-eight breaks in the river in the 300 miles beyond where the yacht will anchor. If they are simply rapids the canoe will be drawn up with a heavy line; but if the falls tumble straight then he will have to cut a path through the forest and push the canoe around the falls on rollers.

The canoe will be stocked with the moving-picture outfit and the phonograph, condensed food to eke out the game diet, guns and presents for the natives.

"Beads?" said Lange. "Not much! We won't take beads. Savages cannot be won by beads nowadays. If a man should appear at a fine city like Manaos, saying that he was going into the country with beads he would be laughed down. We will take hardware which the natives can use, knives hammers and hatchets.

"You will remember that Alfred Russell Wallace, the English explorer, says in his book that he saw an old Spanish blunderbuss away up there in the forest far beyond where any white man had ever gone. He saw a hammer, too, and some machetes. I suppose traders had taken them to the natives along the Amazon and then they had passed from tribe to tribe far into the interior. No, beads won't work any more."

Lange expects to stay in five or six villages at the headwaters of as many different rivers, and to take moving pictures of the way men live in all of them. The university authorities think that he will come back with by far the most graphic exhibits of life along the Amazon and its affluents that anybody has ever brought back to civilization. Animal life will be treated only incidentally.

The explorer himself thinks that his work in the back country of Brazil will do a great deal to bring that country and the United States nearer together. He says he has great respect for Brazilians.

"They are a fine and hospitable people," he said. "Just now the Germans and English have a practical monopoly in trade along the Amazon, but there is no reason why we cannot get it. It is my business for a while now to see that Brazil and this country come to better terms with one another."

Lange is only 28 years old. He is a Dane by birth, but has been living in this country for eight years. He considers himself an American. For two years prior to 1910 he was official photographer for the pathological department in the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island.

Dividends from Smuggling.

[London Evening Standard:] Italian customhouse officials have just discovered a large contraband "company," with headquarters in Milan and Lucerne, which regularly pays dividends secretly and whose field of operations extends across a large tract of the Swiss-Italian frontier, from the shores of Lake Maggiore up to Lugano. Over 1000 persons are involved in the operations, and there have been many arrests recently, though a number of those implicated have escaped from Italy by crossing the frontier into Switzerland, where, of course, they cannot be arrested. The contraband goods consisted chiefly of saccharine, sugar and Swiss watches, which were smuggled across the frontier in trucks with the connivance of several railway employes.

An Anti-Drudgery Club.

[American Clubwoman:] Six women in Chicago have organized a club to lessen household cares. The club is the possessor of an electric vacuum cleaner, one electric washing machine, two electric irons and a fan for drying the washing.

The only dues are those required for the upkeep of these labor savers and this amount has been estimated to be about 3 cents a week. The initiation fee consists of the price of the apparatus divided into six equal parts.

The members arrange their work so that a small boy may take the apparatus around to each in turn. They live in one neighborhood, so the affair is easily arranged. How practical; how easily the idea could be expanded to take in any number of housekeepers. What a help it would be in solving the servant problem.

To You

Mr. Careful, Shrewd Investor

The PACIFIC BUILDING COMPANY has addressed some pretty Strong Talk to you through the Los Angeles newspapers on the subject of

City Heights

SAN DIEGO

as offering a mighty PROFITABLE investment.

Perhaps you have thought our claims for this property somewhat overdrawn.

On several occasions different people who felt that we were a little TOO optimistic have called on us and frankly stated their doubts—some even criticised us, in friendly fashion, for recommending CITY HEIGHTS so unqualifiedly as a GOOD BUY.

IN EVERY INSTANCE we have been able to justify our claims with substantiating evidence. We have taken scores of purchasers, at OUR OWN expense, to San Diego, and have given them an opportunity to view beautiful CITY HEIGHTS with their own eyes. Without exception they have declared that our advertisements did not describe this elegant property half as good as it really is. Many of them DOUBLED their holdings on SEEING the property.

And no wonder. Here are beautiful lots, elegantly situated right in the path of San Diego's greatest possible growth. The city cannot build westward, for the harbor lies there. It cannot build to the north or to the south, for the great canyons and valleys block its progress on these two sides. San Diego MUST BUILD eastward—straight toward CITY HEIGHTS.

Do not imagine that this is raw property we are offering you. A double-track car line is now in operation, and the building of a SECOND line has already been started. All modern improvements are being installed—graded streets, curbs, cement walks, ornamental shade trees, gas, electricity, telephones — and water is being piped to every lot.

Beautiful Lots at $150

It would be an injustice to YOURSELF to overlook an opportunity like this, where fine lots, strategically located, can be secured at prices LESS than reasonable. Even our terms are easy—SO easy, in fact, that you will hardly miss the payments. As little as $10 down and $5 a month will be accepted. Understand, values are increasing RAPIDLY in this section. A CITY HEIGHTS business corner, originally bought at about $200, recently sold for $5100.00. Here is an actual case of thousands of per cent. profits.

We can offer you prospective business lots TODAY within a few blocks of this $5100.00 Sale at only $250. Don't let a chance like this slip away from you

No Interest—No Taxes—No Risk on Your Part

Every dollar you pay to us is SAFE. Behind your every payment, whether large or small, stands this big, strong Company, with its assets of over $750,000.00. Here is the guarantee that protects you: We stand ready to RETURN your money in case you visit San Diego and find that your CITY HEIGHTS lots, purchased of us, are NOT as represented.

Free Trip to San Diego

We REPEAT our liberal offer to furnish Free Transportation to all Los Angeles purchasers of our CITY HEIGHTS lots. This places YOU in a position to make what might prove the BEST investment of your life—WITHOUT A PENNY OF RISK ON YOUR PART.

Much attention has been attracted to CITY HEIGHTS of late through the unusual profits realized by original purchasers. Many of them have doubled and trebled their investments in a comparativly short time. THIS is the kind of an opportunity we are offering YOU.

Come to our Los Angeles office, Security Building, Fifth and Spring streets, and get the details. If impossible to call in person, simply write your name and address across this advertisement and mail to us. A beautiful illustrated booklet will come to you by return mail. But TRY and come YOURSELF—if only to glance at the display of maps, charts, drawings, photographs and interesting literature in our offices. It will surely PAY you to act NOW.

BRICK TAKING PLACE OF WOOD.

BEACH RESIDENTS DEMANDING BETTER BUILDINGS.

New Ocean Front Apartments Are Both Substantial and Imposing. Board of Education Will Select Sites for Three Schoolhouses at an Early Date.

VENICE, June 1.—The builders of apartment-houses in the Crescent Bay district are keeping pace with the builders of the same type of structures in Los Angeles in that there has been developed here, as in the Southwest metropolis, a more substantial type of construction. Brick and concrete are taking the place of wood everywhere in the beach section and investors are building structures of four or more stories instead of three stories, as formerly.

One of the most noteworthy of the recent apartment-house projects is that of J. P. Armstrong, who is building a four-story brick apartment building of the most modern and substantial type on Ocean Front, just east of Westminster. The structure was planned by the Milwaukee Building Company of Los Angeles, which concern is also constructing it for the owner. The building will be of solid brick construction and will contain thirty-two two and three-room apartments.

The structure occupies a ground area of 39x110 feet. The front is to be handsomely faced with deep gray and ivory pressed brick. The entrance is to be finished in marble and the lobby in mahogany. The interior finish throughout will be in white enamel. The building will be equipped with automatic electric elevator service, built-in furniture and other modern conveniences. The basement will contain showers, dressing-rooms, lockers and a trunkroom.

Plans are being considered for the three new school houses for which a recent bond issue made provision and the Board of Education will within a few days make a selection of sites and decide upon building plans. The committee on buildings and grounds is receiving propositions from land owners and just as soon as the question of sites shall have been definitely settled bids will be solicited from builders. The desire of the school management is to have at least portions of the new structures completed and ready for occupancy when school opens for the fall term in September.

The work of building the new pleasure pier at the foot of Navy street has been resumed and the promise now is that there will be no further delays. Meanwhile A. Stutzer has made application to the City Trustees for a permit for the erection of another concrete pier. This request calls for a structure sixty feet in width, at the foot of Canter street. No action has been taken upon the request.

Caught on Run.

MAN CAPTURED BY TELEPHONE.

WIRE FINDS HIM AFTER CHASE IN THREE STATES.

Remarkable Sleuth Work Is Done by Clever Operator in an Eastern City—Only Fifteen Minutes Required to Locate Speedy Traveler. Patron Surprised.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BOSTON, May 19.—How's this for rapid transit—chasing a man across three States by telephone, and, best of all, catching him inside of fifteen minutes? The operators at the South pay station evidently are resourceful in following clews of this kind, and the patron must have departed with a pretty good opinion, not only of the operators, but of a company capable of giving such service.

On the evening of April 25, a gentleman called at the south pay station and stated that on that morning he had sent a telegram to a certain person in Worcester, Mass., and that he was very anxious to communicate with that person again by telephone.

He furnished the name of the party desired, but, unfortunately, had forgotten the name of the hotel where the person was stopping. The only information he could give us was that he was quite sure it was the newest hotel in Worcester and was patronized by commercial men.

The attendant suggested passing a call in that manner, which was done, and a report promptly received that the person desired had been at the hotel, but had since left.

On communicating this fact to the patron the attendant was told that the man had undoubtedly gone from Worcester to Providence, but that, as he was not familiar with the hotels there, he did not know where he could be located.

Information disclosed the fact that the Crown Hotel and the Narragansett were patronized considerably by commercial men at Providence, and a call was accordingly passed for this person at the Crown Hotel. Report was promptly received that the person wanted had been at the Crown Hotel, but had been hurried called away to Manchester, N. H.

By no means discouraged, and with Sherlock Holmes's persistency, the attendant followed the party into a third State, and by means of intelligent handling of the call, the person was located in Manchester, N. H., and connection established.

The patron, on leaving the station, remarked, "When in doubt, telephone."

One particularly good feature of the call is that the actual time consumed from the moment the patron entered the pay station until communication was established was but fifteen minutes.

MINE PROSPECTORS, PAST AND PRESENT.

BY CLARENCE E. EDDY, "THE POET-PROSPECTOR."

The old-time prospector who wore large whiskers and bull leather boots is now rapidly passing into history. He can still be found on baking-powder cans, in story books and on the stage; but no longer upon his native heath.

He was a hero who between times lived on beans, sow-belly and sour dough bread; but when occasion offered he could play poker, "punish" whisky and paint the town. He would perhaps regard the modern prospector as a tenderfoot, for being more cosmopolitan and not the Simon-pure product of the hills.

When the modern prospector finds that he cannot connect up with the mountain pay-streak as per schedule, he will likely try something else for a change of luck. Perhaps he will lay off and study up on the fine arts, take a correspondence course on how to get rich quick or be admitted to a profession. He may post up on rhythmic breathing, the fourth dimension of space, hynotism, how to run a hen ranch or how to live gracefully on 10 cents per day.

All these things were abhorred by the old-time prospector, but the modern prospector may use them as a stimulus until he can get something stronger. He has learned to fit himself to conditions and proceed "on the line of the least resistance." And so he survives, while the old-time prospector has followed the buffalo, the grizzly bear, John L. Sullivan and the Jersey Lily into the limbo of the things that were. And the modern prospector now has the field. In time he also will become ossified and some new type of prospector will take his place—perhaps someone who can subsist solely upon mining certificates and mountain scenery. Let us proceed now to immortalize the modern prospector, so that he will at least be appreciated when he is gone.

"LUCKY GEORGE."

I once knew a prospector who had many traits both of the old and of the new. He could swear and drink whisky like a red-shirted pioneer of '49. Like the old-timers, he was always looking for "back channels" and "mother lodes," so it is needless to explain why he often drank heavily and swore. But that he also had traits of the new school of prospectors is evident. In support of his mining operations he incidentally ran a ranch, raised hogs, traded horses, stole wheat, killed all kinds of game out of season, dynamited fish and was active in politics.

But every springtime when the balmy breezes blew from the south he burnished up his Winchester and sighed for the solitudes. Then, further taxing his credit or trading some kind of animal for grub, cartridges and whisky, he struck for the hills. Each time he would swear many oaths to strike it rich or else call down imprecations upon his soul.

Between times he was an optimist and hopeful of rich results; but as each successive spot was tried and found wanting he would swear furiously and drink more whisky. He kept repeating the process, alternating between hope and disappointment, hard work and profanity.

Late in the fall when the leaves were brown and sere, and the peaks were solemnly waiting for the snow, and the winds went wailing through the blasted forests like the lament of lost and wandering souls, I have known him to set up and curse by the hour—prospects, money, grub and whisky—all were gone. Then back to the farm he would go and be lectured all winter by his wife. It was her firm belief that his proper sphere was farming and that in time he could be taught habits of temperance. He had ideas of his own upon this subject, however, so he drank more whisky and whispered to himself.

HARDSHIPS AND HEROISM.

That our hero was familiar with hardships, let one instance attest. In the early '80s he had come from Oregon to what is known as "the Palouse country." By hard work he had saved up considerable money for this move. On his way, however, he stopped too long in Walla Walla, Wash., and there by the dire results of a poker game, he was rendered penniless.

The bitterness of that occasion never left him. The only remnant of fortune he saved from that poker game was a pair of long-legged gum-boots. Arriving in the Palouse country he worked in harvest. All through the blazing heat of summer, while stacking straw, etc., he had to wear those boots. He could not even afford to cut the tops off of the boots, for he wanted them to placer-mine with in the winter.

He saved the boots, and as time went on he was not without his periods of triumph. That very winter came the great stampede to the Coeur d'Alene placers, and "Lucky George," as he was called afterwards, gleaned from them $10,000 in gleaming bullion. He had been ambitious to be a train-robber or successful tradesman, but now he determined to stay with the mines.

THE GOLDEN DREAM.

After investing much in whisky and other luxuries and necessities, he put most of his money in land. His luck continued. He was not devoutly religious, but one night he had a dream that a certain piece of mining ground was rich. He soon sunk a hole on it to bedrock and got $47. Then he hurriedly rode 100 miles on horseback, found the man that owned the ground and traded him the horse for a ninety-day option to test the premises. During the ninety days he hired forty men, put on a ditch, took out $7000 and gave the ground back to the original owner. However, he did not take quite all of the pay streak. To appease the owner and salve his own conscience, he left "a spot." But while the owner was meditating vengeance another man finished the "spot" and took out $1000. This act so aroused the bitterness of our hero that ever afterwards he branded that man as "dishonest."

"THE DEVIL'S DREAM."

Years went on and many prospects petered out, money was hard to get and whisky was scarce, but "Lucky George" still roamed the hills. It was late in the summer of 1898, that he and the writer were prospecting in "The Hoodoo District," at the head of the Palouse River, in Northern Idaho. One day upon a high mountain we found some float that was aflame with gold. For days we dug into the red, corroded earth and took out ore that panned a yellow streak. But finally it proved to be "only a slide" and our fair hopes dwindled. For days and days we hunted for that ledge. Then in a red, autumn sunlight we saw it cropping from under the wild balm and laurels on the mountain's brow. We broke off pieces that flashed with yellow gold. With shouts of joy we madethe mountains ring. We "complied with Chapter Six," and fell to work on the assessments. Each of us felt confident of a fortune and we might have sold out for goodly sums. However, as the law required a ten foot hole, we proceeded to sink it on the ledge. To the depth of eight feet all was fine as silk. Then suddenly the ledge again proved to be "only a slide." It was cut off "smooth smack" and under it was slough. We went up and down the mountain, looking for the ledge and lamenting that we had not sold it. Then we returned and sunk a yawning hole into the slide. At eighteen feet we again struck ore, it gleamed with gold and our hopes again went high. Working like tigers we drove an open cut clear under the works. Sometimes the ledge seemed to be in place and running north and south. We figured it was all right, as according to geology north and south ledges were the strongest and therefore the very thing. Then the ledge would veer and seemed to be running east and west, and again, according to geology, we figured that east and west ledges were the richest, any way, and just what we wanted. But the ledge kept shifting and veering to various points of the compass until finally it went "straight up."

In trying to corner that ledge we wore out our equipment and the fact finally dawned upon us that it was on "The Devil's Dream." This was a claim that we had put another man onto, above us, but now it was his own and he would not part with it.

It was then that the peaks looked dark and solemn and the winds went wailing through the blasted woods.

The years have passed and no one has ever found the source of that ledge. It may now be vacant and some of these times I am going back.

AS BERLIN DOES IT.

Charge Board Against Men Who, After Being Jailed, Are Found Innocent of Crimes Charged.

[Special Berlin Dispatch to Washington Star:] Berlin is taking more interest in the remarkable case of Herr Mielke than in the debate in the Reichstag over the new defense bill. Herr Mielke is a saddler, who had the misfortune to pass a house in the Blumenstrasse on the night that a murder was committed there, December 21, and was arrested on suspicion. After a fortnight in prison the judge in charge of the case decided to release him, but the crown prosecutor protested, and accordingly the man was detained until February 25, when he left with the assurance that no shadow of suspicion rested upon him.

By a Prusian law, passed in 1904 Mielke is entitled to compensation, and he sent a claim of his losses due to his enforced absence from business, and the removal of his family to a cheaper house, as they were unable to maintain the old home without his earnings. The following particulars and the sum awarded were furnished in a formal document:

Compensation for profits lost on the sale of Christmas trees, 75 marks; to removing, 40 marks; legal expenses, 24 marks.

But Mielke did not receive his 139 marks, or $34.75 for the ministry of justice deducted 44 marks, 25 pfennigs to cover the cost of his keep in prison, and all he gets is 94 marks 75 pfennigs. Had he been kept in prison for eight months before his trial—not a rare occurrence in Prussia—his bill would have been 177 marks, and he would have been obliged to pay 38 marks.

All Berlin is indignant at the treatment Mielke has received, and it is pointed out that no attempt has been made to compensate him for his mental suffering and the consequent injury to his health during his two months in prison, under the charge of murder.

KILLING BORNEO CROCODILES.

Superstitious Natives Kill Them in Retaliation After the Brute Has Broken the Truce of Peace.

[Chamber's Journal:] It is a common sight in Borneo to see a large crocodile sunning himself on the muddy bank of a river. He takes no notice of the natives, even though they pass quite near him. So common indeed is the sight, that the Dyaks themselves pay no heed to these dangerous reptiles, and yet it is no unusual thing in Borneo to hear of some human life being taken by a crocodile.

For months perhaps the crocodiles in the river live at peace with mankind, and then suddenly one of these creatures will carry off some lad bathing in the river, or even attack some one paddling along in his boat. I know of a Dyak girl who, when sitting and paddling at the stern of a canoe, was knocked over into the water and carried away by a crocodile and her companions could do nothing to save her.

There seems to be no reason why the crocodile should suddenly show a man-eating propensity in this way. The Dyaks account for it by curious superstitions. They say that if food is offered to a person and he refuses it and goes away without at least touching it some misfortune is sure to befall him, and he will most probably be attacked by a crocodile.

Also, it is said that one of the ways the gods punish crime is by sending a crocodile to attack the culprit; and I have often heard it said by Dyaks of some one who has been killed by a crocodile that probably he has displeased the gods, either by paying no heed to the warnings sent him in dreams or by means of omen birds or by committing some hidden crime.

The Dyaks of Borneo will not kill a crocodile except in revenge. If the animal will live at peace with him the Dyak has no wish to start a quarrel; if, however, the crocodile breaks the truce and kills some one then he feels justified in retaliating. Under these circumstances the Dyaks set to work to find the culprit and go on catching and killing crocodiles until they succeed in doing so. The Dyaks generally wear brass ornaments and by cutting open a dead crocodile they easily find out if he is the creature they wish to punish.

COL. ASTOR'S COURAGE.

Threatened With Death by a Crank, He Told Him to Shoot, but the Fellow Backed Out.

[Cincinnati Times Star:] No one who knew Col. John Jacob Astor was surprised to hear that he died like a man. He had never shown any lack of personal courage. One of his friends told a story some years ago of the cold-blooded bravery of the head of the Astor family. An insane man—or a desperate criminal—met him in Fifth avenue one morning, and stepping close to him, thrust the muzzle of a revolver against Astor's ribs. "Promise me that you will give me five thousand dollars," said he "or I will fire."

Astor glared into his eyes. "Is your old gun cocked?" he asked.

The other man said that it was.

"Then shoot," he roared.

The other fellow backed away. "I'll get you next time," he said.

Astor walked on without bothering to turn his head. He did not even repeat the story to the police.

And his son Vincent, the present head of the hundred million dollars of the Astor family, seems to be cut from the same piece of goods. Vincent is not yet 21 years of age, and because of ill health in youth, lived a lonely life during his earlier years. It was only because he had the best care that money could buy that he survived the perils of infancy. When he was 18, he surprised those who knew him by becoming an enthusiastic automobilist. This was, in fact, the only sport, save that of yachting, for which he had the strength. Dozens of times—scores of times—he was warned by the police for fast driving. One day he was tearing through a country road near Newport. Rounding a turn at top speed he came unexpectedly upon a pedestrian. Astor drove his machine into a tree. "What else could I do?" he replied later to the remonstrances of his friends. "I couldn't hit the man, you know."

Pittsburgh's Soot Nuisance.

[Brooklyn Eagle:] Over $500,000 worth of laundry of the male residents of Pittsburgh is destroyed every year by smoke, according to Prof. R. C. Benner of the University of Pittsburgh, in an address before a board of trade. And that is not all. Prof. Benner stated that from the lungs of a man who had lived fifty years here a quart of soot had been taken. He exhibited the soot, too. In a cubic mile of atmosphere in Pittsburgh, the professor said, there was four and three-quarter tons of soot. The life of lace curtains in other cities is one-third longer than in Pittsburgh; house cleaning here is necessary twice a year and from 20 to 40 per cent. of the fog in the city is soot. Prof. Benner was talking on the smoke nuisance and explained the wonderful strides now being made to abate the nuisance by scientific firing and the use of condensers.

Reward of Authorship.

[Kansas City Journal:] "I refused his farce seven times," said the manager, "and he still kept turning up with it, rewritten here and there.

"The eighth time he came I told him firmly it was no use.

"'But, sir,' he said, 'is there no possible way you could put my farce on the stage?'

"'Well,' said I, 'there's one way, but I don't know if you'd submit—'

"'Oh, I'd submit!' he cried. 'I'd submit to anything.'

"'Then,' said I, 'we'll grind it up and use it as a snowstorm.'"

The Unlucky Number.

[Dundee Advertiser:] A man dining at a cafe observed that, though he had ordered one dozen oysters, he was given only eleven. The next evening the same thing occurred again. Then the diner became somewhat irritated. "Why," he demanded of the waiter, "do you serve me only eleven oysters when I ordered a dozen?" The waiter bowed apologetically. "I didn't think you'd want to be sitting thirteen at table, sir."

Americanizing the Youth.

[New York Tribune:] Ray S. Baker, the author, in an argument on immigration at Lawrence, cited the marvelous speed wherewith the immigrant family, be it German or French or what not, becomes assimilated into the national life.

"An instance of this assimilation occurs to me," he said. "I know a worthy Neapolitan, one Paolli Cenci, who came to this country three years ago. Paolli's little son, Francesco, an American citizen of 7, looked up from his schoolbooks the other evening to ask;

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—Memorial Day passed off quietly and the work of the old soldiers was remembered by a grateful population. There was not so much of a display in the way of pageantry, but there was more decorating of graves than ever before. The people seem to appreciate the fact that the day is devoted to the memory of the dead and for that reason picnics and other joyous celebrations were not in evidence.

There have been several wild guesses as to what we were worth, but Assessor Dodge has the last word. He says the assessment roll is $500,000,000. He raised the roll $40,000,000 from what it was and he is keeping very quiet as to what he intends to do next year. The present valuation will give plenty of money for the administration to spend and needless to say it will be spent.

Miss Tekau Pomare, who would be queen of the Society Islands if the French government was out of the way, has just left us for Papeete. She owns coral islands, pearl fisheries, vanila and copra crops and her own heart. She says: "I am happy. I go where I please and do as I please. I have good friends in all parts of the world and have such a good time as far as my life has gone that I really have never thought about getting married. I suppose I will some day, but I am happy as I am and I never borrow trouble."

Abe Ruef's friends say that he has not practiced law for more than five years and they regard as persecution the disbarment proceeding filed with the Supreme Court by the special committee of the Bar Association. Warren Olney of the committee, says that he has no doubt but that the ex-boss will be disbarred. Bert Schlessinger, Ruef's attorney, says that his client would be of more service to State outside prison walls than inside. Meanwhile Abe continues to write from his dungeon-dark light platitudes for publication.

Karl Legien, president of the World's Federation of Labor, and just from Los Angeles, is here for four days. He is stopping at Herbert's, a medium-priced hostelry. He made a speech in German at the Labor Temple, in which he said among other things that to remain honest a man must remain in the proletariat. Afterwards in an interview he said that what impressed him most in this country was that this nation has the greatest possible freedom for the expression of the worker in the government.

Daly City is our small neighbor to the south, and it has Miss Clara A. Jess as Recorder. She fined Charles Bardocos $25 for battery, but he is not satisfied with her sentence, and intends to appeal. The lady changed her mind several times about the matter and was surprised to learn that she must fine the man in open court, and not at her own home.

It is a pitiful story of Mrs. Maria Schwartz, wife of Joseph Schwartz, who suicided after slashing his two children with a razor. She says that her husband began to affiliate with various radical political organizations after they came to America. He brooded continually over socialistic problems and often came home and beat her. She was going to divorce him, but he saved her the trouble by removing himself.

Georgia Horine of Stanford, who can jump higher than any man in the world, just can't keep those two feet of his on the ground. He was not going to leap any more in competition until the big Olympic games, but some eastern rivals taunted him so he is going to show them a clean pair of heels next month. Seeing is believing, so the skeptics will have a chance of seeing him leap over 6 ft. 6 in.

Miss Jennie Crocker is not going to give up her dogs, nor is she going to give up her intended, Malcom D. Whitman, noted tennis player. She closed the interview with: "Perhaps you will ask me next whether I love Malcom or not?"

NEW STYLES OF STREET CARS.

Pay-As-You-Leave System Is Being Tried Out in Cleveland and Center-Entrance Cars in New York.

[Manufacturers' Record:] This is an age of streetrailway development. Hardly had the pay-as-you-enter car attained a degree of familiarity with the public than someone made a pay-within car, and now we have another new style—the pay-as-you-leave car. In other words, you buy your streetcar ride like you purchase your luncheon at a restaurant, and pay for it when you go out.

Cleveland is the birthplace of this newest style of vehicle for urban railway transit. Only one of the type has thus far been constructed, but it is expected that others may be built so as to give the pattern an adequate test in actual service. Passengers board the car by way of the front platform and leave it at the back, where the conductor stands with a fare box and a machine stamp to put the time limit on transfers issued. On one side of the car are cross-seats; on the other is one long seat extending from end to end of the vehicle. This arrangement of the seating facilities, it appears, is not new in Cleveland. Another feature not common in other cities—and maybe not so in Cleveland—is a megaphone fixed overhead, but with speaking connections so that the motorman can convey information to the passengers, presumably such as "Transfer here for So-and-so," etc. The car is fitted with folding steps, and passengers cannot board it while it is in motion.

There seems to be some advantages gained in the pay-as-you-leave car. Passengers may quickly get on board and obtain seats without having to wait for transfers or for someone to have money changed, and they can leave their seats sufficiently early to pay their fares and obtain transfers in order to avoid delay at the exit. The new vehicle, which, it is said, was suggested by Peter Witt, Street Railway Commissioner, appears to possess real merit, and may be adopted. It was made out of one of the regular cars owned by the company, some alterations being all that was necessary to convert it to the new design, which provides space for smokers on the rear platform.

Another new style of street car has made its appearance in Washington, D. C. It is being tested by the Washington Railway and Electric Company. According to illustrations, the general appearance of the vehicle is somewhat like the new center-entrance car recently tried in New York. Passengers enter a wide door in the middle of the car by an easy step, and the conductor collects their fares as they get in. From this position, extending toward each end of the car, are a number of cross-seats in pairs, as usual, accommodating fifty-three passengers, which is a considerably greater seating capacity than is common, and which is expected to make it unnecessary to run trail cars attached.

These two new vehicles are in line with the movement which began several years ago to increase the size of street-railway cars generally, thus carrying more passengers with one car crew than formerly. It is the outgrowth of an idea which dominates railroad practice, and that is seen on steam roads in the building of freight cars and the engines of great capacity so that heavy loads may be sent through with the same number of men employed. Thus the expense per passenger is reduced and at the same time better service is given to the public.

ANCIENT KISSING GAME.

Revival in English Town of an Old-time Custom When Two Men Kissed All Women in the Town.

[New York Sun:] Just when England is beginning to pride itself on its progress of modernity, Hungerford, on the borders of Berkshire and Wiltshire, slips back into the centuries because it is Hockney Tuesday.

Unless you have lived through Hockney Tuesday you can have no conception of what it means. It needs strong nerves and a stronger constitution thoroughly to enter into the spirit of ancient times.

At 8 o'clock the town crier, in gray and scarlet, with brass buttons, comes out of the town hall and blows three notes on the ancient horn given by John O'Gaunt, and that is the signal for two tutti-men to emerge from the Constable's house with staves tipped with flowers—daffodils, primroses and tulips, surmounted by an orange.

It is their business to go forth and kiss the damsels of the town, irrespective of age or beauty, according to custom.

James Blake and Anthony Bowsher were the tutti-men today. Mr. Blake is 60 years old, Mr. Bowsher is younger, but both of them kissed vigorously from 8 o'clock until 7 in the evening, with a break for dinner.

Tradition decrees that they shall be liberal with oranges and pennies. Therefore, having kissed a maid, they gave her an orange as a solace, and they hurled oranges among the crowd of urchins who followed them about all day.

It was a perfect orgy of kissing. They knocked at doors, and little high-pitched shrieks floated out into the street, showing how nobly the tutti-men were doing their duty.

They went to the workhouse and kissed all the old ladies, including Ann Benson, who is 91 years old; they went to the laundry with their floral staves. Up and down for five miles they wandered from house to house, kissing, kissing, kissing, until at the time of the sunset there were no more left to kiss.

They wanted to start again, but that is against the ancient laws.

Meanwhile during these goings-on the Hock-Tide Court had been sitting, doing its serious business of the year, appointing a Constable, a portreeve, an ale-taster and what not, and at the end the entire court adjourned to the Three Swans for church warden pipes and bowls of smoking punch.

Everyone agreed that "they were good old times."

Built to Endure.

[Popular Science Monthly:] One reflection well worth our thought the pyramids suggest—the enduring character of the past beside the ephemeralness of our day. We build for the moment; they built monumentally. True we have printing, which they have not. But libraries are not lasting. Fire accidental or purposive, has destroyed the greater part of the learning of the far past and promises to do so with what we write now; and what escapes the fire mould may claim. Only that idea which is materially most effectively clothed can withstand for long the gnawing disintegration of time. The astronomic thought of the pyramid builders lives on today; where will record of ours be, I wonder, 5000 years hence? We may be quoted indeed with ever increasing inaccuracy of transcription, but the star-priests of a Draconis's time speak in their own words still. To us Cheops is hardly more than a name; long since his ashes were scattered to the winds; but the building those old Chaldean soothsayers constructed for him remains, not only today the grandest monument of man but the oldest and most significant astronomical observatory the world has ever had.

Photography in Metal Work.

[Scientific American:] One of the most recent applications in moving picture films in scientific observation is made by L. Hartmann, at Paris, and he finds that it is a great aid in the study of the deformation of metals when strongly compressed by the hydraulic press. In some cases he uses a brass tube of three inches diameter and 0.04 inch thickness of metal and observes the appearance of the surface when the tube is flattened out by pressure. Sometimes the tubes are filled with a liquid and then compressed. Various figures appear on the surface of the metal, and moving picture views are taken at the rate of fifteen a second. By throwing the views on a screen it is easier to study the effects than by direct observation.

The Oldest Sailing Ship.

[Pall Mall Gazette:] The Australian convict ship Success, built in 1790, and now under repair in Cork Harbor, is said to be the oldest sailing vessel in the world. But this record for longevity is easily beaten by the Princess Mary, which conveyed William III to England in 1688, and was then over half a century old. The Princess Mary served as the principal royal yacht until the middle of the seventeenth century, when she was sold to a firm of West Indian traders. Later on she was used as a collier, and was still in excellent condition when she struck a rock near South Shields and was totally wrecked. This occurred in 1827, the ship then being nearly 200 years old.

Oklahoma's Storm Whistle.

[Thomas Tribune:] When you hear a long whistle from the power house it doesn't mean a fire, it means that there is a storm brewing. The fire whistle is shrill and it is put on with variations. Nightwatchman Maxwell gave the storm alarm on a recent morning about 1 o'clock and he did the right thing. People all over the city were in deep slumber and they were grateful for the warning. So, in the future when you hear a long whistle, get up and take your wife and babies to the cave. It is a precaution, anyway, whether a real cyclone comes or not.

A Youthful Bouncer.

[New York Sun:] When the floor trembled in the Brooklyn Children's Court yesterday morning every one looked up, startled. A little, middle-aged woman was approaching Justice Ryan, leading a person who might have been her husband or brother.

The son, as it proved to be, is a "bouncer" in a moving-picture show. Charlie is 15 years old. He weighs 215 pounds, is five feet eight inches tall and has a chest that would make Tom Sharkey jealous.

"How'd I get this growth?" he echoed to a reporter in his home. "Why, an easy life and plenty of water. How big is my chest? Never measured it. Mother's tape measure is too small. It won't go around. Size of my collar? Nineteen."

COOKS JOINING WAITER STRIKE.

And the Femmes du Chambre May Also Go Out.

But Folks Are Still Eating in Gotham Hotels.

Negroes from the South Are Held in Readiness.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—New York faces a possible strike of every union waiter and cook in the city. Two thousand waiters from a dozen famous hotels and restaurants are now on strike and, unless they win their fight for higher wages, shorter hours and recognition of their union their leaders have promised to order a general walkout.

This order, according to Edward [illegible], financial secretary of the organization, would call from their places cooks and waiters in every hotel not already affected and extend also to employes of hundreds of restaurants and "quick lunch" establishments.

Approximately 1000 negroes are in readiness to be brought into the city from southern points to take the places of strikers, the principal hotel managers say. The negroes have been recruited, it is said, from hotels and employment agencies in Florida, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, St. Louis and other southern cities. At the Plaza Hotel, where the waiters have quit, negroes have taken up the work.

Most of the demands of the strikers have been granted by the hotel men, but recognition of the union has been refused.

Waiters at the Marie Antoinette and Great Northern hotels joined the strike.

Union waiters, cooks and kitchen help from five more leading hotels and clubs joined the strike at lunch time and swelled the strikers ranks to [illegible]. At Sherrys, the Calumet Club and the Hotel Seville, cooks and waiters left dining rooms filled with luncheon guests. Waiters held in reserve took their places. There was no disorder.

There is not now a corporal's guard of union waiters working at the hotels Plaza, Astor, St. Regis, Waldorf-Astoria, Knickerbocker, Rector, Belmont, Gotham, Imperial, Prince George, Breslin or Holland House. Customers at all of them were served by non-union waiters.

Many cooks joined the strikers yesterday. At the headquarters of the union it was said that the chambermaids in several hotels were also preparing to walk out.

GRASPING THE NETTLE.

Our Railroads Must Sometimes Face the Same Proposition as Confronts English Roads.

[Wall Street Journal:] Sooner or later, and quite possibly in the near future, the railroads of the United States may face virtually the same proposition as that which confronted the railroads of Great Britain. There is no limit to the demands of organized labor. Six hours a day and $60 a week for unskilled labor seems quite reasonable, if it can be extorted by the usual bulldozing methods. No concession satisfies. Apparently, also, no agreement binds. And above all things finality is never reached.

The programme of continuous increases sounds admirable from the walking delegate's point of view, but there is one difficulty about it. The money to advance wages is simply not there. Further advance with many of our roads would mean passing the dividends; and would even in some cases reduce their operating income below fixed charges. A fight is better than a receivership. Their best chance might be to fight all the unions at once and be done with it. The contest is a costly one, but the time has come when patience will cease to be a virtue.

British railroad managers have grasped their nettle, and it is encouraging to see that a majority of their employees declined to abandon their work when the general strike was called. The British government acted with commendable firmness, under a strain which might well have warranted some exhibition of temper. The labor difficulties in Great Britain are deplorable;, but if they convince the British people that the labor union spectre can be laid by common sense treatment, much will have been gained for England and the rest of the world. If the settlement only means more repudiated contracts the British railroads will have to fight to a finish sooner or later.

The threats of labor are largely humbug, but cowardice of employers and dishonesty of politicians have combined to give the unions an importance and power out of all proportion to what they really represent. The United States is made up, among other things, of 94,000,000 of people, of which some 2,000,000 belong to labor unions. The union leaders think they should be allowed to govern the country; but, to any person of courage and sense it would look like a singularly small tail trying to wag a very large dog.

There is a truculent defiance about the union attitude which is curiously reminiscent. When any man or any organization gets to the point of asking the people of the United States "what they are going to do about it," that man or that organization is not far from his finish, if he could only see it. The slaveholders asked the question, and so did Tweed and a number of other politicians, to say nothing of certain corporations of great wealth and influence. There is always a way out of these difficulties. We are a long-suffering people. But at a certain point, we conclude to take a day off and deal with the matter. When that moment arrives, Mr. Gompers and his following are likely to find themselves with most of their illusions gone.

KEEPING THE PACE.

To keep up the pace set in an unusual announcement that West Adams [illegible] the subdivision laid out by Robert Marsh & Company, adjacent to the West Adams district, would have twenty houses completed within ninety days, great quantities of lumber are being delivered to the lots on which bungalow work is being pushed. Water has already been put on the tract and sewer system established. The street work has reached an advanced state.

The Land of Promise.

By HERBERT KAUFMAN.

If all the sobs and sighs and tears
Of all the dead and vanished years
Were brought together in one spot,
Their energy combined could not
Restore one single shattered dream
Rejuvenate a fruitless scheme,
Repair one broken pledge or heart,
Or render straight a crooked start.

So why waste time in vain regret,
Today is here and must be met;
Start out anew, forget the past,
Great fortune still can be amassed;
Great reputations still attained,
And posts of honor yet be gained.
Look forward, yesterday is dead,
The land of promise lies ahead.

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES ON AND OFF AND STRIKES COMING.

BRITISH official statistics prove that in the two years, 1909 and 1910, strikes, lockouts, and other labor disputes, born and "egged on" by the non-working, but well-paid labor agitators of Great Britain (and there are 10,000 of these parasites there) cost the British workers 12,500,000 days' work and wages. This lost time, at an average earning of only $1.50 a day, cost the strikers, in lost wages, alone, the enormous sum of $18,750,000. The collateral and indirect loss caused by these strikes was doubtless as many millions more. Business lost by strikes is business gone forever just as the wages lost are wages lost forever. Striking is as costly and as silly as "burning the candle at both ends"—to use the homely illustration. While the 1909-1910 strike losses stated above were heavy they are not a circumstance, compared with Britain's two great strike losses of this year, namely, the cotton goods strike with its loss of $60,000,000, and the coal miners' strike, with its loss (London Daily Telegraph) of $242,000,000. Just think of it! over $300,000,000 lost by only two strikes by the one country in the first third of a year. Did it pay?

To bring about these frightful losses, felt more by the strikers and their families than by anyone else, British union labor pays out of its wages each year, as follows (London Times;)

Salaries to labor agitators	$1,400,000
First-class traveling expenses of same	1,100,000
Total labor agitation waste yearly	$2,500,000

To all this must be added the yearly depletion by millions of dollars of union labor's reserve funds, for strike relief purposes. That $2,500,000 a year paid by British union labor to agitate itself, represents 5 per cent. income a year from a capital of $50,000,000. It's just as if British union labor took $50,000,000 of money and burned it up, losing its yearly income of 5 per cent., $2,500,000, year after year, forever. Does it pay?

In spite of all the fearful losses British union labor has suffered by strikes year after year for many years, labor agitation and striking goes merrily (or sadly) on. The London tailors are now at it hot and heavy, over fifty thousand of them. Six thousand lightermen on the Thames River went "out" and are still "out" because of the employment of a single non-unionist—just one man. To help in this silly strike the transport workers at the docks of London also, went "out" and are still "out." This is an immense tie-up and is spreading fast. The strike leaders claim to be able to call out 245,000 men in London alone. There is so much unrest among the railway workers that can easily be persuaded to go out in sympathy (or for their own sakes with this as an excuse.) True, English railway wages are far too low, but sympathetic striking for "recognitionof the union"—particularly as against only one man—will never raise those wages. Sympathetic strikes never paid, and never will pay. In the meantime cargoes of perishable food are going to waste in the glut of ships lying unloaded in the Thames. And that in a country like England, which is compelled to depend upon imported food to feed its people, including the strikers and their families. Thousands of transport workers who refuse to be coerced into joining the tyrannical transport workers' union, will have to be protected by police or soldiers, making the situation just that much worse. Each side swears to a fight to the finish. The carmen, including railroad carmen, also have orders to go out to aid this strike against one man. Police (or soldiers if necessary,) will protect the markets, the roads from docks to markets, the railroad stations, the cold storage plants, the bakeries, etc., so that the people of London may have some food, while this unreasonable strike is on. All the men on small trading ships have also been called out.

Though records of strikes and tabulations of losses are not officially as complete for the United States as they are for Great Britain we can form a partial idea of our losses thereby by reference to the report made to Congress by the Industrial Commission, covering the twenty years, 1881 to 1900, which shows:

Number of strikes	22,793
Establishments involved	117,509
Number of strikers	6,105,694

Assuming an average of only ten days for each strike, there is a loss of 61,056,940 days' work and wages, which at only $2 a day average, shows a wages loss of $122,113,880. But that is only a small part of the story of American strike losses during those twenty years.

Another showing of American strike losses is the one made by the United States Bureau of Labor (Statistical Abstract of the United States) for the twenty-five years, 1881 to 1905, and that showing is:

Number of strikes	36,757
Number of lockouts	1,546
Total strikes and lockouts	38,303
Establishments affected by strikes	181,407
Establishments affected by lockouts	18,547
Total number of establishments affected	199,954
Wage-earners out on strikes	6,728,048
Wage-earners out on lockouts	716,231
Total of wage-earners out on strikes and lockouts	7,444,279
Other employees thrown out of work	9,524,434
Total wage-earners losing wages by strikes	16,968,713

Again assuming that each strike and lockout lasted an average of only ten days, here is a loss, a positive irrevocable loss, of 169,687,130 days' work in the twenty-five years, which at only $2 a day average, was a money loss to American labor of $339,374,260. Not a single dollar of this gigantic wasteage was ever got back by the 17,000,000 wage-earning losers, over 9,500,000 of whom were innocent victims. And worse still—American union labor actually paid out millions more to labor agitators to inflict upon themselves this fearful loss.

In the coal strikes of 1906 to 1910 American miners lost working days, as follows:

	Men on Strike.	Working Days Lost.
1906	372,343	19,201,348
1907	22,540	462,392
1908	145,145	5,449,938
1909	24,763	723,634
1910	218,493	19,250,524
Total working days lost in only five years		45,087,836
The money loss at $2 a day (average) was		$90,175,672

Official figures are not available to show the millions upon millions of wages lost by strikes in other trades than coal mining during the 1906-1910 five years.

And still American striking goes on. Just as we are out of the woods on the hard and soft coal strikes of this year, comes the freight handlers and clerks strike on our railroads. Report after report comes of these workers going out by the thousands at principal points, a general strike having been ordered.

A general strike of the garment workers in Chicago has begun. It is expected to involve 40,000 workers.

Now the cooks in the big restuarants of London are beginning to strike. The well-known Criterion Restuarant in Piccadilly Coicas is the first affected. The one who cooks the American dishes relented and went back to his job. Americans tip liberally for good food in London.

Spain has a strike of 6000 on its Andalusian railways, which is likely to spread.

Fortunately the strike of lightermen and other laborers at Havana, Cuba, was settled on May 27.

The United Miner's of America now has only 29,223 men on its roll, and its funds ran down from $1,027,120 in 1902 to $197,216 in 1911, and still less now.

German aviators threaten to strike for $75 a month in place of the $37.50 which some of them now get.

The British government enters the strike arena again, in connection with the lightermen's strike in London.

The British district boards appointed to fix the miners' minimum wage for each district are working so badly that they are to be reorganized The so-called settlement of that great strike was not really a settlement at all. It was neither fish, flesh, fowl, or good red herring.

Fifty thousand strikers and sympathizers are fighting authority in Budapest, Hungary. Already some killed and very many injured. The Socialist union there began the trouble.

If the striking Bakers' Union of San Francisco gets its way, the San Franciscans will have union labels plastered on the loaves of bread they buy. What next? Why not union labels on our sausages?

The Taft administration is trying to find work in this country for the 300 American engineers and firemen who have had to leave the National Railways of Mexico.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

It is impossible to find a wages schedule of any foreign country that is not "miles behind" the rates paid in this country for the same classes of work. The difference in favor of American wages is always much greater than is the lower cost of living in foreign countries, whatever that may be, to say nothing of the always lower, much lower, standard of living prevalent among working people abroad. British official labor reports, for instance, state that the rate of wages in Britain is 100 to 230 as compared with this country, with the cost of living (not extravagance) only 25 per cent. (average) greater here. The reports from our other chief manufacturing rivals, Germany and France, are to the same effect, while in the case of busy, crowded Belgium, its workers get barely one-fourth of American wages, while in Spain, Russia and Italy, the comparison is even more in our favor. Even Gompers, with all his clamor here for "more wages, more wages," admits these facts, in his book, written after visitation, on wages and living cost abroad. With these facts staring us in the face, it is hard to realize why we have so much union-labor discontent and so many union-labor strikes. In the recent Lawrence (Mass.) strike, for instance, it was shouted abroad that the average adult wage was only $6 a week average,) while impartial investigation proved the average to be from $9 to $9.25 a week. If that were not so how comes it that the savings banks of Lawrence, the workers' banks, hold deposits aggregating $20,000,000, that the real estate and workers' homes there are assessed for $57,000,000, and that the workers there send "home" some $700,000 each year? Just as good, and often better, banking and property conditions prevail in hundreds of other manufacturing towns in this country. To the writer's knowledge, such was the condition in Schenectady, N. Y., prior to the advent, January 1 of this year. of the present prosperity and wages-destroying Socialist-union labor city government there. Since that date, retail merchant after retail merchant has gone into bankruptcy. That was the danger Los Angeles escaped on December 5, last, by the defeat of Socialist-union laborite Harriman & Co.

Iron and Steel Wages.

There are 590,000 men employed in the iron and steel industries in this country who receive in wages alone more than $400,000,000 annually. There are $2,250,000,000 invested in this industry. The British government in an official report, after an investigation in different countries, states that the average rate of wages paid in the United States is two and a half times that paid in Germany, and about twice as much as that paid in England.

Railway Wages in England.

A British Board of Trade (government) report gives the following as the number of railway workers and their average weekly rates of wages, says a Consular report:

	Number paid wages.	Average Weekly Wage.
Engine drivers	26,430	$9.80
Goods, guards and brakemen	15,643	6.86
Passenger guards	6,586	6.75
Signal men	26,849	6.17
Firemen	26,029	5.90
Shunters	14,697	5.78
Porters (goods)	18,506	5.05
Laborers (permanent way)	27,197	4.87
Platelayers and packers	44,285	4.73
Porters (passenger)	18,146	4.54

For the United Kingdom as a whole the rates of wages of over one-fourth of the adult workmen were less than $4.87 a week. Nearly two-thirds were rates at less than $6.09. Less than one-fifth were rated at $7.30 or over, and only 5½ per cent. had rates of wages as much as $9.37. The number of men rated at less than $4.87 was about 95,000. These particulars relate to the rates of wages for a full week's work and do not include any bonus earned. The proportion whose actual earnings fell below $4.87 was 32 per cent.; 50 per cent. earned less than $6.09; nearly 29 per cent. earned $7.30 or more, and 9 per cent. earned $9.73 or more.

The hours of duty in a full week, exclusive of meal time and overtime, for adult "six-day workers" average 58; for engine drivers and firemen, 62 hours; guards, 61 hours; porters, 60 to 61 hours; signalmen, 57½ hours; shunters, plate layers and laborers, 55 hours. A considerable proportion of railway employees receive allowances of uniform or other clothing, house rent free, etc., in addition to their cash wages. Some of the engineers work on the trip system, and thus make better wages.

Cotton-Mills Wages Compared.

[American Economist:] The tariff board reports the hourly average earning of weavers in Great Britain as 11½ cents, as compared with an average of nearly 18 cents in the Northern States and nearly 15 cents in the Southern States. In other words, weavers would earn $1.55 in the North and $1.32 in the South, as compared with $1 in the United Kingdom. Ring spinners earn $1.89 in the North and $1.39 in the South, as compared with $1 in the United Kingdom, and spoolers $1.81 in the North and $1.34 in the South, as compared with $1 in the United Kingdom, while reel tenders earn $2.83 in the North, as compared with $1 in the United Kingdom.

The hourly earnings of weavers in the Northern States, according to the tariff board, are over 55 per cent. higher for males and 78 per cent. higher for females than the earnings of weavers in England, and in the Southern States 32.9 per cent. for males and 42.5 per cent. for females, more than the hourly earnings of similar weavers in England.

Cost of Living in Canada.

Compared with the United States Canada is a country of lower wages, but the cost of food is about the same as here. Here are the retail prices at Windsor, Ont., as just reported by our Consul there:

A Minimum Wage Bill Proposed.

[West Coast Lumberman:] If the Oregon State Federation of Labor succeeds in passing a bill prepared by the officials of that association, the employer of labor in that State is up against a hard proposition. The bill as proposed is as follows:

Section 1—No person shall be hired to work for wages under any conditions or terms for lower rates of wages or salary or for longer hours or days of service than is consistent with health and/physical well being.

Section 2—No man more than 20 years of age shall be hired or permitted to work for hire in Oregon on any contract made hereafter, either by piece work or by the hour or day, other term, in any clerical, mechanical, manufacturing, transportation or mercantile labor for a lower rate of wage than $2.50 per day.

Section 3—No woman, more than 20 years of age, shall be hired or permitted to work for hire in any clerical, mechanical, manufacturing, transportation, mercantile, laundry, hotel or restaurant labor for a lower wage than $1.65 per day.

Section 4—No person shall work for hire for more than ten hours in one day or more than six days in any one week, except only in case of emergency, but in such case the wages shall be doubled for all extra time.

Section 5—No person more than 20 years of age shall be hired or permitted to work for hire on any contract in any other labor or employment for less than $1.65 per day, but in all occupations except those mentioned in the first four section of this act.

The question is, would this law, if passed, prove a benefit to the employees throughout the State? Would not the passage of this bill have a blighting effect on all kinds of manufacturing?

CANADA'S INDUSTRIAL ACTS.

Disinterested Investigation Prevents Strikes. Voluntary Requests for Mediation in Trades Outside Act. Labor Unions Like Lemieux Law.

BY ETHELBERT STEWART

Of United States Tariff Board.

"THE magnitude and complexity of modern industrial disputes have put upon some of our statutes and our present mechanism for adjusting such differences a strain they were never intended to bear, and for which they are unsuited. What is urgently needed today," says President Taft, "is a re-examination of our laws bearing upon the relation of employer and employee, and a careful and discriminating scrutiny of the various plans which are being tried by some of our States and in other countries."

It is precisely this fact pointed out by the President in a special message to Congress that constitutes the tragedy of our social situation. It is precisely this fact that we have no tribunals before which industrial controversies may come before they develop into conflicts that marks the impotency of a system, fitted to the pack-mule and the tallow-dip stage of industrial progress, but puerile when applied to an era of electric-lighting companies and empire express trains.

Not only are our laws and our court methods poorly adapted to the present industrial situation as related to conflicts between "master and servant," but they entirely ignore the larger problems. It was easy enough to ignore the public in the old type of industry where a half dozen workmen struck against a single employer, whose customers numbered a few score. They could buy their meat of another butcher, or their coal of another "pit master," while the quarrel was on with their "regular store."

The community right to a continuous supply of the necessities of life creates an obligation on the part of those supplying a social need to submit their grievances to a committee or a court of inquiry designated by the social whole before inaugurating a suspension of that supply, either through strike or lockout, and this is being recognized by the lawmakers of many countries. The Argentine republic has recently passed a law controlling strikes and lockouts in all public utility operations.

Among the efforts made in other countries to adjust the machinery of law to present industrial conditions may be cited the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act of 1907 in Canada. The law grew out of a great coal strike in the mines of southern Alberta, in the fall of 1906, which threatened to leave the prairie provinces without coal in the face of winter. By its terms it is made applicable only to so-called public utilities—steam and electric railways, power and lighting plants, and to mines.

In such industries the law prohibits a cessation of industry, either by strike or lockout, until an investigation has been made of the merits of the case and the public fully informed by publication of the findings. The law requires that in the event of a dispute arising in any establishment in the industries named, employing ten or more persons, either or both parties shall notify the government and ask for an inquiry. Each party to the dispute is then asked by the government to name a member of a board of three; these two select a third, or in the event of failure to agree, the government names a third. Should either party to the dispute neglect or decline to name a representative for board membership, the government names one for them. The board so constituted has power to summon witnesses and compel testimony. Unlike the compulsory arbitration act of New Zealand and Australia, the law does not prohibit strikes or lockouts after an investigation has been made and the merits of the dispute published. A thoroughly-informed public is relied upon to take care of the rest.

The question of procedure is left to each board, but such good results have uniformly attended informal procedure, such bad or indifferent results where formal court procedure has been adopted, that court rules are rarely adopted by these boards. The first effort is to ascertain the facts, then to bring the parties together on the facts. Agreements, not verdicts, are sought; hence, conference, not cavil, is the method of procedure most in vogue. A study of the evolution of procedure under this law would give an object lesson in methods of dealing with industrial problems, much needed in the United States.

The law has been passed but a few days before a strike of the telephone girls in Toronto occurred. The girls appealed to the government, under the law, although a strike was then on. The company declined to name a member of the board, but the government appointed a member and went on with the inquiry, which was made open to the public. The papers published the testimony. In a very few days the company posted an offer to its employees which covered the grounds of the strike, and which was accepted by the strikers, thus ending the difficulty before the board finished its work. The report of the board on that strike was the first complete analysis of the industrial side of the telephone business ever published. It is asserted in Canada that the very existence of the law prevents more conflicts than it is ever called upon to investigate, because the parties do not want a public investigation.

During the first twenty-nine months of the operation of this law fifty-nine boards were appointed to investigate as many difficulties, covering 65,000 employees. Three of these were in industries outside the operation of law, and where boards were appointed only upon the urgent request of both parties to the disputes. Two of the cases were cotton mills with 5200 employees, the other was a shoe factory with 300 employees. The law has not disturbed business in Canada. It has not introduced artificial wage rates. It has created no opposition to its fundamental principle and all the criticism aimed at the law addresses itself to amendments and not to re-

ADVANTAGES OF NON-UNION SHOP.

BETTER QUALITY OF WORK AND MORE OF IT.

Experience of the Werner Book Publishing Company With Both the Closed and the Open Shop and the Bitter Fight Made Against It by the Several Unions.

The Werner Company, book manufacturers of Akron, O., has tried both the closed shop and the open shop, and in a letter to President Kirby of the National Association of Manufacturers, the experience of the company is told as follows:

"Mr. J. Kirby, Jr., President National Association of Manufacturers, Dayton, O.:

"My Dear Sir—I have your letter of the 26th inst. You wish me to give you our experience in concise form as regards the advantages of a non-union factory organization over a 'Closed Shop,' or union organization. This I will endeavor to do in the following:

"(1) The business of this company was started in 1891 at its present location. Our business is book manufacturing, general printing, general lithographing, engraving and electrotyping. Our factory buildings and our equipment are the largest in our line of business on the American continent. With the most modern machinery and equipment, such as we possess, we can employ, under normal and busy conditions, single (day) shift, from 1000 to 1200 people, men and women. Our trade extends over all the United States. Our factory buildings are very roomy, sanitary in every respect, splendidly lighted and safely and comfortably equipped for the operatives.

"(2) When we started our business at its present location in 1891 we had what is called an 'open shop' organization, both union and non-union people in our employ. We paid no attention to their affiliations in this respect. All went well for about two years, when, in 1892, the union people in our employ, under the direction of their different union organizations, made a demand for higher wages and a 'closed ship.' We refused their demands, all of which resulted in a strike which brought no decisive results as regards a 'closed' or open shop. The demands of the union were repeated in 1894 and a bitter strike and boycott were then inaugurated by the various unions. After about a year's duration this contest resulted in an agreement for a 'closed' or union shop. As such our factory was run until 1905 when the Typographical Union made a demand for an eight-hour day (we were then working nine hours a day) and a large increase of wages. This demand was refused and in consequence, the Typographical Union, the Lithographers' Union, the Press Feeders' Union, the Pressmen's Union and the Bookbinders' Union entered upon the most bitter strike and boycott in the history of our line of business. Unprecedented lawlessness and rioting took place—in which direction the city administration supported the union side—a cold-blooded murder was committed and an enormous amount of money and trade was lost by our company, all resulting, however, in a complete victory for our company and in an entire non-union factory organization.

peal. It would be impossible to repeal that law in Canada today.

The attitude of labor organizations toward the Trade Disputes Investigation Act of 1907, was expressed by a resolution of the Dominion Trade and Labor Congress, reading as follows:

It is impossible but that a body of world-wide experiments, and the experiences drawn from them, such as the proposed Federal Commission on Industrial Relations would digest, would afford Congress and the various State Legislatures bases for legislation, which would save the country millions of dollars in wages, and in loss from strikes with the attendant suffering to the public as well as to the contestants.

SIX HOMES STARTED.

The Southwest Land Company reports the starting of six new homes in New Vermont Square as well as a two-story business block containing stores on the ground floor and apartments above in the same tract. The following are the owners of the new bungalows: E. A. Lewis and A. E. Crane, north side of Forty-eighth street, between Halldale and Denker; R. W. Walkinshaw, north side of Forty-fifth street, between Denker and Harvard; Lena G. Kinch, north side of Forty-first place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy; Henry Kriesman, south side of Forty-first street, between St. Andrews and Gramercy; James B. Moser, north side of Vernon, between Gramercy and Arlington; C. T. Ehlert, south side of Forty-fifth street, between Kansas and Budlong and Jacob Kamp, two-story business block, corner of Forty-seventh street and Normandie avenue.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Sulphate and Silicate.

ENSENADA (Lower California) May 7.—Q.: Enclosed find specimen of ore which when crushed up to a powder resembles borax, and it is very heavy. It has the weight and looks like baryte. Kindly let me know what it contains of the most value, and if there is any metal in it? Is there a market for such mineral? There is a large deposit of it in Lower California, Mexico. L. S. D.

A.: It would appear that your find is probably of some commercial value. Naturally (from so small a chip of mineral) no information that would be of service to you could be expected as to the average values of the deposit, unless the locality consisted of the same mineral as that which you submit. The particular sample is not barytocalcite, and yet barium sulphate, calcium silicate, aluminum silicate, strontium, and traces of soda are present. It would probably be advisable to send to this department of The Times about one pound of samples from the deposit, and from the walls thereof for further analyses.

Cinnabar.

PARKFIELD (Monterey county) May 7.—Q.: I thank you very much for your answer you published. The sample sent first to The Times was low grade, so that you could see formation and classify easily. On the prospects in question I have both serpentine and sedimentary cinnabar. C. F. F.

Chemistry Questions.

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—Q.: Will you please inform me as to the definition of salicylate of methyl? Is it artificially (or synthetically) prepared from wintergreen? Please inform me also as to the definition and names of the chemical "fruit essences?" "STUDENT."

A.: Acid salicylate of methyl (gaultheric acid) forms the greater portion of the essential oil of wintergreen, the fresh leaves of which yield about 0.8 per cent. of oil, and this variety of oil of wintergreen is known in pharmacy and in chemistry as the "true oil of wintergreen," the only safe medicinal oil. The oil of sweet birch is salicylate of methyl, and it is artificially prepared from salicin, and by heating chloroform and sodium phenol. The last-named "oil" is largely used for embrocations, etc., to the detriment of the human economy, and it is always served to customers unless the true oil is demanded. The natural salicylate of methyl is from wintergreen leaf, "it also occurs in several species of violet."

As to fruit essences: It is a well known fact that all of the pentylic ethers of pharmacy are obtained from amylic alcohol, known also as "Fousel oil," and, "it is a constant accompaniment of ethylic or common alcohol, especially when the latter is prepared from sugar which has been derived from starch; hence the name from amylum (starch.) The sugar of potato starch yields a considerable quantity; hence the alcohol is often called 'potato oil.' We will now proceed to the fruit essences by citing the illustration wherein amylic (or pentylic) alcohol is used in the following formula: Place a small quantity of amylic alcohol in a test tube, add some potassium acetate and a little sulphuric acid, warm the mixture, acetate of amyl is evolved, and which is recognized by its odor, that of the jargonelle pear. If we attach a condensing tube to the test tube this essence of 'jargonelle pear' may be distilled over, washed with water, freed from alcohol, and separated by a pipette; this essence is acetate of amyl which certain confectioners use in candies, etc., to give the pear flavor. If apple oil is desired as flavor valerianate of amyl is the proper 'dope.' Butyrate of ethyl (butyric ether) gives the flavor and odor of the pineapple. Pelargonate of ethyl is the quince essence. Salicylous acid is the essential oil of meadow-sweet, and it is obtained artificially by the oxidation of salicin. By mixing several salts with each other and with essential oils in various proportions the odor and flavor of nearly every fruit may be fairly imitated."

Chiefly Sulphides.

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—Q.: I am mailing you today five ore specimens, all from near Prescott, Ariz. No. 1 was taken from an immense dike, within five miles of the city. No. 2 is from a hanging-wall, are the seams in this rock graphite? No. 3 is ledge-matter made up of what metal? No. 4 is this a sulphide? No. 5, Scheelite? A.J.T.

A.: Sample No. 1 is a porphyritic rock carrying microscopical crystals of pyrite and chalcopyrite sparingly. The copper obtainable from the chalcopyrite content is approximately 1 per cent., only. No. 2, manganese oxide seams. No. 3, strictly classifying, there is no native metal in the sample, it is made up of chalcopyrite and pyrite, sulphide of iron and of copper, and iron disulphide, respectively. No. 4, yes, sulphides of iron, of copper, and of arsenicum. No. 5 is a variety of "Mexican onyx," with a trace of tungstic acid of com[illegible] present.

Silicious Talc.

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—Q.: Sample from a locality seven miles from [illegible] Lake. Is it good enough for use as talc? A.H.

A.: The sample is too poor in grade and too gritty in combination for the purpose indicated, even if washed.

Impure Manganese Ore.

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Q.: What is the ore? It is from a large deposit in Western Arizona. H. J. M.

A.: The sample carries approximately 20 per cent. manganese oxide, with calcite (carbonate of lime) and iron oxides present.

Volcanic Glass.

PASADENA, May 9.—Q.: Does the sample carry potash? It is from a place near Salton Sea. "ANDREWS."

A.: Potash (some 3 per cent.) is present in the obsidian, and there is no process by which it can be extracted at a profit.

Quartz.

CALIENTE (Cal.) May 9.—Q.: I am sending you samples by express marked Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. All of them are from my claims, eighteen miles south of Caliente. Do any of the samples carry tellurium, platinum or vanadium? What is the bright mineral in No. 1? W. D. E.

A.: None of the samples contain tellurium, platinum or vanadium. No. 1 resembles a telluride at sight, but the bright sulphide is, in part, microscopical "white iron." Lead and antimony traces, with iron oxides pseudomorphic after pyrite. No. 2 is quartz with traces of iron, manganese and antimony. No. 3 is a whitish "bull quartz," antimony and lead sparingly present, with traces of manganese and iron. No. 4, "bull quartz," antimony, iron oxides and manganese dioxide present. No sample was tested for gold or silver.

Hematite.

SAN DIEGO, May 9.—Q.: Would you mind telling me about this ore? I have a lead of it almost a foot wide. Sometimes I think it is graphite, at other times I think there must be some rare metal in the rock. What is the greatest metal in it?

A.: The sample is chiefly micaceous iron ore, and the greater percentage of the sample would, if smelted, yield a good metallic iron.

Iron-Slate.

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—Q.: I am enclosing herewith a sample of rock which I have taken from a large deposit east of Newberry, on the Santa Fe Railroad. I will thank you very much if you will classify same. Is it zinc, cadmium, or does it belong to the phosphate family? L. S.

A.: Zinc, cadmium and phosphates are absent. The sample carries multi-colored iron oxides, and represents rock of very doubtful commercial value.

Deceptive Mica.

BEAUMONT, May 13.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of decomposed granite with yellow mica; found near Beaumont. Will you tell me if it carries gold or other metal? Is it of any value? J. M. T.

A.: The sample carries no native gold. The mica particles are somewhat deceptive, and "shine, like gold." There are no metals of commercial value in the granular mixture.

Bauxite.

RIVERSIDE, May 13.—Q.: Please name and describe the sample? I am creditably informed that the sample was taken from a four-foot ledge within ten miles of Riverside, and I take it to be kaolin. F. P. W.

A.: If your informant gives the exact facts—a four-foot ledge of mineral, and it should prove to be represented by the sample, then Riverside county can rank in a class almost alone as far as California is concerned. We desire to state specifically, however, that our classification of the mineral appertains to the sample only, and we in no wise guarantee or believe that the entire ledge is of as high-grade mineral as the specimen.

The sample is Bauxite, and it is probably the best-known (average) mineral used in the manufacture of alum, and in the metallic aluminum industry. Bauxite is a triple hydrate of aluminum; the sample carries 65.50 per cent. of alumina, and it is cream-white in color. "This mineral is assumed to be a deposit out of watery solutions percolating through clays or other formations containing the alumina, etc., in soluble forms, and it is, therefore, not necessarily confined to any particular geological horizon. . . . It is very rarely pure, and one of its pecularities is that its appearance is not a very reliable index to its purity. . . . There is a deposit of it, containing a very heavy percentage of iron, which occurs as a fine reddish dust, along the Potomac River beaches, near Alexandria, and this is highly prized as a coloring dust by the Washington makers of cherry brick."

Your sample carries approximately 5 per cent. of iron oxides; it is of a dull, earthy luster; hardness 2.60; sectile; massive and oolitic; of earthy fracture; sp. gr., 2.5; yields water in matrass, and gives a blue color, before the blowpipe, with the reagent, cobalt-nitrate solution.

A Mixture.

FULLERTON, May 13.—Q.: Will you please classify the rock I enclose? It came from near Winchester, Cal. I think the dark is pyrite, and the light colors, gold quartz. If not, what is it? Is it of any value? C. A. M.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample carries calcite and quartz; it is chiefly composed of iron oxides, hematite and magnetite. Ilmenite crystals are present in the mass, and the one-time pyrite is now changed (pseudomorph) to oxide. Material represented by the sample possesses no great value unless assays show gold or silver.

Mineral Paints.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Q.: I am forwarding to your ore testing department, three samples of mineral. Nos. 1 and 2 from Sonoma county, and No. 3 from Arizona. The object of my inquiry is: Are these samples pure enough for use as paint? Could "metallic-red" paint be recovered from No. 1, if so how? You will confer a very great favor on a number of prospectors in California and in Arizona by giving information as requested.

L. BROTHERS

A.: Sample No. 1 is a pure hydrous iron oxide (limonite,) known also as "yellow ochre." This mineral when thoroughly pulverized (and not calcined) forms the paint known as yellow ochre. To obtain red ochre all that is necessary is to calcine the limonite, which burns out the water, and becomes hematite, (iron peroxide) "red ochre" of the paint dealers. Sample No. 2 is high grade manganese ore, and like ochre forms "metallic-paint," when pulverized, and it can be made into different shades and colors by burning or not burning the ore. "It can also be mixed with the ochres and produces a purplish tint that is in high favor. . . . Sometimes a very fine umber is found in beds where it has been deposited by nature, but yet it must be suspended in water and cleared of impurities if wanted for the finest work." Sample No. 3 is a very high grade earthy hematite, and one of its uses, formerly, was for Indians to anoint their faces and bodies with it; for this purpose it was made into an unguentum, from any old fat or grease and then applied in streaks and splotches to the outer cuticle. This "skin-food" was further known as "Indian war-paint." Sample No. 3 is representative of a "red ochre" as fine as any that can be formed with heavy machinery and from the best grade of "dyestone." By mixing these ochres almost any and every shade and color can be obtained, brown, red and yellow, for instance, and if kaolin is used in the mixture other colors can be obtained, but mark you, the addition of kaolin would take the mixed pigment out of the class known as "metallic-paint!"

Tungstic Acid Absent.

OTIS (Cal.) May 14.—Q.: In February I prospected the country hereabouts, and now send you three samples of rock. I believe that No. 1 is white tungsten because it acts like it in acids. No. 2 is this black tungsten? No. 3 may be tin or tellurides. B. K. T.

A.: As to the "acts" in acids to which you refer, it is true that the sample behaves itself in a quiet, unassuming way, and does not fizz and splutter like carbonate of lime; this sample, No. 1 is massive gypsum of good quality. No. 2 is a mixture of iron peroxide with ilmenite (titanic iron ore.) Sample No. 3 is a silicious rock carrying hematite (variety micaceous iron-ore) in seams scattered throughout the mass.

ADVANTAGE OF OPEN SHOP.

has been entirely non-union and closed against members of unions we have had peace, contentment and successful factory operation, with great improvements as to the manufacturing results in comparison with our experience as a closed union shop. The principal advantages which we are enjoying over former union conditions may be concisely stated as follows:

"(a) Under non-union conditions we are able to procure a very much better class of employees, both as to the degree of their skill and as to their moral character.

"(b) The quality of the product of our factory has improved wonderfully as compared with union conditions, because our non-union employees are much interested in the success of the operations of the factory and the quality of its products, and because our non-union employees maintain close and friendly relations with the management, as against the organic unfriendly disposition, and in fact hostility of union men toward the interests of the company and the management of the factory. In other words, our non-union employees are not our antagonists; they are our friends while the union employees seemed to be possessed with the idea that their interests were entirely opposite to the interests of the company and the management.

"(c) Our non-union employees, as a rule, receive higher wages than the wage schedules of the unions designate, because they are paid by us, not according to general union scales, but according to their individual ability, thereby making it possible for the most competent employees to receive the highest wages.

"(d) The average output of our product under non-union conditions has increased at least 25 per cent., first, because of the high wages we pay to competent non-union people, and, second, because there is no restriction on the maximum output of our machinery or on any kind of work, such as is imposed upon union employees by their respective organizations. To illustrate: If a printing or book-binding machine is so built that it can turn out, under competent handling, say, 10,000 of a certain product daily, union regulations demand that the daily output shall not be more than 6000 or 6500. In other words, union regulations reduce the output of their members to the lowest standard of union skill, while non-union conditions give the individual employees the opportunity to do the best they are able to do and to earn as much money as their ability may justify.

"(e) Therefore, since we are able to produce under non-union conditions better quality and a greatly increased output, our cost of production has been lowered, notwithstanding the fact that the wages we pay to our non-union employees are considerably greater than were the wages we were obliged to pay under the union scale to union employees.

"(f) We have a benefit association among our employees, which pays $5 a week to its members in case of sickness. We have social organizations among our employees. In fact, a friendly and congenial feeling exists among our employees toward each other and toward the management, which condition cannot possibly exist under union organization and union tyranny.

"In conclusion, I beg to state, that under no circumstances will this company ever return to the 'closed shop' conditions and union tyranny. Notwithstanding the great and severe hardships of our fights with union labor and our tremendous losses, humiliations, and sufferings, we are glad the fight was made, and we consider our victory and the fact that we have now an independent non-union organization, superior in all respects to union organizations in our line of business, a sufficient compensation for all we suffered.

"Yours respectfully,
[Signed] "P. E. WERNER,
"President."

Low Grade Ore.

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—Q.: Enclosed find two samples marked "copper-iron" and "No. 2." These samples are supposed to have come from the northern part of San Bernardino county, and to contain copper, silver and gold. If it would not be too much trouble please tell me if No. 1 contains tungsten? Does it carry pitchblende? I think No. 2 possibly contains the same, is it carbonate or silicate? M.

A.: Tungsten, pitchblende and all so-called "rare minerals" are not present in any of your samples. No. 1 consists of five specimens, azurite and malachite (copper carbonates,) are in the mixed ores. We detected erubescite (red copper ore) in the large specimen with copper silicate (chrysocolla,) and pistachio-green epidote occurs as a coating on several samples of No. 1. Manganese, iron, and lime carbonate present. No. 2 consists of ten chips of ore, it is a better grade of No. 1 sample, and is similar to No. 1 with traces of lead and zinc. Unless the ore represented by the samples assays paying quantities of gold and silver, you have submitted a very low grade copper ore.

NEWHALL, May 11.—Q.: This sample was taken from a small ledge not very far from Newhall, and I believe that it is milk-opal. I can get it in slabs four inches wide and a yard long. Does it carry any rare metals? What is it anyhow? G. B. T.

A.: The sample is gypsum (variety selenite.) It is of interest for use as cabinet specimens, and if the deposit grows larger by working it, a very good grade of plaster of Paris can be made from the substance.

Why the Cornishmen Struck.

[Detroit Free Press:] The old "bred-in-the-bone" Cornishman of Upper Michigan is a character that, once met, is not soon forgotten. While he has a distinct sense of humor, he is funniest when he least intends to be, and this is due in no small degree to his peculiar dialect, the latter being not only difficult to understand but still more so to produce. The following is typical:

The boss went up in a raise where two of his old reliable workmen were drilling, greeting them with: "'Ow she coming up, boys?"

"Some slow, Cap'n, some slow."

"Well," said he, "ne'er mind, patience and perce'verance will put u through." And the captain walked on.

Said one of the men in the raise: "'Enry, wo be this Patience and this Perce-verance?"

"Blamed if I do knaw, lest be they taw bluddy Finlanders in tuther stowp."

Half an hour later found Henry and his partner demanding their pay up to date, just as the captain stepped into the office.

"Well, me sons, what's the matter?"

"W'ur leavin', Cap'n; if yaw dha want they taw bluddy Finlanders to put un through, you can 'ave 'ey; Patience and Perce'verance, 'ay? You cun 'ave 'ey, you cun 'ave 'ey."

The Value of Cleanness

The value of cleanness has been strikingly shown by the success of this Company.

Clean in conception, clean in plan, clean in methods, its growth has been cleanness itself.

With its purposes stated in clean, straightforward words, the response has been instantaneous.

It is a recognition of clean methods worthy of attention and close scrutiny.

Creating along these lines a sturdy and sound home-building organization with some 1700 shareholders, a subscribed capital of more than $250,000, and placing it on a money-making footing in fifteen weeks is conspicuous success.

Completing one house every second working day, we have now enough work on our own properties to keep us busy for a year to come.

To be a shareholder in such a company is a pleasure from the standpoint of earnings and association.

Uniting interests with the 22 business men who started this Company and the 1700 investors who have since joined them, is most attractive.

Doing it under a clean management, with a clean policy that has already placed the Company in the front rank of representative building institutions, is sound judgment.

As already stated in these advertisements, we are facing the necessity of advancing our shares to 25 cents. The amount we can afford to sell at the present price is limited.

We know present shareholders intend adding largely to their holdings as soon as definite date of this advance is given.

Yet we want as many new shareholders as possible to have the advantage of buying at 22½ cents. It means greater strength, greater influence and greater benefit to all.

While giving new shareholders an interest in the profits of present operations, it gives old shareholders the benefit of larger profits through increased capital and larger operations.

The sound basis of this is that 1700 and more investors, buying, building and selling as one man, can buy cheaper, build better, and sell at greater profit than they can possibly do as individuals unless commanding at least as much capital and as much influence as the 1700 combined.

You can put in as little as $22.50 (100 shares), and not more than $2250 (10,000 shares), making monthly payments, or cash, as may be convenient.

Send for "The WHISPER" (second edition). It will give you a fair idea of why this clean combination of investors is so successful.

WYOMING OIL FIELDS.

Los Angeles Men Have Millions Invested in the Casper Properties and Are Getting Returns.

While California oil lands are the richest in the world, local capitalists have discovered that there are other sections and they are being developed by California money. Notable among the better properties owned by Angelenos are those in Casper, Wyo. The Franco-Wyoming Oil Company at that point estimates its holdings at $19,000,000, and the Midwest Oil Company claims its property is worth $14,000,000.

W. W. Hurt and party of Los Angeles have just returned from a tour of inspection through the Wyoming fields and are inclined to enthuse over the conditions in that section.

The Midwest Oil Company shipped last month twenty-eight cars of gasoline and kerosene to Montana. The capacity of these tank cars is from 8000 to 10,000 gallons. This company owns all its tank cars. The Chicago and Northwestern Railroad Company has equipped thirty-five locomotives for oil and has contracted for 1500 barrels per day with the Midwest company. The present capacity of the Midwest Oil Company's refineries is 2000 barrels per day, and it is increasing the same to 8000 barrels per day. This refinery was erected last fall.

Three wells have been brought in out of the twenty that have been contracted for. These three wells are producing 2700 barrels per day. The State derives a royalty of over $2000 per month, the rate being 50 cents, or 10 per cent., on $5 per barrel. The receipts to the company are from $140,000 to $180,000 per month.

The cost of refining is less than 10 cents per barrel, as compared with 92 cents from refineries in the East. The gravity of the Midwest oil ranges from 32 to 38.

The Franco-Wyoming company has fifty-three wells and not a dry one among them. Their average depth is about 1200 feet. Thirty-two of these wells are in the Shannon oil fields, producing about 7000 barrels per day light oil, 39 gravity, some wells flowing from 1000 to 1200 barrels per day. The Shannon oils have napthine and olefine base. Twenty-five different productions are being prepared from the Shannon oil. This oil readily brings $15 per barrel.

The Franco-Wyoming Oil Company is composed of three subsidiary companies, known as the Mineral Oil Company, which does the drilling; the Natrona Refining Company, the pipe and light company, and the Franco-Wyoming Oil Company, being the parent company. They have six standard rigs in the field this year. Franklin, Pa., is the only place known to have similar oil, and that in small quantities from one and one-half to two barrels per day, and they are paying dividends with the price at $3 per barrel. The light oil of Dutton and Rattlesnake basins has shown by actual test to be 44 gravity.

The deepest well in this district is 1957 feet and was finished in forty-two days. The Shannon crude lubricating oil is 24 deg. gravity, fire test 328, cold 17 F. Its base is composed chiefly of what is known as napthine and olefine.

SANTA PAULA FIELD.

VARIOUS COMPANIES BUSY.

SANTA PAULA, May 31.—The Piru Monarch Oil Company, now in operation near Piru, is pumping well No. 1. The second well, with ten-inch casing, is down to a depth of 1350 feet.

The Atlanta Oil Company on Sulphur Mountain has again taken up work, which was stopped some time ago. The well is down about 450 feet. The company is in a good condition to operate and is working vigorously to attain results.

The McMillen-Stonewall Mining Company, which controls thirty-four claims embracing the famous old Stonewall mine at McMillen, is proposing to sink from 300 feet of present depth to 600 feet, at which point it is expected that sulphide of high value will have been tapped. Most of the upper workings were in a very high grade of silver ore, almost entirely free in character.

MUCH LABOR TO BE NEEDED.

Globe Camp Expects a Period of Unprecedented Development in the Near Future. Mining Briefs.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) May 31.—There is local belief that this camp within a year will become the greatest employer of labor of all Arizona and that its product of copper bullion soon will exceed that of any other locality in the Southwest.

For a year it has been known that the Inspiration Company has been looking for a site for a concentrating mill and has been studying the best methods of concentration. Nevertheless there was keen joy when announcement was finally made that the Inspiration Company had decided upon a location at Miami for a concentrator of 7500 tons daily capacity, with an attached power plant capable of generating a minimum of 7500 horsepower, to be distributed electrically throughout the works. Altogether it is proposed to spend at least $7,000,000.

The new mill will consist of six sections and will be organized much upon the plan which has proven successful by the Utah Copper Company, developed by Engineers Redpath and McGregor. Two new concreted shafts are to be sunk at once and development for stoping of ore bodies already outlined by drilling will be begun.

At present the Inspiration Company is employing about 400 men. This number will be increased gradually within two months to 1000. The Arizona Eastern railroad is to be extended to the millsite, which lies about a mile north of the town of Miami. The lower Miami townsite has been sold to the Inspiration Company, presumably to provide storage for tailings.

An option held by the Guggenheim Company on the Needles group of claims, three miles west of Miami, has been given up after investigation of six weeks by Geo. H. Harvey, a mining engineer and geologist.

PRESIDENT ISSUES REPORT.

Nester A. Young of the Pick and Drill Company Tells of Work and Bright Prospects.

President Young of the Pick and Drill Mining Company has sent out a letter to the stockholders of his company, in which he pictures the affairs of the concern in favorable colors. He says:

"The management is rushing work with a double force on the 700 and 800 levels, with the object of opening up, as quickly as possible, the six ore bodies encountered in the 1523 feet of drifting on the 600-foot level. On this level in the south drift, 211 feet from the working shaft, the first body of ore was cut, having an average width of three feet and the values running over $30 per ton. It is this body of ore that we seem now to be approaching on the 800-foot level. Besides the usual methods of arriving at the above conclusion, additional proof is given by the fact that the running stream of water accumulated in the long drift on the 600 level now disappears when it reaches the ore shoot and runs down through the ore where it appears again on the 800 level. The crosscut on the 800 level is being driven to the west to open up a long shoot of ore in a parallel ledge. This ore has a width of nearly three feet and the shoot is over 200 feet long, with values of $20 per ton.

The property is equipped with a power plant, hoisting plant, water system, stamp mill, rock crusher, concentrating plant, store, boarding-house, bunk-houses, shops, etc. The first unit of the mill was installed for sampling purposes, through which ore from different shoots in the mine has been run as tests from time to time. Recently the company sent a bar of gold bullion, valued at nearly $1800, to the mint, as a result of sample runs of ore through the plant. Plans are matured for increasing the capacity of the plant as soon as the first ore bodies are opened up on the lower levels.

HARBOR CITY CONCERNS YOU

PERSONALLY INTIMATELY FINANCIALLY

Two months ago the Southern Pacific Railroad ordered built two of the biggest steamships in the world. They will carry passengers direct to Los Angeles via the Panama Canal and San Pedro. THIS CONCERNS YOU.

Six months ago a company decided to build a dock in San Pedro harbor and obtained the concession. A month later the dock was leased for three years. THIS CONCERNS YOU.

Hundreds of men working in San Pedro live in Los Angeles and Long Beach, because there are not, in San Pedro, enough dwelling houses to accommodate her population. THIS CONCERNS YOU.

A big Eastern manufacturer has just purchased water front property at San Pedro for $37 per square foot—$1,700,000.00 per acre. THIS CONCERNS YOU.

San Pedro's Future is YOUR Future

The day is long past when San Pedro could be considered a legitimate target for the cracks of the vaudeville joker. It is a self-supporting city, a self-sufficient city. It can get along without Los Angeles a whole lot better than Los Angeles can get along without it. Don't forget that in the panic of 1907, when we up here were using paper scrip, and glad to get it, nothing but real money changed hands in San Pedro. The city has arrived! The eyes of the biggest shipping interests, all over the world, are on it. And when those interests focus on a certain point, as a center of future activity, it behooves the man with money to invest, to get familiar with that point.

Harbor City a Model

That is all we ask you to do, GET FAMILIAR. See the lay of the land down there and see just what is going on. See what we have done at Harbor City. It is not a pioneering proposition; the streets are in, water pipe is laid, stores are built, residences are springing up like magic. It is attracting investors, home seekers, men of all classes and stations who realize the present and future activity of any property in the vicinity of San Pedro. We term Harbor City THE HUB OF SAN PEDRO'S INDUSTRIAL ZONE. You will realize why when you see it.

Lots or One-Half Acres, $400 and Up

Easy terms may be had, and there is a special proposition whereby a 10% discount can be arranged. It will certainly pay you, in added knowledge of harbor conditions, to come in and talk with us about Harbor City. If you are really interested enough to make an investment, it will probably pay you to the tune of several hundred dollars. We will be glad to take you to Harbor City at our expense. Or, if you prefer to go alone, the Pacific Electric car from 6th street station, via the Gardena-San Pedro line, will take you directly to our tract office. We have a booklet we should like to send you, if you will write or telephone.

$200,000 Strong and Growing

Efficiency High efficiency when coupled with economy produces and conserves wealth.

Speculation Debt Speculations of the many dangerous kinds with costly debts, instead of producing and conserving, tend to destroy wealth.

Profits Profits, if permanent, must be founded upon safety. Purchasers of stocks are chiefly concerned with safety first, then with profits and finally with the income—the dividends. That is just where all efficient financiers and directors are concerned.

Worth Again, a corporation's ultimate worth must be determined by these vital factors: Assets, debts, management. The success of a corporation, no difference how large its capital, must in the last analysis be determined by the safety of its investments, and its liabilities. If over-ridden with highly speculative and non-productive investments and scattering, voluminous and complicated indebtedness, what's the value of the investment?

Standard Gold is the standard, but is non-productive. United States Government Bonds are safe, but they pay small returns. Then comes the securities of the company, without dangerous speculations, that avoids costly debts.

$200,000 Consolidated Securities Company at this time does not owe one cent and may never have any debt—or very little, if any. Having no debt implies that it only has unincumbered assets—now over $200,000.00 strong and growing.

Earnings In addition, it has no promotion stock; its investments (stocks, bonds, notes, and other high-class securities) are producing 8% or more and the earnings from other sources are running high. It controls a large volume of highly profitable business without monetary obligation. It is, therefore, working on highly approved and SAFE LINES FOR INVESTORS.

Management And now comes management. It is an undisputed statement, often made by the president of a leading Los Angeles bank, that "everything is in the management." If good (like his bank) it spells prosperity, if bad—failure.

Consolidated Securities Company management is in experienced hands. Additional competent assistance as needed will be found. The present management has proven competent to build a SAFE company. It has founded that company on a right and righteous basis.

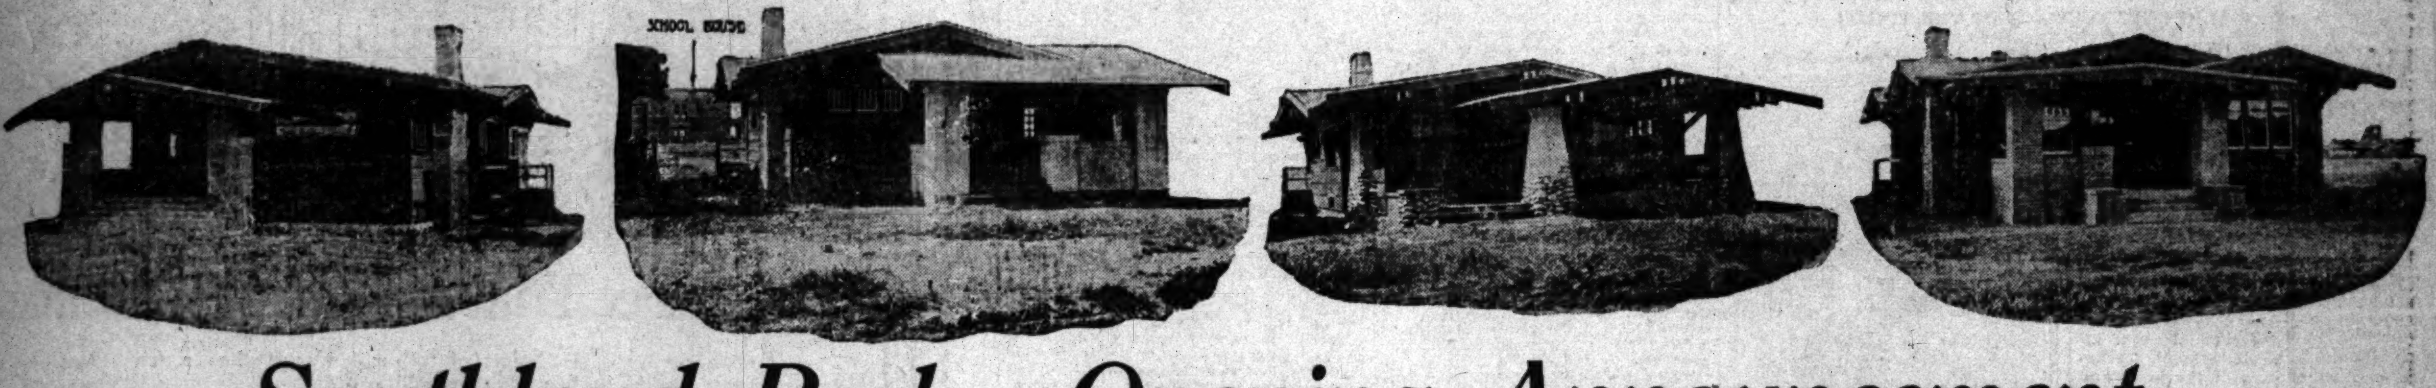
The Last Word in Bungalow Construction



Southland Park—Opening Announcement

You are most cordially invited to go out today and inspect the most perfectly built and equipped Bungalows in Los Angeles.

These models of the craftsman's art are open today for the first time, and it will pay you to see them. They are undoubtedly the best arranged and most lavishly finished of any group of houses ever offered for sale in the city.

Although high-class in every particular, still by careful management, and our ability to purchase all material at lowest wholesale rates, we are able to offer them at very moderate prices.

THESE BEAUTIFUL BUNGALOWS represent the most advanced thought in home-making. Among other conveniences there is an electric stove, in which food can be baked, boiled or stewed in the most perfect manner at a fraction of the cost of ordinary fuel, with no heat in the kitchen and without labor other than the turning of a switch; there is an automatic water heater which supplies boiling water at any time, day or night, to any fixture by simply turning the hot water faucet at the desired fixture; there is a sturdy little combination lock steel safe, in which to store valuable papers and jewelry; a full length pier mirror for my lady's convenience in the bedroom; beautiful plumbing fixtures in an unusually large and commodious bathroom, the most attractive of which is the pedestal lavatory of real porcelain, (not enameled iron.)

The dining-room has an elaborate buffet and the walls are wood paneled. The living-room has a beautiful fireplace, bookcases and a beamed ceiling. An attractive den and breakfast room complete the arrangement of the floor space, and in some cases there is a cellar and the houses are piped for furnace. The living-room, dining-room, den, breakfast-room and bedrooms have heavy oak floors, (not the ⅜-inch variety.)

These houses are located on 51st Place and 52nd street and Western avenue, in our Tract, known as SOUTHLAND PARK. The street work is being done under city specifications, with cement sidewalks, curbs, gutters and rock macadam roadway. The houses will be connected with the city sewer and supplied with gas, electricity and Vermont Square Artesian water.

The price of the house includes the cost of all these conveniences and the terms of purchase will be so easy that any one with a moderate salary can afford to buy. Whether you intend to purchase or not, be sure to see our specimen house. Courteous attendants will meet and show you over the property.

Take the Grand avenue and 48th street yellow car. Get off at Western avenue and walk South to 51st Place.

News From the Great California Oil Fields.

Coalinga.

TO INCREASE PRODUCTION.

Coalinga Operators Do Not Fear the Result.

Various Companies Showing Signs of Activity.

Blowout Does Damage and Alarms the Workmen.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

COALINGA, May 31.—The present activity in the Coalinga field is more in the line of redrilling than in new work, does not show that there is a very strong tendency for a continued overproduction of oil. Almost every company in the field is showing some signs of activity, and the feeling throughout seems to be a desire for more production. In order to get a larger production, many suspended wells have to be redrilled and cleaned out, or new wells must be drilled.

There is a feeling of optimism pervading the field, and the belief that oil will have to be drawn from stocks to supply the ever-growing demand, and that the price of oil at the well will go up accordingly, seems to be unanimous among the operators, and those interested in the oil industry.

In taking the field in a circle, the companies all are either starting redrilling of wells, new wells, or are figuring on commencing operations in a short time. Starting at section 6, 21-15, the California Oil and Gas Company has just finished the No. 1 well, and now has three wells in the producing column. Another well will be redrilled in a short time. The Southwestern Consolidated, on the same section, which took over the old Six Acres property, is working to get a production on the well. The Blue Moon wells are being worked on by E. B. Walker, and a better production is expected from these wells.

In the light oil field in the neighborhood of section 2, 21-14, including a portion of No. 12, and also the south part of section 35, 20-14, there is considerable activity, and the oil from this district will soon be included in the shipments from the field. The Hydraulic on No. 12 is drilling one well and finishing another, and Mr. Potter is drilling on No. 35 close to the old McClurg well. There are several land deals pending in this neighborhood, and their consummation will probably be the forerunner of much more development work.

SUPERINTENDENT QUITS.

A. F. Roach, who for the past three years has been superintendent of construction for the K. T. & O. Company under Superintendent Hively, will leave for Los Angeles this evening with his family. Roach has severed his connection with the company and expects to remain in the southern city for several months. The Roach family have a wide acquaintance both in the city and field and their absence will be greatly felt. Mr. Roach is a prominent member of the [illegible] Club and very ably acted as a member of the Entertainment Committee. His assistance will be greatly missed by the committee as well as the entire club.

WELL BLOWS OUT.

The W. K. Oil Company on section [illegible] 20-15 have finished drilling on their well No. 11, and are making an effort to land the six and one-fouth inch casing at a depth of 3012 feet. The indications are that No. 11 will be the banner well on the property as the sand from which they expect to produce is the best that the drillers have ever encountered.

It is the intention of the officials to have the casing perforated in the hole. Thursday night, while working, the well commenced to gush and for fifteen minutes, shot over the top of the derrick.

Yesterday, while working on their No. 7 in an effort to put in a packer the well, which is one of the largest producers on the section, suddenly broke loose and shot 300 feet of tubing and the packer for a distance of 300 feet into the air. By a miracle, the tubing in its upward flight, passed out of the top of the derrick without removing the crown block, and before it reached the ground the crew was at a safe distance from the scene of the blowout. Phil Daubenspeck is the superintendent on the W. K.

MEN SHOCKED.

While engaged in cleaning out on well No. 56 of the Limited, section 27, 19-15, yesterday morning, a crew of twelve men suffered a severe scare when a sudden and unexpected gas pocket was encountered and caused the tubing to break from its moorings and shoot out through the top of the derrick.

The loosened equipment shot skyward for a distance of about 100 feet and fell to the ground in a tangled mass, one section of the tubing being twisted into the shape of a hairpin as it met with the flow of water that followed the blowout.

The noise of the blowout caused considerable consternation among the residents of the camp and, in addition, was responsible for four runaways that kept the employees busy for awhile.

The well is located in the heart of the residence section of the camp and the derrick has been for some time enclosed by boarding to prevent the spray from flying onto the houses, and in the blowout all of the boarding was torn out.

TWO TEST WELLS.

T. H. Thompson, organizer of the Berkeley Coalinga Oil Company on section 2, returned yesterday from Parkfield, where he has been drilling a couple of test wells. He reports that in a well about two miles from the city of Parkfield and fifteen miles south of section 6, in this field, he encountered a sand at 254 feet which tested out a production of about forty barrels a day of 16-gravity oil. The other well, which was drilled 300 feet from the outcroppings, was drilled 185 feet and tested out about twenty-five barrels a day. Thompson states that he intends to drill another well about an eighth of a mile from the first well and go deeper to a sand which he believes he will reach quite a distance beneath the first sand. The property on which the wells are located has been leased by Thompson and Lee Patriquin of Parkfield.

TRI-COUNTY DRILLING DEEPER.

The Tri-County Oil Company in the test well being drilled in the Parkfield district are down 3300 feet and drilling ahead. A good showing of oil was reached in this well at 2300 feet, but the operators intend to drill the hole to a depth of 4000 feet in order to test the formation of the territory and ascertain if there is an oil sand beneath that encountered at 2300 feet. In case no paying sand is encountered they will go back and produce from the 2300-foot sand. The Tri-County company is controlled by the Graciosa Oil Company.

COALINGA NOTES.

The Canadian Coalinga on section 8, 21-15, will probably start more wells in the near future, as the company advertised for bids for drilling two or three wells under contract, and the bids have been sent to Vancouver, B. C., to be gone over by the directors of the company. The K. T. & O. has started drilling a well on the corner of section 7, 21-15, near the Canadian gusher.

On section 36, 20-14, the Associated has only two wells in the suspended list and work is being done on one of these to get back into the producing list.

The K. T. & O., on section 31, 20-15, has redrilled one well and has fifteen in the producing list and one drilling. The United Development, on the same section, has three derricks up and expects to start operations on one in the near future.

On section 26, 20-14, the Hawkeye has one producing well, and another is being drilled. On the same section the Homestake is redrilling one well and the Ozark is drilling a new one.

On section 30, 20-15, the American Petroleum is drilling one new well and redrilling some old ones, and also has two new rigs up. The Nevada is redrilling three wells.

On section 24, 20-14, the Premier is redrilling the No. 1 well. The Traders are redrilling an old producer and the British Consolidated is doing some active work to bring up the production.

On section 19, 20-15, the American Petroleum is drilling two new wells, has two new rigs up and is doing some redrilling work. The K. T. & O. company brought in one well last week, has five new ones drilling and is doing some redrilling.

The Sespe Consolidated Oil Company, operating in Big Sespe Canyon, is not at present working on the wells it was drilling to lower sands. Well No. 7 is down 225 feet.

TWO MILLIONS FOR STORAGE.

Independents Utilize the Storage Agreement.

Two Other Concerns Store Their Own Product.

Forty New Wells Planned for the Lost Hills.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, June 1.—Approximately 2,000,000 barrels of oil have been offered to the Union Oil Company by members of the Independent Oil Producers' Agency under the storage agreement entered into between the Agency and the Union something over a month ago. The Union is to pay 35 cents per barrel for the oil, which makes the transfer amount to about $750,000.

No oil was offered to the Union by the American Oilfields of the American Petroleum, both of which are members of the Agency and entitled to turn in its pro rata of oil in case it elected to do so. The two companies will hold their own oil. Definite figures on the amount of oil the Union will receive from each company making offers may be available in a few days.

FORTY NEW WELLS.

The Associated Oil Company is getting ready to drill forty wells on sections 33 and 29 of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's holdings in the Lost Hills, and this news is taken to mean that possibly the Associated may enter generally on the job of developing the railroad lands. Despite the close connection of the Associated and the railroad, the latter's lands heretofore have been drilled only by the Kern Trading and Oil Company. On the other hand the incident may have no larger significance. The land in question adjoins that where the Universal recently has been bringing in some excellent producers. The railroad may fear that the Universal's wells will drain its territory unless it gets wells of its own down promptly.

The Associated has been operating in the Lost Hills for months past, and is prepared to get busy on the new sections more quickly probably, than the K. T. & O. could do so.

The General Petroleum Company is getting ready to drill on the southeast quarter of section 5, 27-21, in the Lost Hills field.

The well brought in as a gusher by the Associated on section 34, 31-23, and which sanded up thereafter, is now flowing about 1800 barrels of oil per day.

The California Well Drilling Company is preparing to kill the gas in the Mays Consolidated No. 2 on section 28, 31-23, and go down deeper after oil.

The Pyramid Oil Company is in blue shale with a good showing of gas at 4050 feet.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company is drilling two wells on section 1, 32-23, and one on section 7, 32-24.

The El Dora Oil Company's well No. 2 on section 32, 12-23, brought in a week ago, is flowing about 500 barrels per day.

The Midway Five has finished its well No. 2 at 2290 feet, and is looking for a good producer. Well No. 1 is to be drilled 100 feet deeper than at present. It now stands at 2200 feet.

The Standard is running three strings of tools and building two new rigs on section 36, 31-23. It recently brought in its well No. 4 on this section, as a gusher.

On section 4, 27-21, the Standard is starting a new well. Another well of the Standard on the same section, is producing about 100 barrels.

GOOD GRAVITY OIL.

PETROLEUM COMPANY'S STRIKE.

ANAHEIM, May 28.—At 3000 feet the Petroleum Oil Company entered the strata sought and oil is coming up. The product has the appearance of good gravity oil. There is also a great deal of gas being discharged from the well. The pressure has increased steadily as the rotary has gone down in the sand. The company expects to finish the well in a few days.

The company escaped the hard formation which other companies have been compelled to cope with. Its holdings are situated at the extreme south of the valley field. On the west is the Amalgamated, which is now drilling close to the line. On the northwest the Union is drilling close to the Petroleum line. On the east is the Dorsey and the Midway companies, who are engaged in drilling their first wells. The success of the Petroleum has its rig up for its No. 2 well southwest of the No. 1 and will spud in there as soon as the job is finished on the No. 1.

Headway is being made on the Delaware Union with the first rotary outfit to be given trial in the Brea Canyon. The success attending the work is the most satisfactory and the officials are in favor of putting the rotary on throughout the Delaware Union developing territory. It is the general belief that it will only be a short time before the entire territory of the Brea Canyon will be drilling with rotaries.

The well of the Delaware now on the rotary was picked up by the latter at 2700 feet in hard formation. This hard formation was drilled forty feet before the workmen found occasion to stop and change the bits.

New Device.

HOLLYWOOD MAN INVENTS SOMETHING FOR OIL MEN.

AN INVENTION that promises to be of much value to oil men has been perfected by a Hollywood man, Hugh A. Bardeen. The invention is a device for the drilling of oil wells by means of electric motors that are attached to the end of the casing and lowered into the well as the drilling progresses.

As drilling is now handled in the rotary fields it is necessary to turn the entire length of casing in order to turn the drill and as the well grows deeper, the length of pipe that must be turned grows longer, requiring more power and making the operations much slower. With Mr. Bardeen's invention the motive power is applied directly to the drilling bit and the electricity is applied to the motors from power overhead. The drill can thus be operated at a much greater rate of speed than under ordinary methods.

With the machine, it is expected that a well may be drilled in a fraction of the time that it takes to drill one under present methods and by thus reducing the expenses of well drilling to a minimum, it will make possible the opening up of much oil land that it has been impracticable to open because of the great expense of drilling.

Mr. Bardeen has submitted his plan to leading men in the oil business and they all declare that it promises to become a most important factor in the oil industry.

A company, known as the Electric Rotary Drill Company, has been organized by Hollywood people and others engaged in the oil industry, and it is planned to manufacture the machines simply for leasing purposes. The machines, it is believed, can be built in quantities for about $1500, and if they do only a part of what the inventor expects them to do will rent easily for $1000 per month and it is this way that the inventor plans to do in order to make the most of his project.

The first machine, which is now under construction, is to be tried out on the Pacific Light and Power fields near Hollywood. Applications for the use of the machines have been received from all sections of the State. Mr. Bardeen expects to get the enterprise fully financed in a few weeks and then will develop the manufacturing end of the business.

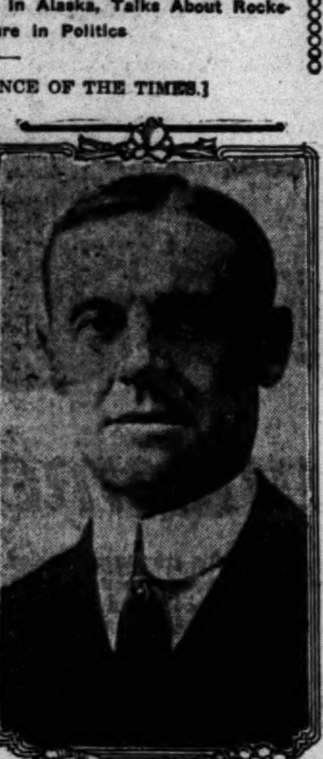
OIL MAN IN CONGRESS.

George White, Who Made a Fortune in Alaska, Talks About Rockefeller—A New Figure in Politics

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]



George White.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) May 27.—Kerosene advanced in price immdiately after the law broke the Standard Oil Company into thirty-odd fragments. "Retaliation," exclaimed the hit or miss philosopher. Maybe it was. Yet George White says that he had looked for an increase in price for more than a year. The production of petroleum has fallen off in Illinois and Oklahoma.

George White is an oil man himself. He declares that the Standard has always fixed the market for raw and refined petroleum and intimates that, though legally dissolved, it always will. In short, John D. Rockefeller remains king of the pipes and wells.

Almost accidentally, George White is also a member of Congress, coming from the Marietta district in Ohio, where the landscape is Hollandish with derricks instead of windmills and where walking-beams rattle gayly up and down. Woodrow Wilson taught him politics and jurisprudence at Princeton. He was among the first of the stampeders in 1898 to travel the terrible Chilkoot Pass, and for three years was a miner in Alaska. Altogether, he is a very human, and therefore an uncommonly interesting, man.

Oil, gold and politics is mixture enough for a melodrama. And George White is sufficiently rugged and romantic to hold attention on almost any stage. The atmosphere in which he has lived from boyhood has been filled with dramatic influences and events. It was at Titusville, where he went to the public schools and prepared for college, that Col. E. L. Drake, a railroad conductor and "a fool from Connecticut," as he humorously called himself, struck oil.

FIRST AMERICAN OIL WELL.

The gusher, flowing twenty barrels a day, "came in," as the phrase goes, on August 28, 1859. Mr. Rockefeller was then twenty years old and a partner in a commission firm in Cleveland that was receiving butter and eggs from Henry M. Flagler, a small merchant in the country, the same Flagler who once told me that he left his father's poor little manse in a New York village, walked nine miles to the Erie Canal, and then boarded a freight boat for the West, arriving in Ohio with a "five-franc piece, a French coin that was current in this country for a dollar; 5 cents in silver, and four copper pennies." He was 14 years old. Now he is 82 and still a steaming man of business.

The Drake well was sixty-nine and one-half feet deep. A great throng of adventurous characters hurried to Titusville, and swarmed up and down in a gorge between high edly flowed in a gorge between high banks. Other wells were dug. "By the end of the year," Mr. White said to me, "that is, from the last of August, 1859, to January 1, 1860, four months in all, the total production had reached 82,000 barrels. It was valued at $1,640,000. The production during the following year, 1860, amounted to 500,000 barrels. The price at that time had fallen to $10. The production was more than quadrupled in 1861, and the price of $10 a barrel in January dropped to 20 cents a barrel in September."

Four years later Mr. Rockefeller began to apply the methods that gave stability to the oil market. The wild fluctuations stopped. Drake, in the meanwhile, had vanished from Titusville. Ten years after, a newspaper man found him at Long Branch, in New Jersey. He was living in poverty and his legs were paralyzed. A purse of $3500 was sent him from the oil regions, the Legislature voted him a yearly pension of $1500 and, when he died, H. H. Rogers, another of Mr. Rockefeller's partners, placed a granite and bronze monument at his grave in the Titusville Cemetery.

Drake's production of twenty barrels a day in August, 1859—and his was the only oil well in the United States—is set against a daily production of 723,333 barrels in the year 1911 to show the growth of a single American industry. Nor can John D. Rockefeller and Henry M. Flagler be eliminated as the principal actors in one of the most stirring stories in all the annals of trade, industry and commerce.

WENT OUT AMONG DERRICKS.

The boy, George White, grew up at Titusville. He returned from Princeton with petroleum in his blood. "I can hire 1000 book-keepers in Pittsburgh," his employer said one day. "You have a neat, white-shirt job, my boy, but if you really want to know all about oil, I advise you to go out into the field and smear your hands and face with grease."

So George White went, clothed mostly in overalls. His pay was $3 a day. When he returned from the Klondike he had capital enough to become a producer of oil on his own account. He has wells in Ohio, Oklahoma and elsewhere, and is competent to discuss the petroleum question from any standpoint.

"What effect," I asked him, "has the dissolution of the Standard had on the oil business?"

"None that is perceptible," he answered. "Crude petroleum has gone up in price in the eastern, or Appalachian field, but the advance was foreseen a year ago. Production, we knew, had fallen off in Illinois and Oklahoma. The rise in the market, consequently, cannot be attributed to the troubles that have overtaken the Standard Oil Company, nor to its displeasure at the action of the government or the decision of the court. I am conscious, however, of a slight difference in my own independent business. Formerly I could, after ascertaining how much crude oil I had in the pipe lines, get a check from the Standard the same afternoon. Now, my book-keeper informs me, we must wait until the following day. In other respects, so far as I can see, the breaking up of the Standard has not caused any change whatever in the oil industry. The men who ran the old company and made the market are in control today."

"Are large corporations now engaged in competing against the various companies that once composed Mr. Rockefeller's monopolistic organization?"

"The Pure Oil Company in the East, and the Gulf and Texas companies in the southwest, are supposed to be fighting the old Standard crowd for the oil business of the country. John W. Gates organized the Texas Company, but he is dead. The Mellons of Pittsburgh control the Gulf Company, and Michael Murphy and several Pennsylvania bankers are dominant in the Pure Oil Company. These concerns were said to be competitors of the Standard. They are competing yet, I suppose, in former fashion. As a matter of fact, however, there has been no competition in the oil industry at any time since John D. Rockefeller began to buy up refineries and lay pipe lines.

"Practical oil men travel from one field to another. This year they may be in Illinois, and next year in Texas. They are the pioneers of production—digging wells and exploiting uncertain territory. Their connections are known. When Sam Brown appears, the rest of us understand for whom he is operating. If a crooked man drifts in, we spot him and pass the word around to those who are unacquainted with his history. There is a sort of freemasonry, you see, in the oil business. Now, the same old crowd that has had relations with the Standard for years is active in the Southwest and California, though the regions where they happen to be are supposed to be "independent." So when we read about competition in the oil industry it is just as well to remember that Mr. Rockefeller's organization is omnipresent, even if it fails to carry a banner advertising its proximity and its purposes.

"The policy of the Standard in early days was to let outside persons find the oil—that is the uncertain side of the petroleum business. Out of all the great army of oil prospectors and developers only five, so I am told, became millionaires. Men at the University Club in Pittsburgh, knowing that I have a new 500-barrel well, will say: 'Why didn't you let us in on that?' And I reply: 'It might have been a dry hole, in which event every dollar you put up would have been lost.' Nothing comes back, not a penny, if the drill does not find oil.

DRY HOLES BREAK THEM UP.

"The dry holes eat up the profits of the big strikes. Men find a good well and then bankrupt themselves in trying to find more wells. I know a producer who at several times of his life was worth $300,000, but he broke himself up again and again by digging empty holes in the ground. But the lure of the earth led him on, and he pawned his wife's diamonds, put up an old derrick, and was happy again listening to the music of the walking beam. Poverty nor riches can cure the habit. It costs $3000 in West Virginia, where the pools are deep in the ground, to get, or what usually happens, not to get, oil.

"The shrewd Mr. Rockefeller never took any personal interest in the gambling end of the oil game. As it was, the risk he ran was great enough to satisfy his love for speculation. A spark from a smoker's pipe or a lighted match might reduce a refinery to ashes in a few minutes, and insurance companies stood aloof from such hazardous business. Mark Hanna's refinery burned down. 'Don't be a blamed fool and build again, but come into the coal and iron business,' said his father-in-law, Daniel Rhodes. The advice was followed.

"Nevertheless, Mr. Rockefeller perceived all the hidden possibilities of petroleum. No more would lard be burned in parlor lamps, nor would tallow candles be used to light sitting-rooms and bedrooms. Mr. Rockefeller, therefore, willingly surrendered the exciting task of finding oil to other men and when they found it, he refined it, and his chemicals discovered ways of utilizing the dregs and he became the richest man in the world on a reasonably safe proposition. In the meantime, prospectors and producers were sleeping in the woods and eating fat pork. They are the romantic knights of the industry, but nobody ever hears of them and their names are too far lost in oblivion to be recovered and celebrated.

BOUGHT WELLS TO BE SAFE.

"Back in the '80's, however, a slight change occurred in the policy of the Standard, which was now opulent and could afford to try an experiment. The Pennsylvania producers, believing they were not getting enough for their petroleum, pulled the fire out from under their boilers and quit pumping. Complaining about prices is a common habit. No farmer ever gets enough for his wheat. Oil men, regardless of their location, say that the Standard is robbing them. Four years ago, I sold oil in Oklahoma for 30 cents a barrel. I kicked then. I am getting 50 cents today and am still kicking. I see my oil manufactured into kerosene, gasoline, paraffin and vaseline, and sold at the rate of $5 a barrel. I am a human being and so is every other producer.

"The 'great shut-down,' it was argued, would compel John D. to make terms. Cutting off his supply, I suppose, did give him a slight shock, but the shut-down didn't work. The boys had notes coming due at the banks, the walking-beams began to pump and the shut-down was off. But the Standard had learned something. The policy of keeping money out of property in wells was given a little elasticity. A well here and there was taken over simply, I dare say, as a protection against possible strikes of the producers in the future. I haven't the figures, but I suppose the Standard now pumps from its own wells one-tenth of the raw oil supply of the country.

"You asked me if anybody was competing against the Standard," Mr. White went on to say. "All that I have told you has a bearing on the subject. There was no competition in the past, as I have shown. The price of crude petroleum was telegraphed along the pipe lines. A half hour later the 'independents' would name the same figures. Competition may come in the future, but until I see it, I shall have my doubts. A group of competitors rise and make a noise like the rest of us, and the Standard obtains their property at a valuation satisfactory to all the interests concerned.

PLENTY OF STANDARD MEN.

"No one inside the oil business, unless he is directly connected with the arrangement we suspect, knows whether the Pure, the Gulf and the Texas companies are 'independent' or not. Gossip is freely passed around among producers, but facts are hard to get. The petroleum fields are swarming with Standard men, the best men of their kind in the country—fine, able fellows personally. They are as mute as fence posts, are well paid, always keep their jobs, and have eyes like hawks. I like them immensely when I meet them singly, but when they come together for business purposes they are sons of guns, and the bystanders, whether innocent or otherwise, had better watch out. There is reason to believe that these men have not been deprived of employment.

"Likewise the machinery of the Standard's organization remains untouched, although several companies may now be operating it instead of one. Its pipe lines run from the Atlantic seaoard through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia to Oklahoma. If a man eight miles back in the country has a well pumping three barrels of oil a day, the Standard will lay a little pipe to his property and pay him spot cash for his product. Independent compa-

A NOVEL IN A NUTSHELL.

THE GARDEN.

BY WILLIAM FREEMAN IN THE SKETCH.

WE SAW it first in the July twilight—warm, mysterious, a hundred old scents mingling under the clear, darkening blue of the summer sky. Sweetbrier, lavender, honey-suckle, roses—one could trace them all. It was the sweetbrier, I think, which finally settled matters so far as Daphne was concerned. She drew a deep, satisfying breath, and held my arm a little more tightly.

"Just under half an acre," the house agent said. It had been Daphne, who, catching sight of the name on the "To Let" board in the front garden, had insisted upon going to his offices. Chance had decreed that they should be open. He had come on to The Wilderness with us.

"Perhaps you would like to go over the place before it gets too dark?" he suggested.

We went with him into the mid-Victorian house, with its folding doors and stained marble mantel-pieces, florid papers and echoing floors. There were many stairs, and a basement, but they had compensations. There was, for instance, a tiny octagonal room under the eaves, with a board that rattled with every step, and ivy almost obscuring the window, which held Daphne entranced. But our thoughts were, I think, still upon the garden.

"Forty-five pounds a year," said the agent, "or the owner would sell for [illegible]."

"Oh!" breathed Daphne.

He misunderstood her.

"Mr. Mallingham is abroad, and anxious to dispose of the property. He might consider less."

We wandered from room to room—there were eight of them, dusty and echoing—until it grew too dark to see even the wall-papers, and then went back to the agent's offices.

"Well?" he queried.

"If. Mr.—Mr. Mallingham will spend £20 on the house, I'll take it on lease at 35, with the option of purchasing," I said, "only we shall have to decide quickly."

"Then," said the agent, "I may as well tell you that we're empowered by Mr. Mallingham to enter into any reasonable arrangements on his behalf, and that you may consider the matter settled. I'll send you a draft of the lease in a couple of days."

"Very good," I said, and we turned to go. And then, for no particular reason, there came over me the conviction that events were moving altogether too smoothly and swiftly.

"I suppose," I said, "the house is all right—that it hasn't a reputation for being haunted, or of being the scene of a crime?"

The agent shook his head with emphasis.

"We shall miss the train if we don't hurry," said Daphne.

We walked to the station, stunned into silence by our amazing good fortune. From a stuffy little London flat to this detached paradise, and at such a price, seemed beyond the bounds of credence. To Daphne, I am sure, it did not seem real. She expected to awake in the sane light of day to find it an exceptionally vivid dream. But it wasn't, and we didn't. Instead, we awoke to find a letter from the agent "confirming our conversation of even data." And when a surveyor had added his favorable report to the general testimony, various British workmen entered upon the scene, and the task of making The Wilderness a shade less mid-Victorian and a good many shades cleaner was begun.

Pressure of work prevented my paying more than one or two visits during the process, but Daphne haunted the place. It was almost on the eve of our entry, when very little remained to be done beyond cleaning up, when she called at the office with a blank face.

"Dick, Thompson's men have left!"

"Left?"

"The plumber went yesterday. I saw his wife this morning—they live nearly opposite, you know. She says that he's ill. She doesn't know what's the matter with him—he won't say. All he will say is that he wouldn't work in the house again for a million pounds."

"And the others?"

"They've left the house because he has. They've no other reason, so far as I can make out."

We met Thompson, a middle-aged man lately starting on his own account, that evening. He went over the house with us. The sun was flooding it with amber light, and the garden, through the window of the little octagonal room, which was to be my study, looked as beautifully unreal as a stage picture.

I asked a question which I might have asked before.

"Who were the previous tenants?"

"An elderly lady—an invalid. Some people said that she wasn't quite right in her head. And before her, there was a man named Gennifer. He'd a long illness—I forget what it was, except that it wasn't infectious—Mallingham, the man you'll pay rent to, wasn't the original owner. He bought the place of the relatives of Prof. Anthony Ravett. It was he who laid out the garden. They found him dying in the Little Coppice, half a mile at the back of it."

Anthony Ravett—I remembered the name dimly. A man of whom many stories were extant—Asiatic explorer, experimenter, author of books which no one would read, and propagator of theories which no one would believe. A career of great promise ending in stupid sordid tragedy, as careers of genius have a knack of doing.

"As to why my men left," added Thompson. "I can give you no idea."

"If you could give us the name of a reliable charwoman instead—" insinuated Daphne.

The name of the reliable charwoman which Mr. Thompson supplied proved to be Merkins. She worked well, albeit a victim to a permanent inquisitiveness—so well, indeed, that Daphne abandoned the more intimate forms of supervision. But at the end of the third day of Merkins' labors she appeared, shrill-voiced and flushed, and demanded her money.

"For I ain't a-comin' 'ere no more," she said—and flatly refused further enlightenment of any sort.

"Someone's been scaring her—probably one of the workmen," I suggested, when Daphne came with the news.

"Very likely, she agreed absently.

"Her work's practically finished. isnt it?

"Yes," said Daphne.

There was a pause.

"You're still glad that we've taken the house?"

"Of course!" said Daphne, with tremendous emphasis.

"I'll arrange for the furniture to be moved in on Thursday," I said.

And in the week that followed we were as busy and fatigued as two inexperienced people tackling their first house moving, single-handed, may be expected to be. I took a holiday from the office, and wrestled with heavy furniture and hung pictures and curtains under Daphne's critical direction, until every muscle ached and my hands were like a navvy's. But our new home was a sufficient improvement on the old one to atone for a good deal of incidental weariness. Our microscopic flat on the third floor, where the smuts blew in all day and the noise of traffic never ceased, became as remote and unreal as a week-old dream. The Wilderness—and its garden—were all that counted.

At the end of the garden was an oak fence, with three trees, bearing red-gold fruit that seemed neither to ripen nor decay, standing sentinel at each corner and in the center. Beyond stretched a private park of some twenty acres; beyond that, a coppice. Our nearest neighbors were cottagers. Our isolation was complete enough to have satisfied a hermit. And the garden, with two years of semi-neglect to its credit, was more beautiful than any garden I have ever seen.

The house gained an inhabited look again—there is nothing under heaven more desolate than a building which has once echoed with footsteps and speech and laughter, and has been left to dust and silence for a space. We acquired a stolid and unemotional, but useful, maid from one of the villages near.

She left us during the second week. She gave no reasons. She merely repacked the tin box with which she had arrived, and went. Her mood was sullen, tinged with some slight display of feeling under the sting of my wife's reproaches.

"The worst is over. We can tackle the housework ourselves," I said; "it won't be bad fun."

It might not have been bad fun, but by the end of the month I had come to the conclusion that it was bad policy. Daphne complained of weariness, which was natural enough. But she was irritable and taciturn, shirked even the lightest duties in the house and did not want my companionship. All of which was far from natural. My tentative offer of a new knife-machine and one or two other odds-and-ends she had craved led to an unexpected and amazing quarrel, ending in floods of tears. We went to the theater once or twice—and she was frankly bored. I engaged other help, including a sprightly crone of sixty, who smashed an entire trayful of our best crockery, and a "lady-help," anaemic, gold-pince-nez-ed, and strongly averse to doing anything which might spoil her hands. But none of them stayed more than a day or so.

"I shall begin to wonder soon," I said desperately, at last, "whether we were wise in moving."

"I wish we hadn't," said Daphne, with sudden passion. "And yet—!"

"The garden!" I reminded her.

"If we were to leave that, I should die," she said, in a voice so low that I scarcely caught the words.

I didn't understand her. But her mood changed, and she seemed glad of my companionship. Evening after evening we walked side by side down the narrow, box-bordered pathway—an aisle of scented sweetness. The earlier fruits had ripened, and gone the way of all fruits, but the three trees by the oak fence were still heavy with their red-gold burden. I remember our halting beneath them.

"My botanical knowledge is limited," I said. "Perhaps if I were to take some of the fruit to Kew——"

"I want to show you the sunflowers by the southern border," said Daphne, with an impatient little jerk at my arm.

I put my hand up to one of the branches.

"Leave them on the tree, Dick . . . They—they've a certain decorative value of their own, haven't they. And we don't know that they're good to eat."

I looked down at her. She was shaking violently.

"Are you cold?"

"No. Yet I think we will go in. See how wet the dew has made my shoes!"

We went in. Days passed—strange, unhappy days, in which I felt the invisable breach between us widen and widen. It was subtle beyond all definition or analysis. My efforts to regain the old frank footing, to achieve the old gay spirit of camaraderie, were pathetically seconded by Daphne; but they failed. Something stronger than either of us was thrusting us apart. She grew thinner, paler, obviously unhappy. I spoke of a change of environment, of seeing a doctor. She resolutely refused to entertain the idea of either, or to engage fresh help.

We had been at The Wilderness, I remember, three months, when I returned from town one evening to find the house in absolute darkness. We had had the electric light installed, and in a moment I had flooded the hall and dining-room with its brilliance. I wandered through the house, calling. There was no answer. I passed through the French windows of the drawing-room into the garden. Something glimmered, shadowy-white, at the far end of the lawn. It was Daphne. I carried her into the house, failed to revive her, and ran out again for assistance. At the gate I blundered into Thompson, the builder, walking beside his bicycle.

"My wife is seriously ill," I told him. "If you could fetch the nearest doctor for me—I've no one else to send——"

"The nearest lives nearly a mile from here, Sir. And my bicycle's punctured——"

"Then borrow mine," I said, and opening the door of the little corrugated-iron shed, which disfigured our garden, brought out my own machine. The good fellow nodded, lit the lamp, and sped away.

I went back to Daphne. She was still unconscious. She was unconscious when, twenty minutes later, Dr. O'Keefe, a genial if not very competent Irishman, appeared. He spoke of the heat, of overstrain and overwork, of the necessity of getting her at once to bed, and of my having further assistance.

Thompson's wife, it seemed, was capable of nursing of a rudimentary type. I found the woman willing to come, and sent for her, thanking heaven that I had still nearly a week of overdue summer holiday to my credit.

That night Daphne, as we watched, passed from a state of dull oblivion to wild delirium. Her voice, in a monotonous undertone, murmured unceasingly. Chiefly she spoke of the garden. It was a doorway, she said—a dreaded yet irresistible entrance into a wider garden, one exquisite beyond all human explanation, a limitless expanse of beauty. And each time she had traveled nearer and nearer to the entrance, and each time it was I who had drawn her back——

"Back—to this!" she moaned, and stretched forth groping, yearning hands.

We could do nothing, neither I, nor the doctor, nor the good, slow-witted soul who had taken on her strange responsibilities so willingly. Towards the end of the second, never-ending day they insisted upon my resting. O'Keefe had given Daphne a sleeping-draught, and she lay silent and still. I was physically at the end of my tether.

I went up the crooked stairs to the little octagonal room. We had put a camp bed there for emergencies. From the window I looked down upon the garden, silent and dappled and chill under the moonlight.

It must have been a little after four when I awoke, shuddering. A shaft of silver brilliance crossed my pillow. I sprang up to switch on the light, and the loose board creaked noisily under my slippered feet. I stooped hastily to push it into its place, and it swung away under my hand (afterwards I discovered that an iron pivot ran through its center, clearly with a view to covering an old-fashioned hiding-place.)

I peered down into the gap between the floor and the ceiling of the room below. At the bottom lay what I took to be a dusty scrap of wall paper. I pulled it out, and found it covered with writing, dated diary fashion. There were three pages.

"April 9, 1889" (I read) — "Today planted the seedlings which the Sheikh gave me. He swears he had them from a prisoner who took them from the lost Garden of Eden. Those who eat of the fruit are said to go through five stages—a violent restlessness and dislike for one's surroundings, an aversion for one's dearest friends, a state of mental exaltation in which visions of the Garden constantly recur, a condition of coma or delirium, and death."

"August 11, 1889 — The seedlings appear to have struck. They are visibly taller than when I planted them."

"July 7, 1890—The three trees are now nearly four feet high. The Sheikh stated that they would bear fruit in the third year."

"June 21, 1892—Small fruit, of a golden-red tint, appearing. The taste is dissimilar to anything I have eaten before, but not unpleasing."

"June 28, 1892 — Have decided to dispose of the house at the earliest possible date. A man named Mallingham has been over it, but he does not desire possession before the end of the year. If it were not for the Sheikh's fruit I should leave at once."

"July 5—I am about to taste the fruit for the fourth time. No opium-eater has had visions to compare with mine during the last week or so. If there be any risk in continuing to eat the fruit I am prepared to run it."

"July 7—I have seen the Garden. By tomorrow evening——"

There the writing ended. I knew now what Anthony Ravett had been seeking when they found him dying in the Coppice. I understood why the workmen and our maids had left, and why, fearing to confess to their petty thefts, they had offered no explanations. And I understood what Daphne had endured, and the penalty that would be demanded.

I raced down to the room below. Mrs. Thompson was leaning back in her seat, sleeping the sleep of stout an exhausted middle age. Her chair, for the moment, obscured my view

An unusually attractive home of the popular Swiss chalet type has just been started by Murray H. Paulin of the Imperial Land Company, at Brentwood Park. The place, which will occupy a beautiful site 120x304 feet in size, will cost about $7500. Alfred F. Priest is the architect.

The house will have an exterior of tapestry brick and shakes. The first floor will contain six rooms and will be finished in hardwoods, the living and dining-rooms being in mahogany. The second story, containing three rooms, will be finished in white enamel. The house will be wired for electric heating and will be provided with a furnace as well. The garage will be in keeping with the dwelling.

BATCHELOR COMING.

Official of American Automobile Association Will Take Part in Good Roads Programme.

A. E. Batchelor of New York City, chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Automobile Association, and regarded as one of the best-posted men on good roads in the United States, will take part in the programme of the Good Roads convention of the California Development Board, to be held in San Jose June 21 and 22, according to a telegram received from Francis Hope, secretary of the organization, yesterday morning.

This convention, which will be devoted to the cause of good roads, promises to be one of the largest and most influential ever held in the West. The secretary states that over 1000 automobiles from all parts of California will be in San Jose at the time, with several times that number of good roads enthusiasts.

ADVERTISE INDIANAPOLIS.

J. J. Cole, president of the Cole Motor Car Company of Indianapolis has given $5000 to start a fund of $50,000 to be used in a unique co-operative advertising campaign of the automobile manufacturers of Indianapolis, who are determined to bring before the public at large the fact that Indianapolis is the home of some of the leading automobiles of the world.

An Ohio tire and rubber company has arranged with the Mexican government to establish at Mexico City a plant for manufacturing all kinds of rubber products, oil cloth, insulated wire, etc.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

A graceful tribute to Col. John Jacob Astor, who perished in the Titanic disaster, has been published by Frau Gertrude Wertheim, wife of Wolff Wertheim, the wealthy proprietor of Berlin's greatest department store.

"I first saw him," she writes, "swinging along a road in Bohemia in his shirt sleeves with his hat and coat hung over the crook of his walking stick. A thunderstorm had just begun and a little child, frightened by the noise, crouched, shivering, in the ditch by the roadside, afraid to travel the long road to Marienbad alone. Col. Astor picked the child up and carried her pick-a-back all the way back to the town, observing:

"'I cannot bear to see a child or a woman weep.'"

"Col. Astor is not only America's premier millionaire, but also her first gentleman."

Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, is in the limelight for having saved from drowning, J. C. Kirchon, general manager of the Tonopah Mining Extension. The two went fishing at Martin's Creek, near South Bethlehem, Pa., and in making a cast Kirchon's fly caught in the branches of a tree. It was a favorite fly, and he shinned up the tree to rescue it. As he climbed out on a branch he lost his balance and feel into the pool.

Schwab was some distance down the stream. He heard the cries of his companion and rushed to the pool, where he saw the hands of Kirchon disappearing beneath the surface. Without waiting to take off any of his clothes, Schwab jumped into the pool and got Kirchon to the bank. Both were exhausted and Kirchon had lost consciousness.

Nathan D. Bill of Springfield, Mo., has given a tract of land to that city for a playground in memory of his mother, Mrs. Emily Denison Bill. She was much interested in philanthropic movements and founded a number of charitable institutions for women and children.

Charles Snyder of Brooklyn, who has been presented with a silver medal for saving the life of a drowning man at Bay Ridge in August, 1911, is the possessor of four other medals for life-saving. He is a member of the United States Volunteer Life-saving Corps.

New York's sick poor are to receive a favor in the hot weather from the National Electric Light Association. The local companies will supply the ill and needy with free fan service in the summer months. Officials of the association say fans will be put in without charge on application and after investigation. Where there is no installation the companies will do the necessary wiring without any expense to the ailing.

The association has as members companies in 1100 cities in the United States, and it is expected that at the annual convention in Seattle the question of free fan service to the sick will be taken up and the project extended throughout the country. It is already in operation in a number of communities in the South, North and West.

The late W. T. Stead was noted for his kind-heartedness, and there appears to be no end of stories about his good deeds. Lady Warwick, once assisted him in giving a girl employee an unexpected holiday. Mr. Stead noticed when the girl returned from her two weeks' vacation in the summer that her cheeks were not tanned, and, though the girl evaded his questions, finally learned that she had spent the fortnight in attending to household duties at home, while her sister, who was unwell, had been to the seashore. Soon after Lady Warwick called at Mr. Stead's office, and when she had departed Mr. Stead called the girl to him, told her that she was to start immediately upon a three weeks' holiday, and that she would spend it at Warwick Castle as the guest of Lady Warwick.

Dr. Francis Bacon, who died recently in New Haven, Ct., left bequests of $100,000 to the New Haven County Anti-Tuberculosis Society, $10,000 to the Connecticut Children's Aid Society and $5000 to the New Haven General Hospital, and made Yale University the residuary legatee of the $400,000 estate.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT.

Multnomah County, Or., Road Officials Are Out After Construction Laurels in Many Fine Roads.

Improvements are rapidly being made on that portion of the Pacific Highway which lies in Multnomah county, Or. The road officials in that section are going to make this stretch of the road the best in the State. It links three nations and it is this fact that makes the officers, recognizing the inestimable value of the great highway wish to establish a standard of improvement that will be carried out all along the line.

The main portion of the Pacific Highway in Multnomah county extends from the city limits of Portland, south through Riverdale and Briarwood to a point near Oswego. It is one of the most heavily traveled thoroughfares in the State and the main traffic line to Oregon City and the towns along the west side of the Willametta River. For scenery the road is unequaled in Oregon. Along the side of the Willamette River there is a thickly wooded section, and follows a course around the mountainside, where it is improved with residences and summer homes.

There is a magnificent stretch of road that lies between the city limits of Portland and Riverdale. It is macadamized and is so straight and smooth that it is generally used by motor enthusiasts as a great speedway. It is the intention of the commissioners to make the rest of this section of road as perfect as this particular stretch. Under the present improvements, wherever there is a bad portion of road, trouble will be eliminated by putting a complete new surface of crushed rock.

Not only in Multnomah county is the Pacific Highway receiving attention, while nearly a mile of that county's roads are completed and work is being rushed to have it all completed early in June. All through Oregon, interest in the good roads improvement is being manifested by the work that is being done.

OIL MAN IN CONGRESS.

nies cannot get their business down to such a fine basis—they haven't the money. It costs $5000 a mile to construct a pipe line. The pumping stations of the Standard are connected by telegraph, so that the most remote oil fields in the country can be communicated with almost instantly. From top to bottom the Standard was, and the Standard is, alive with energy and intelligence. The law may have divided it into thirty pieces, but it must be remembered that the pieces are still owned by men who owned them when they were cemented together in a single corporation."

"Are the old fields in the East being exhausted?"

"I saw a statement recently that the average daily production in the Bradford district was three-fourths of a barrel to the well. The production in the Appalachian field is only 65,000 barrels every twenty-four hours from 140,000 wells. One of my wells, yielding two-thirds of a barrel a day, is twenty-eight years old. It is worked along with twenty-three other wells by a single gas engine, and the flow in the aggregate brings one considerable money. There are prophets who say that the oil will eventually be consumed. That may come to pass. I have noticed, however, that when the supply in one place falls off, new fields are found. Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois came in as Pennsylvania declined. Then followed Texas, Oklahoma and California.

THERE WILL BE PLENTY OF OIL.

"Great lakes and little lakes of oil are in the earth. Many have been found and almost pumped dry. Others will be discovered, no doubt. Out in Ohio we dig post holes, as they are termed, from 200 to 300 feet deep, while in West Virginia we must drill ten times that distance. One man will get oil and another man just over the hill will get nothing but water. In spite of the uncertainty in the business of producing oil, there is a constant increase in the supply and wider uses are being found for it all the time.

"The United States pumped 7,500,000 more barrels of petroleum in 1911 than in 1910. There was an increase of 8,000,000 barrels in California, the greatest oil region in the world, but a loss of 4,000,000 barrels in the Appalachian fields. A large part of our oil is shipped abroad, mainly by the Standard, and immense quantities of Texas oil, which is heavy and black, is made into gasoline for automobiles, while the residue is burned as fuel. The engines on the Southern Pacific Railroad use oil instead of coal. Formerly, the Standard discouraged the burning of oil for steam-making purposes. Thus with its larger and more varied uses, the supply of oil grows from year to year; there is no reason, in my opinion, to fear that by and by there will be no oil at all."

"Why," I inquired, "did you rush off to the Klondike?"

"Because, I suppose, a stampede for gold is not unlike a stampede for oil. I have lived, you see, in a region where men rushed into the open and took a gambler's chance with nature. Great news trickled out of Alaska, and then the movement toward the Klondike started. I left Seattle on the first boat and walked over the mountains from Skagway, carrying all that I had on my back. A trapper on shipboard, going up, liked me because I pretended to believe his personal yarns about grizzly bears and panthers.

LEFT HIS GUN BEHIND.

"'Sonny,' he asked me, just as I was about to enter Chilkoot Pass, 'what are you going to do with them two weapons?'

"'Defend myself, of course,' I answered.

"'Let me see you draw,' he said.

"I fumbled, but soon, as I thought, had a gun in each hand. The trapper smiled, 'Leave 'em behind, sonny, leave 'em behind. Why, they'd have you buried and a tombstone over your grave before you were ready for your first shot.'

"It was good advice and my load was reduced three pounds. Early as I was, I found all the lower claims on Eldorado Creek staked off. White men with Indian wives had already been in the country for some time. I hadn't much money, and, finding no gold, went into the business of chopping and selling wood. Three of us went up the Klondike River and floated a raft down before freezing weather. We sold the wood for $65 a cord. A gambler offered me $40 a cord in real money and $35 in chips, but I passed the proposition up. Gambling was better than mining, unless one had a claim like Carmach's, which paid him $800,000 in three years. It was not unusual for a man to sit down at a gaming table with $10,000 worth of dust in a bag.

"The profits of my transaction in wood enabled me to get a claim high up on the banks of Eldorado Creek. I thawed out the gravel in my cabin and paid for the opening of the mine as I went along. Some of it yielded me $100 a bucket. A Cornell man, the second oar in the university boat crew, ran a laundry and charged $1 for washing a white shirt. No one but gamblers and fools wore collars or cuffs. But that was no country for a permanent home, and there was a young lady at Titusville whom I wanted to marry. Returning to civilization, I became an oil producer and not an oil roustabout around a derrick. The only difference between a producer and a roustabout is that the one has a little capital and the other hasn't."

PRAISES LAKE TULARE.

Abbott Detriot Bull-Dog Tourist Mapping Auto Routes All Over Country.

Dr. Charles G. Percival, who is making the 100,000 mile tour in the Abbott Detroit "Bull-Dog" declares that one of the most remarkable scenes along the route which he has covered is that of Lake Tulare. Having traveled through the whole of the United States, mapping out several routes from place to place, he had passed through California several times. Near the South end of the San Joaquin Valley is this lake which varies from time to time from one-hundred to four hundred miles. One of its peculiarities is that sometimes it is not there at all. Being very shallow it dries up now and then.

"In 1904 its surface was one hundred square miles; "said Dr. Percival, "but the following year it had disappeared entirely, and the farmers went in and raised thousands of bushels of grain on what had been the lake bottom. Tulare is probably the most uncertain piece of water in the world. Whereas now and then it disappears, it has a way on the other hand of extending itself to an uncomfortable area in some seasons, overflowing the farming lands and causing considerable damage.

"The farmers in that region have for some time been engaged in reducing the lake to certain bounds by hemming it in with dikes. By this means it is acquiring an odd sort of geometrical pattern, and it is hoped that by this means future floods may be restricted. To show how far the possibilities of the case extend, one man is now engaged in converting a piece of the lake into dry land by building a dike around it. When the dike is completed he proposes to pump the water out and raise alfalfa."

NOVEL IN NUTSHELL.

of the bed, but only for a moment. It was empty.

Without pausing, I passed out into the garden. The lawn was chequered with moonlight, but the far end was in darkness. I ran down the box-bordered pathway to the fence.

Daphne lay under the middle tree. Her face was turned toward the sky. In her right hand, in a grasp which even I could not loosen, she held a half-eaten fruit.

I carried her back into the house and awoke the nurse. Our search for Dr. O'Keefe was mercifully brief. I met him on his way to the house.

He looked at Daphne. His lips formed the words, "Too late!" and my heart echoed them. Already her face had the look of one who has passed beyond the radius of human warmth and love.

"Give her the strongest restoratives you have," I said, "while I——"

I had no clearly-defined plans. But a little later I found myself in the corrugated shed, fumbling in the dust and darkness for the ax which hung there. It was blunt, but heavy and serviceable. I ran with it to the trees, silhouetted, as I had so often seen them, black and stark against the paling sky. . . . I struck at the nearest with a calculated fury, blow after blow, some abnormally-strained instinct telling me that if the new day broke before my work was finished it would be futile and wasted.

The first tree fell sideways with a crash which pinned my shoulder to the fence. For an instant I thought my arm was broken. As I leaned back to get my breath there oozed from the broken and twisted fibers of the trunk something dark and slow-moving. If it were sap, I have seen no sap like it, before or since. . . .

The second tree was the largest of the three. I strained and hacked, but it seemed an eternity before it fell. The third tree was a small one, but the blows I dealt were almost without force. I remember, at the last, as a man may remember the blurred horrors of a nightmare, that I dragged at the hacked trunk with my bare hands, and that it fell toward me.

I found myself leaning weakly against the fence. The first pale shaft of morning sunlight was lighting the path. Dr. O'Keefe's hand was upon my shoulder.

"She is asking for you," he said—and that was all.

We went back into the house together. Together we entered Dahpne's room. She was pale—even paler than when I had left her. Her eyes were half-closed. She tried to lift her arms to me, but could not.

I bent and caught her to my breast.

"Dear!" she murmured, and lay silent and very still.

The eyes of the doctor met mine.

"She has been to the very Borderland," he said; "but you have brought her back again. . . . She will live."

The Two Religions.

[Manchester Guardian:] This story comes from Australia, where all conversation turns eventually to matters educational, because every parent is painfully anxious that his sons shall pass the standard which will free them from certain years of military service. A visitor was conversing with his host's small son, and opened, as a matter of course, with the words, "Do you go to school now?"

"Yes."

"And what do you learn? Reading, writing, sums?"

"Oh, yes, and I learn religion, too"

"Religion?"

"Yes, I learn the little religion, which teaches that we all come from Adam. But my elder brother is in a higher class; he learns the big religion, and that teaches that we all comes from monkeys."

Man Outclassed.

WOMEN LIVE THE LONGEST.

Twice as Many of Weaker Sex Reach Century Mark.

Suffer and Resist Disease Better Than Men.

Mystery of This Tenacity of Life Unsolved.

From the earliest recorded times women have been spoken of as the weaker sex, as frail, delicate creatures, says the Medical Record. Eminent writers have asserted that aside from their natural constitutional frailty women were invalids one-fifth of the time.

Yet the dawn of the twentieth century finds us with abundant proof of woman's physical superiority over man when tested by length of years, the power to endure suffering and resist disease.

In 1890 the United States census showed that there were at that time 3981 centenarians in this country, of whom 2583 were women and 1398 were men. Out of eighty-nine centenarians who died in England during the year 1883 seventy-nine were women and ten were men, while out of twenty-one centenarians who died in Scotland in 1895 sixteen were women and five were men.

During the year 1910 I took clippings from newspapers and periodicals of twenty-three centenarians who were then living or who died during that year. Of these seventeen were women and six were men.

The mystery of this tenacity of life in woman still remains a secret.

At birth boys are slightly larger, both in height and weight, and continue in the lead until 12; then girls pass them, both in height and weight, for about two years, when the boys again take the lead, and complete their growth at about 23 or 24, while girls complete their growth at 19 or 20. With this brief exception males excel in height and weight throughout life.

Physical strength and vital capacity, as tested by lifting weights and breathing air into a spirometer, are at all ages greater in males than in females. If either height or weight or physical vigor or vital capacity, therefore, be taken as an indication of superiority, we had little evidence for the unquestioned tenacity of life and power of resisting disease in women.

Nevertheless, when we turn to natality and mortality statistics we find the strange condition of an excess of males in the youngest population, especially at birth, and an excess of females in the older population, especially in extreme old age.

By taking the average birth rate of thirty-two small European countries and a few of our own States, we find that for every 100 girls born, there are slightly more than 105 boys born. In some countries the difference is as great as 120 boys to every 100 girls.

After the third year there does not appear to be any special difference in the mortality of the sexes until after 30 or 35, when the ratio turns in favor of women, and continues in their favor until about 70, when there appears to be but little difference until 85, after which the difference is more marked the farther we go toward extreme old age.

WOMEN SUFFER MOST.

This tenacity of life in females is seen in all the zymotic diseases, especially in those diseases which chiefly affect children. Whooping cough and diphtheria only appear to be more fatal in females than in males. Whether correctly or not, this has been attributed to the smaller size of the throat in females.

During childhood there appears to be a little difference in the susceptibility to or fatality of either cholera, smallpox or influenza in the sexes, yet, while adult females appear to be more susceptible to all, especially the first two, all are believed to be more fatal in adult males.

Except biliary calculi, cancer is the only disease common to both sexes from which adult females suffer more than do adult males, but the rate of increase of cancer is now much greater in men than in women.

Women appear to suffer more from emotional and maniacal insanity, and recover oftener than men, while men suffer more from serious brain lesions and from paralysis of the insane, and as a consequence, offer less hope of recovery.

The special susceptibility of woman that renders her more liable to attacks of hysteria, neurasthenia, emotional states and the milder forms of insanity, appears to serve as a distinct advantage. This affectability appears to act somewhat as a barrier against attacks of the more fatal forms of mental affections.

So, too, woman's well-known tendency to early physical exhaustion serves to protect her from the fatal crash that often comes to man from overexertion.

BEAR HARDSHIPS BETTER.

Women bear the hardships and privations of prison life better than men do. Women seldom, if ever, die of nostalgia.

In man, as in nearly all animals, the pulse rate is slightly slower in males than in females, in the proportion of seventy-two per minute for men and eighty for women. But as slowness of pulse, like slowness of respiration, nearly always goes with increased weight, the difference is probably no greater than would naturally be expected. In old age, woman's pulse rate is inclined to increase more than man's.

Woman excretes less carbonic acid, and therefore is in less need of oxygen and needs it less vitally than man. This is thought to be a factor in woman's greater capacity to endure heat, especially the heat of rooms of high temperatures, as is seen in bakeries and in the manufacture of charcoal, where it is said that women are little inconvenienced by a temperature of 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

This is thought, also, to be one of the reasons why women experience less discomfort than men in breathing the rarefied air of high altitudes, and why, too, that women suffer less from chloroform anesthetics, and for want of a better explanation, it has been given as the reason why women criminals more often survive hanging than men.

Degenerative changes in the blood vessels and rigidity of the thorax, both characteristics of senility, are found much earlier in man than in woman. Man dies suddenly much oftener than woman. Men suffer from baldness much more frequently than women.

This is not confined to civilized races, but is found among savages and semi-civilized tribes, as in many of the tribes of the North American Indians, even where it is the custom for the women, instead of the men, to wear their hair short.

PHYSIOLOGICAL MISER.

A noted English statistician has calculated that of two children, a boy and a girl, born on the same day, the boy will have only seventeen chances against eleven for living one year, while the girl will have twenty-one chances against eleven. From 5 to 15 there appears to be but little difference, but from 15 to 19, the critical period in the life of the female, the boy will have 269 chances and the girl 277 chances of living, against one of death.

This advantage in favor of the female increases, especially from 35 to 75, when the ratio drops slightly till after 80, when the man will have only three chances of life against one of death, while the woman's chances will be much greater.

If 1000 able-bodied men and 1000 able-bodied women be uniformed, armed and equipped for battle and ordered on a long and weary march to the front, more men would probably reach their destination, while more women would be found exhausted, but more men found dead on the roadside.

Owing to their peculiar psycho-physical organization, women heed the warnings of fatigue and avoid the fatal crash, while man, with his iron will, after complete exhaustion, resolves to take another step if he dies in the attempt.

So after making all due allowances for the greater mortality of man in war and from accidents from dangerous occupations and from masculine excesses there are good reasons for believing that nothing short of a constitutional difference can account for the greater tenacity of life in women.

Woman is a physiological miser, she accumulates energy without expending it, while man is a physiological prodigal, he expends more energy than he accumulates.

Are You Getting Your Share Of the Wealth That Grows?

AS ALL THE WORLD KNOWS, there is no income so sure in all this world as that which is harvested each year from the land itself. A rich share in this wealth will soon be realized by the stockholders of the Gibraltar Investment and Home Building Co. from the sale of a portion of the immense nursery stock of olive and orange trees, and from the valuable Valencia orange crop of the groves at Redlands. Are you ready to secure your share through the offer of this company to pay the next profits of a well established, money-earning business to the purchasers of preferred stock?

A Share in Money Already Earned

The assets of the Gibraltar Company paid in, at a conservative valuation of $500,000 are earning far more than eight per cent. today on the entire authorized preferred stock issue of $1,000,000. The orange orchards, the olive and orange trees and other nursery stock in the immense holdings at Rialto, Hemet and Redlands are rooted in the soil and growing day by day in value. They are absolutely clear of any mortgage or debt, and easily exceed the valuation at which the directors of this company bought them. They include the largest olive nurseries in the world—1,500,000 trees—and 350,000 orange trees, besides palms, alligator pears, roses and general nursery stock.

The olive industry is booming through the operation of the pure food law in eliminating the sale of cottonseed and peanut oil under olive oil labels, and through the introduction of the pickled ripe olives in the East. The price of olive trees has ranged from 40 cents to $1.25 on an advancing market and the last sale at the Hemet nurseries brought 60 cents for small trees in pots. The price of orange trees has ranged from 75 cents to $1.50. There are big profits at these prices, as anyone in the nursery business can tell you.

The Full Details of an Unusual Stock Offering

The fairness and money-making faith of the directors of the Gibraltar Company in offering the public eight per cent. preferred stock, and taking only common in exchange for a business with big earnings ready for the market are so unusual that many fail to grasp thoroughly the honest clearness of our organization. Your most searching investigation is most earnestly desired.

Through purchase of the eight per cent. preferred stock you will secure not only an immediate share in the profits of an established business, but you are assured equal rights with the common stock in voting power, and in the greater earnings of land development and orchard planting. We would like to have you tell us if you know of any other company that offers such a liberal plan for the securing of the immediate co-operation of the public in land development, orchard planting and the providing of homes and little farms.

The preferred stock is in every respect absolutely equal with the common in all rights and earning power, and in addition has the first call on profits to an extent of eight per cent. in dividends. After the common stock has received eight per cent. all stock shares equally in the greater profits. Under the laws of this State the directors cannot make one cent profit until the preferred shareholder has received his eight per cent. It is most unusual to offer a preferred stock of over seven per cent. Most companies do not allow participation in the greater earnings. Some are limited to 12 per cent. in total profits. There is no limit to the earning power of Gibraltar shareholders. Your eight per cent. is assured from marketable holdings on hand, and you are certain of double the interest offered by banks, with the future earnings ahead of you.

You Can Let the Rich, Productive Land Grow Money for You Now and Live On it When You Are Ready

Under the Gibraltar plan it is not necessary to go back to the land in order to realize the certain dividends that mother earth regularly provides for all that help develop her rich resources. Through the preferred stock first call is given on all earnings, while settling on the land itself is provided for. This stock may be exchanged at par value any time with accrued dividends for any orchard, land, home or other holdings that the company has for sale. Do you know of any other company that will do this or that will give you the extra earnings that we offer purchasers of preferred stock. If you can show us a broader, fairer, more certain investment proposition we would like to hear of it. If you can point to a more practicable back-to-the-land movement for the city worker we would like to examine it.

For a short time we will receive subscriptions to the preferred stock at par of 10 cents per share. You can buy for CASH or on the following EASY TERMS:

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CONTROL

Necessity of Such Action Called to the Government's Attention as Early as Ten Years Ago.

[Army and Navy Journal:] There was something prophetic, as well as admonitory, in the comm. t made by Rear-Admiral R. B. Bradford, U. S. N., in his annual report of 1902, as chief of the bureau of equipment, concerning wireless telegraphy. It comes up now with striking significance in view of the difficulties encountered in wireless communication concerning the disaster which sent the Titanic to the bottom of the sea. In 1902 the bureau of equipment was negotiating with various wireless companies in an effort to accomplish some arrangement by which there would be adequate control of this means of communication. The greatest difficulty was encountered at every turn. Rear-Admiral Bradford called attention to the interference with wireless messages, then so menacing, and pointed out the importance of a governmental control of all wireless transmitting and receiving stations, adding, "It also appears important that this should be done before the vested interests in connection therewith become too great," the bureau then having "especially in mind a large wireless station recently established by a foreign company on Cape Cod."

Admiral Bradford stated, also, in his report: "The bureau is officially informed that foreign countries are exercising careful supervision over the location of wireless stations within their respective territorial limits with the view of having at all times absolute control over them. In time of war, the department will undoubtedly find it necessary to communicate by means of wireless telegraphy with certain receiving stations along the coast. Nothing should be permitted to interfere with the transmission of such messages, nor should it be possible for unauthorized persons to receive them. The only practical method of insuring this result is to secure government control over all wireless telegraph stations along the coast. It is suggested that legislation to this end be requested."

That was ten years ago and nothing has been done, although something was attempted by people who appreciate the necessity of protecting radio-communication from the interference that would not only impair its value but, under certain circumstances, would bring great injury and disaster to those in danger. That phase of the situation has appeared in the experience of the lost Titanic, as it has repeatedly on other less notable occasions.

The bureau of equipment from the first made a diligent effort to obtain legislation which would effect government control of wireless communication. It sought, also, to prevent a monopoly which was a threatening aspect of the early development of the system and Rear-Admiral Bradford succeeded in that plan, although he was seriously handicapped by conditions which were persistent and formidable. There has been no lack of advice and warning regarding this menace, but, as usual, it has taken a disaster of overwhelming magnitude to attract attention to the possibilities and the necessities of the situation. Perhaps the recommendation of the chief of the bureau of equipment in 1902 will now gain the deserved attention and receive the support it deserved when Rear-Admiral Bradford made it.

To Slide Down a Rope.

[Youth's Companion:] Sliding down a rope is not so simple as it seems. Few boys know how to do it properly. If you try to descend by letting the rope slide through your hands the friction will burn the palms weight from one handhold to another you are sure to become tired and will be forced to drop. You cannot slide with the rope between your knees, for the swaying of your body will jerk the rope out of the clutch of your knees and then you are likely to fall.

The easiest and safest method you can employ is that used by firemen and sailors. Standing upright, throw out your right leg and give it a turn around the rope. Next put the rope in the crook of your right elbow and clasp it tightly, not in your hand, but in your arm.

In that way you can slide to safety without the slightest trouble. The rope does not touch any part of the body that is not protected by clothing and your speed can be regulated by either straightening or cramping your leg. Once learned, this method of sliding down a rope may prove in an emergency the means of saving your life or the lives of other persons.

CHUG CHUG.

Can no Longer Be Used to Describe Auto Says the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company.

According to the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company the term "chug chug" no longer is fitting as descriptive of a motor car. Engineers have since the beginning of the motor industry, devoted more time to the elimination of noise. The men who designed motor cars neglected the matter of noise, but the new era of noiseless motor trucks seems to have come with the Pierce Arrow.

The worm drive, which is used on that make of truck, has to a great extent, been responsible for their noiselessness, owing to the fact that a great deal of the clatter that associates itself with the heavy commercial vehicle comes with the driving chains. With the doing away with the chains the noise disappeared, too.

With the Pierce Arrow motor truck about the only noise to be heard is that which comes from the heavy load carried. It is the belief of the company that the coming year will see a more general adoption of the worm drive for motor trucks, and a general lessening of the noise of operation.

RUSSIA TRIES TO RAISE COTTON.

ABROGATION OF TREATY WITH UNITED STATES IS FELT.

Strikes Czar's Commercial Life in Weak Spot and Nation Is Struggling to Free Itself of Need of American Staple—Great Impetus Given to Home Product.

[A. P. CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

ST. PETERSBURG, May 18.—The Russian cotton industry is feeling the effects of the abrogation of the Russo-American treaty. Russian determination to resist influence with reference to the Jewish passport question is now seen to involve the eventuality of trade hostilities with America.

To Russia the most vital article of Russo-American trade is cotton. Consequently when aggressive proposals were introduced in the Duma upon the heels of the abrogation, public opinion, in unison with Baron Knop and all other cotton manufacturers, cried out that reprisals on American products would strike none but the Russian consumer.

The patriotic motto now is to free Russia from American cotton. Of some American farming machines she cannot hope to free herself soon because of quality. The peasants and the opposition vote threw out bounties for Russian-built machines in a ministerial bill for farm machines manufacture, but the Duma members in the joint committee receded from the Duma vote, and the bounties clause has been restored. Only the agrarian and peasant interests now might stay the withdrawal of the reduced schedule on foreign machinery. Even so, new works are planned at Riga, Kiev and other points by German and Russian capital.

A still greater impetus has been given to home cotton. The Minister of Agriculture, M. Krivoshein, with a staff of experts, has completed a fortnight's tour of inspection in the cotton districts of Central Asia. The Russian delegate to the coming International Congress of Navigation in Philadelphia, M. Shovguenoff, an engineer by profession, has been commissioned to make a study of the big irrigation works, with mechanical appliances, which are now being carried out in the United States.

IRRIGATION GROWN.

All Russian cotton in Central Asia is irrigation grown. Upon 1,026,000 of the total of 3,500,000 acres of irrigated land there has been produced, roughly, half of the cotton Russia now needs. But this area has been powerless to change the ratio, and has barely succeeded in keeping up with the demand. Alongside of it, however, are 5,000,000 acres of suitable land, available for irrigation from the waters of the Syr Darya and the Oxus, at an estimated expense of from $19 to $38 per acre, the work to occupy twenty to twenty-five years. Causes connected with the cost, the requisite technical skill and labor, the involved land and water rights have hitherto blocked progress. Bills pending before the Duma, or being drafted by the Ministry of Agriculture, would establish a water law in the Turkestan and permit private initiative and capital to assist the treasury in this big undertaking. A contract with a Moscow engineer, M. Tchaeff, calls for the completion of a canal to irrigate 135,000 acres in Samarkand province in 1914. The work had been advancing slowly for years, when the Russo-American events intervened and forced the pace.

A group of Moscow business men, headed by M. Kusnetsoff, of the Pereslavl cotton manufacture, who accompanied the Minister on his tour, has bid for the irrigation of 540,000 acres in the center of Ferghana with the waters of the Naryn and Kara-Darva. Their Russian and Swiss engineers are now rushing the surveys. The terms of their offer call for a grant of a part of the irrigated area to the company in fee simple or qualified, the crown to receive an equal part. Three hundred thousand dollars has been assigned for study of other projects, as well as $4,500,000 for canals already begun.

The building of a railroad from Arys, on the Orenburg-Tashkend line, to Verny, in Semiretchensk province, 726 miles away, has been sanctioned by the proper authorities. The plans call for its completion in 1915. It could be built in two years. Its capacity will be 2,800,000 bushels yearly of Semiretchensk grain to relieve Ferghana and Samarkand, where prices are double the market rate. Being in itself a splendid outlet for the grain of Russian colonists in Semiretchensk, who are 38 per cent. of the population, it will serve its principal purpose in automatically releasing a large part (perhaps up to 1,000,000 acres) of irrigated land in Ferghana and Samarkand from the obligatory grain crop, to pass under the more valuable cotton crop. In Ferghana 80 per cent. of this land is under cotton, but in Samarkand only 4 per cent., whereas practically all could be, were imported grain only cheap enough.

CHIEF NEEDS.

The tour of M. Krivoshein showed that the chief needs in Central Asia are cheap grain, cheap credit and cheap labor. The state and the peasants' banks will now enter the field to compete with the Jewish, Armenian and Tartar bankers and agents. In lieu of the available cheap Afghan, Kashgar and Chinese labor, M. Krivoshein proposes to colonize Russians exclusively on the lands to be reclaimed by irrigation.

Cotton is also successfully pushed northward in the Caucasus, on land not irrigated, and in the Mughan and Mil steppes, irrigated from the Arax and the Kura. Since 1905 it has been planted for experiments in the valleys of the Bug and the Dnieper. The results show that this is botanically possible, but so far, commercially risky or doubtful, on account of frosts.

Russia has created this entire cotton production herself. Cotton is native in Central Asia, but began to be planted regularly as a crop only after the Russian conquest. In 1884 Morozoff, the cotton manufacturer, of Moscow, was instrumental in planting 710 acres with American upland seed. In five years the plantation had been pushed to 118,000 acres. In the next four years they again tripled, and reached 586,000 acres in 1896. At present the total in Central Asia and the Caucasus is 1,620,000 acres. The most potent factor in this growth has been the protective duty on cotton, now reaching 4 roubles 25 kopecks per pud, which is about $28 per bale.

Famous, but Poor.

COUNTRY'S GREAT MEN WENT BROKE

Fame Could Not Prevent Financial Troubles.

Jefferson and Grant Were Aided by Friends.

Clay Owed Big Debt, Paid by Unknown Admirer.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

KNOXVILLE (Tenn.) May 17.—A sketch of the life of Thomas Jefferson, recently printed in the papers of the country, tells of the troubles that overtook Mr. Jefferson in his finances that threatened him with extreme poverty in his old age. He was not a man of great wealth, but he married a woman who was the owner of a large landed estate and 125 negro slaves. But he was not what would be called a "good manager," and was in the habit of spending more money than he made.

A dozen years before his death the government, through an act of Congress, purchased his library, for which he was paid $23,000, but through having indorsed for a friend he became impoverished, and it was expected that he would have to give up his home at Monticello.

Wealthy friends, however, came to his rescue, and raised a considerable sum of money. In speaking of this he said: "Not a cent of this is wrung from the taxpayers. It was a pure and unsolicited offer of love."

GRANT LOST FORTUNE.

Some readers will recall how, when through unfortunate investments at the solicitation of a pretended friend, Gen. Grant after he became President, lost his fortune and became impoverished.

Wealthy friends came to his rescue, and a sufficient amount was raised to pay all his debts, to purchase a home and to have something upon which to live.

There were those at the time, who were not his friends, who criticised him severely for accepting a gift from admiring friends, who were rich.

But he might have truthfully said, as did Jefferson, that "not a cent of this was wrung from the taxpayers." It was a "pure and unsolicited offering of love," tendered on account of his great services to his country in war and in peace.

OTHERS LOST MONEY.

But these two were not the only great Americans whose lives in advanced years were relieved of burdens of poverty by admiring friends. It is known that Montgomery Blair advanced a large amount of money—it was large in those days—for the purpose of paying obligations that hung over the head of "Old Hickory" and to save him the Hermitage as a home in his old age. Another man, A. M. Lea, grandfather of Senator Luke Lea, also came to the help of the hero of New Orleans in time of trouble, and advanced him a handsome sum of money.

CLAY HAD A FRIEND.

An interesting story is told of Henry Clay. On account of having indorsed for friends he became indebted for about $20,000. He borrowed the money from the Northern Bank of Kentucky. As his note fell due he renewed it time and time again, and was not able to pay even the interest on the loan, so that instead of reducing it his indebtedness grew larger. He was in Congress then; but the pay of a Congressman was only $8 per day, and that only when Congress was in session.

He became discouraged and was humiliated, so that it became understood that he was about to quit public life.

Going to the officers of the bank one day, he told them that he was at the end of his row, and asked them to take charge of and sell his estate at Ashland, and to apply the proceeds to the payment of the debt. He was told by the cashier that he owed the bank nothing, and Clay, astonished, asked him to explain.

The explanation given was that a friend had paid the note. Asking the name of the friend, Clay was told that the money was paid by a young man upon condition that his name might live.

And he probably died without knowing who it was that had saved his home and opened the way for him to remain in the public service.

WEBSTER POOR, TOO.

And this opens the way for another interesting. Clay's note had been taken up by a young man named William Pennington, of New Jersey, who actd as the agent of a number of Jersey friends of Clay, who wanted the country to have his services.

Henry Clay was the second man who was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives, the first term of his service, the other being Mr. Muhlenburg, of the First Congress. The third man to be thus elected was this same William Pennington, of New Jersey, through whom Clay's note in the Northern Bank of Kentucky had been paid.

Besides those named, it is known that Daniel Webster was never able to live within his income, and time and time again friends came to his assistance when he was in financial trouble.

A Woman's Weird Breakfast.

[New York Sun:] "It has been my experience that the custom of taking an appetizer before breakfast in the morning, which used to be so common among visitors to New York hotels, is dying out," said a manager yesterday. "I should also say that fewer persons drink anything spirituous with the first meal of the day.

"But the weirdest mixture of fruit and food and stimulant for a breakfast I ever heard of was ordered in our restaurant the other day, and by a woman, too. She was about 50 years old, I should say, and was not stopping here, but came in about 10 o'clock in the morning, took a table and gave her order. And she consumed it. Here is what it consisted of:

"Grapefruit, accompanied by two ponies of brandy.

"Oatmeal, with a pint of champagne.

"A demitasse, into which she put a spoonful of paprika.

"There was bread on the table, but so far as I know she didn't touch it. When she had finished she paid her bill and went out, showing no more traces of exhilaration than I would after my matutinal coffee and eggs."

WOMEN SPIES INDUCE MEN TO BETRAY STATE SECRETS

Noted Beauties Have Done Important Work for the International Secret Service—High Treason Charge Against German Officer Due to a Woman—Russian Female Spy Cause of Many Persons Being Killed.

"THE WIT of most women serves more to strengthen their folly than their reason," and it is as the result of woman's wit that a brilliant young German officer is at the moment of writing languishing in prison under the terrible charge of high treason, while his sweetheart has also been arrested as his accomplice, says Tid-Bits.

The affair is one of the most romantic cases of espionage on record. The officer, who was attached to the garrison at Posen, fell in love with a girl, but owing to lack of money they were unable to marry.

A Russian secret agent learned of this, and approaching the officer promised him a sum equivalent to £5000 for a plan of the fortress at Posen. After a while the officer gave way to the temptation, but found it impossible, on account of the careful watch kept, to get the plans out of the fortress.

In his perplexity he confided in his sweetheart, and her woman's wit suggested a way out of the difficulty. "You shall tattoo the plans on my skin," she said, "and I will go to Russia with them. They will never discover us in that way."

The officer accepted the fantastic and heroic suggestion, and after a very painful process an accurate plan of the fortress was tattooed on the shoulders of his sweetheart.

The girl journeyed to Russia, received the reward and returned to her own lover, and it was the silly extravagances in which they indulged with the money on her return which led the authorities to suspect that they had derived funds from some illegitimate source. They were arrested and it was when the girl, in accordance with prison regulations, had to be measured and inspected for purposes of identification that their ingenious plan was discovered.

That women play a very prominent part in many cases of international spying is shown by H. L. Adam in his remarkable book, "Woman and Crime." Mr. Adam gives some startling revelations concerning young and attractive women who win their way into the confidence of youthful military officers, whom they induce to betray State secrets.

LOVE AFFAIR EFFECTIVE.

"A few years ago," he says, "a young and beautiful woman named Peterson was arrested at Kiel, in Germany, on suspicion of being a French spy. Posing as a teacher of languages, she had entered into a love affair with a non-commissioned officer named Dietrich of the explosives department, for the purpose of inducing him to reveal important German naval secrets.

"She had, by the exercise of her arts of fascination, attained complete ascendancy over the young fellow, who was found to be supplying her with the formula for the manufacture of German smokeless powder and the situation of port mines.

"The attention of the authorities was first drawn to her by the ample funds she always seemed to have at her disposal."

One of the most notorious and successful Russian female spies was Mme. Joutchenko, who began her career as a spy at the age of 23, and was the cause of many people losing their lives and many others being sent into exile. She was one of the most scheming and treacherous of women, her method being to fraternize with Russian revolutionaries and then betray them to the government.

GIRL SENT TO DEATH.

"Through her instrumentality a young girl named Frania Froumkin was sent to the gallows in connection with a plot to kill the Prefect of Moscow.

"This contemptible woman would also work her way into the confidence of families and then betray them to the government, as a consequence of which many persons found themselves on their way to Siberia. No work was too dirty for this handsome traitress to do in pursuit of her blood money."

Then there was the case of the notorious French beauty, known as La Belle Lison, who fascinated a young naval officer, Lieut. Ullmo, who, in order to obtain funds to gratify the expensive whims of this woman, sold some of his country's secrets to a foreign power.

He was discovered, put on trial, and the most important witness against him was the woman who had ruined him. In the end the young man was publicly disgraced and sentenced to imprisonment for life, but nothing appears to have been done to the woman, although, as Mr. Adam truly remarks, she ought to have been held guilty as an accessory.

OKLAHOMA ENTERPRISE.

Municipality Will Operate a Big Farm That Will Give Employment to Many Men.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] An income of $40,000 a year from a municipal farm is contemplated by William F. Vahlberg, Oklahoma's city park superintendent, if plans he is making for agricultural enterprises are carried out.

He proposes to place in cultivation 400 acres along Grand boulevard, an automobile highway twenty-nine miles long that completely circles the city and which was completed recently at a cost of about $400,000. He expects returns to the city of about $100 an acre.

The area to be cultivated is that owned by the city from the outer edge of the speedway proper to the border of the tract. Vahlberg expects to plant alfalfa principally and some wheat, oats and probably other crops from which there is a good income.

The planting and cultivating of these crops would give continual employment to the small army of men employed by the park board and the profits to the board from the several crops would be considerably larger than if the area were cultivated by private parties.

ANTIQUARIAN RESEARCH.

Early Egypt.

[Baltimore American:] Prof. Flinders Petrie, to whom the world is so greatly indebted for many remarkable archaelogical discoveries, has again been profitably at work in Egypt. In the neighborhood of Fayum last winter he explored the famous labyrinth beside the Hawara pyramid and found a wealth of material bearing on the history of Egypt during the early dynasties. Imbedded in the brick core of the pyramid itself he found traces of about twenty small temples. The principal objects were double statues in red granite representing the very Pharaoh who had constructed the labyrinth. Here Prof. Petrie thinks the worship of the crocodile was at its height, under the name of Sebek; for there were numerous statues of this animal god in all parts of the interior of the pyramid. These are the earliest examples of animal gods yet discovered. Together with these statues, he collected several new specimens of Egyptian lamps, descriptions of which are found in Herodotus. These lamps were made of limestone, bowl-shaped. By means of salt water, which the ancient Egyptians placed into an outer hollow surrounding a central cavity into which the oil had been poured, the stone was not penetrated by the oil and the water was kept from evaporation by the salt. Altogether, Prof. Petrie has found this last season 200 alabaster vases of beautiful workmanship and most illuminating inscriptions. In Memphis he unearthed, besides, the largest statue known in alabaster representing Rameses II, as a sphinx, weighing between seventy and eighty tons. This discovery is of much popular interest, in view of the fact that historians, as well as archaeologists, long ago identified this Rameses II with the Pharaoh of the exodus.

New Pompeiian Fresco.

[New York Sun:] The discoveries at Pompeii continue. Prof. Spinazzola says a fresco has been discovered on the front wall of a house on the Street of Abundance which is the most important from an artistic standpoint of any that has ever been uncovered.

It is unique and is undoubtedly a masterpiece, as has been proved by the precautions taken to insure its safety. It is in an admirable state of preservation so far as the freshness of its colors is concerned. Prof. Spinazzola will not attempt to detach it from its glass covers, but will allow it to remain where it was uncovered.

The fresco represents Venus as a divinity of Pompeii. The goddess is seated in a chariot drawn by elephants. It is the first representation of this kind ever discovered at Pompeii.

Making Himself Solid.

[Popular Magazine:] When L. C. Probert went to Washington as a newspaper correspondent for the Associated Press he asked a friend to show him over the Senate and give him a proper introduction to all the Senators. Finally they went into the office of Gumshoe Bill Stone of Missouri. Stone was exceedingly polite and made Probert feel at home.

"I used to be in St. Louis myself," vouchsafed Probert. "I was a witness in the suit which the St. Louis Star brought against the Associated Press for being a trust."

"Yes," remarked Stone. "I remember that case very well."

"I was on the Associated Press at that time," continued Probert with great enthusiasm, "and I tell you our lawyers made the fellow on the other side look like an idiot."

Love's Young Dream.

NO RULES FOR HUMAN MATING.

CUPID SCORNS THE AID OF SCIENTIFIC EXPERTS.

Secret of Complete Companionship Is Still a Mystery Despite Meetings of "Eugenists"—Weddings Go on in a Reckless Manner Regardless of Consequences.

The subject of eugenics is one which seems at the present moment to supply a certain section of the public with an unusually fruitful source of conversation, says the Detroit News-Tribune. It has for some time past been the habit of those earnest-minded persons belonging to the leisured classes who style themselves "Eugenists" to prove their fitness for the title by fore-gathering once a week in drawing-rooms to discuss with other equally public-spirited individuals those matters dealing with the future of the human race, in which we are all more or less deeply interested.

Such questions as the relation of heredity to society, of the family to the State, race suicide and other cognate sociological problems, which offer so wide a field to the imagination and demand such delicacy of verbal treatment, are debated with a degree of frankness which is singularly agreeable in an age when plain speaking is no longer fashionable.

And however little we may understand complicated matters of this nature, we are all sufficiently in sympathy with the theory of eugenics to agree that if only other people—and more especially those classes to which we do not happen to belong—would exercise more prudence in the choice of their parents, the effect upon society at large would be vastly beneficial.

It would, however, appear to be of little avail to attempt to inculcate such a doctrine into the minds of the criminal classes; it is sad, but true, that, in spite of all one may say to them upon the subject, the poor creatures display but little inclination to devote their leisure hours to the study of eugenics and continue to select criminal fathers and anemic mothers, regardless of those duties and responsibilities which, as patriots and citizens, they cannot possibly evade.

Instead, thereof, of attempting to proselytize those who stand at the bottom of the social ladder, we are forced to turn our attention to those who have already reached the topmost rungs. And if, even there, we find it a tedious task to compel the children of the well-to-do to choose healthy and high-minded forefathers, we can at least try to persuade potential parents to provide themselves with suitable mates.

PUZZLE IS UNSOLVED.

Here again, however, we are met with another obstacle, nobody having yet, apparently, discovered the secret of complete suitability. One sociological expert will produce incontrovertible arguments to prove that the most successful races spring from a mixture of different bloods; and we are just on the point of advising our daughter to marry the chauffeur when another scientist supplies us with conclusive evidence to show that only an unmixed race can hope to survive in the tense struggle for existence.

The first theorist points triumphantly to the downfall and decadence of the ancient purebred French aristocracy; the second brings forward the Jewish race as an example of that purity of blood which makes for success.

Confused by these various conflicting statements, we hurry away and contract a matrimonial alliance with the first person we may happen to fall in love with—with what results modern society plainly shows.

NO REGENERATION.

Physically at least the aristocracy of this country stands in no need of recuperation; its teeth are as white, its gums as pink as those that beam upon us from the advertisements of any patent dentifrice.

The weedy youths who frequent stage doors are not, as a rule, members of the aristocracy at all; the scions of the "upper classes" who take footlight favorites out to supper are usually well-set-up athletic young fellows, who, if they needed the regenerating influence of healthy mates could easily find it among their own caste.

The outdoor life of sport and games which it is the fashion for girls in "society" to lead for nine months of the year provides constitutions and complexions stronger and healthier than can possibly be acquired by the majority of women less fortunately situated.

As yet we have not arrived at any very definite new results for the selection of mates.

In both faces of drift the high-grade streak measu nearly four feet in width. Sam taken from this streak in the no face yesterday gave an average ret of $2069 a ton, and those from south face, $1050 a ton. The aver value of the eight feet of milling is from $20 to $30 a ton.

"In my opinion the ledge is same one which the owners of Zinn lease on the Jumbo, worked, it apparently comes directly fr those workings, into the Flore ground from the north. In the cou of our exploration work on the n find, we have broken down betw seventy-five and eighty tons of which we began shipping this mor ing. This ore will run from $200 $500 a ton."

Mining engineers generally, now the ground, regard the Florence stri as very important to the Goldfie district.

SHIPMENTS MADE.

The shipments made by the Tono pah companies during the past we were as follows: Tonopah Mining C 3450 tons; Belmont, 1550 tons; Mo tana Tonopah, 1084 tons; Tonopa Extension, 1035 tons; West End, 75 tons; MacNamara, 450 tons; tot 8319 tons of an estimated value o $207,975.

The production of the Tonopah sil ver camp to date has been $51,527, 283, and the total dividends paid t date aggregate $13,003,559. Th Montana Tonopah directors have ju announced a ten-cent dividend whic will mean the distribution of $100,000 and the Tonopah Extension will pa 2½ cents a share this month. Thi is the first dividend for the latter company since 1906 and for the Montana Tonopah since December, 1911.

The Pittsburgh Silver Peak, which recently got out from under a load of litigation, has announced a dividend of 16 cents a share.

REORGANIZE COMPANY.

The reorganization of the Atlanta Mines Company the other day, and the announcement of the development campaign by Secretary A. H. Howe, had the effect of renewing interest in this always interesting Goldfield property. George Wingfield is now the president of the Atlanta Company, and associated with him are C. B. Zabriskie of Oakland and New York and Clyde A. Heller and Charles E. Knox, who have large Tonopah mining interests. Secretary Howe said:

"It is the expectation of the management to engage in active mining work. This work will be prosecuted from the bottom level of the Grizzly Bear shaft, of the Consolidated Mines Company, thus obviating the necessity of a large expenditure by the Atlanta for a deep working shaft. The Grizzly Bear shaft of the Consolidated is near the end line of the Atlanta claim and the distance that will have to be run before reaching the Atlanta is not great, so that the mining work we will undertake will begin to tell in the immediate future."

The new directors of the Atlanta Mines Company deposited $100,000 in the bank as a working capital, and K. M. Simpson was selected as the engineer to have charge of the development.

The new hoisting machinery installed at the big shaft of the Goldfield Merger Mines Company was dedicated the other day with appropriate ceremonies, including the breaking of a bottle of champagne by a beautiful Nevada girl. Many prominent mining men were present and speeches of felicitation were made. President C. O. Whittemore was master of ceremonies. The Merger plant is said to be the finest in the entire State.

MINING NOTES.

A seam of good-looking quartz has made its appearance in the workings of the Silver Pick Consolidated on the lowest level. Assays have not yet been secured, but the ore has a good appearance. The seam was opened on the 280-foot level, and a cross-cut is being driven toward the old Ish-Sheets lease, at the boundary of the Silver Pick and Mohawk properties.

The Diamondfield Merger Mines Company, which is operating a lease on the old Daisy property, has got into rock which assays in high figures and is creating considerable interest. The Campbell lease workings and the company workings on the Diamondfield Black Butte are also in good ore that is assaying as high as $600 a ton.

James McKenzie, a well known mining engineer, formerly associated with the Consolidated Mines Company, is here looking over the ground.

WILL COST HALF MILLION. DOUGLAS GETS THE SMELTER.

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 31.—The location of the Shattuck smelter has been definitely made at Douglas and title to the ground has been secured. No date has been set for the starting of construction work, but plans are now practically complete for the new plant, which is to cost about $500,000.

Much of the ore treated at the Cananea works now comes from Puertocitos, twelve miles distant, at the end of the company's narrow-gauge railroad, over which about 300 tons a day are being received. The ore deposits from Puertocitos are at least as large as those which have been worked nearer the smelter, and it is believed that their development will double the quantity of available ore held as an asset by the corporation.

The new equipment of the Cananea smelter will be ready for operation July 1. The new steel buildings now are being erected.

Capt. Hodgson of Ishpeming, Mich., will assume the position of superintendent of the Copper Queen mines June 1. His predecessor, Parker L. Woodman, will then go to Los Angeles, where he may locate.

REORGANIZED CONCERN. SWANSEA TROUBLES ENDED.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 31.—The Swansea Consolidated Gold & Copper Company has succeeded the Clara Consolidated Mining Company and has taken over the mines and smelting plant at Swansea; northern Yuma county. Apparently, George Mitchell, Tom Carrigan and all the old-timers are out of the management. The control will be in the hands of French and Dutch capitalists, who have delegated authority to Mr. C. Clerc of Paris, who is said to have international reputation as a mining man and geologist. The debts of the company have been assumed by Shutte Brothers, an Amsterdam banking firm, representing the European stockholders. The sum of $283,000 has been provided for the payment of all urgent debts and for the preliminary work necessary to renew the production of bullion.

All legal difficulties were smoothed away in Phoenix yesterday in the United States Court, which decided that bankruptcy proceedings ordered at Tucson were not justified by the financial condition of the company, which, though much in debt, had assets of ore worth at least $1,000,000 in profits and $800,000 worth of surface equipment. Manager Clerc has gone to Swansea, where it is understood he will arrange to start the smelter as soon as provision has been made for an adequate supply of ore and for fluxing ores and fuel.

TWENTY-THREE POUND NUGGET

Rare Find At Placeritas Diggings Near Prescott Is Worth Twenty-five Hundred Dollars.

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) May 31.—In the early days of the old Peck mine even tons of almost pure silver ore frequently were brought to Prescott. The historic property is now under lease to Peter Giroux, who has been driving some new workings that have tapped ore identical in character and richness with that known thirty years ago.

A few days ago in the Placeritas diggings, fifteen miles from Kirkland, was discovered a gold nugget weighing twenty-three pounds, estimated more than half pure metal and worth not less than $2500. The nugget was found at a point where placer digging had been prosecuted for over thirty years. The district is close to the famous Rich Hill, known in the early days for its immense production of gold in nugget form.

On the 450 level of the Boundary Cone mine, near, Oatman, Mohave county, last week was penetrated a body of gold ore on which estimates of value run up to $1000 to the ton. It is told that the quartz bears gold in massy form, the ore rapidly gaining in richness in the course of development of a vein, which had averaged about $60 to the ton in gold. While it is considered probable that the strike is merely a pocket, it, nevertheless, demonstrates the high value of the property. Much of the stock of the controlling company is held in Los Angeles, where the offices of the company are located.

Much higher-grade ore is being found in the lower levels of the Venezia mine, which is sending occasional shipments of bullion into Prescott. The management is much encouraged and will install a new cyaniding plant, and will operate its mill continuously.

BONDS CLAIMS.

Ralph H. Cameron, late Congressman from Arizona, delayed his return to Arizona a few weeks while he did some business in New York. He has bonded thirty-five mining claims in the Colorado Canyon, near Indian Gardens, a few miles below the end of the Grand Canyon Railroad, and with them control of the water of Indian Garden Creek, which may mean development of a water power of almost infinite possibilities, as a fall of several thousand feet is available to the very bottom of the canyon. Seven of these claims sold cover placer ground, and expensive machinery may have to be installed to insure economical workings.

Tom Reed Annual.

KINGMAN, (Ariz.) May, 31—The annual report of the Tom Reed Gold Mines Company is being mailed to the stockholders and contains facts and figures of more than ordinary interest.

The returns from the production for the year ending March, 1912, was $798,630.95, the last month of the fiscal year, March returning $69,461.78 to the treasurer.

During the year twelve dividends amounting to $363,822.00, or 40 per cent. on the issued stock, was paid to the shareholders and $25,000.00 added to the reserve. The company, it is understood, expects to pay 4 per cent. monthly dividend, as ore reserves have increased considerably during the year, in fact, after nearly two million dollars have been taken from the mine the ore reserves have increased 1000 tons over 1911.

The management and control remains with the same people as last year and they announce that it is proposed to retain a cash reserve of not less than $100,000, the auditor's report showing $113,792.08 on hand April 1st, 1912.

The coming year promises to be the greatest in the history of the Tom Reed, which is largely held in Pasadena and Los Angeles.

ANGELENOS BUY FOREST CLAIMS.

Hydro-electric Power Plant Will Be Constructed.

South Fork Property Gives Promise of Results.

Shaft Work Being Pushed at the Champion Mines.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GRASS VALLEY (Cal.) May 30.—Full possession of the valuable South Fork gravel and quartz claims at Forest has passed to the Rio Antigua Mining Company of Los Angeles. The main tunnel, about 8000 feet in length, has intersected the channel's rim, and within a short time is expected to be in the long-sought gravel deposit. It has been decided to immediately erect a large hydro-electric power plant, and to inaugurate the operations on a broad scale. President E. S. Shank and Directors W. D. F. Richards, A. F. Pomeroy and A. C. Weeks visited the mines a few days ago, comprehensively examined the veins and gravel deposits, and arranged for commencement of work along lines calculated to make the property one of the most valuable and productive in Sierra county.

The company has held a bond on the South Fork properties for seven years, during which time a large amount of capital has been expended in developments and equipment. Principal attention has been devoted to the gravel deposits, which are known to yield high values, but during this work nine distinct and strong quartz veins have been opened. One of these ledges is believed to be the extension of the famous Tightner vein, the principal gold-producer of the Alleghany region. The quartz deposits have attracted little attention in past years, but under the new plans will be given particular development.

With gold coming from both quartz and placer deposits, the South Fork appears due to develop into a valuable producer. An immense amount of development work has been accomplished, and sufficient ore and gravel is exposed to insure a long and profitable career. The quartz is largely free-milling, greatly resembling the rich ore mined in the neighboring Alleghany district. The company will hereafter be known as the South Fork Gravel Mining Company.

CHAMPION SHOWING WELL.

Under the vigorous management of the North Star Mines Company, the Champion mines at Nevada City are steadily improving. On the 1600-foot level of the Merrifield, one of the numerous mines composing the group, a three-foot vein of excellent milling ore has been opened. So important is the strike that the company is planning the placing of a portion of the big mill in commission to run on the ore. The unwatering of the main Champion shaft to the 2400-foot level has been practically completed, and lateral work from this point is about to commence. It is also likely the shaft will be sent deeper.

From the Providence shaft southerly drifts are being extended to pick up the Summit and other veins in comparatively virgin portions of the property. Extensive work is under way at other points, and several new discoveries have been recently chronicled. The North Star people recently secured an extension on its bond, and are pushing work with increased energy. Over $200,000 has already been expended by the company, and it is estimated that within a year the Champion will be in shape to again rank among the largest of California's gold producers.

MAY INSTALL DREDGE.

At Redding the Trinity Reduction and Mining Company is contemplating erecting a dredger near the Headlight mine. It is stated a large deposit of gold-bearing gravel has been demonstrated outside the great quartz lode, and indications are favorable for profitable placer operations. The Angelenos composing this company have developed the Headlight into one of the great quartz-producers of the State, and the further activities of those interested are awaited with interest.

GLADSTONE GOING DEEPER.

The shaft of the famous Gladstone mine, at French Gulch, is being sent to the 1150-ft. point from the 900 level. The mine has been also opened by a 3000-foot adit. Thirty stamps are dropping and a large monthly profit earned. To date the property has disbursed $810,000 in dividends, on a capitalization of $900,000, with prospects particularly bright for an extensive period of profitable production. The product for 1911 amounted to $362,000. The property is owned by the Hazel Gold Mining Company. I. O. Jilson is manager and E. L. Young superintendent.

CROWDING WORK.

The Lincoln Consolidated Mining Company is rushing work on the drift from the 1950-foot level. This is designed to intersect the mammoth Wildman vein which on the 1400-foot level displayed a width of 160 feet. All of this is stated to have averaged in excess of $3 per ton, with its free gold milling qualities rendering it particularly amenable to ordinary milling. The drift is designed to intersect the vein about 500 feet below the old workings, and on the result largely depends the future of the property. Considerable Southern California capital is understood to be involved.

IMPORTANT SIERRA NOTES.

The Pasadena owners of the Kinselback claims, Alleghany district, have arranged for resumption of activities. The property lies in the quartz gold belt of the district and is considered highly promising. A limited amount of development work has proven satisfactory, and sufficient capital is stated to be available for extensive work.

The new ore-shoot in the Tightner has rapidly gathered width during the past few weeks and in places now runs fully fifty feet wide. All of the ore is stated to be milling grade, with portions of the vein running into bonanza values. The splendid showing of this mine as additional depth is attained has given an emphatic stimulus to mining throughout the district, and the present season promises to be the most animated the camp has ever recorded. H. L. Johnson, former owner of the mine, and the Dead River Mining Company, largely composed of Pennsylvania people, are engaged in litigation over a portion of the Tightner ground not included in the late sale of the main holdings to the Tightner Gold Mines Company. The suit is being tried in the Superior Court at Downieville.

It is announced that the Balsam plat will be reopened about June 15. This property is controlled by San Jose, Michigan and Southern California people and approximately $250,000 has been expended in developments and equipment. Operations were suspended during the winter because of heavy costs attending work. It is stated large reserves of milling ore have been demonstrated.

HIGH GRADE CONDITIONS.

The snow is rapidly vanishing in the high grade district, and before the end of June the camp promises to be one of the most spectacular performers in recent western mining annuals. Despite the adverse criticism of the statements of some of the promoters, engineers state the district is exceptionally promising, judging from the limited amount of work already accomplished. Not only are surface showings excellent, but discoveries outside the main field prove it more extensive than at first supposed. People are flocking in from all points of the compass, with Salt Lake, Denver, Nevada, Los Angeles and San Francisco particularly well represented. The blanket of deep snow has prevented any work of consequence in the district since last November, but activities will be in full swing before many more weeks have elapsed.

The Big Four is claiming particular attention at this time. At a depth of 110 feet a two-foot vein of white and yellow oxidized quartz has been intersected. Assays run from $50 to $100 per ton in gold, with the shoot showing uniform strength. It is understood Colorado capitalists are endeavoring to gather in the mine, which shows good ore deposits at several points. It is stated activities on the Bidwell Consolidated and Sunshine are soon to be prosecuted on a largely increased scale.

GRIZZLY BEAR REPORT GOOD.

SUPERINTENDENT THORN TELLS OF CONCERN'S PROFITS.

New Discovery on the Thirteen-Hundred-Foot Level Is Reported and Is Considered Very Important as Bearing on the Future Product of the Mine.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) May 31.—The report of Superintendent Thorn of the Consolidated Mines Company to President Wingfield for April was released today. It tells of a new discovery on the 1300-foot level of the Grizzly Bear shaft that is considered very important. The report in full follows:

During the month of April, 1912, the total production of your company was 28,360 tons, $610,708.20, or an average of $21.53 per ton, of which 27,928 tons were milled with an average extraction of 93.77 per cent., and 432 tons were shipped of an average value of $28.60 per ton, the net recovery from all ore being $20.20 per ton. The total net realization to your company was $392,056.17, or $13.81 per ton.

Development work: 3369 feet of development work was performed during the month of April, 1912.

Operating costs: The total cost of mining, development, transportation, milling, office and general expense was $6.53 per ton, distributed as follows:

Mining: Development	$ .87
Stoping	2.28
		$3.15
Transportation		.10
Milling		2.21
Marketing		.20
General Expense		.32
Bullion Tax		.18
Marketing ore shipped		.12
Construction		.25
Total cost of operation		$6.53
Miscellaneous earnings		.10
Net cost per ton		$6.43

Combination mine: The 311-P raise from the fifth level, together with the 200 and 205 drifts in the Reilly ore body, produced 295 tons of ore averaging $80 per ton.

Mohawk: The 111-M sill on the 250-foot level was extended and produced about fifty tons of $26 ore. The thirty drift on the 150-foot level produced forty-five tons of ore averaging $22 per ton. The 3-E sill produced 195 tons of ore averaging $12 per ton. The 407 sill of the 600-foot level, southeast of the shaft, was considerably extended and produced 250 tons averaging $12.80 per ton. Considerable development work is being done in an intermediate below the 250-foot level, under 111 stope, where some very promising results are being obtained.

Clermont: The sill of the 428 stope, south of the shaft, between the third and fourth levels, was considerably extended and produced 350 tons of ore, averaging $75 per ton. The 700-M stope, being opened between the 1000-foot and 1200-foot levels, produced 500 tons of ore averaging $39.60 per ton.

Rather an encouraging discovery has been made in the cross-cut on the 1300-foot level of the Grizzly Bear. After passing through the shale a large quartz mass has been encountered which carries low values in gold, silver and copper. There are, however, two or three small stringers, from one foot to three feet wide, carrying values from $15 to $50 per ton. The indications are that this ore is the downward extension of the base ore encountered on the 1000-foot level of the Clermont. The face of the cross-cut is still carrying values. No drifting has been done and it is too early to predict the extent or value of this ore bodr.

Laguna: In the Laguna the shaft has been completed to the 720-foot level, where a station and sump are being cut and from which point drifts will be driven both north and south.

New Company Organizes.

GLOBE, (Ariz.) May, 30.—The earliest mining in this locality was of silver. Forty years ago prospectors risked their lives in the apache infested mountains of this locality seeking only for the white metal which was found in abundance upon the surface of the properties which today are only known as copper producers, including the main mine of the Old Dominion Company. The most notable silver mine of the old days was the Stonewall Jackson at McMillen, a property found by Charles McMillen in 1876.

The first workings of this property, down to the sulphide zone, gave almost pure silver from the narrow ledge. Lately this property has been in the hands of the McMillen-Stonewall Jackson Mining Company, a corporation of local men, though a large block of stock was acquired by Michigan capital. The old shaft was sunk to the depth of 550 feet, where it is said to have been in rich though refractory silver ore when abandoned.

Much of this shaft now is caved in and a new shaft has been driven to the depth of 300 feet, where the face of a drift is now in rich silver ore, mainly in the form of a black sulphide, associated with chalcopyrite.

In some parts of the workings bunches of old time horn silver have been found. The early day working was not careful and the dumps of the old five-stamp mill, comprising at least 16,000 tons, have sampled an average of four ounces of silver to the ton.

Fifteen claims, ten miles south of San Carlos, have been included in the capitalization of the Arizona Lead-Silver-Copper Company, which has been organized in Safford with D. W. Mitchell as president.

A $9,131,674.96 Safeguard For Your Money

The most vital factor in any investment is safety. The Gold Note, by reason of the $9,131,674.96 paid-in capital and surplus backing it, is essentially safe, and one of the best investments for your money on the market.

The Gold Note

—is a 6% investment security issued for $100 or more, up to $5000, for 90 days, 6 months, or from 1 to 5 years. It pays interest quarterly or semi-annually. You can also buy a Gold Note on small payments of $1 or more—every payment drawing interest.

SECRET SERVICE BUREAU AT WORK AT ALL TIMES.

President Taft Is Surrounded by Agents at Official Receptions—Bold Counterfeiters Are Captured and Forced to Admit Crimes—Customs Duties Men Are Watched to Prevent Fraud.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) May 27.—When the President of the United States gives an official reception it is something like a court function.

There is much freedom about these receptions apparently, but the President is not unguarded. As he stands at the head of the receiving line with the "Lady of the White House" he is opposite a so-called guard of military officers resplendent in their glittering uniform, but they are there only to add to the pomp of the occasion.

Behind them, and at the back of the President, may be men in evening dress not so immaculate or so well-fitting as that of the guests, and they are usually clean shaven.

As the visitors, one by one, step up to "The Presence," these watchful men glance from face to face and carefully scan the appearance of the guests' clothing. If the black pocket of a coat bulges suspiciously the wearer's shoulder may be touched, and as he turns he is beckoned out of line—and he always goes. A pistol in that pocket means that he is a prisoner.

Then the uniformed policemen at the White House take the place of the men in evening dress, who resume their duty elsewhere. Some of the men are looking over the shoulders of the ushers who stand at each entrance.

In the blueroom, to which the people pass after greeting the hosts, some of the supposed guests linger beside the doors, others stand against the walls, and every one is searching, searching amid the gay throng, his eyes going from face to face to note any one who might be an unbidden guest.

These receptions include all members of Congress and many residents of Washington.

There is nothing on the entrance ticket but the name of the person who first receives it. He may have given it to someone else. Sometimes it is lost. So men and women may get into the White House who are dangerous—anarchists and "cranks." That is why every one is looked at by these keen-eyed observers.

OFFICES IN CAPITAL.

Such is one duty of the government detectives of the United States officially called the Secret Service. Their headquarters are naturally at Washington; but no one except a few officials knows where they are at any time, for the men about the President form but a little group compared with the full force.

At Washington there are a couple of rooms in the Treasury building, with "Secret Service Division" emblazoned over the door, set aside for the service. In one of these sits Chief John E. Wilkie and his assistant, W. H. Moran; the other is occupied by a dozen clerks.

The doors are always open, and any casual stranger may wander at leisure through them. Other than the fact that the man in charge of these offices and the chief and his assistant at Washington belong to it, there is no knowledge as to who are the men in the Secret Service.

WORKERS UNKNOWN.

Here is one mystery; nobody knows who are the men who actually carry on the work. The bluebook of the government departments does not contain their names, and members of Congress have placed none of their constituents on the list. The men themselves, scattered from Maine to California, never mention the fact that they are in the Secret Service, and they are often changed from one place to another. The number of men in the service is known only to those who are directly in charge of it. There are probably four or five to each office, or perhaps a force of not more than 300 men altogether.

The Secret Service is utilized to investigate the case of any employee of the United States who may be charged with crime, such as theft or anything that would unfit him for the position. Men who board ships and collect customs duties may be tempted to take bribes from passengers, or goods that pay duty by weight may be passed through the customhouses as being of lighter weight than they really are because the weighing scales have been tampered with.

CRIMINALS DISCOVERED.

Washington, the center of so many government departments and bureaus, is another field of work for these mysterious agents of justice, who may never have been seen or heard of by the person they secure evidence against, and he is tried and sentenced on the evidence of an unknown accuser; and when a case is brought to the attention of the Secret Service Chief, he selects one of the force who is best qualified to work it up.

The history of the service contains many interesting instances of the achievements of unknown searchers who ferret out criminals. One of the government bureaus of engraving and printing not long ago suspected that something was wrong in its ink contracts. It was paying 45 cents a pound for its ink elements, and there was a suspicion that the material was not the best that could be bought.

ELOPING OFFICER CAUGHT.

An investigation showed that one individual had the power to place the contract where he chose by giving judgment in favor of a certain ink. A Baltimore ink factory had long had the contract. The secret service men found that the ink expert had been giving the contract to this concern and getting a commission of 10 cents a pound, while the company made an enormous profit, for better ink was afterwards contracted for at 15 cents a pound, one-third of the price previously charged.

In another instance an officer in the American navy was off on leave and had failed to keep the department posted as to his whereabouts. The secret service was asked to find him, and did so, reporting to the department. It happened that the midshipman had committed the irregularity of eloping with somebody's wife in the meantime, and the efforts of the secret service were construed as being directed toward making out divorce cases for government officials. This was the criticism of some enemies of the service; but it found the man, and he became a convict.

After evidence of an offense has been secured and recorded, other officers arrest the man who has been discovered by the service agent and proved guilty; but the final task is to put him through a rigid investigation, which is called "sweating." For hours he is subjected to questioning. This is on the theory that when a man has committed a crime the knowledge of it is always with him. His mind dwells constantly upon it and hungers for an opportunity to talk of it. He knows that he has committed the crime, and usually he is aware that the detectives know it. The advantage is all on the part of the detective, and if the man is led the right way he is sure to tell all about it.

"SWEATING" PROCESS.

A case in point occurred during the exposition in St. Louis. An engraver named Crahan was arrested at the race track for passing counterfeit money. On him were found twenty-nine one-hundred-dollar bills that were imitations of lawful currency, and a large amount of good money.

He explained that he had found the bad money in an envelope, and as a proof of his contention said he had advertised for its owner. This proved to be correct. He said that he had seen no reason why he should not use money out of this envelope in making his race bets, as he had plenty of his own with which to replace it. He was locked up and his case investigated.

A fatal error in the man's story was found in the fact that the advertisement had been inserted two hours before the time he claimed to have found the money.

At the end of a week Chief Wilkie took the prisoner in hand. He started by asking the man to keep perfectly quiet until he had finished his talk.

Then he outlined the story of the manner in which Crahan had become a counterfeiter. The Chief told him that he had been an engraver in Washington, and an artist at his work. He had been studious and intelligent, but above all an artist; and the excellent examples of the engraver's art as shown on the government money had appealed to him. He had finally traced these designs and had been interested in developing their perfections. He had printed the money in black, and it had looked well. He had fallen to wondering how it would look if put into the colors that are used by the government. He had tried it, and the results had been pleasing to his artistic sense and gratifying to him as a workman. He had wondered if the bills would pass for real money. This would be the best test of his workmanship. He had tried to pass them, and their acceptance had proved the merit of his work. He had not started out with the idea of being a counterfeiter, but had drifted into it.

As the story advanced the man assumed an attitude of acquiescence. The explanation of how he had drifted into crime had never occurred to him, but he in the end told the whole story. Later he used Chief Wilkie's story of his fall as a plea for commutation of his prison sentence, and had it reduced from fifteen to eight years.

ALWAYS "GETS ITS MAN."

The Secret Service never forgets and never stops work on a case that it has once taken up. It is said always to "get its man" sooner or later.

An estimate has been obtained from banking institutions all over the country, and upon it is based the percentage of the amount of counterfeit money in circulation. In paper money it is estimated that there is but one counterfeit for every $100,000 in currency.

In coin it is figured that there are probably $3 of bad money to every $100,000. This is regarded as being as near an approach to an absence of counterfeit money as can be reached.

Hunting down the counterfeiter, however, is one of the most important duties of the Secret Service.

The bank managers familiar with the various issues of currency used for money are usually the first to detect a suspicious note. If the managers can not determine who has passed it, he posts it to the Secret Service immediately. Here the money is carefully examined with a microscope, and a note made of its defects and its differences from the genuine dollar, five-dollar, or whatever bill it may stand for. Then steps are taken to get the maker. Counterfeiting is mostly done by printers, and often it is necessary to employ the method known as "roping," which means learning the facts of a man's manner of life and habits by getting a job, working with him and forming a personal acquaintance with him.

"SHADOWS" ABLE MEN.

"Shadows," as they are called, are like poets—they are born, not made. The "shadow" must have just those qualifications that make him the least conspicuous man in the street. He must be a man who is absolutely regular and uninteresting, and who would never catch your eye if you met him in the street forty times a day.

The man he is shadowing is likely to see him many times, so he must have the ability to appear to be always about his own business and oblivious of his victim. Yet he must have prompt judgment and quick action, and be able to extricate himself from all sorts of difficulties and not betray himself. Work of all kinds has to be done, and the motto of the Secret Service man is to push it to the earliest possible completion.

There was at one time much illegal fencing of government land for farms in the State of Nebraska, for instance. In order to determine who were the offenders it was necessary to resurvey great tracts of country.

Technical men were employed, and these service agents and detectives investigated the illegal routes by resurveying them.

As a result many thousands of acres belonging to the government were found in the possession of private individuals. But the agents also go underground and work as miners or into financial institutions as clerks.

All types of men are needed, and whatever emergency is met with, there is just the man for the work. Thus the person suspected often lets out his secret.

ACTIVITY NEAR TUCSON.

Sunny Side and Volcano Group Bonded, According to Rumor, to Cananea Copper Magnate.

TUCSON (Ariz.) May 31.—The Sunnyside and Volcano groups of mines in the Patagonia Mountains, owned by Richard Farrel of Harshaw, are reported to have been bonded to Dr. L. D. Ricketts of the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company. Much work has been done on the property, which is within a few miles of the "Three R" mine, recently purchased by N. L. Amster of the Arizona Commercial and Shannon Copper Companies. It is also reported that the Calumet and Arizona Company has acquired under bond the chief group of claims owned by E. E. Bethell, which are likewise situated near the "Three R" mine.

The Pioneer smelter at Sahuarita again is running after several days of inaction, caused by the breaking of a part of the machinery.

At the Copper Bell mine at Gleeson now are employed 225 men getting out ore for reduction at the Shannon smelter at Clifton.

IMPORTANT EXPERIMENT

The Shannon Company is starting upon an experiment of immense importance. General Manager Bennie for several years was chemist at the Rio Tinto mines in Spain and from this service has gained a number of ideas concerning the treatment of oxidized ores, of which the Shannon Company has about 3,000,000 tons now valueless, for the cost of reduction would be greater than the value of the copper secured. Mr. Bennie has a leaching process, which the company will try, by which he believes these ores heretofore rejected may be made to return a profit. This condition is not peculiar to the Shannon alone, but is known in half a dozen of the mining properties in the Southwest.

FALLS IN MINE.

West of Tumacacori, Alphonso Bachellier lately discovered an ancient mine by the simple process of breaking through the covering of the shaft while riding horseback. He saved the horse and then found that within the excavation was a well-defined ledge, the ore from which assayed about $30 in gold, with some silver. It is probable that the mine was worked by the priests of the old Tumacacori Mission and it may even be the lost Guadalupe mine, renowned in early may well be claimed for Hillhurst Park, for the choicest and rarest tropical fruits, trees and shrubs are here successfully grown out-of-doors. Plants, which elsewhere about Los Angeles, can only be reared in greenhouses, thrive excellently in the soil, climate and location of Hillhurst Park, as is evidenced by their magnificent development on estates immediately adjoining—estates known as the most luxurious show places in the city.

Hillhurst Park lies among the foothills of Griffith Park, between the park proper and Los Feliz Avenue, which is at this point planned to a width of 120 feet, beautifully laid out as a handsomely parked boulevard drive.

Vermont Avenue is here laid out to a full 120-foot width with 46-foot parking in the center, in which palms and pillars of roses are alternately planted. The winding drives of Hillhurst Park lead to truly magnificent residence sites, ranging from 100x200-ft. lots to 5-acre pieces. Only 20 minutes from city's center.

Hillhurst Park has building restrictions, which assure the investor here of exclusive surroundings. In different parts of Hillhurst Park the restrictions vary from $10,000 to $25,000. These residence-de-luxe sites are above the fog and frost line, with elevations of from 500 to 800 feet above sea level.

Naturally, all city conveniences are at hand—gas, electricity, water and telephones. Considering the advantages of Hillhurst Park, far out-distancing all residence-subdivisions on the flat or low lands, prices here will be found most reasonable. Early selection is suggested, as you may now select pieces of any desired size.

Trial by Spectators.

[Memphis Commercial:] Judge C. H. Brand, of the Clark county Superior Court at Georgia, employed the referendum method in fixing the penalty of Will Barrett, charged with assault to rob and assault to kill.

Several leading society and church women appeared in behalf of the 19-year-old defendant, who had entered a plea of guilty. After speeches had been made requesting that a light sentence be imposed, Judge Brand polled the jury and spectators. By a rising vote a majority favored a penitentary sentence in lieu of a fine, and the former will be imposed.

Barrett stabbed and attempted to rob a horse trader several weeks ago. He was captured after an exciting three days' chase with bloodhounds.

The Joke that Failed.

[Kansas City Journal:] A farmer drove along the streets of Conway Springs. He had a top box on his wagon and over the edge could be seen the heads of several sheep and young stock. As he drove on his way he was accosted by a dude, who, on seeing the "hayseed," sang out: "Say, Noah, your ark seems to be pretty well crowded today."

The farmer looked around and, unconcerned-like, replied: "Don't worry. I have saved a place for a jackass and you can get right in."

The city upstart looked sheepish and the farmer drove on.

Understands Popularity.

[Chicago Tribune:] "Binkley, batting is what wins games."

"That's right, old top. Take it from me."

"Say, Bink, it's the fielding that counts, ain't it?"

"You bet it is, my son."

"Bink, it all depends upon the pitching, doesn't it?"

"That's what it does; I've always said so."

"Mr. Binkley, don't you think the umpire has more to do with winning or losing a game than anything

"Undoubtedly he has, ma'am."

Ocean-to-Ocean Organizer Was Once Famous Scout Who Piloted United States Troops Over the Land of the Indian and Helped to Capture Geronimo and the Apache Kid—Dell Potter Makes Good.

BY BERT C. SMITH,

[On The Times Ocean-to-ocean Car.]

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA FE (N. M.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dell M. Potter, national organizer for the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association, who is making the trip across the continent in The Times car, was once scout for the United States Army. In the days when the Apaches terrorized this country, Scout Potter was one of the white men who dared to stake his life against the wiles of the savage in the red man's own country and Potter won. In the early '80's this man, who has routed the national highway through the two youngest States in the Union, helped to subdue the Indian. As a result of his work Scout Putter is one of the men in Arizona who can travel anywhere without money in his pocket.

Though this is a fact, Potter has proved one of the best spenders of the new State, and while he has been banqueted in every large city in Arizona, he has also returned favors and has been host at a number of feasts. Old-time reminiscences when the men of importance hark back to the days of yore are always topics of absorbing interest at the after-dinner speeches. We did not get into the real folk-lore of Arizona, however, until we struck Safford.

Here, in this quaint little city of 2000 people, we found John J. Birdno, styled "the noblest Mormon of them all," and we were able to learn from Potter the story of those early days. Though loath to talk about himself, Potter was drawn out by Birdno, who is owner of the Safford Guardian, and the once-famous outrider told the story of the capture of some of the renegades and of the fights which finally resulted in the capture of Geronimo and the disappearance of Apache Kid.

Long before there was any thought of a national highway being routed through Arizona, Potter took part in the Indian campaigns. When a young man of 20 he rode over the highways we have traversed the past week, with his hand in the holster and with his eye ever alert for the Apache.

We passed through Solomonville and then struck out on the road to Clifton. Here we saw the peaks from which flashed the first heliograph signals sent out by Gen. Miles. It was Potter who caught the meaning of these signals and who predicted that the Indian must surrender. Even the almost matchless signal system of the Indians was equaled, if not surpassed.

SIGNAL FIRES.

"That mountain yonder is where Miles placed his first heliographic station," said Potter, as we swept out of a canyon and rolled on the mesa beyond.

The mountain towers 6000 feet into the air and commands the entire country for many miles around Ft. Apache and Ft. Thomas, two stations established by the troops when the Indians were on the warpath, can be seen from this peak.

Then, at least twenty miles beyond, Potter showed us another mountain where another signal station caught the flashes from the higher peaks.

What use was it for the Apache to send his smoke into the clear blue? How futile it was for him to signal ten miles when the United States trooper could double his distance. It was the beginning of the end of one of the cruelest warfares ever planned and it was the first step in the great plan for a national highway through the wilds of Arizona. From that day until Potter started in The Times car, he has been a good roads booster.

He worked with the troops to build the first wagon roads to establish communications so that the Indians could not cut the soldiers off from their supplies. He saw how much need there is for water and he watched the red men signal the position of the water holes and then later he watched the flashes which told that the Apaches had taken possession of Ash Springs.

"Smoke them out," was the slogan. But, instead, Potter says, the Indians were treated most humanely.

They were not given powder and ball for the crimes they committed, but were given quarter in every instance and were made honorable prisoners of war.

"Now, here is where Mr. Merrill and his daughter were killed," said Potter, pointing to a rude wooden cross that stands near the road to Clifton.

WOODEN CROSS.

On a pile of stones, raised as a monument to the brave man who fought a hard but losing fight to save his 17-year-old girl, is a cross, showing the exact spot where the fight occurred, and where the bodies of the two were found by the man who is now helping to route a highway from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

This was the last murder by the red men. It aroused the country and the Apaches were driven first into Superstition range, where one tribe entirely disappeared, and then were rounded up and placed in the San Carlos reservation, where they are peacefully enjoying themselves, and where they hailed The Times car as we passed between the rows of tepees.

The red man is no longer a savage. This was shown when we reached the San Carlos Indian school and little Indian girls and boys crowded around The Times car and allowed us to snap pictures of them. This was shown when Indian Agent A. L. Lawshe took us to the dam on the Gila River, where the bucks are working to divert the water to irrigate Indian farms.

Did you ever hear of Indian farms? Well, The Times car passed through many of them and we found Indians cutting alfalfa, which they had raised themselves. We saw fields of wheat and barley, which had been sown by the Apaches.

Now don't make a mistake and take it for granted that every man who fought with Geronimo and with Apache Kid has learned to love peace. I did not say so, but I did say we found many hundreds of Indians who were ready to help us if The Times car had balked in the sands.

The old braves are as warlike as ever in spirit. The eagle-eyed warriors are still astride of their cayuses. The long-haired old bucks still wear their feathers and paint their faces, but they are looking to the past instead of the future. They are living in the days of the long ago, and their only thought of the future, that is those who have not learned to love the God of the white man, is that they will go to the Happy Hunting Ground, where they believe game is even more plentiful than it is on the San Carlos reservation.

Squarely erect on the little cow ponies, the older Indians sat, as The Times car came snorting up to them. We disturbed the silence with our Klaxon horn, but the old braves did not blink an eye or show surprise. The white man has conquered the body, but will never conquer the spirit. The car would be stopped, the younger bucks would crowd around us, and the children would climb on the car. The old men would swing around on their ponies and start into the hills for a deer or a wild turkey, and the squaws would follow them without showing the least interest in the car or its crew.

HIS PARADISE.

What does the highway mean to the men who once fought with Geronimo, one of the greatest Indian generals who ever roamed the plans? What does a national boulevard mean to such men as Chief Eagle Eye or Thunder Cloud, whose kingdoms are the wilds of Arizona and who hate a road, because it shows the faintest trace of their moccasin feet.

This highway means nothing to the man who can follow a trail over the sagebrush, where there is apparently no sign, to lead the tracker. It means that the outsider will come into his hunting paradise, he thinks. This will not be, however.

The United States has taken hold of this matter. The Indians are not to be disturbed, but the roads through the Indian reservation are to be improved at once. The road scrapers are now on the San Carlos reservation, but though you may tour through the miles and miles of hunting lands, you dare not shoot without a special permit. The silence of the great desert, and the beauty of the timber lands are to remain and the 8000 Apaches will be allowed to roam over their own hills within the barriers of their reservation many miles apart, but still there. You will enter a gate on to the government stretch of the national highway that passes through Apache land, and for thirty miles in a straight line you will traverse this fairyland, but it will still belong to the Indian, and you must open a gate at the other end, in order to leave his preserves.

Here we will have Federal aid in earnest. Here the United States will spend its money to build thirty miles of the national highway. This work was commenced the moment The Times car had passed over the roads and will be completed in a few months, making this stretch of the highway one of the best along the whole system from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

WOLGAST HEADED FOR LOS ANGELES.

Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion of the world, has telegraphed the following to The Times regarding his fight with Young Philadelphia Jack O'Brien:

"Sporting Editor, The Times: Had little trouble with Young O'Brien. I am back in trim once more. Scored the only knock-down and a good one.

"This was the best fight Phillie ever had.

"I am leaving at once for Los Angeles.

KILBANE RETURNS HOME WITH $8,000.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLEVELAND (O.) June 1.—Featherweight Champion Kilbane is again back at his Cleveland home after his successful invasion of the East and next week will begin training for his next fight. The little champion's next opponent will be Tommp O'Toole, whom he will meet in a six-round encounter in Philadelphia on June 5. Kilbane fared exceptionally well in a financial way in his two bouts in New York and Boston. In all he cleaned up $8000, having received $5500 for defeating Frankie Burns in New York and $2500 for boxing Jimmy Walsh to a draw in Boston.

AFTER AUTO THIEVES.

Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of police in the District of Columbia, has prepared a draft of a bill which he will present to the district commissioners for approval in which he fixes the penalty for automobile stealing at a term in the penitentiary. Washington automobile owners have suffered to such an extent, recently, that drastic measures are considered necessary. The penalty at present for taking an automobile by one who has no right to take it, usually for the purpose of a joy ride, is but a $40 fine.

SORE ARM FOR 19 YEARS.

Nineteen years of baseball—this will be the twentieth—with hardly a day's freedom from a sore arm—that is what Joe Sugden has been through, and the most remarkable part of it is that Joe was considered a great catcher in his time and still loves the game.

According to the veteran's own story, the only times in his life when his wing didn't pain him every time he threw a ball were on the first days of the practice season. He really enjoys these first days, but after that it means a sharp twinge whenever he cuts one loose.

NEW RECORD IS MADE IN "THE TIMES" MEET.

Collins of Riverside Sets New Mark in High Jump for Grammar School Boys—Horde of Lads, in Fine Training, Make Splendid Performances in Track and Field Events—Forty-two Free Vacations for Winners.

BY EDMUND W. PUGH.

ONE WORLD'S RECORD broken, and another was tied in the biggest and most successful track and field meet for grammar school boys that has ever been held in the West, conducted by The Times, yesterday afternoon, at the Y.M.C.A. athletic field. John Collins of Riverside, high-jumped higher than any grammar school boy has done, clearing 5ft., 5in., and McWilliams, of Los Feliz school, tied the record of 11s., for the 100-yard dash.

The performances in every event were splendid and the boys are to be congratulated for their showing. Many of them trained faithfully for the meet and they deserved success. There was no unsportsmanlike conduct—everybody got a square deal and there was no "kicking." To be sure, many of the youngsters who did not win vacations were keenly disappointed, but they did not complain.

Nearly 500 lads turned out for the meet. In the 50-yard dash for juniors it was necessary to hold ten preliminary heats and a series of semi-finals before the finals could be run. One hundred boys were out for the vacation-winning places. The events were pulled off with dispatch and the boys obeyed orders instantly. It is no easy task to handle a small army of lads, but the officials had much success in this respect.

The Mt. Washington Hotel banner for the school entering the largest number of contestants was won by Berendo-street school, which was represented by 14 sturdy youngsters. Nearly every city and town in Southern California sent at least one boy, and the "out-of-towners" made a fine showing.

On account of the splendid showing of the teams that took second place in the junior and senior relays, The Times awarded vacations to the eight members of the teams, increasing the number of vacations awarded to forty-two. Third place winners received prizes given by Dyas-Cline. All the place winners received ribbons as souvenirs of the meet.

It was hot in the bleachers, but the day was ideal for the athletes. The field, supervised by Dean Cromwell, was in perfect condition. There were boys of all ages, sizes and shapes, clad in uniforms of all kinds.

"A MILLION KIDS."

"Gee, dere must be a million kids here," exclaimed one youngster, and it certainly looked that way from the bleachers. They swarmed on the field like so many ants. And they were the best-behaved "kids" that ever formed a crowd. Incredible as it may seem, there wasn't a single "scrap" during the entire afternoon.

Edward Gillette of Euclid school stood out among the junior sprinters. In his lap of the relay he outstripped his competitors and won the race for his school. He already had captured first in the fifty-yard dash against 100 rivals.

Complete results of the meet follow:

Junior 50-yard dash, first heat—Ilch (Thirtieth-street school,) first; Gabalg (Tropico,) second; Hewitt (Vernon,) third. Time, 6 2-5s.

Second heat—Nesbit (Pomona,) first; Blewett (Thirtieth-street school,) second; Anderson (Garfield, Santa Monica,) third. Time, 6 2-5s.

Third heat—Scholz (Berendo,) first; Logan (Glendora,) second; Fryer (Main,) third. Time, 6 3-5s.

Fourth heat—Murphy (Covina,) first; Megede (Anaheim,) second; Toggatt (Main,) third. Time, 6 4-5s.

Fifth heat—Gillette (Euclid,) first; Haney (Thirtieth-street,) second; Schmidt (Main,) third. Time, 6 1-5s.

Sixth heat—Briggs (Euclid), first; Germain (Santa Fe Special,) second; Smith (Pasadena,) third. Time, 6 2-5s.

Seventh heat—Lewis (Glendora,) first; Packman (Magnolia,) second; Thomas (Seventeenth-street,) third. Time, 6 4-5s.

Eighth heat—Johnson (McKinley,) first; Horwitz (Berendo,) second; Cring (Normal,) third. Time, 7 1-5s.

The Great Race.

AFTERMATH AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Teddy Tetzlaff Was Gaining at the Finish.

De Palma's Mechanician Is Bitter at Ralph.

Bert Dingley Looked Like a Flaming Meteor.

BY W. H. CARLSON, JR.

(of Los Angeles, With the Simplex Crew at Indianapolis.)

> It is never safe to prophesy where the ability to write the English language will crop out.
>
> A regiment of star reporters and feature writers attended the races at Indianapolis and spraddled "lankwidge" all over the map; but the best account that has come over the wires is the following from a Los Angeles automobile man—W. H. Carlson, Jr.:

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Teddy Tetzlaff of Los Angeles carried away practically 15,000 American dollars from Indianapolis and had the race been fifty miles farther the hero of Santa Monica might have doubled this amount. When Starter Fred Wagner waived the checkered flag in front of Joe Dawson, declaring him the victor in the world's greatest automobile classic, Tetzlaff was running wild and gaining rapidly.

Teddy realized that De Palma had the great contest sewed up and rather than take any chances in finishing second in preference to third, drove a careful race, but when he saw that the little Italian had murdered his car he set out to try for the initial place in the event, willing to sacrifice the third position under these circumstances.

RACING LUCK.

Racing luck that predominates in almost every great automobile event was more in evidence than ever before in the history of speed contests. Dawson was third choice on the National team and he finished first in the race. De Palma was the favorite and led the entire race until the semi-final lap, when he was to receive the green flag. The 70,000 spectators had lost interest in the winner and were watching the battle for second, third and fourth positions.

Suddenly, as if a great bomb had dropped from the skies, the spectators awoke. Where was De Palma! Far up the course the big Mercedes car appeared on the home stretch, the spectators arose hoping that the finish would be a close one, but they were disappointed, for the little Italian and his mechanician, Rupert Jeffkins of Los Angeles, were shoving the great lifeless gasoline monster to its resting place in back of the pits. Tears were dropping from De Palma's eyes. Jeffkins was frozen with bitterness, for he had coaxed Ralph to be careful and not take any chances with the big lead of ten laps over the other cars.

But De Palma was determined to set a world's mark that the world's best drivers would have to shoot at a long time before they bettered it. He paid the penalty and lost his strangle-hold on the largest financial reward ever offered an automobile driver.

BERT DINGLEY'S ACCIDENT.

Bert Dingley, the other Los Angeles driver, who was at the wheel of the Simplex, met with a small accident early in the contest. He broke two gasoline lines that supplied the fuel to the carbureter and after temporary repairs set gamely out to overcome a twenty-minute lead the others had on him. Bert, in his palmiest days, never drove more recklessly, and he would have made up a lot of lost ground, but twice the gasoline leaked so badly that it caught fire and he came thundering into the pits looking like a flaming meteor. Quick work with the fire extinguishers saved Bert and the big red machine and despite the advice of his men in the pit, he made quick repairs and started out again, only to repeat his experience when the tape again came off his gasoline line.

In the one hundred sixty-fourth lap he had crawled up to twelfth position and looked good to get within the big money, but more trouble ended his career in the race and he dropped out.

TIRE ADVENTURES.

One of the peculiar angles of the racing luck was experienced by the Case team. The big J. I. Case factory at Racine went the limit to prevent tire trouble and imported from Europe $10,000 worth of wire wheels and tires.

The first cars to stop on account of tire trouble were the Case machines and they kept stopping until finally Neil Whalen rolled off a tire on the treacherous turn when both Burman and Gil Anderson turned over in the Cutting and Stutz machines because of bursting shoes; then it was decided to withdraw the Case machine from the race.

PATHETIC ENDING.

The pathetic ending to the great race will never be forgotten by the officials who were the only ones present. No time limit had been placed on finishing and Ralph Mulford determined to bring his big Knox home, despite the many difficulties he met with. Previous to the race Mulford had experienced trouble in practice and had to work seventy-two hours before the speed battle began, in order to make a start at all. His only chance to get inside of the money was to keep on running until he had finished the race, as there were more prizes than cars to win them.

Twenty times he had to stop, but he was game and kept on running and just as the sun was sinking below the horizon, two hours after all the spectators had gone, Mulford crossed the line and won tenth position in the race. As he stepped from his car he collapsed and had to use the machine he drove so gamely as an ambulance to get him to the hotel, where he was cared for by Speedway physicians.

Today a report was circulated that Los Angeles was to have another great road race next Thanksgiving Day, but not over their course at Santa Monica.

John Drew (at right)

In his new self-starting Hudson "33" which he became owner of at finish of theatrical season, and in which he will make a number of vacation runs.

Jawn.

FASTIDIOUS JOHN DREW BUYS AN AMERICAN CAR.

JOHN DREW, the noted actor, is one of the latest of celebrities to add his name to the list of Hudson owners. With his manager, John Henry Mears, who, before he entered the theatrical profession was an automobile engineer, Drew recently made a tour of inspection of the Hudson factory. He has for years been a user of high-priced foreign cars and the purchase of the new self-starting Hudson "33" is taken as a high tribute to the American automobile.

The actor and his manager spent an afternoon critically inspecting the Hudson factory and while there met Howard E. Coffin, the great American motor car engineer, and designer of the Hudson. Mears having owned the third and fourth cars which Coffin designed, and having a knowledge of engineering practice, was influential in the selection of Mr. Drew's car.

The day following the purchase of the Hudson, which was the end of the theatrical season, Mears started in his car from Detroit to New York. He drove the entire distance alone and made the trip in approximately three days. Drew's car was shipped to New York, and from there was taken to Long Island, where the actor spends his seasosn when not playing. This spring and summer he will drive around Long Island and may take a trip up through the New England States. Drew states that he will drive the car himself and enjoy the pleasures of motor car owning to the fullest extent.

Kick Off the Harness.

WHERE THE AUTO MEN WILL SPEND VACATIONS.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

THE barons of "gasoline row" will not drop and forget everything that looks or sounds like an automobile when vacation time comes around, but will in most cases keep close to their machines. Touring about the country, visiting the factories and studying the cars or remaining on the job with an occasional run out to some choice hunting or fishing ground, will be the order of events for most every figure in the automobile game here.

Leon T. Shettler, Southern California distributor for the Apperson "Jack Rabbit," said last week that he would very probably spend his vacation at his desk and in the Apperson salesroom, where he has spent most of his vacations during the last few years. There is a strange fascination about the automobile business that keeps a man from breaking down even though he be overworked and with the automobile game at its height, as it is now, there is little wonder that a busy man like Shettler will find it difficult to break away.

Earl Anthony, local handler of the Packard cars an dtrucks, was asked how he expected to spend his holidays. "Right here in Los Angeles keeping up with business," said the veteran automobile man.

Ralph Hamlin, another old-timer in the automobile ranks, was the next to answer the vacation question. Ralph will tour to Victoria in his Franklin roadster, taking guns and fishing tackle, and a very small supply of equipment in his pack box. Hamlin is not much on the equipment, the tents and awnings. He wants to have his in guns and fishing tackle, that he can use in the good cause, while on the way.

Bill Ruess is going to be kept pretty busy with his new Pope-Hartfords this summer, but he contends that he will go deer hunting if only once and call it his vacation. In his Pope, Ruess can get out into the wilds in a very short time, and there is one thing sure, Bill Ruess knows where the game is to be found.

Capt. Ryus will be busy with his Oldsmobiles all summer, but will take a number of trips to Catalina, where he will indulge in the sport of fishing.

Oscar Werner of the Simplex says that he will take his vacation in the new Simplex building and that he will be busier than ever during the summer months.

Milo Bekins will go East to the Lozier factory accompanied by Miss Ruth Bekins, about the middle of June. At the factory a big Lozier will be secured and the party will tour all over the East, visiting all the high-grade automobile factories.

Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company says that he wants a vacation very badly and will very probably go back to the Garford factory and combine business with pleasure.

C. S. Anthony says that he will have to stay on the job and run the Regal business while his son, Roscoe, goes back to Lake Delevan, Wis., to summer.

Roger Stearns says: "No vacation for me this year, I am the very busy man." With his Stoddard-Daytons, Baker Electrics and trucks, Stearns is rather pressed for time of late, and there is little chance that he will do better than get to Venice or Long Beach occasionally.

B. L. Graves, manager of the Ford Motor Company, will have a real vacation, but the automobile will be there all the time. The last of July will see the Ford manager on the way to Detroit, where he will/witness the great celebration and spend two weeks at the factory, and study conditions at the New York service plant, for the benefit of the service plant which is to come here.

J. N. Abeel, manager of the Pathfinder, claims that he will have a vacation, but it will be in installments. He has a camping outfit which is easily carried on the running board of the car and expects to get out over Sunday nearly every week and to see the best part of Southern California before fall.

Lee Carpenter of the Abbott and Dorris will make a run to San Francisco in one of his machines.

Eylar Fillmore of the Ford will take a party of five up into Inyo county in a Ford car where they will fish and hunt deer for three weeks.

F. J. Purdy of the Lord Motor Car Company will visit the Garford factory and study the new models which are being turned out.

A. S. Robinson will spend two weeks at Catalina fishing. This is his favorite sport and he waits all year for the season to come when he can get out with his tackle.

Lynn C. Buxton, the Southern California distributor for the Moon car, is not decided as yet, but is contemplating going back to the factory and driving a car out to Los Angeles.

Bill La Casse of the E.M.F. will be right on the trail of that husky little car all summer and will get no vacation as far as vacation goes, but will enjoy the sport of putting out the popular little cars.

Don Lee has had his vacation and will return to the city in a day or two to get back into the harness and put out the Cadillacs.

W. J. Burt has also had his vacation, a flying business trip back to the Auburn factory. He is now hitting the ball and putting out the cars in rapid-fire order.

MONEY TALKS IN ATHLETICS.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The recent Ty Cobb episode has demonstrated that professional athletes are very much at the mercy of the man whose hand extends through the box office window to grab the crisp bills from the willing spenders that flock through the gates to satisfy their craving for exciting sport.

A prominent member of the boxing profession says that the baseball mix-up is a forerunner to great reforms in the baseball and boxing professions—especially boxing. He sees very clearly the need of a protective association among fighting men.

Naturally, he turns to the carpet-layers, bell-hangers, pretzel-benders, plasterers and biscuit-shooters for the big idea.

The leaders in these noble callings have gained their ends through labor unions. The boxing enthusiast sees but one solution to the great problem that confronts the boxing world—the Prize Fighters' Union No. 1. The gentleman hastily formulated this set of rules upon which the union will be founded:

1—No fighter shall receive less than $10,000 for any battle from one to ten rounds.

2—In battles of over ten rounds he must get all he can, leaving the manager his shirt out of courtesy.

3—A fighter shall have the right to play a game of pinochle with his seconds between rounds.

4—If a fighter is not satisfied with the decision, he has the right to send the referee an infernal machine and place a victory to his credit. Every fighter must carry on his person at least 1000 photographs of himself.

5—In case motion pictures are taken, the victor must travel around the world with the pictures in a private car at the expense of the club that holds the fight.

Stutz again carries off honors of the greatest international endurance test.
"The car that made good in a day" repeats its wonderful performance. All three Stutz cars ran a perfect race, average speed 75.57 miles per hour.
Stutz cars averged 76 miles per hour, for the 500 miles, including all stops.

The remarkable record made in last year's 500-mile international contest without the necessity of any mechanical adjustment was not an accident, as this year's race bears eloquent testimony. This record representing the most severe test for speed, endurance and reliability in the history of the motor car industry, proves conclusively that the Stutz is the highest attainment in automobile engineering and construction, regardless of price.

One Hundred Per Cent Efficiency Is the Stutz Achievement

The carburetor, magneto, tires, spark plugs are of standard equipment, such as all cars use. But only in the Stutz will you find the power plant of 100 per cent. efficiency, as shown by the result.

Only in the Stutz car will you find transmission and rear axle of equal efficiency to the power plant, all of which are absolutely necessary to consistent, comfortable, economical and enduring operation.

You knew the Stutz record and the elements of its success. The race has been of value to you only in so far as you take advantage of the outcome. The eyes and brains of the automobile world from the presidents of the largest concerns down to the wise testers have centered on the Stutz.

In buying a Stutz at $2000 you are not taking chances, you are not experimenting, you are exercising a judgment that will command respect, you will be getting a certainty.

AUTO CLUB'S SPEED FIGHT.

Forced by Harshness of the Constables.

Demands Made of the Next Legislature.

Uniform Speed Laws for All the Communities.

The Automobile Club of Southern California will wage an insistent fight in the next session of the Legislature in behalf of several badly-needed automobile laws.

Not only will new bills be introduced that will increase the present absurdly low speed limit permitted on the highways of the State that are outside the jurisdiction of the various municipalities, but a measure will be introduced which, if passed, will unify the speed and traffic ordinances of the cities and towns and do away with the present confusion of laws that is a constant source of trouble for motorists.

The club's legislative committee has drafted a number of the bills that will be submitted to the Legislature and has given itself ample time to prepare these measures, that there will be no chance of any desirable points being overlooked.

INCREASED SPEED.

Although there is the probability that the speed limit bill, which will increase the legal rate of travel from twenty to thirty miles per hour upon the State highways, will not be necessary, this measure is nevertheless in course of preparation and will be in readiness for introduction in the event that the test case which the club has pending before the State Supreme Court by E. G. Kuster, the attorney of the club, is decided adversely to its contentions.

Some months ago, a case was prepared and submitted, in which the validity of the present antiquated automobile regulations was attacked. This action was the result of extended deliberation on the part of the club's directors who have always deemed it expedient to throw the weight of the organization's influence in favor of a lax enforcement of the existing laws. It was hoped that this policy would be met by the authorities in a spirit of fairness and moderation.

In some quarters, there has been a disposition to allow the officers patrolling the roads, to exercise a sound judgment and discretion in making arrests, regardless of technicall violations of the inelastic speed "limit." Unfortunately, this fair and liberal spirit was almost wholly lacking in the arresting officers themselves, particularly in the outlying townships. Motorists, helpless in the face of such a situation, appealed to the club, and after due consideration, it was decided to carry the matter up to the Supreme Court.

A particularly flagrant case was made the basis of a test suit and the matter is now pending before the highest tribunal in California. It is believed by the club's attorney that the court will declare the State's present automobile speed law to be unconstitutional and that a "safe and sane" limit will be permitted on the outlying highways instead of restricting the motorists to the twenty-mile limit.

In order that there may be no misapprehension of the club's attitude in the matter, the organization is emphasizing the fact that the test case now under way is but one step in the direction of securing from the Legislature of the State, a sane and reasonable statute modelled along the lines adopted by the progressive and highly-developed eastern States.

Very few States retain an absolute limitation in their automobile statutes. The few States that still cling to this system have in nearly every case increased the limit to twenty-five and under certain conditions, to thirty miles an hour. So it will be seen that the Automobile Club of Southern California is leaving nothing undone to better conditions for automobile owners who use the highways within the State of California.

There is no other organization in the United States and certainly none other in California, that will compare numerically or in the influence of its membership with the Automobile Club of Southern California, and its statement that there will undoubtedly be a less stringent speed law and more uniform motor laws in operation after the next Legislature adjourns, is sufficient assurance that automobilists will not find it necessary to submit to the present obsolete and unjust statutes much longer.

Garford Motor Truck as Mammoth Joy-ride Wagon.

Embryo school teachers from State Normal School on five-ton Garford motor truck, the modern hay-ride vehicle.

An Innovation.

MOTOR TRUCK JOY RIDE; NORMAL SCHOOL GIRLS.

The latest thing in joy-riding was staged last Friday evening when thirty pretty girls, members of the junior B class at the State Normal School indulged in the novel frolic of a modern hay ride on a big five-ton Garford motor truck furnished by the Lord Motor Car Company.

During the past few months the motor truck has led a versatile existance and has figured in many interesting "stunts" and experiments; but this last feat of the power wagon proves the popularity of the gasoline wagon, even for outing purposes.

These embryo school teachers had planned a real hay ride on a wagon brought in from the country, but some modern young woman suggested the motor truck, and the Garford was secured for the party.

The big truck was polished till it looked like a battleship on visitors' day. A goodly supply of hay had been placed on the bed and covered with clean white canvas, which was tacked down around the edges, giving the impression of upholstery.

It was just five minutes after five when the big power wagon stopped in front of the Normal School and the man at the wheel announced that all was in readiness for the trip to the country. The pretty misses were assisted to places on the big cushion at once, and the ride was on.

The start had been planned at that early hour on account of the usual lack of speed noticeable on hay rides; but when it was announced that the Garford would reach the stopping place, out near Gardena, in less than an hour, the students of instruction were greatly surprised, but suggested that they might ride on the truck as long as they would have ridden, had they taken a hay rack and gone on a real old hay ride.

It was really a pleasant trip for the young women, aside from the novel features of riding a motor truck. The return to the city was made quite late and as they were assisted to the sidewalk, they all expressed themselves as well pleased with the performane of the Garford truck and stated that it had been the most novel hayride party ever held by a class of the Normal School.

The speed of the truck permitted of the party's staying later than would have been possible had a hay wagon and horses been used, and again the horse has been replaced by the motor.

MOTORING TO KLAMATH LAKE.

BY "BUD" ROSE.

Leaving Los Angeles early in the morning our party made up of two cars—my "Chalmers Forty" and Judge Rose's car, a Mitchell "Thirty-five," we headed north. In the party were Tommy Lawson, my partner, and Judge and Mrs. Rose, with the driver in the Mitchell. On the first day the Mitchell got ahead of me at Newhall and as they thought I was still leading we had an exciting race up the "San Francisquito", through the fords and up and down hills until I finally caught them at the last ford, where we lunched.

After lunch we continued on past Elizabeth and Crane lakes finally halting in the afternoon to let the Judge go ahead to pick out a camp for the night. The camp was by a nice little stream and the gas-generator was soon set up and shedding its bright light on the "kitchen" where the Judge was busy with the steaks.

After a night's rest we were on our way soon after breakfast, passing the old adobe building that was long ago a four-company fort. Old Ft. Tejon is slowly disintegrating and something should be done to preserve this old landmark. From Tejon to the ranchhouse, on the Beale ranch, there is quite a grade but with care it can be negotiated with ease. From here on to Bakersfield is country flooded in wet weather and dusty in dry.

Stopping in Bakersfield only long enough to repair our tires, we set out for Porterville where we put up for the night. The next morning we went to Doyles's arriving at noon after a trip up a very stiff road. We were given the courtesies through the kindness of Mr. A. C. Balch of the San Joaquin Light and Power Company. Mr. Hill, the foreman, was very cordial, doing all in his power to entertain us. The Judge fished, catching enough "rainbow" to give us a taste of the joys to come.

After leaving Doyles we proceeded down the Tule River through Porterville, Exeter and Visalia. At Fresno I made the first repairs, taking up my connecting rods. Four miles out we made camp by the "Espee" tracks. The next morning we set out through a very uninteresting country, finally camping on the banks of the Stanislaus River. Now, dear friends, don't make the mistake we did; don't camp in the hollows, the mosquitos are very thick in this region and if you value your night's sleep, don't fail to camp on the plain. From here on, the bridges should be treated very gently as the approaches are more than the springs can stand.

We passed through Merced and went on to Stockton. From Stockton to Sacramento the roads are as good as our boulevards and they have an added advantage that there are no motor "cops," the curse of Southern California, to chase if you should exceed the blue law the Legislature hands to autoists.

Stopping a day in "Sac," we hit the road through Marysville, where we crossed the Sacramento on a railroad bridge. We stopped at Oroville, in the gold-dredging country, and then were off the next day for Red Bluff and Redding, where I caused a runaway; after stopping to assist the unfortunate party we continued on to Buckeye and camped in a little shelf on a very steep grade.

Next morning we dropped down to the Pitt River Ferry, where, boarding a primitive "current" ferry we were swiftly carried across. From there we went on past the Pitt River hatcheries over short grades up and down, around curves, on the brink of precipices and down to Gregory.

Gregory is only a wood-shipping point, but the "grub" they serve at the hotel is out of sight, or it is put out of sight with no trouble. From here on, the road is very rough, with a great many short shoots around the curve hills, which are so trying on the nerves. At William's Hotel that night we had our first taste of venison and we all came back for more. Tommy, Harry and I slept in the hog yard, "with the rest of the pigs," as Mrs. Ross said.

THAT CO-OLD WATER.

As they kept us company, we didn't mind. Next morning we were up and away for Castella, where we took on gas, and Dunsmuir, where we stopped to rest. Dunsmuir is a little mountain town with the coldest water I ever drank out of a faucet. Leaving Dunsmuir we passed Shasta Springs, Sisson, where the State hatchery is located, over the divide to Weed, Gazelle and Montague, where we turned directly east, camping by the Little Shasta. Next day we were at Bray's ranch, where "Old Man" Bray, a character left over from the early days, has a big cattle ranch. After lunching, we took a little-used road which landed us on Antelope Creek in the heart of the deer country.

Making camp, we were able to gather enough wild strawberries to make a shortcake, which was greatly appreciated, and Mrs. Rose was voted a good cook by all. After a few days' hunting, in the meanwhile visiting ex-Gov. Pardee, we set out for Crater Lake, passing through Klamath Falls, Or., and the Klamath Indian ageny at Ft. Klamath.

Nothing can be said against the scenery, as it is magnificent. The government road through the Crater Lake National Reservation is very good, an automobile stage making daily trips connecting with the steamer on Upper Klamath Lake. There having been a snow storm, we were not able to climb the crater, but were forced to climb the last three-quarters of a mile on foot.

From Camp Arant, where we stopped, it was only a day to Medford, on the west side, where the party broke up and the cars were shipped home. This is a trip that I would recommend as a fine vaction jaunt, as the schedule calls for only 100 miles daily with plenty of time to hunt.

FIFTY-THOUSAND-MILE CLUB

Of Maxwell Owners Rapidly Enrolling Many Members—Organized as National Affair.

The club which was recently formed by the United States Motor Company, called the 50-000-mile Maxwell Motor Club, is rapidly enrolling a large number of members. The club was organized as a national affair, for the purpose of encouraging touring by automobile and rewards are given to Maxwell owners, according to mileage they have made. Many declarations of great mileage are being filed with the secretary in New York, the largest numbers qualifying for the silver medals which are given to the 25,000 mile class.

Lee Meriwether, a noted author, and a man who has driven Maxwell cars for many years and has more than passed the 100,000 mile mark, has been elected president of the club. He is a great tourist and motor scout, and is the first motorist to qualify for one of the gold medals given by the Maxwell Briscoe Company to owners covering the 50,000 miles. Reports from dealers in different sections of the country claim that the membership will reach a high figure, a large percentage being in the gold medal class.

The West Hoboken town council has awarded a contract for an automobile fire truck. The council is to pay $5150 for the apparatus and it is to be delivered about July 1.

FIRST JAP AUTO RUN.

Land of Wistaria Gets a Sporty Notion.

Prince Nagasi Led the Endurance Run.

Got Bit by Speed Bug and Wrecked House.

Japan's nerves are just recovering from the surprise of its first automobile endurance contest. No prizes were offered, but the management so arranged it that all cars arrived on time at the last control, making everybody a winner and satisfying every Japanese that his car was the best.

One of the amusing features of the run occured on the third day, when Percy Keeton, who was driving a Paige, yielded to Prince Nagasi, driving a 60 horse-power, who demanded the right to pilot the wayfarers through the town of Yaraka-Cho.

It so happened that Prince Nagasi, intoxicated by the fragrance of the wistaria blossoms, so far forgot his august self as to hit up a clip of sixty miles an hour. He had forgotten that the principal street through his native town is less than fifty-six-inch tread, and when he hit the expectant village at high speed he carried half the town with him as he plowed through the bamboo structure of the business houses and residences. This little adventure cost the prince one wagonload of yen, or $6 in American money.

Of course, the town felt highly honored in being placed on the route of the first endurance run, and has now begun to widen its principal street. Japan is taking to the motor car and the enterprising Japanese is learning a great deal more about his country than he has ever learned watching for Tanabata-Sana on the seventh night of the seventh moon. The Jinrikisha no longer satisfies the Japanese—he must have a motor car.

During the last eighteen months the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has shipped fifty Paige cars, Beverley and Kenilworth models, to its agent, Fujiwara & Co., of No. 5, Kojimachi-Ku-Tokoyo, Japan.

CARTERCAR IN NORTHWEST.

Big Deal Closed Last Week Which Will Open New Territory to Popular Machine.

A contract has just been closed by the Cartercar company with the MacEwan-Webster Auto Company of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, for the provinces of Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba. This is one of the largest automobile concerns in the Northwest, and has over a half-million dollars invested. A branch salesroom will be opened at Winnipeg by this company, and also one at Swift Current. Subagents will be placed in every important automobile city in the surrounding country.

G. K. MacEwan is at the head of the company and, having heard of the great popularity of the Cartercar as a selling proposition to the farmers in the Middle West, he got in touch with the factory and sent a representative to meet Harry R. Radford, general sales manager for the Cartercar company, with the result that the deal was closed last week. Two carloads were ordered for immediate delivery. MacEwan will be ready for a trainload of the cars in a few weeks' time.

NATIONAL MAY QUIT RACING.

Cars Have Won Everything; Retire With Laurels.

Boothe Says Company Busy Selling Cars.

And Can No Longer Spare the Time.

Earl T. Boothe, local National agent, stated yesterday that he had every reason to believe that the National company would retire from the racing game.

The winning of the 500-mile Indianapolis race last Thursday is the climax of a great string of track and road victories and the National people now believe that they may retire into the undefeated championship class with much grace.

The National was not entered in the Santa Monica road race this year because the factory was overcrowded with dealer's orders and the necessary men and attention could not be given to a racing stable. For this same reason, the National may not again appear on the track this season.

Another reason for Boothe's belief that the National will retire, is the fact that they have everything to lose and nothing to win. During its racing career, the car has competed in all manner of events from speedway racing to the Phoenix road race. The heads of the factory have always been in favor of racing. They contended that in no other way could the engineers of the company dedetermine just what parts needed strengthening.

Racing has served the purpose for the National, said Boothe, and as there is no need now for the advertising, there is no reason why we should not retire on our laurels.

PRAISES SLEEVE VALVE.

Expert Delighted With Gruelling Tests Made in Alps With American Engine.

W. Owen Thomas, chief engineer for Charles Y. Knight, recently returned to this country, after spending some time in Europe for the purpose of conducting a series of experiments with a Knight engined motor. He was sent abroad under a commission from the inventor of the sleeve valve type of motor, as Thomas is considered by Knight, himself, to be among the best engineers in the world, and he wished to have his technical opinion.

Thomas was sent to Switzerland to use his engineering talent in a most thorough test to ascertain if the motor car possessed sufficient merit to compete in the Grand Prix. He returns to this country satisfied that European manufacturers who obtain licenses to use the Knight engine in their cars, are fully qualified to build efficient machines.

"Four times did I drive this car across the Alps," said the engineer, "from Geneva to Tanlega to Chamineix. Every detail of the workings of the sleeve valve engine was noted. As if that were no a sufficiently strenuous test, I instituted a six-day test, driving the machine six times a day during that period over a specified course out of Geneva. Care was taken to pick the most difficult and the steepest grades. The car was a 26 horse-power machine, under Royal Automobile Club and S. A. E. rating.

Every place of the test indicated that the engine lived up to its reputation for increased power at slow speeds. The engines in this make show eighteen and one-half horse-power at 500 revolutions, for motors rated at twenty-six horse-power. I am confident that my report upon the Alpine tests for the Swiss car is satisfactory to the inventor, and in my opinion the sleeve valve type of engine as developed by Knight has reached the greatest engineering triumphs that it is possible that any engine could achieve."

STUDEBAKER EXTENDS.

Establishment of Branch in Walkerville, Ont., Will Work Begining of New Epoch.

Frank E. Fisher has been appointed as manager of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Limited. Fisher is a Canadian, and well acquainted with the people. He knows the country from one end to the other, and has been placed in full charge of the Studebaker business, which has as its center Walkeville, Ont. From this plant it is expected that the sales of the E.M.F. "30" and Flanders "20" will be pushed with the same vigor in Canada that has placed them in the front ranks of the motor car industry of the United States.

The new company, the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, has taken over the interests of the old firm, the E.M.F. Company of Canada. Fisher from the beginning of the old firm was closely associated with Walter E. Flanders. At first he was assistant to Flanders, then general manager, and later became assistant to Flanders when he became president of the E.M.F. Company. For the past year he has been connected with the expert sales of the E.M.F. "30" and Flanders "20" cars.

The appointment of Fisher harmonizes with the interests of the Canadian business. The factory resources of the Walkerville plant are being increased from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent., and whil ethe plant has heretofore largely assembled parts which have been manufactured in the Studebaker Detroit factories, hereafter the cars sold in Canada will be to a large extent manufactured from the raw material on Canadian soil.

An important feature of the new policy for Studebaker Canadian business is the fact that many of the cars shipped abroad for foreign trade will be manufactured in the Walkerville factory, and shipped to other portions of the British Empire through Canadian ports, and by Canadian ships. New direct factory branches will also, in all probability, be established in Western Canada.

Members of the Hoosier Motor Club who brought suit attacking the Indianapolis motor license ordinance, have lost their fight in the county Circuit Court, but may appeal the case to the Indiana Supreme Court. In the meantime the city is insisting that automobile owners pay the license fee for 1912.

Memorial Day Firing Squad in Oldsmobile Limited.

Capt. Harmon D. Ryus inspecting the new United States magazine rifle, the piece now used by all branches of the United States Army.

Soldiering on Wheels.

OLDSMOBILE HELPS PAY NATION'S DEBT.

BY AL. G. WADDELL.

THE automobile played an important part in the celebration of Memorial Day by the United Spanish War Veterans and the officers and enlisted men of the Seventh Regiment, who are ordered out each year on May 30 to do honor to the memory of the brave men who gave their lives in the service of their country.

Capt. Harmon D. Ryus, who commanded Co. E of the Third Missouri Volunteer Infantry in the Spanish-American campaign, and who is now manager of the Oldsmobile company of California, drove a big Oldsmobile Limited "6-60" to Central Park, where the memorial exercises of the Spanish War Veterans and the Seventh Regiment were held, and, after the last note of "taps" had died away, escorted Col. Schriber and his adjutant, Lieut. Merwin, into the big automobile, which was to be used as a reviewing stand.

As the regiment was marched down Hill street by Lieut.-Col. Saltmarsh, the colonel was driven along the long line and ahead to a place on Eighth street, where the review was to take place.

Capt. Ryus drove the big Oldsmobile close to the curb, and the regimental commander stood in the spacious tonneau with his adjutant and made automobile history as he returned the salutes of the captains as the companies swept past.

NOVEL REVIEWING STAND.

It was a novel sight to see the officers in the motor reviewing stand, the staff in the shadow of the tonneau, the field music facing the commanding officer from the opposite side of the street and the straight blue lines of soldiers passing between.

After the last company had passed in review the colonel was driven to the armory and, not content with his part in the day's programme, Capt. Ryus invited the crack firing squad from Co. A, under Sergt. S. A. Ingalls, to accompany him to the cemeteries, where the graves of former members of the organization are located.

In former years the firing squad has devoted the best part of the day to the duties, riding from one cemetery to another on the street cars and marching from the car lines to the graves of the veterans, but Thursday the whole series of ceremonies consumed less than two hours.

The members of the squad did not know that Capt. Ryus was a veteran of the Spanish War, and thought it strange that he should invite them to ride over the city under orders in the luxurious Oldsmobile Limited; but when they discovered the little bronze badge of service on the captain's Norfolk, the reason of his interest in the military was manifest.

EXCEED SPEED LIMIT.

Out East First street raced the big car. With the men under orders there was no speed limit and the first stop was made at Evergreen. The firing squad stepped to the ground and marched to the grave of Private Miles, son of Sergt. Harry Miles, of this city who was killed in battle on the Island of Luzon. There has never been a Memorial Day since 1899 that the men of Company A. did not turn out in memory of this brave young soldier.

From the grave of Private Miles, Sergt. Ingalls marched his men to the plot where a white stone marks the burial place of Private Grotto, who was buried with military honors in 1905.

After the volleys and the sweet notes of taps had died away among the hills, the men again entered the big car and Capt. Ryus headed for the Odd Fellow's Cemetery, where private Myers was laid to rest two years ago.

The last ceremony took place at Rosedale, over the grave of Private McCroy, who was one of the oldest men in the State service when he died, two years ago.

Back into the Oldsmobile and to the armory were the next orders and the nine soldiers took their seats once more and Capt. Ryus headed his pet car for the city.

The firing squad was composed of a picked number of Co. A's members. Sergt. S. A. Ingalls, in command; Corporal C M. Kerbin, Corporal C. E. Sawyer, Corporal F. W. Gollum, L. D. Starkey, Privates R. (Bud) Rose, R. J. Abbott, P. S. Hanson, J. H. Anderson and J. B. Waite. Capt. Ryus made the tenth man in the party, which was the first to employ an automobile in paying the debt of national gratitude and respect to those of the military who have departed.

After the discipline was relaxed and the men had left the car at the armory, three lusty soldier cheers for Capt. Ryus and his old regiment, the Third Missouri, awoke the echoes in the old buildings, and the men in uniform declared that again next Memorial Day, they would ride in the Oldsmobile if the captain would extend an invitation.

Good for Farmer.

BILLIONS FOR NAVY; LESS FOR NATIONAL HIGHWAY.

"A SUBJECT that appeals to automobile owners is the establishment of a system of national highways, connecting every large city and place of national interest from coast to coast," said M. J. Hammers, general manager of the Abbott Motor Company.

"It is astonishing when one thinks of the attention given the subject of road building during the days of establishment of our government, that after awhile enthusiasm should dwindle down to such a degree as to be incomparably outstripped by progress made along other lines. But I believe the country is now very much awake. Nearly everybody from the President down is talking good roads. It is not an unweighed statement to say that the matter is one of universal importance.

"Few subjects relating to material interests are so broad in their scope. It touches the interests of the millionaire, the farmer and the mechanic alike. A uniform system of good roads will be a great step in the solution of the problem of high cost of living. Millions of dollars are annually lost to the farmer because he is unable to get his produce to market at the right time, and city prices are kept high because produce cannot be obtained. Good roads the year around will contribute as much to prosperity, development and welfare of the entire nation as the railway, the interurban, the automobile, or the telephone to some communities.

"Nothing retards civilization and progress like inaccessibility. The barriers of the forest or rugged hill are oft-times as effectual as seclusion behind a prison wall. With good roads through the Cumberland Valley, the Ozark Mountains, and many other such districts, the notorious poverty and ignorance in those communities would disappear within a few years, and the great wealth of natural resources of these regions opened for the enjoyment of millions of people.

"No expenditure of public money could be more profitably made than in building national highways and assisting the States in road improvement. It has been figured out by government official that the $10,000,000 spent for the modern battleship would build and pave with best brick 666 miles of public highway. It would be quite impossible to estimate the value of 25,000 miles of such highways to the country. In the national expenditures of nearly twenty-two and a half billion dollars since 1875, the appropriations for road construction in the States amounted to $10,000, against $1,700,000,000 for the navy."

RUSSIA WANTS STODDARD-DAYTONS.

E. Roger Stearns of the Standard Motor Car Company, distributors of the Stoddard-Dayton car, says that not only is his line of cars making good in our own country, but orders are almost daily coming from across the Atlantic to the factory for cars to be delivered in some foreign country. Until recently motor cars for the royalty of Europe have been limited to the pick of foreign products. Now they are anxiously seeking for the best of American automobiles.

According to Stearns, the latest European order comes from the agent located at Odessa, who has cabled an order for a Stoddard-Dayton "Stratford" landaulet. The car will be shipped by the next steamer from New York and upon its arrival will be immediately delivered to His Majesty, the Czar of Russia, for his private use.

In weighing the load on each axle it is only necessary to drive the front wheels of the car on the scales, and then the rear wheels. The correct load per axle will be obtained if the car is in a horizontal position while being weighed.

NEW NATIONAL DOES FINE WORK UP GRADE.

A. P. Silvari came down from Santa Maria last week to secure one of the new National cars. With a party of friends he drove back over the coast road, and had a delightful trip. He 'phoned back that the new car took the steep mountain grades like so much level country.

Silvari secured one of the new seven-passenger models. The car is finished in National gray, and has all the new improvements. The Nationals now have a left-hand drive and center control. These new models also have the self-starter and electric lights, the tire pump on the engine and ten-inch upholstery.

This car was one of a shipment of two carloads which were received by the local agency last week, all of which were sold before their arrival.

Long Journey.

HUDSON FOLLOWS "THE TIMES" CAR.

PASADENA MAN WILL CROSS THE CONTINENT.

Will Leave for New York Over the Ocean-to-Ocean Trail—He Will Make the First Leg of the Journey, However, by Way of San Diego Instead of Established Route.

Accompanied by Irving Ingram, C. K. Myers of Pasadena left for New York yesterday morning in his 1912 Hudson "33" roadster, over the Santa Fe trail, the course of The Times car.

The first stop will be made at San Diego and from there, the Hudson will go through Yuma, Phoenix, Globe, Alberquerque, Santa Fe, Trinidad, Kansas City, Springfield, Indianapolis, Dayton, Columbus, Wheeling, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, arriving in New York, if the schedule is followed, about the middle of July.

This trip is solely for pleasure, and Meyers and his companion will make no attempts at speed records. This is the same route taken by F. W. Potter in his trip last year, and as the Hudson has demonstrated its ability in crossing the continent, without any difficulty, Myers is contemplating a pleasant journey as is looked upon as a booster for the great ocean-to-ocean highway, as the general automobile public is interested, and it is desirable that as many owners as possible make the trip for the good of the cause.

PROMINENT NEW YORK FIRM MAKES A MOVE.

Uses Silent Waverly Electric Trucks of Light and Heavy Design for Delivery Purposes—Order Follows a Test for Comparative Efficiency and Maintenance Cost.

The Fleischmann Yeast Company of New York City has now in its service twenty Waverly Electric light delivery wagons. The wagons were recently delivered and now comes an order from the same firm for a two-ton truck to be used in delivery. Another order for ten electrics on the same

The reputation of the Silent Waverly model for noiselessness has had a tendency to influence the large business houses such as Mandel Brothers, The Fleischmann company and The Higgins-Hollweg company of Indianapolis to make use of them in their delivery service. The popularity of this model with large use is due to the Waverley high efficiency shaft drive, which makes the car as noiseless as the Silent Waverley Broughham, which is so much in favor with the ladies.

The question of comparative cost of maintenance and ease of handling were promptly disposed of by competitive demonstrations, and the orders were fast in coming. It is now becoming more a problem of factory space and manufacturing capacity than a sales problem with the Waverley company. The demand for these light delivery wagons is growing every chassis comes from Mandel Brothers department store in Chicago, and four have been ordered for Louisville. day.

"Warren" Wins Again

Here's the Telegram

Fresno, Cal.

Cal. Auto Co.—Warren wins Toll House Hill Climb—eight miles long and five thousand feet elevation—defeating two Buicks, two Elmores, two Overlands, Velie, Reo, Nyberg. Time 20 min. 30 sec. Breaking all previous records.

C. W. Hobson Co., Inc.

Defeats 9 Cars In Toll House Hill Climbing Contest at Fresno

The famous Warren engine has again demonstrated its supremacy. The Toll House Climb is a notable Annual Event, and the Warren's record of 20 minutes and 30 seconds on this strenuous incline is a real triumph for modern automobile engine construction.

After all, the quality, strength and dependability of the engine determines the real value of a motor car.

"Warren" Also Holds World's Non-Motor-Stop Record

The Warren 12-30 stock car has broken the world's non-motor-stop record. The Warren engine has PROVED its strength and dependability by a supreme test—12,404 miles over bad roads, in all kinds of weather, under the most trying conditions—this wonderful engine never stopped once. The achievement has astounded the motoring world, and the consumption of gasoline—nearly 17 miles per gallon—was another remarkable feature. Yet, this car is moderately priced, and thousands of Warren owners say it is the handsomest medium-priced car on the market.

The Wonderful Winning "Warren" Sells at $1275 to $1800

Before you invest in an automobile—look to the engine—get ENGINE VALUE! The rest of the car is much less important. Come and see the triumphant Warren engine. We'll give you complete data on four other great Warren victories.

Most Miles Per Dollar—and That's Not All

DON'T buy Firestone Tires just because they offer you "Most miles per dollar of cost." It is true that they do this—True that in the actual road experience of thousands of owners—Firestones have demonstrated their superior wear.

But that is only one feature, It should not be your only consideration.

Buy Firestone Tires because their durability is not at the cost of the car.

Buy them because of their wonderful resiliency—their "life" even with tires pumped to capacity.

Buy them because they protect the costly mechanism of your car, minimize adjustments and repairs. And all this means real comfort in riding, too.

"Firestone" TIRES

Most Miles Per Dollar of Cost—And Most Car Protection

Resilience—this yield-and-spring—give-and-take—which protects your car—means quality of rubber, quality of fabric, quality of workmanship—all unstinted measure.

Every element in the tire is chosen for quality of service, regardless of cost—all handled and developed by experts under a rigid system of inspection that watches every movement of every man—that rejects everything but perfection. This is why you practice true tire and car economy only when you specify—"Firestone" Tires

NEW SIMPLEX HOME CLASSY.

Werner to Open Garage de Luxe Tomorrow.

Every Modern Appliance for Machine Shop.

Offices Prepared to Handle Big Business.

The new Simplex building at the corner of Eleventh and Olive streets, which is to be opened tomorrow, is one of the finest sales establishments in the city. The building is strictly up to date in every respect and no expense has been spared in Werner's attempt to make this the most attractive salesroom on Olive street.

The machine shop is equipped with every modern appliance for difficult workmanship and an automatic air pump has been installed which insures a good supply of air at all times.

One of the features of the garage is that there are two large doors, one for the entrance and the other for the exit. This will do away with the necessity of backing in and out of the garage.

A modern oil and gasoline outfit has been so arranged that patrons can be supplied without a moment's wait.

The offices are especially planned for the handling of a large volume of business with the greatest ease. There will also be a well-appointed room for the use of women who drive the Simplex cars or who patronize the salesroom, and a large fireplace in the center will do a great deal to cheer the cold days of winter.

The stockroom will be especially equipped and completely stocked so that every want can be supplied with dispatch, and spacious lockers have been provided for the use of those who care to lock up loose parts of the car. These lockers are large enough to hold an extra tire or two, if necessary.

AUTO TARIFF.

The Treasury Department at Washington has directed an appeal from the recent decision of the board of general appraisers as to the duty on leather strips for motor car treads. The appeal has been filed with the court of customs appeals. It appears that the articles come in lengths suitable for making the treads in tires; that they are beveled and that no further labor is necessary to adopt them to their special use except that they are filled with studs to prevent slipping. Duty was assessed upon the merchandise under paragraph 452 of the tariff act at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem, and the board sustained the protest of the importers that it was properly dutiable under paragraph 451 of said act, at the rate of 5 per cent. ad valorem and 10 per cent. ad valorem under the first and last provisions of the said paragraph.

ORIENTAL ROADS BEST.

President of Thomas Motor Car Company Says We Could Pattern After India.

F. R. Humpage, president of the E. R. Thomas Motor Car Company of Buffalo, believes that if we followed the customs used in older countries in road building, we might simplify the automobile construction problems fully 20 per cent. The Thomas president is widely known as an authority on highways, as he has made a special study of ancient arteries of traffic, especially in India and the Island of Java. Concrete pavements such as now are being laid in the Borough of Queens, he thinks, will make for roads that will give the maximum of service for all kinds of travel.

"While we build Thomas cars for the worst roads and test them on the poorest excuses for highways in the country," says the executive of the big Buffalo company, "it would be a more satisfactory condition of affairs if the maker of automobiles in the United States could build cars for highways with such surfaces as the roads have in the highways of the old world.

"With concrete surfaces made on old foundations prepared for the facing, why could not we have roads like those of India? Between Calcutta and Bombay centuries of traffic have not caused deterioration. This highway practically is in perfect condition. For 1000 miles out of Singapore and for 1500 miles out of Batavia, Java," Humpage adds, "the roads I have traversed have surfaces almost as perfect as hardwood floors. They are more like concrete sidewalks."

MY FIRST AUTO DRIVE.

Burt's Experience Was With an Old Single-cylinder Packard—A Wild Time.

BY W. J. BURT.

President and General Manager W. J. Burt Motor Car Company.

A MAN'S first automobile ride is a peculiar sensation, at least it was in the early automobile days, and mine was particularly funny.

It was about 1901, and the car was the first built by the Packard Automobile Company, at that time located in Warren, O. What I didn't know about an automobile would fill a large book, although I was a thorough mechanic, and at the time superintendent of a large printing machinery manufacturing works.

The vice-president of our company had purchased this machine, a single-cylinder with seats for two people, and with single-tube tires and wire wheels. He was in New York and had written me that if I could get his car to run (which was more than I could do) I could use it.

So, on the following Saturday morning, I got two of the boys to help me push it out of the shed into a field, as the garage was just at the rear of the factory, which was located at the edge of a country town.

Well, after raising blisters on my hand by cranking, I finally got the engine started. Now, imagine me out in the field in that old single-cylinder car, never before having been in an auto, much less knowing how to drive one. After getting the engine started I proceeded to try the levers, until I found how to start the car, and then my troubles just begun! For, after I found out how to put in the high-speed clutch, I was unable to release it, and it was fortunate for the residents of Niles, O., that I was in a field with a good, high fence around it.

While I knew how to release the clutch, it was stuck tight and refused to be released, and I was surely "going some" on high speed through that field of about ten acres, with no possible chance of getting that clutch out.

Now, there was no danger, for I knew how to stop the engine, but if I stopped would I ever get it started again? My hands were already blistered and my back sore from cranking, but, after a little of this work, I felt confident of my ability to steer the car, which was done by a lever with the left hand.

After lunch a friend and myself decided to go for a ride to a town twenty-five miles distant. After fixing the clutch we started and things went fine for the first ten miles, and by that time we had boiled away all the water; so we filled up and oiled up and were again on our way and doing nicely until within one mile of our destination, when we came to a horse hitched to a top buggy, tied to a fence in front of a farmhouse.

I noticed the horse was going to be frightened, so stopped the car, which was making more noise than a threshing machine, while my companion was starting up to hold the horse; but he was too late.

The horse pulled backward, stopping the buggy; then made a jump forward over the fence in the farmer's yard, then out of the yard over another fence into the garden. Remember, the buggy was still with him.

In the garden the front wheels struck a leaning apple tree, raising the buggy from the ground; the top caught over a limb that had been sawed off, and the harness broke, leaving the buggy hanging on the limb with the front wheels about eighteen inches off the ground. Surely a funny sight. That is, it is funny now, but is wasn't very funny then, for I was scared half as bad as the horse was. The people about that farmhouse refused to accept my apology, and insisted on mobbing me that minute; but we proceeded finally and got to the end of our twenty-five-mile drive at 7:30 o'clock—a total of six hours and thirty minutes going twenty-five miles.

The next morning about 10 o'clock we started out for home and, about seven miles out, in trying to avoid a mud hole, the machine skidded into about five inches of muck and we were four hours in getting it out. We arrived home at 9 o'clock that evening without a worse mishap than a puncture. We drove the last five miles on a flat tire, as we were too near exhausted to try fixing it.

This, as we look back, only the few years that it is, gives a good idea of how the automobile industry has advanced.

Speedway Place Winners

At Indianapolis. Above is Charley Merz of the Stutz, who finished fourth. Below is Hughie Hughes, who came in third in the Mercer.

Great Record.

STUTZ CAR RAN WITHOUT MECHANICAL ADJUSTMENT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "We are proud of the Stutz record in this race," said William D. Meyers, sales manager of the Stutz, when questioned at the speedway immediately after the race at Indianapolis.

"Our cars ran a remarkable race, requiring not the slightest mechanical adjustment, and stopped only to change tires or to get oil or gasoline.

"Our average speed per mile was greater than last year's winner, which is going some.

"I do not want to detract in the least from the glory due to the winner, but I am satisfied with the showing of the Stutz, because its record proves conclusively that it is absolutely right from an engineering and manufacturing viewpoint.

"Though in last year's race our single entry, the first car that Harry C. Stutz built, ran perfectly, some thought it an accident or extraordinary good luck, but this race, where our three cars were pitted against the speed creations of two continents, must convince the most skeptical that the Stutz is the staunchest-built, most-consistent and reliable car on four wheels.

"Gil Anderson in car No. 1 drove with wonderful skill, and it is to be regretted that he was ditched after completing 200 miles at an average speed of 80.36 miles per hour. Charles Merz in car No. 28 finished fourth, and the official time gives to him the splendid record of 6hr. 34m. 56s., or an average speed of 75.5 miles per hour. Lews Zengel in car No. 2 finished sixth, but he was only about fifteen minutes behind Merz; another proof of the uniformity of Stutz construction. Bill Knipper, our relief driver, did excellent work.

"Racing is approved by us because it demonstrates the real merits of a car. If it has defects it is going to show it in a 500-mile grind, and if it is perfect the officials say so and the newspapers tell it to the people. The information helps to form people's opinions and give them a basis for comparison and judging.

"Our idea when we started in business just a year ago was to build a high-grade car at a reasonable price, and Mr. Harry Stutz has been able, through long experience in motor car building, to design a car that sells at $2000 that possesses everything that can be found in any car regardless of price, and in addition that great virtue, reliability, which means service, economy and endurance satisfaction to the auto user."

Mr. Meyers's enthusiasm was interrupted by an oil-covered, khaki-attired individual, who joined the interested group, and who inquired for an auto truck. It was Harry C. Stutz, the builder of the car that made good in a day. From sunrise he was in the Stutz pit watching the product of his genius, and ready to help if help were needed, but it wasn't, because the Stutz did not require any mechanical adjustment during the entire 500-mile speed and endurance test.

HAS HIS TROUBLES.

Jackson Agent Has Hard Time Getting Cars to Fill Orders—New Model Is Popular.

During the last two weeks Charles H. Thompson, local agent for the Jackson, has delivered two carloads of the popular automobiles, to purchasers who had been waiting several weeks for their arrival.

The new models of the Jackson have created quite a furore in automobile circles and Thompson has found it hard to keep up with the great number of orders which he has taken lately.

At present the local Jackson distributor is keeping a wire hot with instructions for the shipment of a number of cars and is insisting at long range that the next arrival gets to Los Angeles on time.

GOODYEAR RUBBER FOR PLANE.

Harry Attwood Visits Ohio Factory to Arrange for Transatlantic Equipment.

A recent visitor at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber plant was Harry Atwood, famous aviator. He visited the Akron (O.) plant for the purpose of inspecting the progress of the manufacture of parts to be used on the special machine with which he will attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean this year. He feels confident that his trip will be successful, and he expects to make the flight in 48 hours.

According to Atwood atmospheric conditions will be best for such an attempt in June or July, and he expects to have all apparatus ready and all arrangements completed by then. The Navy Department will be asked to assign, if convenient, a number of government ships along the route that will be taken by the daring air man, in case of accident, to rescue him, or if the trip is successful, to mark the stages of the flight.

Atwood realizes that his success, and even his life, may depend upon every detail, and therefore he has made a careful study of his machine, and not one little thing has been neglected. Goodyear rubberized aeroplane fabric and other Goodyear aeroplane accessories will be used for the fitting of the machine. It is to be a specially constructed Burgess hydroplane. The expenses of the entire attempt to cross the Atlantic will be about $10,000.

NO RACE AT FAIRMOUNT PARK.

Doubt as to whether the 200-mile Fairmount Park automobile race at Philadelphia will be held has been set at rest by the refusal of the Fairmount Park Commission to grant permission to the Quaker City Motor Club, under whose auspices the race is run, to use the park. This action on the part of the commission marks the passing of the last automobile classic from the Eastern States this year, and it was a direct outcome of a crusade started some time ago by Dr. J. W. White, a member of the commission, who declared that he thought the races were a menace to human life. He added the objection that the speeding automobiles played great havoc with the park roads, tearing them up to such an extent that it took too much time and expense to get them back in shape.

The first gasoline fire engine to be installed in the Boston fire department service was given a testing recently. The engine shot a stream up over the top of the tower of a building 165 feet in the air.

The town officials of Brookline, Mass., having added several pieces of motor apparatus to its fire department, has decided that its Chief of Police should also have a car and has purchased one for him.

Elmore Wins the Confidence of Its Owners as Attested Below:

Elmore Manufacturing Co.,
Los Angeles Branch, 1231-33 S. Main St.,
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gentlemen:

In compliance with your request for an expression from me in regard to the service I have had from my Elmore car, I take pleasure in saying that my car was purchased on Mar. 25, 1909, and has been in constant service since that time, with the exception of three days when it was in the shop for repairs to clutch. My total repair bill for the three years has been exactly $25.00, which was on account of above repairs.

My car is a three cylinder touring car type, and I have used it in rent service for the past year and subjected it to some very severe tests. On Sunday, May 19th, I covered 226 miles between the hours of nine and five o'clock. No hill is too steep and no road is too long for my car, and I do not feel competent to express my full appreciation of this car.

Trusting this letter will be of service to you, and a boost to the everlasting Elmore, I beg to remain respectfully yours, (Signed) (Miss) Orell Bigelow.

Overland

OUR MODEL 59T. is a thirty horsepower, 5-passenger touring car. It is priced at $900. Have you ever seen a car of this type for less than $1200?

There are more Overland cars being bought today than any other similar car in the world.

This great success must be due to the fact that we are giving more car for less money than any other maker in the business. Compare our cars with anything else on the market and you will quickly realize where you can get the most in an automobile for the least amount of money. Write for a catalogue.

BIGGEST CHALMERS TOUR.

Entries for Annual Run From Denver to Canyon City Exceed Last Year's Mark.

The third annual tour of Chalmers cars will be held in Denver again this year. It will take place June 12, 13 and 14, and will consist of a run from Denver to Canyon City, Colo. This event has become one of the big motor features of the Colorado City, the route being laid out over one of the finest scenic drives in the world. It takes in the Sky-line drive and will go to the top of the Royal Gorge.

Entries have not been slow in coming in, and already more have been received than last year, making it evident that it will be the most successful of the Chalmers owners' tours. The prize offered is a handsome silver trophy, which will be presented by J. H. McDuffee of the McDuffee Motor Company of Denver.

The rules of the tour are simple. Only Chalmers cars may participate, and each must be driven by its owner or some members of his family. No professional driver may compete. The tour is run under the rules of the American Automobile Association, and cars are penalized according to performance on the road. There is no technical examination of machines at the conclusion of the tour.

LONG RUN ABANDONED.

The Denver Chamber of Commerce abandoned its project for a Denver-New York sociability run and made Indianapolis the easternmost point touched by the tour. This action was taken because the managers felt that a shorter tour through the Middle West would mean more to the good roads and tourist movements of Colorado and the West than a long trip to the eastern seaboard, which allows only a short stop to be made in each town. Great interest is being taken in the tour by the local automobilists, and it is probable that there will be at least twenty entries.

Wise Joe.

DAWSON WILL BUY RANCH WITH SPEEDWAY WINNINGS

[SPECIAL BY FEDERAL WIRELESS TELEGRAPH LINE.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) June 1.—Getting ready to leave Indianapolis yesterday, Joe Dawson, winner of the 500-mile championship race, announced that he will be seen on the road in the big race to take place at Tacoma, Wash., July 5 and 6. In the meantime he will continue training in the West and he has his mind made up to buy a ranch with his prize money, $30,000. "I shall look over California before deciding," he said. "It needs lots of fresh air to keep me in form, and California looks good to me."

Dawson ascribes his victory over the others largely to luck, but the experts here give him credit for astute generalship. He got back to his wheel replacing his relief just at the critical moment.

A little either way might have spoiled his finish, which broke all records for breakneck speed. Fourteen of the twenty-four cars which faced the starter were burned up in vital spots or otherwise put out of commission by the terrific pace set by the leaders. Yet none of the drivers or mechanics received more than a bruise or a scratch. It was a record race for slicing time for distance and for freedom accidents. After the Tacoma meet, if present arrangements hold, the pick of the drivers will be seen together in California. The California Autoists who came to Indianapolis to see their own team make a brilliant race hope to make definite plans for a fall tournament after they return. Ralph De Palma took his defeat good-naturedly. He praises Dawson's judgment, while regretting his own hard luck.

BIG MOTOR TRUCK ORDER.

Up-to-Date Service to Be Installed for Handling Suburban Deliveries of Chicago Merchants.

Probably the largest order ever placed with one organization for motor trucks was given last week to the International Motor Company, makers of the Mack, Saurer and Hewitt trucks. The Star Motor Delivery Company of Chicago, one of the largest organizations formed in the country for public transportation service, has just placed an order for fifty Mack trucks of various sizes. The trucks are to be put into service within the next few months for handling urban and suburban delivery service of Chicago merchants.

The size of the order is impressive and convincing of the tremendous advance of the commercial motor vehicle industry. The trucks will be used under as severe conditions as any motor trucks in service for public transportation work. The placing of the order is flattering to the International Motor Company in particular, as it was after a most thorough examination, and after rigid tests of practically every make of motor truck.

Another large order placed with the same company by the Chicago Fuel Company is perhaps the largest single order made by a coal merchant for motor transportation. This order was for twenty-five Saurer trucks. The first fifteen of the twenty-five vehicles ordered by the fuel concern will displace seventy double teams.

It is said that before deciding to motorize their delivery department they also made a most thorough investigation of the truck situation. The City Fuel Company will use their twenty-five Saurer trucks in the "loop" district of Chicago. The full order of motor vehicles will displace 100 horses and twenty-five wagons.

The Oakland "40" Offers More Automobile Value Than Any Other Car At Its Price—$1800

In this model there is brought out for the first time a car of superior design and construction, with sufficient power at a price heretofore unheard of.

Designed for the most strenuous touring imaginable, it combines speed with comfort. The motor has sufficient power to meet all road conditions, and is a splendid hill climber. The chassis construction is almost identical with that of the other OAKLAND models. The clean cut unit power plant is used, with selective sliding gear transmission and final drive is by shaft. The straight line, fore-door touring body design is very attractive and beautifully finished.

Model "40" fills a long-felt want for a machine of sufficient horsepower to answer every demand made upon it, and yet offered at a price which brings it within reach of the average buyer. It is an ideal family car in that it is easy to handle and easy to maintain.

The price is $1800 f.o.b. Los Angeles, with the following equipment: Gas headlights, oil side lights, tail light, robe rail, horn, gas tank, tools, pump, jack, tire repair kit, top, glass front, speedometer, Presto tank, demountable rims, extra casing and tube, tire covers, tire carriers and Presto starter. Nickel trimmed electric side and tail lamps with batteries, $25 each extra.

Oakland

Made in Pontiac, Michigan. U.S.A.

You will make a serious mistake if you buy an automobile without first investigating the OAKLAND. This wonderful car comes in a large variety of models priced as low as $1250—roadsters, limousines, coupes and three models of touring cars. You can pay a higher price, but you cannot get more in service, in durability and general all-around excellence than you can get in the OAKLAND. There is a demonstrator at your service—if you cannot ride in it call or write for literature.

POWER WASTERS.

Tight bearings consume a needless amount of power. The wheel bearings, especially, should never be too tight. They not only wear, but also consume an unnecessary amount of power. If the owner of the car adjusts his own wheel bearings, he should remember that the bearings should have a barely perceptible play. In the cup-and-cone type, for instance, if the wheel is jacked up clear of the ground, as it should be when the adjustment is made, an almost imperceptible play should be observed at the rims. The play should be no more than the mere feeling that it is not tight. After the adjustment has been made and the nuts tightened, a check may be made upon it by spinning the wheel free, if it is a front wheel. The wheel should swing like a pendulum several times before coming to rest.

Every steamship sailing from Puget Sound for the Antipodes is carrying all the automobiles it can accommodate. On the steamship Strathgyle, which recently sailed from Everett, Wash., there were sixty-three automobiles, the total value of which is estimated at $72,000.

EXPRESSIVE NAMES FOR RACING CARS.

The naming of the racing car is often as much of a problem as the selecting of a cognomen for a new-born baby, and once a good name is hit upon, it goes down in indelible ink on the pages of gasoline history.

Names are usually suggested by some characteristic of the car itself. The Marmon "Wasp" took its name from its long slender lines. The Chalmers "Blue Bird" got its name from the color of the car. The "Blitzen Benz" was called "Blitzen" because it showed lightning speed in its first workout.

The White Steamer won its name of "Whistling Billy" from the peculiar noise. Barney Oldfield's "Red Devil" came from the color of the car and the spirit of the dare-devil driver.

In the coming 500-mile race at Indianapolis, May 30, a number of new names will be sprung. The Continental will carry the title of "The Shark," from the peculiar tail which it carries for balance.

Among the best of the new names is the Stutz "Bear Cat." Bear Cat has been a synonym for fighting spirit for many decades, and the little car which made such a wonderful showing in the Santa Monica road race is expressively named; and Stutz rooters generally are predicting great things for the "Bear Cat" in the coming Indianapolis grind.

NOVEL TRUCK BODIES.

Unique Tilting Device as Time-Peerless Has One Possessing a Saving Feature.

Great improvements are being made each day in the design of the leading motor truck makers. This is shown mostly in designing and building special body forms for particular kinds of service, as was strikingly illustrated in Worcester, Mass., where a Peerless motor truck in nine and one-half hours delivered sixty tons of coal over rather long hauls to two public institutions.

The truck carried a special body unloading mechanically without the aid of shovels. The coal was hauled from the Claflin & Summer Coal Company's yard to the State Hospital and the Worcester Technical School.

It is the business of the corps of traffic experts to see that every purchaser gets the kind of body that will be most successful in his line of business. The widest variety of special body forms for all kinds of loads is supplied with Peerless motor trucks, and that they are perfectly adapted to the use to which they are applied, is shown by the perfect actions of the vehicle delivering the sixty tons of coal in disposing of its load.

Without the necessity of leaving the seat, upon arriving at his destination, the driver tripped a small lever and instantly the body raised up in the air and at once traveled and tilted toward the rear. When the load was out the truck started immediately upon its return trip, the body retaining its unusual position. The bystanders who were closely watching the proceedings of the truck, were relieved to see that while the machine was under way the body was descending. It settled quietly into place before the truck had traveled 300 feet. The body may be raised or lowered at will by the power of the engine, whether the truck is moving or still. The method of bringing it down while under way emphasizes the time-saving value of the vehicle.

NEW MACADAM ROAD.

The Wisconsin Highway Commission has approved plans and begun work on a new highway of a permanent nature between Neenah-Menasha and Appleton, Wis. The road will be built by the commission at a cost of $7500 to the State, as an experimental or illustrative highway. The road will be constructed of macadam with a bituminous binder as wearing surface, making it practically an asphalt pavement.

GOLF NOTES.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

So St. Andrews Royal and Ancient has succumbed to the call of bogey. Until now St. Andrews has declined to recognize the social status of Col. Bogey and has rigidly excluded him from official cognizance.

But the colonel has made himself very popular with the average player. He sets a standard to which they can reasonably aspire, he forms a worthy opponent whom they can occasionally beat. Par, which is based upon perfect golf, is a nightmare, a perpetual terror to the ordinary player of small skill, and puts him so completely out of conceit with himself and his game that all pleasure is lost and golf becomes more of a hopeless treadmill than a game.

But Col. Bogey is not quite so tarnation perfect. He is merely rather good. At certain holes he equals par. It is true, and with what pride, what unalloyed joy your ambitious dub will point this fact out to you. That is part of the colonel's charm. And at those holes where he takes just one stroke more—ah, it is just that little more that means oh, so much. To have done a hole in bogey figures is eminently satisfactory, not exactly brilliant, perhaps, but nothing to be ashamed of.

And be it whispered, that the clubs which, in their wisdom, establish a very liberal difference between par and bogey are the clubs that are the most popular, with both the majority and the star players. For the majority find a great salve to their susceptibilities while the star enjoys a proportionately superior feeling over his lesser brethren.

Why, think you, the easterners flock in their hundreds to Annandale while they but flock in their twos and fours to San Gabriel and Los Angeles? The clubhouse is charming, it is true, but so are the others. The view? Each of the others can brag of their view. No, messieurs, the fact that par is 73 and bogey 84 proves a very irresistible lure at Annandale, believe me.

The 78 and 80 at Los Angeles is meager consolation for the dubs. In fact, it amounts to miserable stinginess of a most reprehensible order. The 74 and 78 at San Gabriel is kinder, just a sop, but it is reluctant kindness. But Annandale's 73 and 84 is open-handed generosity of the most large-hearted kind, a fact which the lords of the links, the superior scratch men, should bear in mind. Heaven knows they can afford to be generous over such things—and it makes such a difference to the self-esteem of the small fry.

Caddie Dialogues.

A recent caddie strike was averted at San Gabriel by according the efficient caddies higher pay and promising the others that they should be treated likewise directly they had qualified for it. As evidence of qualification, the boys have to get half a dozen signatures from golfers testifying to the fact that they performed their duties properly during a given round.

This then is the sort of conversation one can overhear at paying-off time:

"Said I kicked his ball, did'ee? Wasn't no where near his ol' ball. Let he knows about it! Why, he was busily hitching up his trousers when he oughter bin looking where the ball went."

"Yep, said I had a lot to learn before I'd make a caddie. Any body'd think he knew summat about it. Gee, but you should see that boob drive. According to him the caddie ought to be able to smell when the ball is going back into the clubhouse. Said I didn't act right on the green! Jimmy, ain't he got a nerve, that's all! You'd think he was shoveling dirt down a drain to see him putter."

"Oh, so he says I talked too much, did 'e? I like his style. Why, I never opened me mouf all the way."

"Did 'e tell you I give him a putter instead of a iron? Why, 'e dunno nothing abart it. He'd drive off with his cleek if I didn't tell what ter use. Time and again he'd grab his driver for a brassie shot and he only knows which is his putter by a cross what he's carved on the handle. Fancy havin' a boob like that say if you're a good caddie or not."

"Say, did you ever caddie for that old guy? 'Stand back, please,' he says in his most perlite voice. 'Kindly keep clear of my line of vision.' 'My good boy,' he says, a-looking at me as if I had spit on him, 'can't you manage to leave off twiddling that confounded leg of yours while I make this putt?' My, but don't he make me sick?? 'It's really most distressing to endeavor to play such a scientific game with such an inexperienced caddie,' he says. 'My good boy, I really ask you to sweep that again.' And then he stands looking at me as if he was going to be 'orrible seasick."

[illegible] Golf.

At last golf is receiving the higher recognition that was its due. The Royal Academy in London has accepted a picture called "On the Links," by Miss Flora Lion, depicting a very robust young female—such as the Times artist considered suitable for the head of this column—with an expression upon her strong young face denoting a peculiar capacity for settling caddie strikes. At least that's how it looks to me in the reproduction they have sent me. Or else she is playing on a Sunday in defiance of the Green Committee's notice that no women are allowed to play on that day. Still, there it is. We are represented at the Royal Academy.

The Women Players.

By the way, it is interesting to note that every club in every town in every country is troubled with the same vexed question of the women players intruding upon the courses on Saturdays and Sundays. England and Scotland, in particular, have a large army of women players who are engaged during the week and only have those days in which to play, even as the men. Several clubs have endeavored to solve the problem by establishing separate nine-hole courses which, in parenthesis, are by no means popular.

Now London is endeavoring to start a ladies' club with an eighteen-hole course, but so far, its only supporters are men. In the meantime the lady members of the various clubs are in revolt, letters are pouring in to the papers, and one way and another things are getting quite lively.

What It Means to Be Chick.

"Chick" Evans may be said to have reached the pinnacle of fame for a new golf ball has been named after him and no less than seven prominent women players in the English championship used it. This is a rare honor conferred upon the elect few. Of course Mr. Tufts is named after a ball—Baby Dimple Tufts—but that is not quite the same thing.

WHAT TO DO WHEN BITTEN BY SNAKES.

Although snakes are not by any means numerous in our hills, it is a wise plan to sew a few grains of potassium permanganate in the seam of some article of clothing which is constantly worn on the trip.

Should you be bitten by a rattler don't get rattled yourself, but make a tourniquet immediately above the part affected, then with your pocket knife cut a three-cornered place where stung and suck the blood out thoroughly. If water is not handy to make a solution drop a few of the crystals of permanganate on the sore and bind up.

Some Like 'Em.

THE CASE FOR AND ALSO AGAINST CAMP WAGONS.

ALTHOUGH these are supposed to be the days of automobile travel the old camp wagon still holds a prominent place with the many vacationists who plan to traverse the highways and byways this summer, and whether it is a hankering back to the soil, or just plain wanderlust it seems that this season will break the record for camp wagon parties to such an extent that it is really hard to get a good team and outfit even at this early date.

And at that a camp wagon equipped with the latest conveniences, and the many little private inventions which have been discovered through a spirit of friendly rivalry among outdoor enthusiasts is apt to prove an expensive proposition and a sort of lottery as far as pleasure and comfort is concerned.

Of course, there are camp wagons and camp wagons de luxe. Campers there are who enjoy this mode of travel, and others who have tried it and come back saying "never again," but all agree that it affords a grand opportunity of dropping a good many iron dollars all along the line.

If you need provisions at a small town they "stick you," because they figure that they will never see you again. If it is hay or grain at a national resort they stick you because they know you've simply got to have it. The traveling is slow and never did horses eat as much as they do when in the camp wagon harness, so if you are limited in means don't attempt an extended trip, as you may find yourself stranded in some jay town with a couple of hayburners eating the stub off your check-book.

However, as California is a made-to-order country for this sort of travel, with good roads, equable climate, plenty of watering places, and unsurpassed scenery, it is not surprising that although it is frightfully expensive and sometimes inconvenient, campers with their outfits fairly dot the county roads.

The most popular camp wagon route is through the San Fernando Valley, San Francisquito Canyon, and on up through the aqueduct country, which is most interesting, then to Mt. Whitney, Lake Tahoe and the Yosemite, returning by the coast route.

This trip may be taken leisurely in three months.

A MODEL WAGON.

One very convenient four-wheeler was used for this trip last year by Dr. Hays of this city, who spent much time, thought and money in getting the very best, most compact arrangement for the family outing, and when completed had sleeping room for six people.

He bought a large, two-horse wagon bed; built his own wagon top of iron girders, and canvas sides equipped on rollers.

Stretcher beds were clamped to the iron uprights and lockers were built on the outside of the wagon frame, as well as along the inside, and furnished the seats during the day, while at night the beds were hooked up over them. In the center of the wagon was an iron frame suspension table with a removable top, which could be hooked up out of the way when not in use.

BALL-BEARING WHEEL.

The wheels were equipped with ball-bearings, just like an auto, making the riding much easier, and eliminating the constant greasing necessary with the ordinary wagon.

This extra wheel attachment cost $40, but the campers found it such an improvement that it was well worth the extra outlay.

A special walled-in compartment was built for the wood stove on which the cooking was done while en route, preventing grease and dirt from scattering about.

They carried only unperishable goods, were gone about three months and estimated the cost of the trip at $1000. Considering that the outfit cost about $350, and that hay per ton will run up as high as $40 and grain to $60 with everything proportionately as high all along the route, this seems like a conservative estimate.

Of course, the doctor traveled in the "de luxe" style and did not try to economize so it is really possible to believe that the same country may be covered on one-third that amount as planned by a young couple who left last week over the same route.

THE RIGHT TIME.

There is no doubt but that this is the best time of the year for such a trip as it is very easy to dress warmly enough, while the heat and dust of the late summer is likely to prove disagreeable.

Perhaps the fact that the country just now is green providing plenty of feed for the horses and that it is possible,, by scheming, to carry most of the provisions necessary, will make this party's camp trip an exception to the rule.

A small one-burner gasoline stove with an oven was taken along making it easy to bake bread and biscuit, roast chicken or game and eliminating the constant frying of food so usual while camping.

WHAT TO CARRY.

Flour, yeast, potatoes, onions, a kit of pigs feet, bacon, beans,, smoked tongue, dried beef, coffee, tea, chocolate, canned cream and other canned goods were on the list for the culinary department and sounds mighty good and also reasonable. The wagon has a spring mattress built midway between the top and the wagon bed so that in case of a shower it would be easy to keep dry.

The outfit cost about $200.

Campers who rig up their wagons in this manner seldom take a tent, but a covered wagon is really rather a luxury than a necessity as any man with an ordinary delivery wagon can start out on a leisurely jaunt taking a lean-to or tent to pitch at night and gathering wood for heating and cooking purposes along the line.

A hammock is a great source of enjoyment on these excursions and every camper should have one tucked away for those two big shade trees that are sure to be invitingly near the road when the sun is hot, the horses tired and mealtime near at hand.

CY YOUNG IS NOT ALL IN.

NEW PHILADELPHIA (O.), May 25.—"Someone does not know what he is talking about," was the statement made by Cy Young at his home in Peoli, near here, this afternoon, when asked if it were true that he had requested his release from the Boston Nationals and dcided to retire from the diamond.

Newspapers Saturday had stories sent out from Pittsburgh that Young's arm had gone back on him and that he would not play again.

"That's all a lie," Cy continued. "I'm going to work on my farm here for several weeks to rid my arm of a little temporary trouble which every pitcher has once in a while, and then report to Manager Kling. I want to get back into harness in three weeks. I've still got some baseball in me, and I'll prove it."

"What are you doing to strengthen your arm?" the old warhorse was asked.

"Well, I'm getting ready to plow other farmers around here and have my corn ready to plow. Next to baseball, I like to pick my way along the furrows best.

"Every time I take a little rest somebody starts a report that I'm down and out. Far from it thistime; I'll do some good for my team yet."

Will They Win?

AN ANALYSIS OF THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Will the Chicago White Sox win another American League pennant for Charles (Old Roman) Comiskey?

Will Callahan's men duplicate the work of Fielder Jones's 1906 Sox and win another world's championship?

American League baseball fans are asking each other these questions ever since James John Callahan's Chicago American League team secured a flying start in the 1912 championship race.

It seems perfectly natural for the "Old Roman" to pilot, direct or own pennant-winning ball clubs. He has been on the job since back in 1885, when he piloted the St. Louis Browns to victory in the American Association.

Comiskey's ability as a ball man has never been questioned; then he always has had his share of luck; a happy combination of the two enabled him to pilot four pennant winners, win one world's championship and run a dead heat for another with the old St. Louis Browns; win two championships and one world's series with the Chicago White Sox.

Clarke Griffith piloted the White Sox to victory in 1901. Fielder Jones managed the world's championship White Sox of 1906. The Sox defeated the Cubs that year for the world's title.

Callahan, the leader of the 1912 White Sox, rounded up the team that brought fame and fortune to Fielder Jones.

"Cal" was managing the Sox in 1904. After hitting the high spots one night in New York he resigned and suggested the appointment of Jones as manager. Comiskey was unwilling to lose Callahan, but Jimmy said that he must first learn to manage himself before he would attempt to run another big league team.

The team that Callahan rounded up for Jones made a big flash in 1905 and hit the bull's-eye in 1906. Callahan discovered Ed Walsh, signed Frank Smith, Nick Altrock and Harry White.

FAMOUS SOX INFIELD.

Donohue, Isbell, Davis, Tannehill and Rohe, the famous Sox infield, was whipped into shape by Callahan. Fielder Jones learned the game under Callahan; so did Eddie Hahn. Pat Dougherty was the only member of the champion Sox that Jones brought to Chicago. Jones made Comiskey buy Pat's release from New York.

If Callahan could rib up a winner for Fielder Jones, why can't he put a winner in the field for himself? Baseball men have been putting this query to each other ever since the 1912 season opened and the Sox beat the gate for a flying start.

Callahan's sensational come-back stunt last year was the feature of the American League. This season he is straining every nerve to turn another big trick. "Cal" learned to manage himself in semi-professional ball; now he wants to top off his baseball career as manager of a pennant winner and world's championship team.

Are the Sox playing beyond their speed? Does the club possess real "class" and will it go to the route and stand the gaff? Who are the big men of the Sox team?

It requires a thorough analysis of the Chicago American League Club to answer these questions..

The "big men" of the club are Callahan, Walsh and Harry Lord. Walsh is the best pitcher in the American League, with the exception of Walter Johnson. Lord is the star third sacker of the American League and one of the greatest hitting infielders in the game. Callahan is a great sticker, base runner and outfielder and one of the brainiest ball players in the game.

Callahan directs the work of the Sox outfield. Lord bosses the infield and with Sullivan behind the bat the team is amply fortified with baseball brains. Sullivan dislocated a shoulder during the series with the Browns at Sportsman's Park, and may not get back in the game for a month. The veteran catcher and George Davis were Fielder Jones's chief lieutenants in 1906.

GREAT TWIRLING CORPS.

One of the essentials of a winning ball club is a great twirling corps. Connie Mack had the greatest pitching staff in the American League last year; many good judges think Callahan has a better pitching staff than Mack this year.

Walsh is the heavy man of the Sox staff, with Jim Scott, Lange, "Butcher" Zens, "Doc" White, Mogridge and "Rube" Peters to help the spitball king out. Walsh is the iron man of the American League. He takes his turn on the mound and is always ready to pull one of his teammates out of a bad hole. Walsh would pitch his right arm off for Comiskey and Callahan.

Few people appreciate the tremendous handicap under which Walsh labors. The spitball king is afflicted with hernia, and even when he is pitching ball he is heavily harnessed and braced about the abdomen. Even ball players have often asked why Walsh is so careless with his salary wing; pitching out of his turn and working day in and day out for the Chicago club. Ed explains it this way:

"I'm liable to 'crack' and go down for good any time. No use preserving my arm in a glass case. I like to work and my wing has never given me any trouble. When my baseball candle goes out it will hardly be due to a dead arm. I'm not afraid of that. I'd throw my arm off to win a pennant for Comiskey and Callahan. Comiskey is like a father to me. I love him, and my work for the 'Old Roman' is inspired by a higher motive than mere salary. Now you have the real reason why Ed Walsh is willing to work every day in the year to win ball games for Comiskey's club."

Walsh is the greatest relief pitcher in the game. He can go in cold and pitch better ball than almost any other curve artist in either big ring.

Walsh is Callahan's ace in the hole. When Scott weakens or Lange blows up or Benz tires, Walsh is always ready to step on the firing line and deliver.

The injury to Sullivan was a hard blow to Chicago. The veteran backstop was hurt bouncing off Paul Kritchell's back. He hit Kritchell amidship at the plate, and almost tore himself apart in the collision. Block has been catching for Chicago ever since.

RATH A GOOD MAN.

The right side of the Sox team was figured the weak end of the combination at the start of the campaign. Zeider at first, Rath at second and Walter Mattick in right lined up in the inaugural games. Matty McIntyre replaced Mattick in right field. John Collins succeeded McIntyre. Collins is hammering the ball hard. Rath at second base is playing whirlwind baseball. He fields the position acceptably and is hitting hard and scoring runs.

Weaver at short is another new man who has been showing great form. Weaver makes Weaver's name figure regularly in the error columns, but he plays good ball, nevertheless, and is hitting timely.

"Ping" Bodie, the center fielder, is the slugger of the club. Bodie comes from California and is known as the Pacific Coast fence-smasher. "Ping" is a slugger par excellence. St. Louis fans will remember Bodie as the player Callahan called down so hard one Sunday at Sportsman's Park.

Callahan walked to first on a free ticket. Bodie followed him at the plate and whaled away at the first ball, forcing "Cal" at second. Jimmy roared like a mad bull.

"How often do I have to tell you not to swing at the first ball unless the man on base has the signal for the hit and run?" inquired Callahan.

"I forgot about you being down there, and the ball looked so good I couldn't resist taking a wallop at it," replied Bodie.

"Ping" is not a very bright ball player, but he certainly knows how to pickle the pill. He reminds old-timers of "Tip" O'Neill, the famous slugger of Charlie Comiskey's St. Louis Browns of 1885, Bodie is a right-hand sticker.

OTHER PLAYERS SMASH ROOTERS.

BALTIMORE, June 1.—The recent Cobb incident calls to the bind of the Baltimore fan similar events that have been pulled o ffat the loca lparks. Only lost summer an unwise rooter in the grand stand took occasion to hurl at Joe Kelly some pointed remarks anent the former's family connection, ball playing and managing ability. Unfortunately for the brave rooter, sitting several rows from the boxes, a brother-in-law of Kelley's was nigh and absorbed the data and opinions aforesaid.

One small moment, and lo! a well directed right found a momentary resting place on the rooter's chin. Friends of said rooter, then joined the fray, fists swung rightand left, a chair or two split the summer afternoon atmosphere, one of them landing near Sir Joseph, standing on the grass in front of the stand. He hurled it back in the struggling little band of warriors and things waxed warm when the bluecoats and special officers quelled the little riot. No action was taken, officia lor otherwise.

Then again, when many of the present rooters were reveling in the invention of the safety pin, one Patsy Tebeau, dauntless leader of the old Clevelands, playfully chivvied a bat into the grand stand. They were the daps of pennant winning and a game with Cleveland at old Union Park met blood, so when Patsy allowed his none-too-tranquil temper to get the better of his discretion, there were doings. That time the bluecoats were strictly on the job and hustling Pat to a patrol wagon they saved him from irate fans. Tebeau slipped twenty-five and costs to the judge next morning and the incident was closed.

Umpires have come in for their share of abuse, physical and rhetorical, opposing players have been unmercifully guyed, but it remained for the one and only Tyrue to riz up on his hind legs and properly punish a rooter of the non-sportive class.

"My Dear Fellow, Get No-Rim-Cut Tires"

Advised Today by 200,000 Users

Some 200,000 motor car owners are today advising No-Rim-Cut tires.

They have tested out, in the past few years, over a million Goodyear tires. They have proved our claim that No-Rim-Cut tires cut tire bills right in two.

They have told one another. Now these patent tires by far outsell any other tire in existence.

10% Oversize

No-Rim-Cut Tires are 10 per cent over the rated size. That means 10 per cent more air—10 per cent added carrying capacity. And that, with the average car, adds 25 per cent to the tire mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires end rim-cutting forever. That means another average saving of 23 per cent.

For statistics show that 23 per cent of ruined old-type tires are rim-cut.

Ask Any User

Ask any man who knows. There are 200,000 of them. You will never again buy tires that rim-cut—never buy skimpy tires.

Ask someone today. Before you buy another tire, find out what this new type means.

Our 1912 Tire Book, based on 13 years of tire making, is filled with facts you should know. Ask us to mail it to you.

VAST DISPLAYS WILL BE SENT.

Old World Countries Alive to Panama-Pacific Fair.

London Financiers Take Advantage of "Trust" War.

Derby Dinner Will Be Held at Devonshire House.

[Special by Federal Wireless Telegraph Line.]

LONDON, June 1.—Before leaving for New York on the Mauretania, John Hays Hammond, president of the Panama-Pacific Exposition Commission, predicted that each European exhibit to be sent to San Francisco in 1915 would be the greatest ever offered by the nations of the Old World at any exposition in either hemisphere. Hammond said he would not have responded to the urgent business summons which called him home but for the fact that the commission's work was practically accomplished. Everywhere the commission went they were received with open arms and welcomed as honored visitors from a part of the world from which all the world is now vitally interested.

OPPORTUNITY SEEN.

Financial authorities here see a great opportunity for London investment promotion as a result of continued opposition to the trusts on the part of the masses of the people in the United States. The number of American captains of industry who have come here from time to time recently to discuss purely business matters and organize new companies is taken as an indication that London will soon regain an undisputed mastery of corporate promotion, such as this city enjoyed during the first years following the enactment of the limited liability, or companies act.

J. Buchanan Duke, and others who have felt the lash of the Sherman law, are quoted as favoring London as a safer center of corporate control, if the anti-trust agitation is still to go on in their own country. Duke promptly repudiated a story which was circulated here recently, suggesting that he might renounce his American citizenship and live in England permanently. Both Duke and Mrs. Duke are very ardent Americans and resent any suggestion of this kind. Duke's opinion is greatly valued by the leading British industrialists. They regard his success as fabulous, but they are mostly astounded by his youthful appearance and his merry, boyish air.

WILL ENTERTAIN QUEEN.

Devonshire House, the London residence of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, will be the scene of the Derby dinner next Wednesday evening when the Queen will be the guest of her grace and the center of a merry party back from Epsom Course. The King will be host to members of the Jockey Club at Buckingham Palace, a strictly "stag" affair.

The craze for novel notions in dressing for a summer dinner or supper has now reached such a pitch that fabulous sums are being paid for ideas which will make people sit up and wonder. The latest hits of London is a "rats party." All the men appeared as most monstrous rats and the women guests were provided with most fetching costumes, the heads being worn as caps. This coming week a river party will be given near Richmond at which only fish will be served, actually caught by gorgeous neptunes and mermaids who will both catch and cook the provender.

As the river Thames at Richmond is more famous for its boating than for its fishing fare, it is suggested a special consignment of dainty fish will be surreptitiously dipped in the nets to provide this refinement of realism.

WILL FLY FOR NAVY.

LONDON, June 1.—Lieut. Hewlett, son of Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, who was taught to fly by his mother, has joined the naval flying school at Eastchurch, where he has made excellent flights.

NIGHT FIGHTS VERNON ARENA.

The officials of the Pacific Athletic Club are seriously considering night fights at Vernon in the near future. There are so many good boys here now that the night game looks as though it would pay well. During the summer months especially the battles would go better at night than in the day time, as the heat at Vernon is rather oppressive at times.

Jimmy Johnson, Moran's manager, said last night that he hoped that Joe Coster would get on for one of the early dates now that the evening game was likely to be started again.

Rivers says that Coster was underestimated by the local fans, and that he is one of the cleverest men he ever met in the Vernon Areno, and Joe should know as he was in the fight.

PEANUT BUTCHER BATTED FOR COBB.

If nothing else the strike of the Detroit Tigers and the farce game that was played by boys whom Hughie drafted on quick notice at Philadelphia a week ago has furnished one of the best articles in a humorous vein handed to a newspaper in many weeks. The author of this story is John J. Coffey, a Philadelphia boy. He played third base under the name of Smith, taking Irwin's place after Jennings sent Irwin in to catch.

Johnny has written his experiences in that game for the Detroit News Tribune. His opportunity to be a big leaguer for three innings came to him because he sells soft drinks in the Philadelphia park. He tells it all in his own way. Johnny is not a big leaguer and never will be, but when it comes to writing, why—well, read this and judge for yourself. This is what he says:

With men on second and third bases, and amid the deafening plaudits of 20,000 frenzied rooters, I stepped to the plate. It was the first, and it may have been the last time that I faced a big league pitcher in a big league—or any other league—game. I was batting against a twirler of the world's champions, I who one hour before was a hawking vender of refreshments, a mere lemonade dispenser.

It was the ninth inning; two were out, as I stated above, second and third bases were occupied by two of my contemporaries. My predecessor at bat had ignominiously perforated the atmosphere on three pitched balls. Was I to submit to a like fate? I swore by all the powers of heaven and earth that I would hit. I was determined that I would hit. I pounded my bat upon the plate and at myself for—I knew not what.

TWO FAST ONES.

Jack Lapp, the catcher, signaled. Letty Pennock who was pitching wound slowly up, and then—with gritted teeth I swung with all the strength of my anaemic body and hit—nothing but the weather. He had thrown a "fast one." Again he wound up, again I swung with the same result as before. It was another "fast one." I would have given odds that he was pitching a golf ball instead of a baseball, so minute did that "pea" look coming up to the plate.

The next one, according to Umpire William R. Dineen, was a little bit outside. Two strikes and one ball had gone by. I had but one more chance to make good. Oh, if he would only stop throwing that "fast one!" "For mercy's sake, Jack," I said to Lapp, "signal for a slow one." He signaled. Lefty wound up, threw, I swung, missed, and started for the clubhouse to wind up with a big league shower bath. What would I have not given to have made a hit. If I had "busted" one, even for a base, I would not have exchanged that H-I-T for all the Presidential nomination votes that T. R. and "Bill" could muster together. Even that strike-out was worth more to me than the Democratic nomination.

KILBANE HAS A BUSY FUTURE.

There are a dozen boys at this writing whom Johnny Kilbane may have to tackle shortly. They are Charley White, Johnny Dundee, Young Wagner, Tommy O'Toole, Bobby Reynolds, Young Britt, Kid Julian, Patsy Callahan, Joe Coster, Tommy Houck, Benny Kaufman and a few others. Before he returns home from his eastern invasion he will have met Jimmy Walsh and Tommy O'Toole in the featherweight class and Knock-out Brown, lightweight.

Johnny has a big field to conquer and its well that he has, for each and every one means at least $100 to the featherweight champion. Just now those he encounters are good for as high as $5000. Later the price will go down, of course. If he remains a champion for any length of time, and there is small doubt that his term will be as long as he cares to make it, he will have accumulated a fortune of $60,000 before the end of the present year. This is a conservative estimate.

Ad Wolgast had one ambition when he was fighting as a featherweight. He wanted to take on enough weight to battle as a lightweight. His wish was fulfilled. The Cadillac farmer claimed there was no money to be made in the featherweight ranks. Was he right? Not much. When Kilbane fights Knock-out Brown, June 11, in New York, he will receive as big a guarantee for ten rounds of work as Wolgast got for twenty rounds. Ad didn't figure that the 122-pound division might develop a freak such as Kilbane, who can fight once a week without weakening himself. Wolgast could do the same no doubt if he willed, but he appreciates the fact that he has to take a good many punches about the head every time he starts, and that too much punishment will shorten his career.

Ad therefore has been careful not to fight too often, his attack of appendicitis notwithstanding. Brilliant prospects loom ahead for Johnny Kilbane. With a promising featherweight in almost every prominent boxing city in America, he can pick up a fortune in short order.

Wolgast can be a lightweight champion, but it is a fact that a great many people would rather be Kilbane, who will never become crazy from absorbing punishment.

FLORENCE SUTTON FIRST.

Wins Women's Tennis Honor from Mae Browne After Exciting Play. McLoughlin Trimmed in Doubles.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, June 1.—In the morning games of the third day of the tennis tournament the playing of the Misses Florence Sutton and Mae Browne was a delight. The struggle in the men's semi-finals was strenuous. The audience was large and enthusiastic.

Florence Sutton won the women's singles championship, beating Mae Browne 8-6, 6-3.

In the semi-finals of the men's doubles, Hunter and Nat Browne beat McLoughlin and Havens 6-2, 3-6, 8-6, after more than two hours of play.

In the second round of the men's championship singles, Giffin beat M. Long 6-2, 8-6.

WAGNER AFTER KILBANE.

NEW YORK, June 1.—There is a good chance of Young Wagner getting a match with Champion Johnny Kilbane. The latter is anxious to box in Madison Square Garden and Billy Gibson is dickering with the champion now. Johnny has a match with Johnny Dundee, to decide at the St. Nicholas rink on June 18, but after that, he is open for the best that can be secured to meet him. Gibson likes Wagner's style and he may be able to land the job. Dick Curley is living in hope anyway and says if he gets the match, he will not take a cent if Kilbane is not given the hardest fight any feitherweight in this big town can give him.

KNIGHT Columbia MOTOR

EVERYBODY IS SEEKING IT NOW

EIGHT years ago the Knight motor went begging in America.

When Daimler took it up in England it performed so wonderfully in tests that there was a general demand for license privileges.

Licenses to use it were granted to the leading manufacturer in the several foreign countries.

Only four manufacturers are privileged to use it in the United States.

Other designers are eagerly seeking a means of doing what the Knight motor does. Engineers declare that ultimately every motor must have positively-driven valves which cannot fail to move when it comes their turn to move.

It is this quality in the Knight motor which enables it to produce more power out of a given cylinder volume than a poppet-valve motor can produce.

It is this quality which makes the motor more flexible and more durable.

It is this quality which enables it to still work silently after years of use.

Before the Columbia Knight was offered to the public Charles Y. Knight himself approved every detail of its design.

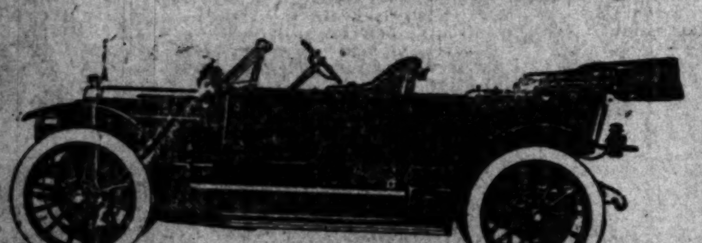
The Rambler 10,000 Mile Guarantee



Have You Seen The Rambler Cross Country?
$1800

THIS guarantee is backed by every one of our Rambler dealers and branches. One of them is located nearby and is perhaps known to you.

Back of them is a factory employing eighteen hundred men, with a floor area of twenty acres and producing ninety-six per cent of the parts that go to make up this car.

This factory has produced twenty-two thousand Rambler motor cars and the average cost for repair parts on each one of these cars last year was only twelve dollars and ninety cents.

Some of these cars have been in use eleven years. One-half of them have been in use five years or more. These are the facts which warrant our confidence in the Rambler to the extent of giving the signed guarantee for ten thousand miles.

The Cross Country sales to date are three times those of last year.

See the car and you will learn the first reason—its appearance.

Ride in the car and you will know the second reason—its comfort.

Ask your banker about the stability of this company—his answer is the third reason.

This ten thousand mile guarantee is the fourth reason. Appearance, comfort, stability and the 10,000 mile guarantee.

Are not these reasons enough?

GIANTS AND REDS KEEP UP VICTORIOUS GAIT.

First Clash Between Eastern and Western Teams in Big Leagues Shows There Is Little to Choose Among Them—McGraw's Men Appear to Be Better Equipped for Fray, Than Rivals.

BY WALTER MACHAND.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The West and the East have gotten together in baseball and the situation is not radically different in either league from what it was before the intersectional games began. The Giants had no more trouble with the western clubs than they had with the Eastern, outside Cincinnati and the Reds handled the eastern aggregation with the same ease they did their western colleagues—except the Giants, and there you are.

In the American League it was just about the same. Those speed boys of Jimmy Callahan are still the class of the league both East and West with the champion Athletics struggling along with a pitching staff that doesn't seem to be able to get in condition and the Tigers in the same boat. Both these contenders for last year's flag, however, show signs of bracing up and when they do there are likely to be some changes in the percentage tables.

I am still of the opinion that John McGraw has the greatest baseball club now playing ball and that nothing short of a miracle can prevent him annexing the world's championship. After seeing all the clubs in action this opinion stands. It might be possible to pick a team of stars which, in a long series could beat the Giants at the pace they are going, but even at that they would have to play together for a long time to get up to the team work which is really the secret of McGraw's success.

And the source of strength to McGraw's team lies in the fact that he has a competent substitute for every place on the team and in many instances it would be hard work to say which is the better man of the two. This means that it will take an almost inconceivable series of accidents to slow up the team. McGraw has evidently adopted the plan of giving his substitutes sufficient work to keep them in prime playing condition and this will make for continued speed.

It is gratifying to see the stand the baseball managers and magnates are taking to prevent professional gambling fastening itself on the national game. It is not the moral, but the business side of the question which appeals to the baseball men. In this day and generation no sport, however popular, can stand the blight of professional gambling. Public confidence will be lost and the moral sense of the community will be aroused against it.

Up to this time there has been little gambling in connection with professional baseball, but since racing was killed in this State about the worst element in the gambling fraternity has fastened on the game and unless it is shaken off the results cannot fail to be disastrous.

The owners and managers of the big league clubs are awake to the danger and will spare no effort to throttle it.

Baseball as a corrective for violations of the law is a somewhat novel proposition, but it is a fact that the magic of baseball has wrought a wonderful change in the United States Penitentiary here. For the first time in the prison's history, not one convict is undergoing punishment for breaking prison rules. Such infractions are punished by putting the convict in striped clothing, and now there is not one convict so clothed.

All this, so prison officials say, is due to the organization of the three baseball teams among the convicts. Infraction of the rules, in addition to the striped clothing, results in the convict's baseball pass being taken away, as he is not permitted to witness the prison games. It used to be usual to find anywhere from twenty to fifty men wearing stripes, but immediately after the notification that infraction of the rules meant loss of the baseball pass the chronic trouble makers began to be so good that the officials were startled.

A first-class college baseball player does not have to look for a job. There is, in fact, a choice of jobs awaiting his acceptance. In one day's news we find that no less than three scouts watched a recent game in which Pitcher George Davis of Williams College participated. After the game Davis received some flattering offers, but he asked time to consider them. He is anxious to finish the college season. Ted Sullivan, according to report, has practically induced Catcher Sterrett of Princeton to join the White Sox. Sterrett is not only a sterling backstop but also a rattling good first baseman. President Comiskey sent Sullivan to Princeton with authority to land Sterrett at any price.

Pitcher Willet of the Tigers went up to West Point the other day to look over the Army's crack boxman, Hyatt, who will join the Detroits as soon as the Military Academy closes. Hyatt will take a furlough of three months then and will pitch for the Detroits until he is ordered to some army post.

The professional scouts are angling for catcher Mayport of the University of Vermont. He has the earmarks of a big leaguer and some club is sure to land him.

Already contracts have been offered to Pitcher Rixey of the University of Virginia. There is no surer way to fame and fortune to the young college man than through the baseball field.

Charley Dooin, the red-headed manager-catcher of the Philadelphia Nationals, has inaugurated a reform which may have an important bearing on the batting and base running averages of the big league catchers.

Dooin says that hereafter he will give his signals to the pitchers while standing up, for the double purpose of saving a little time and of protecting himself against a return of the intestinal trouble from which he as well as other catchers have suffered. It is the custom for the men behind the bat to crouch practically on one knee in order to cover up and protect more fully the signals which they are flashing to the pitchers. This, according to some physicians, is a distinct strain which in some cases has brought about bad effects and Dooin, having learned the lesson by sad experience, intends to profit by it in the future.

"There is no reason on earth why catchers should consume valuable time and run the risk of internal injury by sticking to the old antiquated system. At any rate, I intend to give my system a thorough trial and believe the time is near when other catchers will fall in line and adopt it."

An enthusiastic New York fan has followed the example of Silas Wegg and dropped into poetry with this result:

"Barry to Collins to Davis"
Is but a vanished romance.
Gone like the rhyme that they gave us
Of "Tinker to Evers to Chance."
A new one has just been invented,
The Giants all think it immense.
Though it drives certain twirlers demented.
It's "Pitcher to Doyle to the fence."

"There are not many managers if they could hit, who have the nerve to go up in the pinch," said a well-known baseball fan the other day at the New York American League grounds. "If he went up there and made a botch of it the first thing that would come from the stands would be, 'It's a wonder he would not stay on the bench and not butt in.'" Wolverton is game and there is not any one who will take that away from him. He is the kind of fellow who will have a winner. It may take him a little time to get on, but he will be there. Any manager who can go up in the pinch five times and lace the ball for three hits has the nerve.

Real Good Boy.

EASY COIN FOR P. M'FARLAND.

Chicago Pug Wise Enough to Save His Money.

Can Write a Check Any Day for Six Figures.

His One Weakness Seems to Be Ice Cream.

When Packy McFarland knocked out Pete West, his first opponent, in six rounds eight years ago, he received $25. He was in the habit of working six days a week in the Chicago stock yards for a third of that sum, so he decided to become a professional boxer. The other night McFarland got $10,000 for boxing ten rounds with Matt Wells in Madison Square Garden—$1000 a round, or $333.33 a minute. This was the largest cash guarantee the stock yards champion ever took down for a glove fight, and it increased his total winnings in the ring to more than $110,000. In return for exhibitions on the various theatrical circuits McFarland has earned enough to enable him to write a check for $200,000, the financial reward for his victorious career as America's cleverest exponent of the manly art.

Packy isn't near the end of his ring campaign, either, so he expects to reap another golden harvest in bouts with Freddy Welsh and Hugh Mehegan, the Australian lightweight champion who will be here in June under the management of Joe Woodman.

To prove that all boxers are not spendthrifts it may be accepted as a fact that McFarland doesn't get rid of his money foolishly. In the first place, he has no bad habits. He doesn't drink, smoke or chew, cares nothing for the bright lights or gay companions and believes in arising with the sun. He has built a fine home in Chicago, where his father and mother live in solid comfort, and where he spends his time when not engaged in filling ring and theatrical engagements. Although Packy is only 24 years old, he realizes that he cannot keep on boxing forever and that it is good business policy to make all the money possible before Father Time puts him out of the ring forever.

"Boxing is an easy way to get money," said the Chicago lightweight the other day, "and I am making hay while the sun shines. It is a natural gift and I've been lucky enough to profit by it. Money means comfort, and comfort means happiness, particularly for the old folks at home. I'd rather take good care of father and mother than do anything else I know of. There's nothing in dissipation, and many poor fellows have failed to realize this truth until too late. Health is wealth, particularly in my case, and I am very grateful. When I began to box I never dreamed that I could make enough money to be well fixed the rest of my life. But I persevered and luck always was with me. It pays to take care of one's physical condition."

McFarland goes to church regularly and is extremely charitable. In short, he is a model young man who has done his share to elevate boxing in this country. When Packey left the Garden after whipping Wells, he hurried back to his quarters and sent out for a quart of ice cream. As he slowly got away with it he remarked: "This is my weakness, boys! It makes me feel fine!"

BAT'S TRUSTY TYPEWRITER.

It's still coming to Battling Nelson. The latest from the Battler is that a $11,000,000 steel mill is to be built upon the land adjoining his Hegewitsch, Ill., farm, and on the other side an interurban railroad has erected a depot. The Battler is now arranging to lay out his big farm into building lots and has refused an offer of $2000 an acre, saying that he will fill it with small cottages for honest working men and sell them at reasonable terms.

TIMES CAMP WINNERS.

The photos of all the winners of first and second places and the twelve-day trip to The Times Camp wil be published in The Times Pink Monday morning.

Baseball.

Avenue Twenty-one and Fourteenth-street clashed for a championship game which resulted in a score of 3 to 2 in favor of Fourteenth-street. This was the best and most hotly-contested game of ball that has been played between any schools in the intermediate school league. The game was played on the Downey-avenue playgrounds and a very large attendance of rooters and fans were present at the field. Fourteenth has the championship clenched in their teeth and will undoubtedly stick to it until they win the pennant at the end of the school season, which ends Friday, June 21.

Baseball.

Recreation Center found it easy picking when they went against the Page Military Academy last Wednesday afternoon. The score was 16 to 6, and of all the hitting, Recreation Center had fine stickers at work on that afternoon.

The Solano boys fell to the mercy of the Recreation team when they met for a game which resulted in a score of 16 to 8. Solano had no chance at all and were more or less foolish for attempting a fast team like Recreation Center for their first few games.

Swimming Meet.

The Downey Club held a swimming meet at Eastlake baths last night in which they had a thirty-yard dash, sixty-yard dash, diving, disc diving, diving for plates, fancy diving and riding the barrel. The boys made a better showing at the dives than they did at the barrel stunt, as the barrel would continuously turn them into the water.

Tennis Tourney Trials.

George Rausch was the shining light in the grammar school class in Thursday's trials, and he seems to have the best chance to win the Times Camp trip, which is to be given for the championship of the grammar school boys' singles.

Following are the scores of the day:

Boys singles: Winnie of Berendo defeated Cummings of West Vernon avenue, 6-0; Polk of L.A.M.A. defeated Hester of Grant School, 6-2 and 6-0; Rausch of Harvard defeated Polakoff of Grant School, 6-0 and 6-2; Savage of Thirtieth-street defeated Westover of Normal, 6-2 and 6-4; Johnson of L.A.M.A. defeated Granger of Harvard, 6-4, 8-10 and 6-0; Peterson of Berendo defeated Ruff of Grant School, 6-2, 6-4; Kinney of Avenue Twenty-one defeated Van Dusen, 6-0 and 6-0; McDonald of Thirtieth-street defeated Gilihand of West Vernon-avenue, 8-6 and 6-4.

Boys' doubles: Johnson and Polk of L.A.M.A. defeated Ankrum and Paterson of Berendo, 6-4, 10-12 and 6-0; McDonald and Smith of Thirtieth-street defeated Westover and Earl of Normal, 6-2 and 6-4.

Clan Cameron Sports Success.

The carnival of the Clan Cameron Society proved a most glorious success on Memorial Day, May 30, at Fiesta Park. The grammar school events went off in sensational style, and fifty and 100-yard dashes were won by boys who have won trips to the Times Camp this summer through their great showing in the amateur athletic world. In the fifty-yard dash Fred Haney came to the tape first, while Thacker Taylor made him hump along for his honors. Time, 6 4-5s.

In the 100 dash, Paul McWilliams shined for first and Victor Laney made the second place and Torrence third. Time, 11s.

Something Doing.

OLYMPIC TRY-OUTS IN EAST SATURDAY.

BY JAMES H. RANDALL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—The eyes of all athletic America, at least of the East, are now turned on Cambridge. The mightiest athletes of the country, record holders and breakers in practically every line of field and track sports, will meet at Harvard stadium next Saturday and contest for the honor of representing the United States at the Olympic games to be held at Stockholm next month.

The entry lists in the various events read like a roster of the aristocracy of American athletes.

On the same day the athletes of the Middle West and South will gather at Evanston, Ill., to show their prowess and demonstrate their right to wear the shield of America at the Swedish capital. The Pacific Coast already has held its tryouts and has sent to the Olympic Committee a list of names already famous in sport and destined to become more so.

The center of attraction will shift to the Waldorf-Astoria in this city Monday, June 10, for on that day the Selection Committee comes together at the big Fifth-avenue hostelry and will definitely decide which men shall be selected to make the trip on the Finland and compete with the strong and speedy men of the world for the honor of Uncle Sam.

There are forty-seven members of the Selection Committee. Every section of the country is represented so there need be no fear that any favorite son will be overlooked because he has no local friend on the committee.

The committee will have a man's job on its hands when it meets June 10. It will have before it not only the performances at the various tryouts, but the records of all athletes who aspire to a place on the team, but who have for one reason or another been unable, to enter the trial competitions.

If the committee had at its command unlimited funds so that it could take all the men who are possible point winners its task would be comparatively easy, but this unfortunately is not the case and many disappointments are bound to follow in the wake of the decision.

BIG JOB.

Some idea of the amount of detail which faces those in charge of the selection of the American team can be gained from the fact that three sets of tryout meets will have to be considered in addition to a number of special events, including Marathon races, pentathlon and similar all-round contests. The Olympic athletic programme consists of thirty events, continuing for a period of nine days, and the American trials were modelled to conform with the lines of competition at Stockholm. Under the circumstances it will be necessary to pass upon the records and performances of the first three men in each of the three trial meets besides the athletes who were unable to compete.

Chairman James E. Sullivan, in discussing the coming meeting, says: "It is impossible at this time to name a single member of the American team with any degree of positiveness. Much depends upon the amount of money at the disposal of the committee at the time the squad is selected. The executive committee will hold a meeting before the selection body sits down for final counsel and will state the exact financial conditions. With this settled we will be able to proceed, knowing our limitations from a money standpoint. We know to a penny just how much money is needed to send each athlete to Stockholm and we can't send 100 if we have but enough for fifty. That's the story in a nutshell.

"I figure that we will need at least eighty men to capture first place in the track and field championships and there is not enough money in sight at this time to send that number. For that reason it may be necessary to leave at home athletes who at first sight would appear to be eligible from an athletic standpoint for the team. It is this shortage of funds that is going to make the selection of the men hard, since a number of angles will have to be considered in naming each athlete. Every name will have to be voted upon by every member of the committee present and there is certain to be some difference of opinion in any body of the size of the Olympic selection committee."

From another source I learned that the winners of the Pacific Coast tryouts will in all probability be in this city at the time the final selection is made. It was pointed out that if the waited until they were named, they could not possibly make the long transcontinental trip to New York in time to sail with the American party on the Finland three days later. As my informant said: "They have shown class enough to be a serious factor, and in order to be available, must be in New York several days before the team sails. Once there, it would be almost as cheap to send them to Stockholm as to pay their transportation back to San Francisco. So I think we are safe in figuring on them as members of the team, especially since they are of exceptional athletic ability."

It may be said here that the Pacific Coast bunch would be hard to beat in their specialities.

There probably will be two members of the team who will not have to go on the Finland. They are W. A. Zeigler of Iowa, weight thrower, and R. L. Lange of Oklahoma, sprinter. These two lads are Rhodes scholars at Oxford, and have done great work in upholding Oxford's athletic prestige against Cambridge. They have volunteered for the team and doubtless will be selected.

One of the feature events of the games is, of course, the Marathon. The United States has a wealth of material from which to select a team which should be able to hold its own with any nation in the world in this event.

The American Team Selection Committee has made several nominations, the chief of whom are: Mike Ryan, Irish-American Athletic Club; Clarence de Mar, South Dorchester Athletic Club; Andrew Sockalexis, the Maine Indian; Lewis Tewanima of Carlisle; Joe Forshaw, St. Louis; Sidney Hatch, Chicago, and Johnny Gallagher, the Yale runner.

South Africa, Sweden, Australia, France, Italy, Germany, Finland and many other countries have been preparing the pick of the long-distance talent for this race, and it is generally conceded that the class of the intending competitors in the coming contest will be higher than that of any former race for the honors, so that no matter who the winner may be he will only be returned such after displaying the full allotment of speed, stamina and all-around gameness which is necessary to the make-up of a competitor over such a distance.

It may be that an American runner may not lead the pack at Stockholm, but it is a safe prediction that they will be close up to the front when the cheering thousands acclaim the winner. [Copyright, 1912, by Publishers Press.]

CHESS NOTES.

Rev. E. B. Adams, whose late visit to the chess players of the Y.M.C.A. is well remembered, has won the Stough trophy, representing the championship of the Cabrillo Club, which is understood to include the championship of San Diego county. The final score in the match stood at five games for Adams to three for his opponent, A. G. Pearsall of National City, with three drawn.

As noted at the time, an interesting feature of the simultaneous seance of Adams against seventeen opponents here was the performance of a deaf mute, Leon Borough, who entered the arena unannounced and won handsomely a king's gambit declined. The young man proves to be a native of Russia, 22 years of age, who comes from a family of chess players, and plays with the ease of an inherited faculty.

After attending a school for deaf mutes in Russia a few years, young Borough came to America to the New York Institution for Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb. While completing his education in other branches there, he found, as in his home school, no opportunity of acquiring proficiency in his favorite game, but constantly gained strength by frequent playing outside, studying the books, and perusing games of professionals and good amateur players. Chess problems have been a source of especial delight to him, and he is never satisfied until he has solved a position brought to his notice. Before coming to California he was a member of the Brownsville Chess Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., where he met many strong practitioners. If fortunate enough to find permanent employment in his occupation, that of bookbinding, he expects to join the local Y.M.C.A. game department.

Monograms on the big pleasure cars are being more largely used this season than ever before. In the making of the moongram it is the rule to make the initial of the surname predominate over the initial of the Christian name, the surname being given conspicuous attention through the medium of attractive color effects.

RAN TRUE TO FORM

WON 500 MILE SPEEDWAY RACE

500 Miles in 381 Minutes, 6 Seconds

Averaged 78.7 M. P. H.

From the Factory, through the Race-Test, comes the National car you own.

Racing is but part of the manufacturing process that tests and perfects National cars for your safety, comfort and indefatigable service.

A race, such as the 500-mile event, won by the National from a field of cars from all nations, most of which are higher-priced than the National, is a much harder test of every ounce of power and every fiber of strength than a tour of thousands of miles.

That the National again proved its superiority is your unimpeachable guide to the best car, regardless of cost. The race demonstrates the reliability, power and longevity of the National.

We do not sell you a racing car. We do sell you a car embodying the principles found perfect, and able to stand the hardest of tests. We sell you a car that has proved its superiority over all others.

The National is the criterion in every respect for 1913. With left-hand drive and center control, long wheel base, deep luxurious upholstery, self-starter, tire pump, integral part of motor, gas and electric lights, long low bodies of beautiful design and finish, long resilient springs, powerful but flexible motor, noiseless and comfortable, no other car offers greater service or enjoyment than the National.

The National is the most renowned car on earth, and enjoys the greatest prestige because it is able to crown its past achievements, such as World's Stock Champion, with the International Championship.

The 500-mile race is a positive test where the National's Quality is proven to be the best, most reliable and durable.

Jimmy Johnson, Manager,

Who has one of the greatest fight stables in the world. He says Moran will stop White.

Possibilities.

MORAN A DARK HORSE IN BATTLE WITH WHITE.

Jack's Great Condition May Outweigh Owen's Cleverness—Last Ten Rounds Will Tell the Story—Jimmy Johnson Great Little Manager—Joe Levy Breathes Easier—Good Prelims.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

ACTION will be the password at the two fight camps this afternoon. Owen Moran and Jack White are each going the limit in what will be the hardest workout of their respective training campaigns before the battle on June 8, at which time several important questions are going to be settled.

Moran will box twelve rounds at Doyle's, while Jack is going through a like number at Shaw's Venice gymnasium. Moran will take on Pete McVey, Frankie Gage, Tommy Maloney and Harry Thomas for three rounds each. White will struggle through six rounds with old "Iron Man" Charles "Kid" Dalton and six more with Monroe and an unknown that Fred Gilmore is holding back till time for action.

Despite Moran's great record, he is one of the dark horses of the ring today and darker than ever in this fight with White over the twenty-round course. If the coming battle was to be a ten-round affair it would not be so hard to pick Moran the winner, due to his complete mastery of ring craft; but in twenty rounds a great many things can happen to a clever boxer during the last ten spasms, and White is the boy to make 'em happen.

The Last Ten Rounds.

We know that Jack White is one of the hardest hitters in the world for his weight; that he is game to the very core, is willing, and can box as well as hit. He is younger than Moran and is more rugged, and if it was to be a tug-of-war White would win easily. BUT can Moran hurt Jack's jaw with the snappy, hard wallops for which he is famous? If Moran wins, it will be due to his cleverness this time. Moran is going to hit Jack during the first ten rounds, and how Jack will stand the gaff will tell the story of the fight.

To show that Moran is still a dangerous fellow, a few lines from Charlie White's letter to his brother, Jack, will throw a little light on the subject:

"Watch this fellow, Jack; he is dangerous all the time, and, for the love of Mike, don't take any chances. Let him do that, and he will. He has a bad left and a terrible right, but get his goat if you can and the rest should be easy after the first half of the fight."

Jack likes this dope and it looks like the very real, as you know Charles has just had a little battle with Moran.

Moran claims that he has never had more than a week to train for any fight since the Wolgast affair, and for this reason has never been at his best; but he will not have any comeback like this for the June 8 struggle, as by the time the bell rings next Saturday afternoon he will have been at work for two weeks and his work shows all the speed in the world now.

If there is anything wrong with Moran, Jack White is the man to find the weak spot in his present rugged condition, as seldom, if ever, was a knight of the circle in better condition than Jack White—he is great. The weight is just right and he has every chance to come home a winner, unless Moran is too clever; but let old Pa Time tell the tale, he knows.

Jimmy Johnson There.

Men may come and men may go, but there will only be one Jimmy Johnson fight manager. This little New York business man has the bunch at No. 26 Wall street cheated. When one man, without a secretary, successfully handles eleven fighters, all husky and looking for work, we will admit that he should be in Congress, at least, and Teddy must be overlooking a live one.

The list of worthies composing the stable reads like a census table and it keeps Jimmy busy all the time to find enough cities in the country to keep the date-book full. Here is the roll call: Owen Moran, lightweight; Joe Coster, featherweight; Harry Thomas, featherweight; Tommy Maloney, welterweight; Mic McDonough, bantamweight; Jack Dorman, welterweight; Jim Smith, middleweight; Boyo Driscoll, featherweight; Jack McFarland, heavyweight and "W.H.;" Jimmy Watkins (colored,) heavyweight, and Kid Herney, 128-pounder, finishes the list.

With this line-up, Johnson nearly clogs the daily mail in New York when he is home, receiving challenges and offers for fights. Then, after a boy wins one fight, he always writes to Jimmy asking to be managed. Johnson says that he turns down hundreds every year, as all that he is looking for is the live ones.

The fight manager is generally overlooked and only gets into the limelight when it comes to making terms with the promoters, but in the case of Johnson, he is not only framing up fights day and night, but is developing material for the good of the game and also for a little money on the side.

An afternoon's chat with Jimmy has any vaudeville show in the State beaten to death, and if he ever runs out of a line of talk it must be when he has his mouth full or is reposing on the hay. Selah.

Night Fights Open Field.

Now that McCarey is thinking of starting night fights again at Vernon there will be a large field opened to the near champs and contenders. In the past the Los Angeles public has had something good every time a fight was scheduled in the way of a championship or a fight leading up to a title, but now McCarey, knowing that Los Angeles is fast becoming the fight center of the world, realizes that he must have cards that will develop contenders for the champs and thereby create material for the game on the Coast.

Take men like Tommy Maloney, Harry Thomas and Joe Coster—all good boys—they would make some swell cards for the fans on Friday or Saturday nights. Los Angeles is getting all the fighters in the country and something must be done to hold them here, if the game is to prosper and it is a safe bet that McCarey is not overlooking anything that will make the game prosper.

Levy Rests Easy Again.

Joe Levy heaved a big sigh of relief when he heard that Wolgast had come out of the Young Jack O'Brien battle with flying colors.

"Say, I ain't kidding at all," said Joe yesterday, "but I will be glad when that Dutchman arrives on the spot. Here I got Joe ready to start and the champ is behind time, but if he is only ready and we get the fight underway I will be satisfied."

Joe said he was glad that O'Brien was so fast that Wolgast could not hurt his hands. Levy is so confident of seeing Joe Rivers the next lightweight champion of the world that he is worrying about Wolgast before the fight. This means a lot to Levy and he has done a big thing with Rivers when he pulled him out of the slough of despond after the Kilbane defeat and rushed him into the lightweight class, and, inside of six months, had him matched with the champion. Levy doesn't say much, but ye gods, how he does get there.

Classy Preliminaries.

The preliminaries for the White-Moran fight will be some of the best ever seen in the South for many a moon and Secretary McHugh of the Pacific Athletic Club is to be congratulated for the class on the present bill.

The curtain raiser, between Bob Graham and Charlie King, two lively middles, will bring out that slap bang stuff so popular with the fans. The next, called by McHugh "the stage warmer," brings out a little grudge fight to be settled between Kid White and Kid Black and the winner will have the right to walk off with the fair lady in question, it is rumored.

The semi-windup will be a ten-round go between good old reliable Kid Dalton, the Italian iron man, and Pete McVey, Ad Wolgast's latest find. If Pete wins he will go up, but if Dalton wins, it will be back to work for Pete. Dalton is a stepping-stone on the Coast and seems fated to hold the job for life and when he gets too old to fight Uncle Tom ought to pension him for his services in bringing out material.

Costs Fortune.

BILLINGS WILL TAKE HIS RACERS TO RUSSIA.

CHICAGO, June 1.—When the C. K. G. Billings horses, six in number, sailed from New York recently, bound for Moscow, Russia, where Uhlan, champion trotting gelding, The Harvester, champion trotting stallion; and four other notable nags will be shown in various ways on the wonderful Moscow racecourse, the expedition was fitted out with as much care as if the lives and comfort of men instead of horses depended on the work.

Mr. Billings will spend about $100,000 to show the Russians, who are great horse lovers, the best types of American trotters of both sexes. In addition to the champion stallion and the gelding with the best record, Lou Billings, a daughter of Lou Dillon, champion trotting mare, is in the party. She trotted in 2:08 3-4 at 3, has perfect manners, and as the records of her sire (J. A. McKerron) and her dam average 2:01½, and the young mare herself is a member of the small, but select list of fillies that have beaten 2:09 at 3 years (there are only nine of them,) she is an exhibit that could not be produced by any other horse owner than the American amateur who wants champions of all sorts in the trotting line.

The preparations for a voyage of this character require months of hard work and an amount of planning which calls for the best knowledge of masters of transportation both here and in Europe. To send the band of valuable equines from their winter training ground at Memphis to New York and put them aboard the steamship is simple, but when the dock is left behind trouble begins.

Not only are special stalls, padded and otherwise, arranged to guard against danger of injury in heavy weather, provided, but they are located so as to minimize as much as possible the motion of the boat. As the horses must show their best speed after the tedious journey to Moscow, else the trip will not be a success, they must be guarded against fatigue, likewise so cared for they will not become nervous, for no quadruped is hysterical on less provocation than Dobbin, and the higher he is bred, the nuttier he becomes, once started on the road to the place where the red and blue elephants and other terrifying things abound.

As showing the amount of trappings that go with a trotter; it may be mentioned that although the Billings horses, when the decision to send them abroad was reached, were amply provided with equipment in the way of vehicles, harness, etc., it was deemed necessary to lay in an extra supply for the six months they are to be absent. This consisted of six sets of racing harness, fifty-three pairs of horse boots, twelve sets of horse clothing, additional racing sulkies, a speed wagon, and enough miscellaneous traps to stock a store.

The wagon is for the use of Mr. Billings, who will show the Russians how the amateur reinsmen of America perform, while Charles Tanner, the stable's trainer, will do the sulky work. An expert blacksmith was taken along to look after the shoeing of the six horses, as having their shoes of certain weights and shapes, keeping the foot angle of each nag just so, and seeing that the toes of each are of the length best suited to its particular case are of vital importance. Without scientific shoeing many of the present day trotters would be of little value.

American sulkies, harnesses, and boots are familiar to the Russians, but the speed wagon will be a revelation in vehicle building where lightness and great strength are requisite. In addition to showing his trotting champions hitched to wagon, Mr. Billings will exhibit two of them—the gelding, Lewis Forrest, 2:06¼, and the stallion, Wilmering, 2:12¼—under saddle.

In Europe the so-called "saddle gaits" of this country are unknown, the walk, trot, and canter horse being the only saddler used, and it is at those gaits Lewis Forrest and Wilmering will be shown. Both horses were raced last summer on the grand circuit and knew nothing of saddle work until Mr. Billings bought them in the fall, so their performance will be of special interest to the Russians, whose Cossacks have for generations been among the famous riders of the world.—[Chicago Tribune.

Some Class.

HOW THE CATCHERS SIZE UP IN NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NEW YORK, June 1.—For the last few years, National League critics have boasted of their catchers and declared that the American League had nothing in the backstopping line to compare with Kling, Archer, Dooin, Bresnahan, Gibson and others of almost equal ability. Last year, they added Chief Myers of the Giants to their list of National League stars and declared that the American League could not show the Indian's peer.

Perhaps they were right. Certainly, Kling showed up the Detroit catchers during the world's series of 1907 and 1908 while Gibson most assuredly had it on the Tiger receivers during the battles in the fall of 1909. It was presumably because of the superiority shown by the National Leaguers in those three set-tos that caused their partisans to declare that the younger circuit was weak behind the bat.

Guess they did have the edge on the American League in 1909, but Ira Thomas and Jack Lapp did not suffer by comparison with Johnny Kling in 1910, while the same pair held their own with Chief Myers last fall. But now the American League is developing a bunch of young receivers who bid fair to compare favorably with the best in the National League before many more seasons pass by.

Jack Lapp, because of his three years in the American League, can now be considered a near-veteran. He is also approaching the ranks of stardom. But he is not the only one. What about Jimmy Block, who has caught every game except one for the White Sox this season and capably handled the deliveries of Walsh, Benz, Lange, Scott and Mogridge and batted close up to .400 at the same time. Chicago is leading the league by a big margin and had not Block been efficient behind the bat this would not be the case. He must be there with the brains as well as the mechanical skill or the Sox would not be so far ahead.

Bobby Wallace has installed as his chief catcher, Paul Krichell, who is a graduate of the International League. This youngster is the owner of a good whip and a keen batting eye. Really, he should be placed in a higher rank in the St. Louis batting order. He lacks a knowledge of the American League batters, but he is coming and coming fast.

Washington has a pair of youngsters who would bring a good round sum if placed on the market—Eddie Ainsmith and John Henry. Clark Griffith preferred them to the veteran Gabby Street, and his judgment has been justified as the two kids are handling Walter Johnson and Bob Groom just as well, if not better than Street did the last year or so of his service with the Nationals.

Ted Easterly is not a youngster, but he is entering upon his second career as a backstop and has more than fulfilled expectations by jumping into the limelight as Cleveland's premier receiver. He may never be a Stanage, who is given the credit for being the best catcher in the American League, but he is demonstrating that there are lots worse catchers than he.

Other young catchers who are showing that they measure up to big league requirements are Nunnamaker of the Boston Red Sox and Onslow of the Tigers. Nunnamaker has alternated with Carrigan ever since the season began, and is said to look every bit as good as the veteran. Onslow has not had the opportunity that some of the others have had but when called upon he has not failed. Then there is Steve O'Neill of the Naps. Last fall, he was touted as one of the coming catchers of the land. He has the brains and the whip, but is lacking in experience. A brilliant future is due to be his reward.

PUBLIC TENNIS COURT COMING.

GRADING AT EXPOSITION PARK TO BE BEGUN TOMORROW.

Athletic Fields Should Be Completed in September—Outdoor Sports to Receive Big Boost—Will Be Completed Within Four or Five Months.

Actual work on the public baseball and football fields and tennis courts at Exposition Park is to be begun tomorrow. For months devotees of outdoor sports have been looking forward to the time when there would be places where they could get into their favorite game on absolutely neutral ground—where everybody could meet everybody else on the same footing.

According to C. R. Raitt, superintendent of city playgrounds, their dream is to be realized within the next four or five months. Raitt says that the proposed eight tennis courts and the athletic fields should be completed before the end of September.

The part of the big field within the mile track at Exposition Park that is to be given over to the use of the public for outdoor sports is to be graded at once. The preliminary work will be started tomorrow. Twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars is at present available for the work, and Raitt says that more will be forthcoming as it is needed.

Eight tennis courts, four baseball fields and two football fields are to be laid out and all completed within four months, according to Raitt, who will have charge of the work, and who says that it will be carried to completion with the least possible delay.

The throwing open of eight tennis courts to the public will be the biggest boost that the court game has ever received in the South. For many years the need of such courts has been felt. It has been on public courts throughout the country that many high-class racqueters have been initiated into the game, and it is probable that the courts at Exposition Park will develop more than one top-nocher who otherwise might never have got into the game.

Maurice McLoughlin, the crack player of San Francisco, learned the game on the municipal courts in Golden Gate Park, and other well-known players of the Bay City also broke into the game on the same courts.

Municipal courts also are of importance in promoting tennis, as they furnish a place at which tournaments may be held without placing any of the contestants, or prospective contestants, at a disadvantage. Many good players do not find it convenient to go out of the city to compete in tournaments. Hotel expenses often cannot be met. With good courts close at hand and under public control, the number of entries in championship tournaments probably will be larger, and would include players who at present but seldom enter the tournaments.

"DAD" MOULTON TO BE RETIRED.

Veteran Stanford Trainer Is Losing Hold.

H. W. Maloney of Pasadena Appointed Assistant.

Is Rumored He Is Slated to Become Boss.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That "Dad" Moulton, the famous trainer of Stanford University, will be retired within two or three years is indicated by a change that has been made in the system of training that is to be instituted on the campus next fall.

H. W. Maloney, for several years instructor in the gymnasium, has been appointed assistant trainer by the student body, and next year he will do much of the work in training and conditioning the Cardinal athletes.

Moultons' contract with the student body will not expire for two years. At the end of that time it is probable that he will be relieved of most of his duties as trainer, although it is certain that Stanford will always keep "Dad" as long as he wants to stay on the campus, for the athletic life and traditions of Stanford would be incomplete without "Dad." However, during the last two years the students have felt that greater success probably could be obtained if a younger man was appointed to do most of the active work.

Maloney is a widely-experienced trainer. He has coached the soccer team ever since Stanford put it in the field, and as a trainer he proved a success from the start. Maloney is popular among the men, and commands the respect of all Stanford students. He is a hard worker and may be counted on to do everything in his power to make a success of his new job.

Maloney will have full charge of the conditioning of the football men next fall. Next spring he will train, and "Dad" will coach the track men.

For several years Maloney was engaged in athletic work at Pasadena, where he has a large following among Y.M.C.A. and High School athletes. For a while he was fencing instructor at the Los Angeles Y.W.C.A.

It is probable that Maloney will succeed Moulton as Stanford's trainer when "Dad's" present contract expires. However, the student body has not made an announcement to that effect. But it seems probable that Maloney is taking the place to be groomed as Moulton's successor. He had a big job in the gymnasium department, and it is not likely he would have given it up unless he saw ahead of him, not an assistancy, but the trainer's position.

M'FARLAND IS FINE PUNCHER.

Much Better in Every Way Than Matt Wells.

Received Big Sum to Let Englishman Hit Him.

Matt Loses Real Money by Bucking Fate.

Not only did Packey McFarland prove himself the better fighter in the meeting with Matt Wells, but he also demonstrated that when it comes to business dealings the Chicago boy stands head and shoulders over his adversary. In making the arrangements for the battle Wells agreed to give 40 per cent. of the gross for his share, and out of that amount pay to McFarland $10,000, win, lose or draw. The Chicago fighter readily accepted this proposition. When the house was counted up it totaled exactly $25,949; after paying McFarland, Wells had only $3974.50 and a good beating for his night's work.

When Packey accepted the $10,000 as his end many said: "Packey, you are a fool for accepting that kind of money. You and Wells will draw better than a $50,000 house, and look what you'll throw away." McFarland didn't see it in that light, however, and replied: "He gave me what I asked for and I hope he makes a million. I got mine in advance; he's got to take a gambler's chance for his."

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away and the returns are in, we can tell at a glance which of the pair was the shrewdest i nthe end. Wells was probably carried away by the returns of his fight with Knockout Brown, which were about $2000 in excess of what the McFarland bout yielded. He had figured that no less than a $60,000 house would be present, and in that event he would break even with Packey. If he went over that figure he would be the winner.

Going Some.

HAT NABOB CAPTURES HUGE BLACK SEA BASS.

AFTER seventeen successive trips to Catalina in seventeen years, George A. O'Brien, millionaire hat manufacturer of New York, achieved the height of his ambition this week and yesterday returned to the Alexandria boasting of catching a black seabass weighing 540 pounds. Ever since he and the Count Jules de Gerstle had their fishing duel at Catalina two years ago, when O'Brien was knocked from the fishing boat into the ocean by the tail of a shark which the party had landed, and was rescued by the Count, he has sworn to show his gratitude in a novel manner, something which will always be a memento worth mementing.

Therefore O'Brien is having the immense icthyological specimen mounted. This stuffing he says is not of the kind that enters chickens, but is solid material which will last for years, namely a wire frame work which will be spread in such a manner that it will keep the skin of the big fish tight and in perfect condition. "To have the Jew fish stuffed with the ordinary material that is used in the upholstery of ordinary denizens of the deep which are used in museums and art collections would have brought the weight of the thing so high that it would have been impossible to handle," said O'Brien.

"With the aid of a professional taxidermist, we thought out the idea of a frame work, such as is used in preparing big animals of Africa at this time and which was invented by one of the professors at the Smithsonian Institute. This will be the first time that this method has ever been applied to a fish and when it is completed, the trophy will easily be conveyable to the New York home of Count de Gerstle. The fish was sixteen feet, seven inches in length and was one of the largest of the species that has been caught this year. It was landed on light tackle and is one of the achievements of which I am most proud in my piscatorial career," declared the millionaire disciple of Isaac Walton.

It is expected that Count de Gerstle may reach here before the fish is ready for shipment and at that time he will be able to accept or refuse what O'Brien considers among the most remarkable thank offerings that have ever been bestowed in gratitude for the saving of a life. He reported a good catch of albicore, yellowtail and a few other game fish. He was one of a party which landed a sunfish weighing 1460 pounds a week ago.

HANDBALL TOURNEY AT WESTERN A. C.

"Bill" Hart of the Western Athletic Club has got together such a bunch of handball enthusiasts that he is arranging a singles tourney to be pulled off next month. Among the men who are working out on the courts and who are to stack up against each other in the play are George Blake, Tommy Doyle, Dr. Verner, H. A. Cline, Charlie Hoffman, Ben Black and George Black. Hart himself will enter the tourney to attempt to show that he can "come back."

The new club is rapidly growing in membership. It includes a live band of men who are bent on raising two or three healthy "sweats" a week.

The assessors of Freeborn county, Minn., have decided to assess automobiles at one-third cost. For the 140 cars owned by 130 persons in the county seat the average value is estimated at $1200.

DeWitt Van Court's Column.

Packy McFarland proved himself, Wednesday night, to be the peer of American professional fighters. He has been doing better in every fight that he has had during the past year.

McFarland is the ideal type of a fighter. While there is nothing new in his style, nor can he claim anything original in his blows or other work, it is the only scientific method. His system has been worked out for years by the cleverest men, until it is about perfect.

Johnny Coulon and Packy are about equal in this respect. Abe Attell comes next in cleverness to these boys. Johnny Kilbane is credited with being about the cleverest by many, but Kilbane is more of a defensive boxer.

McFarland is just as clever at the attack as he is in his wonderful defense. Jack Johnson does not rank in either the McFarland, Coulon or Attell class as a clever boxer. McFarland and Coulon have more of a variety of blows than any of the rest in the fighting game. Attell has quite a variety of blows, but is lacking in footwork, compared with McFarland, Coulon or Kilbane.

Kilbane is a very clever defensive fighter, and fast and clever on his feet, but lacks the aggressiveness and hitting power that a man should have for one in his class, and I doubt very much that he will hold his title for any great length of time.

Jack Johnson has less of a variety of blows than the above-mentioned men, but what he does, he does almost perfectly. Neither can it be said that Jack is clever on his feet. Any man with the reach and hitting power that Johnson has, backed up by his height, can get along with much less knowledge than on smaller men provided he knows how to take advantage of these things, and Johnson does.

I would consider Joe Rivers next to McFarland, Coulon and Attell in cleverness. Joe being the youngest of the bunch, will, with more experience, develop as clever as any of the others provided he does not get licked. Rivers has the speed, footwork, punch and the variety of blows, but has yet to put the finishing touches on it all. This will come with more experience and practice.

I would consider Freddy Welsh next to Kilbane's class as a fighter. While he is clever, it is more on the defensive style. He also lacks the punch and aggressiveness. Welsh fights with too much weight on his left foot, which makes it impossible to get his weight into his blows.

McFarland and Coulon lean back with the weight on the right foot, and this adds greatly to their hitting power. When the body is moved forward it invariably goes into the blow, but in Welsh's position its goes into the floor.

Jack Johnson's fighting position is the best of the lot. He carries more weight on his right foot than any of the rest, but as I said before, is too lacking in other things. Johnny Coulon is perhaps the cleverest of the lot as a boxer, but uses too much energy in his fighting. Packy and Attell make every move count, and this adds to their stamina and hitting powers.

If Packy intends to fight as a welterweight in the future, he will no doubt hold the title for many years. It is to be hoped that he does. This move will put more life into that class, which is a good one, and will make it an incentive for others to develop or imitate his style.

With Coulon in the bantam class, Kilbane in the feathers, Joe Rivers working into the lightweight, and Packy in the welters, it is beginning to make the game look as it did years ago, when it was necessary to be clever to be a champion.

It is a noticeable fact that clever men as a rule seldom resort to clinching, and this adds greatly to the interest of any boxing contest or fight. With the exception of Kilbane the rest seldom, if ever, clinch. It is the rough fellow with little knowledge of art, who resorts to this practice, and it is more from their lack of knowledge of the art than intention. They follow the rule, "If you are in doubt, hold on," and as most of these fellows are in doubt all the time, it is a case of hold on all the time.

I hope to see the day when fighters are classified like ball players. A fighter should win a championship in the third class before he is allowed to fight in the second class, and win in the second class before he is considered good enough for the first. A system of this kind would develop professional fighting to the highest point.

What is more uninteresting than to see a third-rater matched against a second or first-class man. You aspiring fighters will do well to imitate Coulon, Kilbane, Attell, Rivers and McFarland if you wish to succeed in the fighting game.

Big Competitor.

BRITISH GIANT AT STOCKHOLM.

OARSMAN LOGAN TO BE AT OLYMPIC GAMES.

Is a Boxer and Football Player—Versatile Athlete Will Be Seen by Americans—Is a Familiar Figure at Henley During Regatta Week.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, May 27.—American oarsmen will meet at Stockholm, as a competitor, one of the best all-round amateur athletes now contending in this country. Logan, stroke of the Thames Rowing Club "four" that has been chosen to represent this country in the Olympic games regatta, is an unusually versatile young giant who [illegible] almost anything he puts his hand to in the athletic line.

He is, of course, best known as an oarsman. He is a familiar figure at Henley during the week of the great regatta at that famous river resort. The Thames Rowing Club "four," which he strokes, has twice won the Steward's Cup, the highest honor, and is declared to be the finest crew seen in England in many years. Logan has also been a frequent winner in the singles.

In addition he is considered one of the best Rugby football players in the south of England. Unfortunately his business—he is a partner in a London firm of insurance agents—affords him little time to play and he is not regularly enough on the field to become a popular figure.

But it is in boxing that his heart is really to be found. Unlike most English amateur "mit pushers" he is not a highly skilled boxer, but relies instead upon his ruggedness and forcing tactics.

Once he reached the English national final and would have won had he not been suffering from a previous injury. On a subsequent occasion he reached the semi-finals.

Logan was chosen a member of the English amateur boxing team that visited the United States a short time ago, and fought a series of matches with American amateurs, but he was compelled to refuse the engagement because of other arrangements in England.

HAS HIS NOSE BROKEN.

He is well known to the majority of American professional boxers who have visited England and he has "mixed it" with Sam Langford, Jack Johnson, Billy Papke, Jack Burns and Jimmy Britt.

Sometimes his willingness to take on any of the professional heavyweights leads him into trouble, and a few months ago Bombardier Billy Wells broke the amateur's nose in a private bout at the Belsize Boxing Club, the London organization of which Logan is kingpin.

Pete Buzukos,
Greek wrestler, who will attempt to throw four men in one hour tonight.

BUZUKOS WILL TRY TO THROW FOUR TONIGHT.

Tonight at 8 o'clock at the Walker Theater, Pete Buzukos, is to take on four men in succession in an attempt to throw all of them within an hour's actual wrestling. This is a pretty big job for any man to handle, but the mighty Greek thinks that he is the one who can do the work and has wagered his end of the purse on that proposition.

The Greek recently filled a week's engagement at a local theater and he threw nineteen men in the seven days that he performed. He made a great many admirers by his showing and has a big following among his countrymen in the city. The Greek colony is expected to be out in force to back their champion.

The affair is to be of an international character as each of the four men is of a different nationality to the Greek. Carl Busch is a German, George Moss a Swede, A. Williams, French and Aron Rokanoff a Roumanian. Each of these men has been hard at work for a time in training and is prepared to slip something over on the mighty Greek when opportunity offers.

The programme is being taken care of by Harry Burns, who is determined to revive wrestling in this city and those who know him will certify that anything promoted by him will be on the level and well worth the price of admission. Manager Burns is admitting the ladies free and assures the public that nothing will occur to mar the feelings of the most fastidious person.

Manager Burns is also contemplating a match between John Berg, light-heavyweight champion of the world, and either Busukos or Dan McCloud, former world's champion. This means that Los Angeles is to be made the center of a revival of wrestling, a most worthy plan, and Manager Burns deserves the support of the sporting public in its accomplishment.

ENGLISH BOXERS ARE MAKING LITTLE NOISE.

Bombardier Wells, Latest Arrival in New York, Not Likely to Cut Much of a Swath—Gotham Promoters Renew Agitation for Decision Bouts—Kilbane-Brown Fight Stirs Up Fans.

BY JEFF. THOMPSON.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 1.—Beyond taking a comfortable number of American dollars back home with them it is not likely that the invasion of English boxers will result in any violent upheaval in the world of pugilism. In fact the English fighting man with one or two exceptions is considered more or less of a joke by the American contingent, and the fact that a man claims to be champion of England does not give him much prestige here.

All of which is prompted by the presence in our midst of Bombardier Wells, heavyweight champion of Great Britain. After looking over Wells I am not surprised that the English authorities refused to allow him to fight Jack Johnson. He would have been fried chicken with brown gravy for the big black and if there is anything more enticing for a darky, or a white man either for that matter, I don't know what it is.

When Wells got here he is said to have announced that $20,000 was his figure for a fight. He may get it but I have my doubts.

There is a tentative match between Al Palzer and Wells, at San Francisco. If this fight takes place it ought to be a good one, with the chances strongly favoring Palzer.

The insistence on the part of some of the boxing promoters that decisions should be permitted in New York is short-sighted policy. I agree thoroughly with a statement made the other day by an old-time follower of the sport, who has followed it closely since the days of John L. Sullivan.

"If referees' decisions are permitted in this State, boxing will go to the dogs and the present law will be repealed," he said. "The gamblers will get in their sharp practice and it will be impossible to suppress betting. There are only a few referees competent enough to give proper decisions. No matter how honest some referees profess to be, the crooks will get them with the bribe money that always is on tap. Decisions will enable crooked bettors to fleece the innocent at the ringside. Let us hope that the boxing commission will refuse to be bulldozed!"

Outside the fact that decisions will decide wagers there is not an argument in favor of it.

What would the old-time heroes of the ring think if they could come back to life and see the game as it is played today. The first fight I ever saw was in a barn in Westchester county. To get to it was necessary to wade ankle deep in mud over two or three miles of country roads. The fighters, husky lightweights, fought for a purse of $250 and put up a much better battle than I have yet seen in the modern well equipped club for purses running up into the thousands. They fought to a finish with bare hands and it was a fight from bell to bell.

Boxing now is a profession and a mighty profitable profession. The successful fighter makes more money in quicker time than the lawyer, the doctor or the merchant. When he retires he is a rich man. Witness Jim Jeffries, Tommy Ryan, Battling Nelson, Packy McFarland, Ad Wolgast, Jimmy Britt, Tommy Burns and a score of others who can draw their checks for five figures and not feel it. Ten-thousand-dollar purses are not uncommon and fights which netted the winner $60,000 or more are on the records.

Just compare that to the money the old-timers fought for. Charlie Mitchell fought Jack Burke at Ascot race track for the championship of England. The fight lasted an hour and seventeen minutes. The stake was $250 a side. Jack McAuliffe fought seventeen desperate rounds with Jack Hopper, skin-tight gloves, for a purse of $200. The great John L. Sullivan, early in his fighting time, fought Steve Taylor at Harry Hill's sporting resort here in New York, and received $50 for winning. Later, when Sullivan got $750 for knocking out John Flood in that historic fight on a barge up the Hudson, he showed the money around town with great pride.

It is not generally known that Johny Conlon is an official hero and the possessor of a Congressional medal for life saving, but it is a fact.

It happened back in 1905 in this wise:

Johnny was in New York when 15 years of age, and while walking down near the East River one day happened to pass the pier at the foot of Thirty-sixth street.

A six-year-old boy named Edward Kane fell into the river from the end of the pier. Coulon, hearing the cries for help, ran down and jumped after the boy. Diving he found him under water and swam to the pier, where the piles were too slippery to hold. A rope was thrown to little Coulon, who caught a loop in the end of it, and was hauled out of the water with the boy in his grip. But the boys on the pier couldn't haul him to the top. They drew him up half way and then dropped him again. In the fall Coulon lost his grip on the boy. He dove until he found him again. This time he was "all in," but managed to keep up until three icemen came to the wharf and hauled him up, with the rescued boy in his arms.

"The thing that scared me," said Coulon, in describing it, "was jumping in the river. My mother was a New York girl and she had often told me that the East River was full of sharks and porpoises, and that the porpoises would bump you to death if you went among them."

Owen Moran is gunning after Knockout Brown. The little Englishman is willing to meet the famous little Dutchman at 128 pounds ringside. Moran wants Brown to make his weight, as the latter is willing to fight Kilbane under those weight conditions.

My! My! what a battle it would be with this pair in the ring. This would even it up for all those alleged championship affairs we were inflicted with recently.

That is going to be some fight at the St. Nicholas Athletic Club June 11 when Jonny Kilbane meets Knockout Brown. This promises to be a real battle. Brown exemplifies force; Kilbane science. The former lad depends on his strength to batter down all opposition; the latter places his reliance on slashing blows for a triumph, believing that his rapid-like thrusts are more effective and deadly to a man's pugilistic tendencies than the hammer-like thuds of a broadsword.

It will not, however, be a bout simply between a fighter and a boxer, for with all his cleverness Kilbane has a deadly punch and when opportunity offers is not afraid to mix it with the best of them.

Rye, New York, has become very popular as training quarters for prize fighters.

Among the distinguished lights of the ring who have been, or are now preparing themselves for the battle in the beautiful little Westchester village are Sid Burns, Johnny Kilbane, and Matt Wells.

Too Difficult.

SPITTER IS HARD TO HIT.

Walsh Is Great Believer in Deceptive Ball.

Pirate Recruit Uses Head as Well as Hands.

Elmer Stricklett Invented the Marvelous Fling.

"That Marty O'Toole," says Henry O'Day, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, "has a spitball that breaks something like Walsh's, but nowhere near as much speed, nor anything like as good control, and yet he is getting more strike-outs, getting them against good batters, too. Rather hard to figure, but he's getting away with it in clever style."

Notwithstanding, the Reds can't understand how O'Toole gets away with it, it is probable that he will be a successful pitcher unless something happens to his arm.

There is no greater pitcher than Ed Walsh of the White Sox, and in intelligence Big Ed also ranks high. He says the spitball is and will continue to be the most effective ball a pitcher can throw.

One can understand how O'Toole could fan Bescher, a star hitter on the Cincinnati team, three times straight, and also make every other man on the team miss them after reading what Walsh says he can do to such hitters as Cobb, Crawford and Jackson, the stars of the American League. The White Sox twirler says: "When I've got my spitter breaking right I can beat any ball club in the world. No use trying to bat against it; it's simply unhittable. Larry Lajoie, Ty Cobb and all other hitting stars of the American League will tell you the same story. Ask Lajoie about the time I fanned him in Cleveland with the American League championship at stake.

COBB AND CRAWFORD HELPLESS.

"The spitter is a terror when it works right. One day I had Detroit in the nine hole, and you know the Tigers are some hitters. I think Cobb and Crawford are two of the greatest stickers the game ever produced. The spitter had them all standing on their heads. Neither Ty nor Sam could get it out of the infield. I held them hitless for eight rounds and had two gents gone in the ninth when my catcher muffed a foul tip. If he had only held the leather it would have meant another out and given me a no-hit game against the Tigers. The muff gave the batsman one more chance. He dumped a roller to Tannehill, who had a hard play to make and missed his man. The scorer called it a hit.

"Elmer Stricklett invented the spitball in 1904. I swiped the idea from Elmer and have been perfecting it ever since. Now I think I've got the spitball down finer than any other man in the game."

CHICK EVANS IS MEDAL COVERED.

HAS MORE DECORATIONS THAN A KING.

But the Golf Expert Is Not Satisfied With All These Honors—Got His Famous Nickname When a Caddy on the Links—His Many Feats Too Numerous to Mention.

CHICAGO, June 1.—If Charles Evans, Jr., should attach all the golfing titles he has won to the end of his name he would have an array of decorations quite as impossible as those of the Nizam of Hyderbad or the Maharajah of Masulipatam. There is, however, one pearl missing from his string, the highest Uncle Sam has to offer—the amateur championship of the United States—and "Chick" will not be happy until he gets it.

Evans has toiled up the slope and reached close to the summit, only to slip on the heights and have some other climber reach out and pluck the honor. Opportunity has knocked at his door and he is hoping it will knock again this summer at the Chicago Golf Club, when the flower of our golfing talent and a number of stars from Great Britain will battle for the amateur title.

Three times the young Chicagoan has reached the semi-final round in the national amateur event. In 1909 he was beaten at the Chicago Golf Club by H. C. Egan, 1 up. The following year he was beaten at Brookline by W. C. Fownes, Jr., 1 up. Last year at Apawamis he fell before Fred Herreshoff, 3 and 2.

Last year "Chick" had the most eventful season that ever has fallen to the lot of any young American player, and it is doubtful whether any American golfer has played over more courses and seen more golf, with the exception of Walter J. Travis, who has been performing steadily for over fifteen years.

Entering for the British amateur championship last year, "Chick" started early practice on the southern courses, and on April 1 won the United North and South championship. On April 29 he sailed on the Caledonian for Liverpool, and after playing over a number of English and Scotch links took part in the British championship at Prestwick in June, losing in the fifth round to Bruce Pearce, the young Australian Southpaw. On June 27 and 28 Evans competed in the British open championship at Sandwich. He scored three rounds of 78, but an 80 in his final round put him out of the running for the prize positions. On July 8 he won the French amateur championship at Versailles, defeating J. G. Anderson, of Boston, in the final, which went thirty-eight holes. Returning to this country, Evans took part in the western amateur championship at Detroit, losing to Mason Phelps in the first round, 1 up, the match being remarkable from the fact that the last fourteen holes were halved.

EVANS'S MANY FEATS.

Evans many feats on the links are too numerous to chronicle. In 1910 he set fourteen records on various courses, but his most-prized performance was the winning of the western open championship at the Beverly Country Club from a field containing a number of the leading professionals of the country.

"Chick" was born July 18, 1890, at Indianapolis. He is one of a family of three, having one sister and a brother, both of whom play golf occasionally. Charles Evans, Sr., and his family moved to Chicago in 1898. "Chick's" introduction to the Scottish game hinged on a change of residence to Rogers Park, near Edgewater Golf Club, which "Chick" has made known wherever golf is played.

RULE OF THREE.

Evans, Jr., was sent to study the rule of three at the Eugene Field grammar school, and took part in baseball and football. He played quarterback on the football team and had his left leg broken. While his leg was getting strong he frequently visited the Edgewater club, and there imbibed his love for golf. While a student at Northwestern University he conceived the notion of becoming a hurdler, but his feet, which afford such a solid stance at golf, refused to fold properly. As a result he caught his foot in the top of a hurdle and came a "cropper," spraining his wrist and putting him out of golf for a short time. Since that time, with the exception of taking a ride in an aeroplane with Lincoln Beachey at Pinehurst, "Chick" has struck close to terra firma.

Evans started his golfing career under the tutelage of Prof. Tom O'Neil, and in addition to caddying was the handy boy around the shop. From O'Neil he received his first instructions, but whatever measure of success has been his comes from his determination to master the game. Like Walter Travis, he has spent hours in practicing shots and has mastered them all.

HORSE NOTES.

Will Bowser has leased the Saranac (N. Y.) track.

Will Crozier is at Charter Oak Park with half a dozen horses.

Frank Stevens, for several seasons in charge of the racetrack at Woonsocket, R. I., is now located at the Parkway track, Brooklyn.

C. W. Lasell is still working his horse over the farm track at Whittinsville, Mass. He plans to go to Charter Oak Park the last of the month.

It is expected that the Kentucky horseman, George W. Leavitt, will soon make a visit to Boston and Readville.

Tom Marsh of Dover has a yearling trotter by Cochato (2:11½) of a Ponce de Leon (2:10) mare that acts like real Futurity timber.

It is announced that Secretary H. J. Kline states that only three horses had been declared out of the early closing events for the Grand Circuit meeting at Grand Rapids.

The number of entries to the series early closing events at Monroe, N. Y., was 318, an average of thirty-five to eahc class. The 2:24 trot received sixty-seven entries.

Report says that Trainer Bert Shank's M. & M. candidate, Dave Hallie, is in fine condition. The colt is owned by Abe Frank, Memphis, Tenn., and was sired by Peter the Great (2:07¼.)

California's horsemen who have seen Joe Patchen II in his work this spring will be disappointed if he does not make a faster record this season than his sire, 2:01¼.

It is said that Lon McDonald believes Billy Burk, 2:03¾, to be a two-minute trottear.

SURGEONS SAVE CLUNY.

Cluny, the highly-bred race mare, is racing again, despite the fact that she was sentenced to be shot at the Lagoon last summer. Her owner, Charles W. Clark, quickly vetoed the decision of the trainer that Cluny must die when she ran into the fence and tore a great gash in her side. In accordance with Clark's instructions, she was cared for as tenderly as any human being might be until she had recovered sufficiently to be shipped to her old home on the California ranch. Here for months she was suspended in a sling, but no expense was spared to make her comfortable. High-priced veterinarians were in constant attendance. For a long time one of them kept a night watch and the other was on duty all day. Of course, it cost more in dollars and cents than Cluny is worth, but her master was fond of the handsome thoroughbred. He refused to let her be killed merely because it was expensive to keep her. Now Cluny is well again and is racing at Coeur d'Alene. She is not quite what she was before she was hurt, but some of her progeny may bring additional turf fame to the Clark stable.

Model Kenilworth, Fore-Door Roadster, fully equipped, $1150

THE refinements and conveniences in the Paige Car—and the generous equipment with which it comes to Paige purchasers—prove our statement that we are putting into the Paige every essential of automobile value in comfort and efficiency that can be put into cars selling at $1125 and $1150.

The Paige motor, for instance, is built all the way through just as carefully as anyone can build. And we never allow a motor to leave our factory until it has been proven perfect by every known test. That is why we have never had a motor come back to us. This care and the workmanship in the Paige motor are typical of the building of the entire car. Nothing is slighted, nothing cheapened, nothing rushed in the Paige. We have the facilities—in resources, men and machinery—to build good cars. And we take time enough to do it.

Then, too, the Paige comes ready for the road.

The equipment is unusually complete, including on all models the top, windshield, five black enamel lamps, Presto tank and self starter, horn, tools, jack, tire repair outfit, etc. Quick Demountable Rims (set of 5) on touring car models including tire irons, $15.00. Same equipment on roadster, $12.50.

The Paige allows a selection from six popular models, prices $1075 and $1150, all built on the one Paige chassis, with Paige unit power plant.

IDYLLWILD.

Idyllwild is located a mile high among the stately pines and cedars on the San Jacinto Mountain, and is in the midst of a 700,000-acre Forest Reserve. Is reached by the Santa Fe train to Hemet, thence by automobile and stage. Leaving Los Angeles at 9 o'clock in the morning, you are landed at IDYLLWILD at four-thirty in the afternoon, in ample time to rest and dress before dinner, at one of the best mountain hotels in the State—American plan—the rates are quite reasonable or if you prefer you can have a housekeeping tent or cottage, and do your own housekeeping. There is a general store, postoffice and telephone, ample amusement is found in the saddle livery, bowling and tennis courts, croquet, hunting, fishing and mountain trails. To those having their own machines, a delightful and picturesque way to reach Idyllwild is to go via San Bernardino and Banning, and return via Hemet and Riverside.

Strong & Dickinson, Owners, 147 South Broadway, have just issued a new folder for this year, setting forth the attractions and rates of this wonderfully beautiful resort.

SEVERAL DON'TS FOR CAMPERS.

DON'T FORGET that vacation means rest, relaxation and recuperation.

Don't attempt too much of that strenuous stuff if you are accustomed to sedentary habits.

Don't try to put on a coat of tan in one day; a week gives a better result with less discomfort.

Don't under any circumstances polute the stream; remember your fellow-campers below.

Don't litter up the camp grounds. Burn the papers, bury the garbage and empty tins and you won't be pestered with flies and ants.

Don't ignore the forest rangers; they are not only human beings, but intelligent government employees, and before the vacation is over may prove to be your best friends.

Don't be careless about the campfire. Read the rules and regulations so conspicuously posted about pertaining to the building of fires in Uncle Sam's forests, and live up to them.

Don't consider yourself less responsible than your neighbor in helping to preserve our timber country from the ravages of fire.

Don't forget to use firearms with caution. Remember the innocent victims of the "moving brush" and if you wish to indulge in target practice, be sure to have the mountain side for a back ground.

Don't be a "game hog." Kill what you can use and use what you kill.

Don't allow anyone to take a snapshot of you in a compromising position with that tell-tale kodak; the friends of today may be the enemies of tomorrow.

Don't take the artificial accessories of your city life with you into the mountains. Leave your cosmetics at home and give nature a chance.

Don't overload yourself with literature. Fight shy of "printers' ink" and study the beauties of nature.

Don't attempt to sleep on the bare ground if you are not accustomed to it. In lieu of a suspended bed a sack filled with dry leaves will protect you from the dampness of the ground.

Don't allow your nerves to be shattered by the tricks of the brainless "camp fool."

Don't neglect to have at least one hot meal each day and when possible bake or boil food in preference to the greasy indigestible stuff cooked in a frying pan.

Don't forget the kodak, as your outing photos will help you to relive the pleasures of your trip.

Don't neglect to take along a flask of what the doctors call "spiritus fermenti." It will be found invaluable in case of accident.

Don't shirk your share of work around the camp. What is work at home should be play in the mountains.

Don't miss taking a hammock—that restful swinging bed for the idle hour.

Don't forget that matches are about the most important item on your list. Keep your supply high and dry.

Don't drag your business cares along with you on your trip. Leave them behind, they will be there when you get back.

Don't hurry.

Don't worry.

MOUNT WILSON, STRAIN'S CAMP.

Elevation 6000 feet. Located on the summit of Mount Wilson, seven miles from Sierra Madre and twenty-four miles from Los Angeles. These resorts are reached by climbing, on foot or burro, one of the easiest and safest mountain trails in the world, and their scenic grandeur baffles description. They are the favorite resting places of the votaries of Southern California's most exclusive society, and are annually visited by thousands of tourists from every section of the civilized globe. Open all the year. The Carnegie Solar Observatory, the largest of its kind in the world, is located on Mount Wilson. The accommodations at Mount Wilson consist of a large central building containing a commodiout dining hall, luxurious sitting room with fire-place, kitchen, bathroom, etc. Surrounding this building are forty artistic, well furnished cottages, nestled among the pines. WHEELER'S HOT MINERAL SPRINGS.

Elevation 1500 feet. An ideal summer and winter resort seven miles from Nordhoff and one hundred miles from Los Angeles. Hotel, cottages and tent houses. Wheeler's Cold Springs, elevation 3470 feet, a fishing and hunting camp; nine miles from the Hot Springs, and which is undoubtedly one of the best fishing and hunting camps in Southern California, is under the same management. Liver and kidney and stomach trouble, dyspepsia and a host of other ills quickly yield to the wonderful medicinal efficacy of the sulphur, iron and soda springs at Wheeler's. Hot and cold tub and plunge sulphur baths. Pleasing climate, splendid meals, delightful drives and attractive social gayeties. Music at meals and for dancing. Grand scenery, groves of pine and live oak trees, winding streams, electric illumination, telephone, club rooms, tennis, croquet, saddle horses, careful guides, and everything that makes for good health and happiness. Accessible by automobile. Garage.

Round-trip fare via Southern Pacific Railway to Nordhoff and stage to Spring, $6.80.

Rates: Board, room in frame cottage or hotel and baths, $15.00 per week, two persons, $14.00 per week each. With private toilet and bath, $18.00 per week for one; $15.00 per week each for two. Board and tent cottage room, $14.00 per week for one and $12.50 per week each for two in room. Completely furnished housekeeping rooms in tent cottages, $6.25 per week, including baths and water.

Address Mrs. R. A. Blumberg, Wheeler's Hot Springs, Nordhoff, Cal.

YACHT AND MOTOR CAR INTERESTS COMBINED.

In order to promote the interests of both organizations, the Wilmington Yacht Club, which owns a clubhouse on the Delaware River, near Wilmington, Del., has so changed its constitution and by-laws as to make it possible to have a working agreement with the Delaware Automobile Association, the object being to secure the co-operation of the latter in events that interest both.

The yacht club has changed its name to the Wilmington Yacht and Automobile Association, and has made the dues nominal.

This is not a merger, however, and the automobile association does not go out of existence, though many of its members have joined the yacht association since the change was brought about.

McGRAW FEARS ONLY PITTSRUBG.

NEW YORK, June 1.—McGraw of the Giants has figured it out that if he can defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates he will win the pennant.

Time was when the Giants had a heap of respect for the Phillies, but they figure now that Dooin's crew is too far out of the race to come back without a spurt as sensational as the Athletics' rush of last year. And they doubt if the Phillies have such a sprint concealed about them.

In the West only Pittsburgh interests them. Cincinnati tops the Pirates just now and Chicago is close to Clarke's men, but basing the opinion on what was shown against the Giants in the recent swing around the provinces, neither is likely to hold the advantage gained while the Pirates were acquiring some late spring training.

Sunburn and Such.

DANGERS TO BE AVOIDED SWIMMING IN THE SURF.

Frank Holborow, Swimming Instructor of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, Gives Some Practical Advice to the Amateurs Who Will Take a Whirl at the Beach Today.

BY FRANK HOLBOROW.

WHEN visiting the beaches this summer, be careful of sunburn. Many who have never experienced a bad sunburn are too careless about this danger. There is no beach in Southern California that is immune from it.

Your first trip to the beach is always the most dangerous. After you get into your bathing suit, do not go down to the beach and sit in the hot sand for hours. Ten or fifteen minutes each day until the skin begins to tan is sufficient, to make it doubly sure, rub your body thoroughly with olive or cocoanut oil before putting on your suit. After the first five or six days the danger will be past, then lie in the sun as long as you like.

I have seen several cases of sunburn that laid people in bed for a week at a time and one case where a young man had to be carried around in a wheel chair for several days. Any one that has suffered from a bad case of sunburn can tell of the terrible suffering and pain it causes. Sun baths are the best thing in the world for the skin and health, but be careful the first few days.

USE OLIVE OIL.

Olive or cocoanut oil will relieve the pain from sunburn as quickly as anything that can be put on the skin.

Another danger at the beach is the carelessness of some people who take their lunch while in their bathing suits, and who go down to lie around in their street clothes. Many are careless about throwing bottles and tin cans around the sand. Many bathers are in the habit of running along the sand. Always be on the lookout for these things. I have seen many bad cuts from it.

STINGING JELLYFISH.

Jellyfish should be avoided, give them a wide berth always. They throw out a liquid that if it touches you will sting like a bee. It gets into the pores of the skin and will pain for hours. A little oil of any kind, alcohol or arnica, will often relieve the pain from this.

Stingarees are another danger. If ever stung by one, never try to pull the stinger out. Hunt up a doctor as soon as possible and let him cut it out. The stinger has points similar to the point of a sword, that point backwards and if pulled out will tear the skin badly.

Pulling logs out of the surf is another very dangerous thing. I once saw a man have his leg broken from the log being thrown against it by the surf. These things are easily tossed around by the surf, but when you try to lift one of them you will soon realize the danger if struck by one.

Salt water swimming in Southern California is as healthful and pleasant as any place in the world. But if you do not know how to swim, learn as soon as possible. Any good swimming instructor can teach you to swim in a few lessons, but, like any other athletic exercise, it takes practice to become proficient. Never be afraid of the water while in the hands of a good instructor. He will never duck you and is just as anxious to teach you as you are to learn.

MUSCLE DEVELOPER.

Swimming also develops the muscles as no other exercise will. It makes them strong and supple without the knotty ones that are only good to look at. It also teaches you to breathe properly and develops endurance to a wonderful degree. Beginners usually lose their breath quickly and tire easily. This comes from improper control of the muscles. All swimmers should do some other form of exercise to keep the wind and muscles in good condition and to get better control.

The novice soon realizes the importance of the proper application of swimming movements. There is a very regretful absence of the correct movements, even in swimming competitions between men that are supposed to be experts. Too much importance cannot be given to this point. The better the form, the easier and less tiresome swimming becomes. It also adds to the speed.

EDUCATE CHILDREN.

Swimming should be part of every child's education. It is an art, but an easy one to learn under proper instruction. The breast stroke is the easiest to learn and all beginners should start with it. When once able to cross a tank alone, no matter how slowly, confidence soon comes, then the more difficult strokes can be taken up. If in the hands of an instructor when learning, put all your confidence in him. But above all things, have nothing to do with anyone that tries to teach you by ducking you first. If confidence is lost at the beginning it will be almost impossible to recover it.

On California Sands.

We don't know what the wild waves were saying, but we know what they might have said and not have made any mistake in the present instance.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST FOR OLYMPIC STARS.

In a last effort to raise funds to defray the expenses of Jimmy Donahue and Fred Kelly, who are practically certain of being cohsen members of the American team that is to compete in the Olympic games, at Stockholm, next month, Capt. J. B. Franklin, chairman of the local Olympic Games Committee, has started a subscription list.

W. A. Reynolds yesterday headed the list with a subscription of $50 and offered to take hold of the matter and push it. Franklin has authorized Reynolds to handle the matter.

About $1000 is needed. The minstrel show only yielded $100 net receipts.

Yesterday Franklin received a telegram from James E. Sullivan, stating that Donahue and Franklin were practically certain of being among the men who form the American team.

Warren Bovard of U.S.C. went to Orange yesterday for the purpose of raising Kelly's expenses to New York and return. Kelly's home is at Orange. Bovard also had a telegram from Sullivan stating that he would recommend Donahue and Kelly for places on the team when the national committee meets, June 10.

Spring in Yosemite Valley.

Most of the trails and the road to the Big Trees are open, the air is clar and bracing, and the whole valley invites you to come. Leave Los Angeles 9:40 p.m. daily. Standard sleepers; dining car service. The easy way—SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

DON'T STAY IN WATER TOO LONG

A PERSON will always stop to think all week about what a good time he will have when he or she gets to the beach the next Sunday, but you will very seldom stop to think how long you would stay in the water or whether it would do you any good to stay in fifteen minutes or one-half hour.

Now that is one of the things you should always stop and think over. The water will never do you any harm if you will not stay in too long; but if you go from here to the beach and go in the surf, never stay in longer than one-half hour.

That length of time will never hurt you, but if you overdo it, you will always feel the effects of it the next day.

There is nothing better for a person than a little dip in the surf every day. It freshens you up, and makes you feel like someone.

But the minute you go into any beach plunge you are spoiling a swim in the surf. I don't say that the plunges are in anyway harmful, because the plunges at all the beaches are up-to-date, and are the finest to be had. But for a swim that will benefit you always take the surf.

A swim in the plunge is all well and good for a good time, but you don't do yourself any good by staying in too long. The water is always heated and that is what does you the harm.

The hot water makes you feel nice and warm when you are in it, but when you come out it makes you feel tired and lazy, and takes all the starch out of a person.

You never know what you are going to catch in a plunge, and what harm will become of it, so my advice to all swimmers is to use the surf for all their swimming. It may seem cold to you when you first get in, but it is never too cold to do you any harm.

Did you ever stop to think what pleasure you can have in the surf? When you take a lady in with you, always keep a firm hold on her arms so that you can always keep her on her feet.

When a breaker is coming at you, never get excited, just take the lady by both arms and lift her over the breaker and you will always find that this will keep her from getting her hair wet, which is a lady's first thought when in swimming.

Another great sport in the surf is the riding in with the breakers, with a surf board, or without. You must always be on the lookout when riding a board, or you will hit someone and injury them badly.

Never try it when the bathers are around.

When on a board, always be careful which way you lay. Never get too far forward on the board, because that causes the board to stick its nose in the sand and many times a person will be hurt very badly.

When you are on a surf board remember to stay pretty well back toward the end, to prevent it from going down.

When taking a board out through the surf, always hold on to it when a breaker comes. If you don't it will possibly get away from you, and hit someone.

Another great sport is to take a tennis ball on the beach and have a ball game with it. This is great sport for a bunch of fellows, but one should be awful careful after the game is over, not to enter the water as you have become hot. To enter the water in that state is one of the worst things in the world. Always take a rest on the beach after you are through playing.

There are a hundred ways of enjoying yourself in the surf, and on the beach, but one should always stop to think whether it will hurt you in any way after you are through.

For a good exercise before taking your swim, a short little run up the beach and back will never hurt you a bit if you do not overdo it, and run too far.

The practice of swimming produces the most beneficial effects on the respiratory organs, and thereby facilitates the circulation, and purification of the blood. Those persons who frequent the surf beaches during the summer, are found to be stronger and healthier than those who neglect to do so.

No harm can come to those who swim during the summer or winter in Southern California, providing they dry their hair and bodies properly after leaving the water, and take care not to overlook the cold shower to close the pores after the bath.

From a physical standpoint, swimming excels everything else in keeping one fit during the summer by promoting respiration and circulation.

KNOCKING THE GAME.

Those who are reaping the benefits of boxing in New York must be trying to see who will kill it off the quickest. Scandal after scandal crops up, and the latest is that of Bat Masterson filing charges with Lieut.-Gov. Conway against Boxing Commissioner Frank O'Neill. Masterson charges O'Neill with being prejudiced and unable to fairly discharge the duties of his office. He bases his charges on the recent case of the National Club, which lost its license because Referee Haley rendered a decision. Masterson intimates that O'Neill is interested in the Garden Athletic Club. They certainly are having merry times in the metropolis and if they don't look out the boxing will cease.

VAN COURT SAYS, "TO THE HILLS."

Mountain Air Is What the Tired Man Needs.

Don't Try to Do Too Much on Two Weeks' Trip.

Fire the Office Boy if He Forwards Mail.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

Few business men really know just how to take a two weeks' vacation and get rest and recreation at the same time. Many come back to their work in worse condition than when they started. Proper recreation is the real rest for the business man. But the trouble is to get the right kind of recreation without overdoing it.

There are so many ways and so many places to go that it is sometimes hard to choose just when and where to go. The best place to settle upon is the one that takes you into an entire change of climate; at the same time get as close to nature as possible. For a climate such as we have in Southern California, the high mountains are the best. But at any rate, select the place that you like best. The mountains take you into the higher altitudes and dryer air.

The cities are the last of all to choose. We get all that kind of life right here at home. It is never necessary to take an extensive wardrobe along. If the mountains are chosen, take a pair of strong shoes, warm underclothes, khaki suit and soft shirts. Live as much as possible in the open air, keep your shirt open well at the throat and wear your hat as little as possible. Sleep right out in the open air if possible. Go to bed not later than 9 o'clock and get up at five or six. Never overload your stomach, no matter how hungry you are.

The day you leave, arrange your business so that you will hear nothing of it until you get back. Do not receive any correspondence or do any in a business way. Better still, do not read the daily papers while you are gone. Live with the birds and animals of the mountains as much as possible. Be a boy, act and do as you did when a boy, look for any and all things that will make you laugh, if you cannot find it, try and make some one else laugh.

BE MODERATE.

Walking and horse-back riding are good things by means of which to get yourself in shape in two weeks' time. But always be moderate in both. A short walk before breakfast will open your eyes and give you a good appetite. You should always remember, if you have been tied up in an office, your muscles are not in condition for hard mountain climbing or other stunts that take stamina.

Two weeks is a short time to do much, but a lot can be done if gone about in the right way. After breakfast, rest for at least an hour, then take your walks, rids, or climbs as you feel inclined and rest whenever you feel the least bit tired. After lunch, take a good sleep right out in the open air, under some shady tree or in a hammock, but take it.

Leave all intoxicants alone and drink all the good spring water you can and drink it often. The more the better. Take a good sunbath every day, but be careful of sunburn the first few days. A good short swim is always refreshing, but never stay in fresh water too long. Games of the athletic sort are good at any time in the open air, but never long enough to tire. A short walk at an easy gait is a good thing to digest your evening meal and make you sleep well. An old German saying is: After dinner, sleep a while and after supper, walk a mile. This is a splendid rule to follow.

When you rest, rest as quietly as possible and when you play, play good and hard, but not too much of either. I have seen many men done up good and hard from a friendly challenge to walk to a certain place to test his strength and endurance. Leave all this to others that are used to those things.

Trout fishing is fine sport. It gives plenty of walking and exercise, but do not keep at it all day. A few hours early in the morning followed by a good long rest will bring good results. Once a day of this work is enough for that day.

For young fellows that are in good condition and are accustomed to walking, a trip on foot to the Yosemite Valley is an ideal one. It can be easily done in two weeks' time. There are many trips of this kind that can be found nearer at home. Never be afraid of little inconveniences or dust. The dust will wash off and the other things will harden you and give you more confidence in yourself.

THE BEACHES.

Many like the beaches for a vacation, but they are too near city life. The rougher clothes you wear, the younger and more like a boy you will feel. Camping out is another good way to spend a vacation, but it should be a permanent camp. Camping each day from place to place, traveling with a camping outfit, is the hardest kind of work for any one that is not accustomed to it. It is impossible to get enough rest. Then again, camping in this manner will bring out all that is in a man, good or bad, quicker than anything else. It is hard work, after traveling all day, to pitch camp, cook and pack and unpack, especially if everybody is good and hungry. Horseback riding is a pleasant way to travel, if it is possible to make good eating and sleeping places every day, but this should only be tried by those that are at home on a horse.

The pleasantest vacation I ever experienced was at a farmhouse in the mountains, where they raised everything that they ate. We found good hunting, fishing and swimming, with plenty of shade. It was eleven miles from the nearest town and only six houses on the place. We had the best of everything and were very agreeably surprised when we asked for our bill and were told that it was only $5 a week, each. There are many places of this kind all over California and the business man who wants rest and recreation in two weeks' time, will find that a place of this kind is the ideal one, no noise, no dust, quiet, clean, good wholesome food, and plenty of it, pure milk and mountain water.

The Exquisite in Footwear Styles

The Cousins Shoe
FOR DISCRIMINATING WOMEN

LOW CUTS just now are at the pinnacle of popularity. The graceful lines and simple elegance of "Cousins" Low Cuts appeal to women who are particular in matters of dress. They embody all that you could possibly ask for—style, beauty, elegance and real worth. The satisfaction derived from wearing a pair of "Cousins" Low Cuts is doubled by the keen enjoyment one gets from the comfort they impart to the feet. White and tan Low Cuts are enjoying a tremendous vogue in the East, and will be extensively worn throughout the Summer—on city streets as well as at seaside and mountain resorts. The showing of Cousins Low Cuts—at both Gude Stores—is exceptionally complete, affording ample opportunity for the exercise of individual tastes in the selection of one's footwear for these summery days.

CAMPING AND TRAMPING FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS.

BY HILDA WESTREM WHEELER.

THE manufacturers of sporting goods long ago realized the fact that women are naturally esthetic in their habits and every year new devices for their comfort are evolved until this year it seems that perfection has been reached as far as women's clothing and contraptions are concerned.

It is now possible to start on a trip looking as nobby and quietly neat as though going for a shopping trip on Broadway.

Everything this year is light in weight—feather weight — one might say, from hat to boots, and many pounds of weight has been eliminated from an outfit.

The skirts are made narrow and extremely simple, the most popular weave being imported English whipcord, which comes in all shades, light and heavy weight goods. This goods is made up as a simple divided skirt, the new idea being a separate panel which buttons down the front when the plain walking skirt effect is desired, and which may be entirely removed when much walking or riding is to be done.

Another popular weave this season is wide wale velvet corduroy made Seaton-Thompson style, and this also comes in different shades.

Galatea cloth to match the color of the skirt is used for the bloomers and the waist, and to carry out the color effect, this same goods may be fashioned into the latest pack for women, evolved by a well-known local firm who has capitulated to the popular demand for California-made clothing for California weather, and has started a large factory of its own. This light, comfortable shoulder pack weighs but a few ounces, and is roomy enough to permit a woman to carry her traveling "roll-up" made with pockets enough for every imaginable toilet article, and the ever-present looking glass, and other traps, making her quite independent.

The non-descript, ill-behaving and nearly always most unbecoming outing hat of former years, has been relegated to the shelf in favor of a distinctly novel and practical piece of headgear known as the Crash hat, which comes in shades to match your suit. It is surprisingly light and airy and may be washed if of a light color.

The boots are lighter weight than formerly and in the latest cut, making the foot neat and trim and are waterproof with the usual bellus tongue, while the gloves are soft and of the darker shades in contrast to the heavy buckskins one is accustomed to.

Sweaters, the camper's true friend, are made exceedingly attractive on the middle blouse order and as for the middies themselves their color is legion striped flannel being the key note of them all.

Whether you will travel by auto or a la apostles horses, this outfit with light underwear will serve every purpose.

The very last word in camp kits is made of aluminum and will neither rust, burn nor black, weighs but little and comes neatly encased in a canvas bag which may be slung over the shoulder in connection with the army canteen. It practically solves the culinary problem as the top of the outfit is a frying pan, the bottom a boiler and the whole makes a dandy roasting pan.

THE FOOD PROBLEM.

Of course, the question of grub is a great one, and up to you, but it is well to remember that it is hard to get enough to eat in the country and even the most jaded, caterer-fed society matron can surely eat a lot of plain grub when Ozone starts its invasion.

No woman would go on a trip of any length without adopting a fad or some sort of sport. It may only be studying the birds or the stars or it may be dusting the shelves of memory, but it is sure to be something as women are too highly strung and active to be entirely passive even when all nature is at rest.

The folding tent bed is ideal for any of these pursuits as you are wholly protected from below and above while it is still possible to stick your nose out and absorb atmosphere and romance and health.

Or it may be that you will pass your time hunting or fishing.

In that case for hunting you may take the new style feather weight highpower Savage twenty-two, or the Marbles game getter, which shoots a forty-four shot cartridge and a twenty-two bullet cartridge and will get you anything from a deer to the bark on a [illegible], which last has a special attraction for many of us novices.

In fishing tackle there is the feather weight three, four, five—but shaw, it's a cinch to be a woman and a camper these days, and when they can travel in such style and have so much luxurious pleasure combined with the nerve tonic of ocean and mountain air, this should surely be a banner year for the great out-of-doors.

Sticking Around Home.

SOME VACATION TRAMPS FOR SLENDER PURSES.

How You Can Take a Series of Fascinating Alpine Excursions that Will Occupy Your Entire Vacation and Yet You Need Not Go Beyond the City Limits. It's All Right in Town.

THE vacation season is upon us. The tang of the ozone beckons to the wilds. But the recesses of the High Sierras and the glories of Lake Tahoe and the luxuries of the mountain camp are beyond the purse of many a lover of the brook and the peak. Fortunately, there are many inexpensive tramps for the man of limited means, taking Los Angeles for a starting point. Some of the excursions afford the various thrills, on a minor scale, of the more extensive outings. There are, within walking distance of the termini of the various car lines, secluded glens, wooded canyons, thorny trails, gentle waterfalls, steep precipices, obscure paths and waterless areas.

RIGHT IN TOWN.

A low altitude sometimes affords an inspiring outlook. The top of a tall building has its exhilarations. There are strong possibilities in the lunch hour. Access to the top of some of the skyscrapers can be gained by application to the office of the building. The roof of the Young Men's Christian Association is always open to men; and that of the Young Women's Christian Association is alway accessible to women.

The tower of the County Courthouse is at the disposal of the public on Saturdays from 9 o'clock until 12, and admission on other days can be obtained from the Board of Supervisors. The [illegible] steps above the elevator landing will only prove appetizers for the widespread view. The roof of the new Hall of Records affords similar joys under similar conditions. The platform at the head of "The Angel's Flight" affords a good opportunity to broaden one's horizon, while munching the noon lunch; and, if you walk or run up the public steps on the north side of the flight, you will think you are "climbing some" and your mountain muscles will ache.

ALL FOR FIVE CENTS.

There are numerous trips to scenic points that can be accomplished for a 5-cent fare. In midsummer, the majority of the trips can be taken after business hours, certainly the time of the Saturday half-holiday is ample. Several of the walks can be extended to some vantage point, where a picnic lunch mixes nicely with a sunset view.

Crown Hill, at the summit of the Sixth-street loop, has a good vista. So has Everett street, running north from Sunset boulevard, just west of the Sisters' Hospital. Angeleno Heights is viewful. "Rainbow Hill," near the end of the East First-street car line, is a picturesque spot. So is Rose Hill, just beyond the old city limits, on the Pasadena short line. By the way, when you are rounding the horseshoe, on the Rose Hill circuit, it may do you good to look down into "Happy Valley." Then try the path stretching away from the corner of Avenue 28 on the Griffin-avenue line. It will lead you to a series of hills commanding a good outlook.

SYCAMORE HILLS AND GARVANZA.

Sycamore Grove at Pasadena avenue and Avenue 46 forms the base of several hills rising to an altitude of 600 feet, and good paths lead to a second series of hills beyond. Avenue 57 conducts you across a bridge spanning the Arroyo and to a trail that ascends to the north side of the Sycamore clump just alluded to. This trail is an attractive one, winding among oak trees and bay trees, and meandering to retreats as woodsy as any to be found in the vicinity of Los Angeles. Avenue 66 is a portal to Mt. Hermon and the high hills skirting South Pasadena.

The Annandale line, running up Avenue 64, will drop you at Pollard street, or near the point where a path branches off to "Poppy Top," the highest of the Garvanza hills and a favorite spot for a sunset picnic. An additional fare will carry you to the Annandale Country Club, and to the magnificent boulevard connecting Pasadena, Eagle Rock, Hollywood and Santa Monica.

EAGLE ROCK CREST.

Eagle Rock is a popular resort for Los Angeles mild climbers. To reach there, take the Garvanza car on Main street, using the yellow line, and the car marked Eagle Rock avenue. The extension of the line lands you close by the base of the rock. If you continue on a level, you will find a fine path, leading through a shaded ravine, to several well-wooded canyons. Lunch nooks abound, and there is a spring of water in a sequestered glade. A stiff trail climbs to the high hills bounding the canyon.

But if you wish to obtain a view from the bald head of the Eagle, you take a path running up the side of the pudding-stone mass, until you come to the eyebrows of the old bird. There you can scan the horizon with your own eagle eye. From the crest of the head, you may ascend additional elevations and prolong the walk indefinitely, touching a number of summits by means of a series of ridges. If you descend to the east, you will emerge at Colorado street, Pasadena. If you march on the crests to the north, you will explore the lovely recesses of the San Rafael hills, on the next range; or you will swerve to the northwest and then the west and fairly encircle the Eagle Rock Valley, descending at the western extremity, where the road leads to East Glendale, and the vistas of Verdugo Canyon. The long walk all around the tip-tops is a tramp for a full afternoon. It can be prolonged to a full days' outing, with a noon lunch at some convenient spot. Better take a canteen of water, if you set aside the entire day.

PARKS AWAIT INVESTIGATION.

Los Angeles city contains within its boundaries twenty-seven parks—some of them very diminutive, some very extensive. The parks with the gem-like lakes and the safe boating are well patronized—Eastlake Park, Westlake, Hollenbeck and Echo. Exposition Park is soon to become a vast playground.

Elysian park is worthy its name, although seldom frequented by pedestrians. It contains 500 acres of rolling country; ten miles of roadway; several sparkling reservoirs; and several well-stocked green-houses. Within the park are three peaks of respectable elevation. One of them, the river promontory, overlooks the Tropico and Glendale valley; another, Mt. McKinley, overlooks the San Fernando Valley, and a third, Lookout Mountain, overlooks the city. The view from any of them is worth the climb, and it rightly deserves the name of a climb.

Griffith Park is just coming into public notice, as the most extensive of the breathing spots of Los Angeles. It is not well-known because there is no car line running to the distant entrance. It is a paradise for the automobile owner; and the city park department is taking great pride in developing magnificent drives. The park was a gift to the city. It embraces 756 acres. It runs from the dry bed of the Los Angeles River all the way back to Hollywood, embracing several romantic canyons and the high peaks of the Hollywood range.

The pedestrian who wishes to investigate Griffith Park will take the car on the Glendale line, and alight at Ivanhoe station (10 cents.) He will then walk a mile and a half to the center of the park, and from there ramify in a variety of directions, or climb the steeps at the back to the precipices on the west. New trails are being rapidly constructed.

The tramper can vary his route as follows. About a mile from Ivanhoe station, beside the same road leading into the park, rises a sharp ridge, jutting from the plain. A well-defined path leads up the ridge, and can be pursued in its sinuous windings, and ascents and descents, mile after mile, until the astonished investigator stands on the top of Hollywood Mountain. Some of the branching canyons can be easily descended; some are fraught with danger. Several plain paths lead down to Hollywood. Take a full afternoon for this walk.

EDENDALE; MT. HOLLYWOOD.

Edendale has hills that try the muscles. But the view of Silver Lake, on a summer afternoon, or a moonlight night, is well worth the climb to the top of Fargo street. Beyond Edendale proper, a good luncheon spot can be found at the end of the Edendale car line, near a pleasant hill, overlooking the river bed. Furthermore, a walk along the car tracks brings one to Ivanhoe station, and the entrance to Griffith Park, before alluded to.

Mt. Hollywood is a favorite spot for lovers of foothill rambles. It is accessible. The climb is not a hard climb. To reach the mountain take a Hollywood car, and debouch at Vermont avenue. Follow Vermont avenue north several blocks and east around the curve of Los Feliz avenue. Take the first road going north towards the base of the cone-shaped peak. This wagon road is gentle in its ascent to the foot of the range. Then easy zig-zags carry you higher and higher until the summit, 1600 feet above the level of the sea, is reached, and a glorious panorama rewards your puffing toil; the Mt. Lowe range lies on the north; "Old Baldy" is on the east; the San Fernando Valley is at your feet on one side of the mountain; the Los Angeles plain on the other, and the shimmering sea stretches into infinity where "the day is dying in the West." Hollywood Peak is an exquisite point for a sunset vista, or a moonlight view of billowy canyons.

A trail wide enough for horseback riders, leads over into Griffith Park; and several trails lead back into Hollywood. There is a longer detour. The venturesome man, with all day at his disposal, can circle the whole crown of mountain tops branching to the west, from Hollywood Peak, and by means of the connecting ridges, can reach the summit of Cahuenga Peak, or descend into the valley of Cahuenga Pass. Allow a fair half day for thet rip to Hollywood Peak. If you walk rapidly you can start at 2 o'clock and be back at 6, but a greater allowance of time is advantageous. The vistas on the way to the peak and at the peak will repay all the time you can devote to them.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

Laurel Canyon, crowned by Lookout Mountain, is perhaps the most feasible excursion for those persons who wish to avoid the fatigue of a hard climb. The Hollywood car, marked "Laurel Canyon" will bring you to the entrance of the canyon. A public automobile, seeking passengers, meets the car at frequent intervals, or can be summoned from the telephone post near by. This automobile is a "trackless trolley." There are no rails. The motive power is supplied by a trolley wire overhead and the customary "broomstick." The road is a splendidly graveled road, leading to Bungalow Inn. The distance is a mile and a half; the fare is 10 cents each way.

From Bungalow Inn, an excellent road entices the pedestrian another mile and a half, to the summit of Lookout Mountain. A branch road leads from the summit of Mt. Lookout, by connecting ridges to Wolfe's Peak and to Prospect Peak, and the side trip forms a pleasant diversion. If one desires to ride from the end of the car line, and the entrance to the canyon, all the way to the summit of Mt. Lookout and return, there is an additional automobile which will accommodate him for a larger money consideration. There are thus means by which the exertion of mountain climbing may be reduced to a minimum and its luxury raised to a maximum.

Other canyons can be reached from Hollywood, notably Cahuenga Pass. One can ride to the Hollywood line to Hollywood Hotel, and walk to the end of the pass; or, he can ride on the Lankershim line to Oak Crest in the center of the pass (fare 20 cents,) and meander through the pass, and walk back to the Hollywood Hotel.

VERDUGO AND MILLARD'S.

Verdugo Mountain, at the end of the Glendale line, has enticing reaches. The lower promontories may be scaled by the ordinary walker. But the distant summit can be conquered only by those who are equal to a stiff climb and will take the necessary time. Carry a canteen of water.

Millard's Canyon and Eaton's Canyon and the altitudes of Mt. Lowe and Mt. Wilson may be reached by the customary trails, so frequently trodden. Guides are not necessary, but a mountain tramper who knows the way, is an accession.

It is thus evident that a person whose business engagements, or whose purse does not permit an extensive outing, can yet enjoy the privilege of escaping "the maddening crowd" occasionally and getting "near to nature's heart." He can tone up his system by a ramble in the hills, fill his lungs with ozone and return to his work invigorated to attack his task with fresh zest.

PHOTOGRAPHY AS A SPORT.

BY HILDA WESTREM WHEELER.

To go on a vacation without camera is like forgetting the salt for your food and when the red gods call you for your annual playdays, whether it be to the limitless stretch of sand at the seashore or to penetrate the mountain wilds, camera will prove an interesting adjunct of your outfit.

Taking pictures doesn't mean to just go out and wildly press the button. It is an art, a great study and it requires time, a lot of it, and much experience to become proficient.

An amateur will naturally make many mistakes, which isn't a bit strange considering the intricate mechanism of a camera, but even if you have mastered the mechanical end of it, if you know how to adjust the roll of film, judge distance and can take a picture without doubling up that is still a drop in the bucket as far as a camera craft is concerned.

DOUBLING UP.

"Doubling up," is perhaps the most frequent mistake made by a beginner and next comes the over or under-exposing of the film or plate. In this country the light is fast and slow within the radius of a few miles, the beach light with the reflection from sand and sea is intense, while at the same time of day the mountain light may be very slow, dense, green foliage and long shadows making photography difficult. The same study of the lighting effects must be made in the pose of the face for a portrait, as a likeness without high lights and shadows, is of little value.

If you are taking a tramping trip it is advisable to go "light" and films in the roll or a film pack are easiest to carry, although many of the best amateurs prefer plates. Care should be taken when removing the exposed film roll and refilling the camera as it is very easy to ruin the work of many hours by letting the film roll leak light.

On your trip don't forget that you can shoot up a lot of material in a short time, and not get one real picture, and again you might make one exposure, and it will pay for your vacation.

So before every picture take care, caution and composition should be taken into consideration, care in the handling of the sensitive material, caution in manipulating your camera and composition in the posing of the picture. Many pictures have been ruined by lack of judgment as, for instance, turning the head one way and the eyes the other, or the subject staring straight at the camera.

DRAPING THE SUBJECT.

Every picture should tell a story, and composition means to place your draperies or accessories so that they will carry the eye to the main subject. A woman loading a gun should be placed with the eyes, arms, gun and general pose in a downward position, making the effect pleasing and natural, or a hunter picking up a duck, not only his arm and eye should indicate the subject, but the gun in his other hand should point downward in order to properly balance the picture.

Accessories are important just like a good stage setting. Take the time to arrange your background so that it will itself suggest where you are and what you are doing. In taking fishing pictures at the beach avoid showing the old railroad tracks and ties, a strip of the beach and water will make a more convincing picture. Or if you are vacationing in the mountains let something indicate that you are in the mountains and not in your own back yard.

Wasting good film space is another likely occurence. About nine out of ten negatives taken by amateurs show about one-fourth of the film covered by the image. Get close to the subject you are after, fill the plate or film with it and let the rest of the country "go hang." The favorite slogan among the newspaper folk is: "Get the meat," and this holds good for all animate and inanimate things, except views which may be taken at a distance.

FASHION TAKES NO VACATION.

Busy Dame Fabricates Summer Styles—Less Formal, Yet Quite as Exacting is Summer Etiquette of Clothes.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

SUMMER'S SOFT zephyrs find their counterpart in the breezy frillery of woman's clothes.

It is safe to say that the majority of women welcome the vacation season, when the formal garb of winter gives way to the fresh sweetness of washable wear.

Trig and jaunty though the tailored suit of clothes or mannish goods may be and well though it set off the handsome figure of the woman who habitually wears this style of garb, there is a happy letting down when linen, crash or lingerie billows into being, like the waves from a frothy sea.

So comparatively inexpensive are the cotton products of the loom, that poor indeed, must be the purse which cannot manage a sufficient summer wardrobe to keep fresh as a recently plucked rose, no matter what the condition of the thermometer.

A handy girl recently showed with pride her newly finished gown which she boasted had cost just ninety cents. It was of cotton suiting, heavy enough to hang well, and she had embroidered the blouse and skirt in mercerized cotton of a dainty blue. The raised belt above the saucy peplum, and the patch pockets upon the panels of the skirt, all enmeshed in a maze of floral embroidery, made a costume good enough to wear in any place.

Another girl assured me that her commencement gown, which would be worn for best all this season and next had cost but five dollars and that expense was principally for lace.

These are but examples, to show the possibility of acquiring at little cost, a wardrobe sufficient for ample cleanliness, however limited the means. This is the season par excellence for the "girl with nothing a year."

And still, this does not mean that Dame Fashion abdicates her throne with the advent of warm weather.

She never takes a vacation in the literal sense of the term. She may adjourn to the country, beach or mountain side and there she holds as full a court as do the imperial monarchs at their summer palaces; but she, as well as they, relaxes some of the rigors of formality during vacation time.

The cut and hang of gown, coat and coatee are no less within the rule of Fashion's realm because the material used is linen, cotton or lace, than when of silk, satin or the heavier fabrics; nor is there less need of distinction in the appearance of the Summer Girl, than in that of the winter's debutante.

In fact, I sometimes think that the girl who will, may look far more entrancing in summer clothes than in those of greater cost.

Muslin, flowers and girlhood seem naturally to go hand in hand, and when added to all this prettiness, the skies are blue, the birds singing gaily and the air is perfume-laden—is it any wonder than an especially flirtatious code seems to have been accorded to the fair Summer Girl? Who could help loving her, and if she wear a ring for half a year, or half a dozen rings for as many beaux, who can say where any blame is found?

The weather is too warm to follow analytically, the reasons pro and con, and so there is and always has been a sort of conspiracy of latitude for the friendships of the Summer Girl, and I am more than half convinced that is is all because of the most fetching fashions which summer has at her command.

Take, for instance, one of these adorable shirred poke bonnets, with wide calasche brims from beneath which shy eyes peep—who could fail to fall victim to dark eyes which glance from under them?

The soft fall of laces, the prettily rounded tunic, which gives so quaint an air, and the demure-looking slippers, with their colonial buckles and flashes of half-hidden jewels, which mock the rings upon folded hands—the man would be more than human who did not pay tribute to all these.

And so I sometimes think that half the wooing under summer skies is of Dame Fashion's planning. A sly old matchmaker, she! And the [illegible] girl or woman is never far from her side, however negligee may be her summer costume.

As for Example.

Take for example, the costume pictured, for afternoon wear at a fashionable resort. Could anything be more fetching?

Of hand-run French filet, are the panels, of bodice and skirt, combined with finest of cotton marquisette.

A broad band of night-blue chiffon foots the skirt underneath the fall of lace, and finishes the yoke of the handsome bodice, as also it edges the elbow sleeves. The "touch of black" so essential to the handsome costume today, is given by a straight bow of velvet underneath the chin, and by narrow bands of velvet, catching the tunic and the sleeve above the chiffon band.

The hat of American Beauty straw, shirred to form a shape, is edged with a fall of shadow lace and trimmed with plumes in American Beauty tipped with taupe.

The parasol is one of the [illegible]

VACATION IN AN ARMY TENT.

Where the National Guardsmen Will Go.

To Combine Jolly Outing With Hard Work.

"Siege of San Francisco" Is Programme.

BY AL G. WADDELL

(Co. A, Seventh Regiment, N.G.C.)

There is no form of vacation to be undertaken by healthy men which will prove more interesting, beneficial and instructive than that of participation in the joint maneuvers of the United States army and the National Guard, to be held in the vicinity of San Francisco this summer, from August 10 to 21.

No definite orders have been received as yet at the local armory, but it is known that the nature of this year's encampment of the State and Federal troops will be in the form of a "Siege of San Francisco." The companies will very probably be kept on the move most of the time and the school of instruction be theoretical fighting.

It is rumored among military circles here that the regiment will not be together except on special occasions. Each company commander will be alloted a wagon with his full quota of "army mule" and they will do the latest in warfare.

This plan is entirely new, as in the past the encampments have been held at Atascadero and resembled the form of instruction employed in the olden days, except they were operated on a larger scale. The regiments had permanent camps for the two weeks of their stay at the maneuvers and the men went out each day to do battle in the hills, or hiked over the county roads, chasing down some retreating enemy, as a part of some intricate play of the war-game code.

While there is no scarcity of work to be performed by the member of an outfit indulging in one of these theoretical campaigns, there is a lot of sport to be enjoyed as well and the men usually return to their homes and business well tanned and recuperated in body generally.

SAVING MONEY.

Aside from the attractions of the military life led for the short period, these war-game vacations appeal to the average man in a financial way. There is absolutely no expense attached and, on the other hand, the citizen soldier receives pay from both the Federal and State governments.

Enlisted men receive $1 a day from the State and the pay of their rank from the government. Officers are paid according to rank, the same as in the regular service. It is quite an item to most every man to know that he will return from his holidays, not only having saved the expense of a trip, but ahead a certain amount.

There are many men in the companies of the Seventh Regiment who have attended every camp of the National Guard since the Spanish-American campaign. Sergt. Harry Miles of Co. A has taken part in every encampment held by the State troops since the organization of the Eagle Corps twenty-eight years ago, and the veteran never plans on any other trip when there is a possibility of the regiment going into camp during the summer.

The Eagle Corps was the pioneer command of the National Guard of this State, out of which grew the Southern California regiment. The old standard still remains in possession of Co. A, the name given to the "corps" after the regiment was mustered into the State service.

Back in 1900 the Seventh went into camp at Santa Monica. There are few in the service now who wore the State uniform at that time, but Capt. "Bob" Wankowski was in command of Co. A, Col. Bradbury was then a lieutenant, Maj. Cole was a sergeant and the commanders who preside now were not even heard of.

The following year the State encampment was held at Santa Cruz. These camps were of the old school and there was more pleasure than profit to be had. In the morning there was drill, again in the evening the boys stood retreat, and the rest of the time was spent in the pursuits of idleness, broken by spasmodic attacks on brass buttons and gun stocks.

In 1902 the companies of the Seventh camped at Long Beach, close to where the American-avenue school now stands. This was a pleasant outing for the men, and when it was not possible for them to get away from business for the whole period they would go down to camp for a day at a time. This was before there was any salary attached to the guardsman's service, and it was harder to get the companies together than at the present time. Then again the camp was too close to the city. Too much like sleeping in a tent in the back yard and calling it a vacation.

The 1903 camp was quite a success. The regiment went to Coronado, and there was nothing too good for the "boys in blue." (The olive drabs had not been issued at that time.)

At this encampment a great number of the guardsmen enlisted in the regular service, and tied up to the big guns at Ft. Rosecrans. Strange as it is, but true; every camp sends a fresh supply into the regulars from the reserve forces.

Shortly after the Coronado camp the local companies took on new life, and by August, 1904, one of the best militia regiments ever mustered was prepared to take part in the first joint encampment of the regular forces and the National Guard.

This session was held at Atascadero, the reservation near Paso Robles. All the State troops and the regulars, with the exception of the Coast Artillery, were engaged in these mimic battles, and it was the greatest thing of its kind attempted up to that time.

There were long marches, calls to arms at 4 o'clock in the morning, and drills in the hot sun that lasted for hours. A review was held every time an officer above the rank of captain returned from a visit to Paso Robles; but everybody had a great time just the same.

Between drills there were baseball games, bouts with the mitts, rounds with the cardboards and plenty rough-housing.

One young chap from this city went out on one of those "theoretically forage" expeditions and forgot the theory; so he returned with a well butchered hog. Co. A held a pork "eat," but the officers were called from above and had to make good the loss to an indignant farmer.

A company cook was dragged from his rest at midnight and, after being slipped into the cold waters of "S" Creek, was tossed in a blanket till the sergeant of the guard routed the disturbers of the peace.

A rope was stretched across the company street, and, by beating on a mess kit, the officer of the day was aroused, and he came on the run to put a stop to the racket, which was forbidden after "taps." The rope stopped the young lieutenant, and the noise was hushed also, but there was a loud laugh heard all over camp as the fat lad came to a sudden stop against the ground, and some waggish "buck" called out: "Look out for the rope, lieutenant."

EARTHQUAKE DUTY.

No encampment was held in 1905, but in 1906 the regiment did duty at San Francisco, after the earthquake. They saw some real soldiering and experienced some of that thriller which they claim makes men; but they all returned to the city after twenty-four days of service, well fed, and each with a warrant on the State for the sum of $48.

Coast defense work interested the powers the next summer, and the boys were taken to the Presidio for fifteen days on the big guns. This was a great trip, to be sure. A real vacation on pay. San Francisco was visited regularly, boat rides on the bay were enjoyed at will, and there was a certain amount of novelty attached to this freak of the service.

In 1908 the maneuvers were again held at Atascadero, in 1909 a regimental camp was held at Bay City and the following year the third joint encampment was held at Atascadero, with California, Arizona and New Mexico well represented with militia outfits and all the regulars from this end of the country in camp.

Last summer no camp was held, but the coming "Siege of San Francisco" promises to beat anything in the line of soldier vacationing yet pulled off.

The commands will be worked alone a great deal. With the wagon the company will follow directions, and in some unannounced way attempt to capture the Exposition City, theoretically.

somest seen this year. Of ivory-white satin, it is lined with black crepe de chine, and the strikingly novel cord of heavy twisted black and white strands of silk is laid in a huge bowknot at one side of the high canopy. The handle of ivory and carved ebony is finished with a similar cord.

The local house which imported this handsome French afternoon gown is noted for its ample stock of costly models from the best makers in the world.

For the Tennis Girl.

The tennis girl has a style all her own, and when she once decides upon a fashion she does not lightly change.

One of her particular fads this summer will be the Norfolk jacket of bright and striking red. Jaunty and becoming, this has—as pictured elsewhere—a well fashioned yoke with small box pleats falling below, while the skirt most popularly worn is of white serge with fine accordion pleats, and a hat of sufficient width to shade the pretty retrousse nose from the too ardent gaze of the sun. The hat worn in the picture is of finest Milan braid, and it is lined with crepe of paper white, matched in the ribbon with quaint picot edge, which forms a band, and is made into a formal bow set upon the hat's outer brim.

For the Bathing Girl.

Of softest chiffon taffeta in a rosy shade of old rose. That is the latest bath suit, brought directly from Paris by one of the best of local importing houses. The skirt is scant and slit at once side of the front, and if it happens just so, as it sometimes does, the upper garment will blow aside, and discloses in so doing the bloomers underneath. These are of rose taffeta to match the skirt, and have a frill beneath the knee of knife-pleated taffeta, and similar frills are upon the edge of the elbow sleeves. A rounded Dutch collar of black is finished at the front by a square bow of black beneath the chin, giving just the touch of assurance that no coquetry is intended by the wearer of the suit. The chic Tammish cap of rose taffeta has a black bow above one temple, which adds still further assurance that the maid who wears this suit is bent strictly upon bathing. A quaint puffing of the rose silk is set around the raised waist line and curled cuddingly in front, while the black satin buttons with simulated buttonholes of the same silk give just the finish which none save a French woman would think of placing upon a simple bathing suit. Well, yes, it may have a sort of "don't-go-near-the-water" air—but it is becoming, and what more could a girl wish? Not every bather goes to the beach to bathe.

The New Pullman Robe.

From a local oriental house comes the new Pullman robe.

Every woman who travels or who ever expects to travel upon a Pullman or in a steamer will exclaim at once that this is exactly what she wants.

Of soft and heavy messaline in black or in navy blue, edged with bands of white and black or white and blue, this enveloping garment is of the utmost convenience in traversing the distance from one's berth to the dressing-room. The hood attached, may be pulled completely over the dishevelled locks, and a handbag of the material of the robe will contain the toilet articles needed for the morning or evening making up.

A Stunning Motoring Coat.

The motoring coat which is pictured is the best of the season's types. Of heavy Russian crash, it has the new broad, high waisted belt, stitched in several rows at each side, and the generous patch pockets which are so fetching and also convenient.

The collar and black satin gives an exceedingly smart air.

These coats of linen have taken precedence over coats of other fabrics in the smart motoring sets of the continent and New York; while the vogue for the Pavlowa hats, such as accompany the motor coat, amounts to a veritable craze. A soft shape made from agaric, with a saucy stick-up of fuzzy feathers, these hats seem to lend themselves to the wearer's mood, taking on any shape that her whim demands. The handbag of crochet or of macreme, is also a summer fad.

For Beach Wear.

A new development in white serge is the beach costume found in these pages. With a wide border in latticed effect, in a clear shade of china blue, and made with a tunic back and a shoulder collar of most characteristic cut, this is such a suit as any well-attired girl would find becoming and also comfortable for general use at any summer outing place where just a touch of Fashion's rigors were demanded by her clique. The hat worn with this dress is a shape of white sewed hemp with an ostrich fancy set nattily at one side.

The Stencilled Border.

The craze for stenciling has found expression in the border of a gown of ratine—the shades used being the Durbar colorings; which are repeated upon the hat of Yedda straw, in embroidery of raffia.

A sash of tan messaline with a heavy tassel of silk thread, is worn girdlewise and falls in a single strand at the back.

From the examples given, from local houses, it will be seen that whatever one's destination, whether it be the beach, the mountain, country club, or travel by land or sea, the latest and most approved of garments may be found in Los Angeles stores. For wherever else she may cast her favors, it is certain that here Dame Fashion has a permanent abode. Never laggard, always lavish—yet benignant in her reign and allowing to her courtiers here because of the mild climate a latitude not permitted everywhere, her sway is gentle, yet firm and her leading strings seem silken to those who pay her proper respect.

PHOTOGRAPHY AS A SPORT.

the same idea may be had by partly for scenic effect, but in lieu of this closing the eyes and seeing the landscape with the "camera eye."

HANDLE WITH CARE.

Treat your camera with care; it is a very delicate machine and a carrying case is a necessity to keep sand and dirt from clogging the shutter while on the tramp. Put it away every time it is used and whenever possible while making an exposure, use a tripod, as the very best results are always obtained when the camera is resting on a solid base and the difference in detail can always be noted in the quality of the negative.

Sundown is the best time for taking views, the light at that time is even and by taking a quick time exposure will give a wonderful lot of detail in the shadows.

Perhaps flashlights interest the amateur vacationist more than any other branch of photography, and as flashes with fuse attached are now put up for the small sum of 5 cents, many jolly pictures of camp parties will no doubt be taken in the future, and as the fuse is long enough to permit the one taking the picture to get in it himself it adds another advantage.

As far as chemicals for developing are concerned, they have reached the acme of perfection and any one at all familiar with a camera can do his own work. Literature dealing with this interesting fad is freely dispensed and except for keeping in mind not to double up, not to get pinhead stuff, not to over or under-expose the film, not to waste good film space, and not to neglect the setting for your picture, there is nothing hard about photography and will prove a great big pleasure item in your vacation.

Jim's Grand Trip.

WHERE I SPENT MY BEST VACATION--IN ALASKA.

Moose and Bears and Mountain Lions Are Plentiful, but the Hunting Is Very Expensive—Only the Very Vigorous in Constitution Should Attempt to Make the Long and Arderous Trip.

BY JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

Scenes on Alaskan Hunting Trip.

Three views of Jim Jeffries and his life in the Frozen North, on big vacation jaunt taken last year.

THE only hunting land in the country now is in Alaska, and I say this because I have been looking around and should know something about the subject.

What I mean by hunting is where men can go who want big game, and there is none of that in this State now, with the exception of deer, which anyone can shoot any year in the Santa Monica hills.

There are plenty of quail and cottontail in California, but this is small sport for those who have been used to it all their lives. What real hunters want is something more exciting that has some danger to it, and the only place one can really find it is in Alaska.

A hunting trip is the best vacation any one can go on, for when you are walking over the hills for wild game you are getting healthful exercise, and your mind is not on any business you may have. There is nothing like good open air exercise to build up the system, and one can get health and strength better by hunting than in any other way.

I hunted last year in Oregon, about eighty-five miles east of Eugene, on the south fork of the Mackenzie, but we did not get much big game. We got several lions and deer, one small black bear and plenty of grouse. We stayed in the camp six weeks and saw seven lions in three days.

MY BEST VACATION.

The greatest vacation trip I ever took in my life was last year in the wilds of Alaska, and I intend to go again the latter part of August. It is about the most expensive trip one can take for a hunt, for it cost my brother John and myself almost $2500. We took that much with us when we started and were about "busted" when we got back home.

We killed four big horn sheep, seven bear, dozens of grouse and one moose, and could have slain forty moose if we had cared to. These animals are very plentiful, and the one we killed was to provide us with meat. They are much like the beef cattle in this country, and are used by the miners for food. There are millions of grouse, and these are so tame that you can sometimes knock them off the trees at night with a stick.

Alaska is the greatest hunting country in the world that I know of, or ever heard of, for there are bear, deer, moose, elk, mountain sheep and mountain and river ptarmigan. In the winter time the mountain variety turns white to match the snow.

BEAR CATCH FISH.

In addition to these animals, all of which can be eaten, the rivers are full of salmon. Some may not believe it but the big black bear are so cunning that in the summer time they go down the mountains to the rivers and by lying close to the bank in the brush they catch many salmon that come to the shore. I have seen hundreds of big fish half-eaten.

I speak about Alaska particularly, for it is a country of big game and will repay anyone who has the time and money to make the long, hard trip. It is no snap to go there for a hunt, for in the first place, it will cost each man from $1000 to $1500.

HEAVY COST.

In addition to your fare and the cost of provisions, clothes, ammunition and boat hire, a guide will cost you $10 per day and packers, $5 each. Each man making the trip and going into the "back country," where the big game is, must carry from fifty to eighty pounds on his back and tramp all day over rough mountains. It is the hardest kind of work. There are no pack animals in the country and everything must be carried on one's back. There are no roads and the only trails are the paths made by the bear and moose across the mountains.

I am speaking now for those who go fifty or 100 miles back from civilization, for there is where the big game is.

On our trip we made three separate camps, carrying provisions from one to the other. It was while in our third camp and just ready to go further back into the icy wilds that we got news of my mother's illness and had to return to Los Angeles. I had to lie helpless in camp four days after the messenger arrived, for I had a badly injured leg as the result of a fall over a ledge while hunting mountain sheep one day.

ONLY FOR THE STRONG.

Then we were ten days in getting back up the river and across the lakes to Seward and civilization, where we could get a shave and catch a boat to Seattle. This merely shows how far we were away from civilization.

Where we were in Alaska, the country is beautiful and the climate much like it is here now, although there was frost at night, for we were near glaciers.

Of course, one must have a good constitution to make such a trip, for it is a hard country to travel in and an expensive one, but I know of no better trip for one who wants real hunting and wild life. It will certainly test the endurance of any man and will make a good sized hole in his bank account.

Still, I think it is worth all it costs if one likes hunting. We brought out six or seven very fine bear skins and could have had more, but we shot only the best. I am surely going again this summer.

HOW TO COOK OUT DOORS.

BY AL. G. WADDELL.

IN ARRANGING for a camping trip, one of the first things to be considered is the "eats." It is impossible to enjoy the strenuous sport of mountain climbing, plowing through the brush in search of game or even motoring over the country roads, without the necessary supply of fuel for the "hunger furnace."

Many people dread the kitchen detail while on an outing, but the duties of the camp cook for a small party are exceptionally light, if the rules of simplicity are followed, and only the nourishing stuffs prepared.

In making up the commissary pack for a trip, of say, ten days or two weeks, the average vacation period of the business man, the weight of the supply should be considered above all else. If the trip is to be made by motor car, wagon or pack train, every ounce of weight and every inch of space will be at a premium and canned goods should be avoided as much as possible.

As a rule, canned stuffs are so tasty, that a vacationer will eat more than is practical and in a very short time the supply will be exhausted unless very large.

Some times it is necessary for a camping party to prepare their meals under trying circumstances, but there is always a supply of game to be had, as these vacations are invariably undertaken when some game is in season.

MAKING THE FIRE.

It is well to remember that the best fire for individutl purposes is a small bed of brisk coals. To make such a fire, lay two small stones or logs in such a position as to support your frying pan or other utensil, then start the fire with a handful of chips or splinters, gradually piling on the heavier wood as the fire grows.

To make coffee, fill the pot two-thirds full of water and bring to a boil. Add one heaping tablespoonful of coffee and stir well, adding sugar as desired. Boil for about five minutes then set pot aside, allowing coffee to simmer for about ten minutes. To clear the coffee, throw in half cup of cold water. This recipe is for coffee of medium strength, and can be made stronger by adding coffee at the start.

In frying bacon, cut in slices of about five to the inch, three of which should be sufficient for a meal for one man. Place these strips in pan of one-half inch of cold water, let come to a boil, drain water off and fry over clear fire. Turn bacon once to brown it, then remove from the fire, draining the grease off for frying fresh meats, potatoes or flapjacks.

COOKING GAME.

Beef, pork, veal, mutton and wild game is fried in a small amount of grease put in pan and allowed to come to a smoking temperature. Let meat fry for about one minute before turning, depending upon whether it is to be well done, medium or rare. Then, turn and fry as bacon. Salt and pepper to taste.

In broiling fresh meats, that with considerable fat is preferred, though any meat may be cooked in this manner. Weave the points of a sharpened stick of convenient length through the steak several times and allow to brown, turning frequently over a brisk fire, coals preferred.

If fresh meat is to be stewed, cut into cubes of about one inch and cover with from one to two inches of water in kettle. Let boil about an hour, or till tender,, add such fibrous vegetables as carrots, turnips or potatoes, all of which can be carried in a sack in the machine or under the camp wagon. The supply of vegetables to be added should be regulated by the taste of the cook.

ALSO THE FISH.

Fresh fish may be cooked in the above manner, only it is cooked much quicker, and potatoes are the only vegetable generally used with it.

Dried beans and peas are boiled in from three to four hours. Salt should be added one-half hour before the beans are done and a slice of bacon added at the same time will add greatly to the taste. Care should be taken not to have the fire hot enough to burn the bottom, as the whole mess will be spoiled, as occurs many times with the amateur camp cook.

One of the best flapjack mixtures is the one issued in the United States Army. At the rate of twelve pounds of flour and one can of baking powder for twelve meals for a party of five; add to this, sufficient water to make a batter which will drip freely from a spoon and salt with a proportionate sprinkling. Pour this mixture into the frying pan, which should contain the grease from fried bacon, or a spoonful of butter or lard, and place over a medium hot fire of coals. In from five to seven minutes, the flapjack will be ready for turning, by a quick toss of the pan; and in from five to seven minutes longer, by examination, the cake should be found to be done.

CAMP WAGON LOG BOOK.

Story of a Trip from Everett, Wash., to Los Angeles.

BY GRACE D. RANSBURG.

WE LEFT EVERETT in the afternoon of May 30, 1911, the party consisting of our friend, Mr. T., my aunt, husband self, Our outfit was composed of our team, camp wagon, and saddle pony.

The wagon had a black canvas waterproof cover, with curtains at both front and back, so it could be enclosed at night, or in rainy weather, when traveling. The bed springs were hinged to one side of the wagon, under which were stored our trunk, suit case, folding cot, hammock, tent, camp stove, and a few other little things, and the "kitchen cabinet." This cabinet was under the bed at the foot, where it was handy to get. In it were places for everything, and everything had to be put in its certain place, in order to get it in.

The bed did not take up the whole length of the wagon, and at each side of the space that was left, at the back, was a built-in seat, which folded up when not in use. At this end, also, was a wide step, which made it easy to get in and out.

Mr. T. used the tent and cot at night, while the wagon was the sleeping apartment for the rest of us. We put a "drop leaf" on the front of the wagon seat, which was raised at night to make it wider. This, with a heavy pad and covers, which we put on our bed in the daytime, made a very comfortable bed for my little auntie. There was a canvas curtain back of the seat, which divided the two "rooms."

A large bullseye lantern, with reflector, which was fastened to the port bow of the wagon, gave a very fine light. We kept the two saddles and guns on top of the bed.

The bed was a good place on which to rest in the daytime, when we became tired. We had a large wall pocket on one side of the wagon, in which we kept our combs, brushes, mirrors, writing material, and numerous other articles. We cooked and ate outdoors, with the exception of three or four times when we were obliged to use the tent, on account of rain.

Each one had his own special work to do, and in this way we could "make" and "break" camp very quickly.

The day we left was warm and bright. Our first camp was seventeen miles south of Everett. We crossed the ferry on Lake Washington the next day, and camped nine miles south of Seattle, in a beautiful spot, near a bend in a river.

We passed many wild rose hedges in bloom, between there and Tacoma. We arrived in Tacoma on June 1. Our camping place, south of there, was among evergreen trees, with any amount of violets and buttercups in bloom.

Our first Sunday's camp was at Tenino, a place of 1500 inhabitants. We went to church, some of us in the morning, and the rest in the evening, as we all could not leave camp at the same time. My aunt met a friend at church, whom she used to know in Los Angeles. She, her husband, and their little boy, came out to see us in the afternoon.

We always camped over Sunday, with the exception of two or three times, when we were unable to find a desirable camping place.

On June 8 we had a grand view of the Columbia River from a high point on Green Mountain, near Castle Rock. They were making a new road around this mountain, which we went over. The work was being done by convicts. Where it was finished, it was a fine wide boulevard with cement curbing at the outer edge. On one side were the high mountains, on the other steep banks, with the river far below. This boulevard is two miles long.

On June 10 we ferried across the Columbia River from Vancouver, Wash., to Portland, Or., when we drove across a bridge two miles long over the tidelands of the Columbia; the middle part of the bridge was covered. We camped that evening and over Sunday twelve miles south of Portland, at a little place called Oswego. Our camp there was in a very picturesque bend, on the banks of the Willamette River. This place appeared to be quite a pleasure resort, as there were a great many people there on Sunday.

A THRILL.

Late that afternoon we heard some dreadful screams, and looked up just in time to see and automobile, with two ladies, two men and three children, go over the high bank into the river. The automobile was not entirely submerged, and no one was seriously hurt. Mr. R. hitched his horses and pulled the automobile out of the river.

We passed through Oregon City, where we received our first bundle of mail. We saw the Willamette Falls there, and rode along the Willamette River for several miles. There are

BY TRUTHFUL JAMES.

SHE may tell you that she just loves to rough it; but believe her not. She doesn't.

Women, ere this, have died for men; but the most heroic test of a woman's devotion is to sleep outdoors in a blanket; perform her toilette in a babbling brook and tell hubby she likes it. The next in rank as a proof of undying love is riding behind him on a motorcycle and pretending she likes it.

But, thrilling as it may be to the masculine heart to be suffered for, do not put her too strenuously to the test.

If you are intending to take a woman into camp this summer, observe two mighty facts:

When she says she likes to rough it, she really means that she likes the clothes that go with it. She may be willing to endure the camp if you are willing to supply the summer girl scenery. But don't ask her to rough it.

Anyhow, you don't have to. They are getting out camps this summer so luxurious that to live in them has not the slightest suggestion of really roughing it.

Some of these camps de luxe are really wonderful. They have gas heaters, gas cookers, thermos bottles that keep your provisions hot or cold; camp mirrors; there are camp cook stoves with which you could prepare a meal for a theater party but which fold up small enough to put in a suit case.

There are fireless cookers with which you can literally cook as you run. There are stoves with which you can cook with the radiator of your automobile as you travel.

There are camp beds that look like an apartment at a big hotel but which fold up into the space of a couple of tent poles.

I am almost afraid to tell you about the silken boudoir that is lowered from a tree at night with the lady in the case dangling just off the ground like a princess in a cage.

Now I'll whisper to you: this is really the way women like to rough it. Tog her up in some clothes that look like the forest scene from a play; surround her with hot and cold water, mirrors, a regular bed in a little house of her own, made of silk, and she will come home having had a reasonably good time; and tell all her friends that a rough life in the open air is what her nature craves.

But if you take her into a regular camp where you sleep on the ground in a blanket and get ants in your ears and sun burn your nose, you just add to the expense account of your vacation the price of a first-class ready-made divorce. You'll need it when you get back home.

When the automobile is part of the equipment of the Camp De Luxe the vacationer may enjoy some of the luxuries of home. He can have the camp lighted with electricity by means of an extension from the electric lighting system on the car. If the car is not equipped for electric lights, an extension tube attached to the Prest O Lite tank will furnish gas light. This gas may be used for cooking by means of a burner. Of course it would not be practical to use gas for cooking when there is plenty of wood to be had, but when in a park or on a reservation where no fires are allowed, the gas burner is a handy thing for boiling coffee or even cooking a touring-party meal.

Camp cots and chairs are now made that fold up into very small pieces, but are serviceable and very comfortable.

The auto camp cooking outfit is something that is worth its weight in gold, but costs but $5. With this small kitchen the cooking for a party of five may be done with ease.

The blankets are used as lap robes when on tour, while the guns and fishing tackle are taken down and packed with the rest of the equipment.

All late-model cars are equipped with a touring box, and the supplies for several days may be carried in these auto trunks.

One of the very latest things in camp equipment is the refrigerator basket, a small light affair which is very popular with autoists.

The running board of the car makes a serviceable pantry and the tonneau is an ideal storeroom.

Many outing parties prefer to sleep in the open, while out on trips of this kind, but it is not at all necessary, as there is an auto tent in use now, which takes up scarcely as much space in the car as a blanket, yet will accommodate four persons if sleeping in bags or three if cots are used. One feature of this auto tent is the canvas floor which prevents snakes and bugs from disturbing the slumbers of the auto campers.

CAMP WAGON LOG BOOK.

fine farms and hop fields around Oregon City, Sale mand Albany.

Eugene is a very pretty place, with such beautiful shady streets. The roads from there begin to get hilly and mountainous. We camped on Sunday, June 18, at Drain, a pretty place on Pass Creek. The family near where we camped came over several times, and brought us some light biscuits for lunch. While we had an oven to our stove, we did not bake very often. Still we made biscuits, baked cake, potatoes and several other things, a number of times, on our way. Mr. R. and I went horseback riding in the afternoon and to church in the evening.

We arrived at Roseburg June 20. My aunt stayed all night there with an aunt of hers, but we went on. She took the train and joined us again the next day at Myrtle Creek. We had our first real climb in the mountains that day. The roads were fine and the view grand! We were about [illegible] feet above sea level at that place.

A few days after that we climbed the mountains to a height of 2046 feet, and went twelve miles through beautiful Cow Creek Canyon. The roads were somewhat rough and steep in places.

We put a rope from the axle of the wagon along the tongue to the saddle horn of our saddle pony, and she helped pull up the steep places. Coming down, we would drag a small tree (sometimes a good-sized one) behind the wagon, which made it much easier on the horses. Sometimes in very steep places, all but Mr. R. would get out and walk.

I must not forget to mention the many beautiful flowers we saw. I think we must have seen at least seventy-five different varieties. The mountains were literally covered with them, especially immense bushes of what we called mountain heliotrope and mountain lilac, some blue and some white, also the syringa or mock-orange blossom and the azalea.

Our camp Saturday and Sunday, June 24 and 25, was at Savage Rapids, in the Rogue River, near Grant's Pass. The river was beautiful with so many rapids. It was very rough and roared like the ocean. It is at the foot of the mountains.

The country through there is what they call Rogue River Valley, and is noted for its fine pears. We were told this valley is thirty miles wide in some places, and fifty miles long. On June 27, at Siskiyou, we camped near Siskiyou, in the Siskiyou Mountains, 3400 feet high, with mountains still higher, towering all around us. This was the highest place at which we camped, but the highest point we climbed, a height of between 4300 and [illegible] feet, was reached the next day at noon. It overlooks the Sacramento Canyon. We ate our lunch there.

Before reaching this summit, we passed a toll road, a distance of eleven miles. From there, we saw in the distance, just over the California line, an immense rock on top of the mountains, called Pilot Rock. Also, we saw Mt. Shasta in the distance. In fact, we travelled in sight of her for a week or ten days. The Shasta country is beautiful, every little turn giving a new view.

We passed the California line, Wednesday, June 28, four weeks and one day from the time we started. There was a large sign by the roadside marking the boundary. The first town in California, at that point, is Cole, a very small place. We rode along the Klamath River, a very pretty, swift stream, for a long way. At Klamathon, near a bridge, we saw a large water wheel, which was used for dipping water from the river, up into a flume, which we supposed was used for irrigating purposes. We were still in the mountains, but gradually going down. The sunset on Mt. Shasta, which was covered with snow about one third of the way down, was most glorious.

A few miles before reaching Sisson, we passed by, and had a drink from a large bubbling spring, which we were told was the head of the Sacramento River. We camped in a pretty grove south of Sisson, Sunday, July 2. This is the nearest we came to Mt. Shasta, it being twelve miles from its base. Mt. Shasta is 14,444 feet high. There are two other, black and barren mountains not far from Mt. Shasta, called Black Buttes.

We arrived at Shasta Soda Springs the next day, had a fine walk down the canyon to the falls and springs, and had a drink of the water. We went back another way, up the zigzag stairway, to the hotel on the bluffs above, then down the road by the creek, where we had left our wagon.

We spent the Fourth of July at Gibson. We expected to get some mail there, but were disappointed. There was nothing there but a warehouse, and another building or two along the railroad track, the station having been moved. Some of our mail addressed there went on to the next station, but most of it was lost, as we afterward found out. We would always count the miles on our map, and select a mailing station about two weeks ahead. As Gibson was named on the map, we thought it was, at least, a small town. We spent a very pleasant time there, on the banks of the Sacramento River. There were some very pretty rapids in the river. We practiced shooting at targets in the rapids, with a rifle. Gibson is near the beginning of the Sacramento Canyon, at that end.

SACRAMENTO CANYON.

The Sacramento Canyon is about seventy-five miles long. We followed it for about fifty or fifty-five miles. We were way up on the mountains with the river far below. The scenery was beautiful. It was interesting to watch the trains go in and out of the tunnels in the mountains, or steaming away, in the valley below. The roads were exceptionally good, but narrow, with wider places here and there for teams to pass. Mr. T. would ride the pony ahead to watch for teams.

We left this grand scene and came abruptly upon a barren and desolate country made so by the fumes from the smelters, which, for miles around, had killed all the vegetation. This was also our roughest road, at one place there being a 55 per cent. grade.

Between there and Redding were several almost deserted mining towns. We passed quite a number of mines through the mountains, and at a few places there were sacks of ore piled by the road side.

We reached Redding July 7, bringing us out of the Siskiyou Mountains. We were nine days crossing this range, a distance of 215 miles. We crossed five mountain ranges in all, the Siskiyous being the highest.

We spent three days in Redding, resting and cleaning up, and getting ready for the rest of our journey. We left there in the afternoon of July 10, and traveled until late in the evening. It was a fine evening, and we played and sang, which we often did, and always on Sunday evenings. Mr. T. had his mandolin, Mr. R. his harp, and my aunt and I our hymn book.

It gets quite hot in the Sacramento Valley in the middle of the day, this time of the year, so for about ten or twelve days, we traveled early and late, resting for three or four hours during the heat of the day. Some days we started as early as 3:30 o'clock in the morning, otherwise our usual time for starting was 5:30 to 6 o'clock, and camping early in the evening, or as soon as we found a good camping place.

The country between Redding and Sacramento is mostly level, with an occasional hilly place. It is a great fruit country, having a great many vineyards and orchards. We also saw considerable grain. In fact, there are vineyards, orchards, and grain fields from there clear down to Los Angeles. We also saw a great many chickens and turkeys.

We reached Sacramento at noon Saturday, July 15, and camped in the south edge of the city, in a eucalyptus grove. We stayed there over Sunday, leaving Monday morning at 3:30 o'clock. The sunrise that morning was grand.

There are fine macadamized roads from Sacramento to Stockton, a distance of fifty-four miles. We had macadamized roads in a great many places. Just before reaching Stockton, we camped in a large yard and orchard. The house had burned, and everything was deserted. We picked some figs, and made a quart of jam.

We camped in many different places, a great many times by rivers and streams, in beautiful groves, in picturesque places in the mountains, in the open by the roadside, once in a barley field, and once in a tankhouse. One of our camps was near a ranch-house. The lady there invited us over for the evening, and we spent a very pleasant time listening to the phonograph.

TO THE COAST.

From Stockton, we branched off to the coast line. Just before reaching the little town of Mission San Jose, we passed a number of beautiful ranch homes, also an immense water filter, put up by some land and water company. It is a round, open, cement structure, surrounded by twelve large pillars. Wide steps lead up to the base, where there is an iron railing, and one can look over and watch the water coming through the filter on all sides.

We reached Mission San Jose July 20 and walked by the old mission, which is one of the oldest in California. The next day we reached San Jose. There is prairie land all around there, with grain, vineyards and orchards. After this, we crossed a portion of the Coast Range Mountains, which were only six or seven miles across.

We saw six or eight acres of sweet peas. They were so pretty and smelled so sweet.

We followed the old stage road from there through Pleyto to San Miguel, a very interesting route. Near Pleyto, a quarter of a mile from the road, we saw a wildcat. Mr. R. jumped on the pony and went after it. He had one shot at about 125 yards, but the cat got away among the rocks. This was the only wild animal we saw. The roads are so well traveled that one rarely sees a wild animal.

It is astonishing how many people are traveling in this way, in automobiles and camp wagons, some for pleasure and some seeking a new home. We met a party in the Siskiyou Mountains who were going to Everett.

There were only two or three days that we did not see a train, railroad or town.

We killed only two big snakes, each about three and one-half feet long.

At San Miguel we passed the old mission of San Miguel, which is mostly in ruins, also the San Luis Obispo Mission at San Luis Obispo.

We left the regular auto route at Santa Inez, which cut off several miles between there and Santa Barbara. The automobiles do not take this route on account of the sandy, rocky river beds, and streams. We were obliged to ford the river in several places, the bridges not being completed.

There is a very beautiful but high and rough mountain range between there and Santa Barbara.

AT SANTA BARBARA.

We arrived at Santa Barbara August 3, about noon, and camped the rest of the day. We went to the Santa Barbara Mission, which is the tenth oldest one, and one of the best preserved; also went out on the boulevard and beach. The breakers looked beautiful after night.

When we left there, we followed the boulevard along the beach for several miles, then over two mountains about 1500 feet high, which were covered with huge boulders.

We passed through Ventura and saw the old mission there. There are some very pretty forests around Ventura, also acres and acres of beans.

We reached Los Angeles, a distance of 1545 miles from Everett, on Monday, August 7, lacking one day of being ten weeks on the way.

We traveled forty-nine days, and camped twenty days, averaging a little over thirty-one miles a day. The most we traveled in one day was forty-five miles; the least, nineteen.

Our horses stood the trip exceptionally well, the saddle pony looking better than when we started.

Tired? Of course, but happy; and we would not have missed the trip for a great deal.

VACATIONS ON SAILING CRAFT ARE ALLURING.

BY ARCH BROWN.

WHILE yacht racing with its excitement and display of skill appeals to the majority of yachtsmen, the mention of a good cruise is always welcome. This fact is proved by the turn out for the cruise of the South Coast Yacht Club to Avalon Thursday. Every man who owned a boat, either sail or motor, found a way to hang out the sign "out of town on important business," in order that he might be with the jolly bunch that went on the cruise.

The racing game has met with much favor and helps to keep up interest in the yachting, but the average business man who seeks the out-of-doors and the salt air much prefers to take a pleasure cruise to the many desirable places along the coast. By leaving the city on a Saturday morning the yachtsman may board his yacht if it be either at Long Beach or San Pedro, inside of an hour, and within a short time be on his way to Avalon, Portuguese Bend, Redondo, Balboa or innumerable places along the coast, which afford a safe anchorage.

The weather forecaster predicts good winds during the entire summer. This, however, is nothing unusual for these waters as there is always a light easterly wind blowing during the morning which shifts to a strong westerly at noon and keeps up until midnight. Of course, there are times when one runs into the doldrums and the man who is fortunate enough to have a small engine tucked away in the stern of his craft finds it very convenient to start the mill to kicking and loses very little time in getting to his anchorage.

On the cruise to Catalina Island it is a common occurrence to strike the light winds about one mile out from Avalon. This is due to the fact that the bay is in the shelter of Long Point, which breaks the westerly and leaves the yacht at the mercy of the light shore winds. Most of the yachtsmen are rapidly realizing the benefit of a small engine to overcome this delay.

The average sailing time for the cruise to Avalon is three and one-half hours. By heading pretty well up into the westerly wind the port can be made from the San Pedro breakwater on one tack. On the return trip most of the boats favor beating along the coast of the island until they reach Long Point, where they can break out their balloon jib and make a straight run for San Pedro. Avalon is one of the most desirable cruises for Saturday and Sunday and the members of the South Coast and Sunset Yacht Clubs are always afforded a hearty welcome by the people of the island.

TO SCATTER ABOUT.

Many of the boats of both clubs are planning cruises to the Channel Islands, Santa Cruz, Santa Barbara and San Miguel Islands. Commodore Alexander J. Mitchell, of the Sunset Yacht Club, will start about the middle of July for a month's cruise to Santa Cruz Island, Monterey and may possibly go on to San Francisco. His seventy-five-foot ketch, the Yankee Girl, will afford complete comfort for a party of twelve. Mrs. A. J. Mitchell will accompany her husband on the cruise with several ladies as guests. The Yankee Girl will meet the Corinthian and San Francisco Yacht Clubs at Santa Cruz and will accompany the race from that island to Long Beach.

The Venus, with Johnnie Farnum at the stick, will spend the summer holidays at Avalon. There is a possibility that Mr. Farnum with his wife will make the trip to Santa Cruz with Commodore Mitchell and his Yankee Girl.

Fritz Overton and wife, with their beautiful yawl Arrow, will spend the summer cruising among the islands. Mrs. Overton always accompanies her husband on these trips and when it comes to handling the boat she is a great help.

Ben Weston has planned some very pleasant trips in his yawl Clipper. Ben will make his headquarters after the first of July at Avalon, and will make a two weeks' cruise to San Diego with William Ittoesser, Newall Logan, Wallace Bailey and Arch Brown as crew. After returning to Avalon the Clipper will go to Santa Barbara for the big regatta to be held in August. The craft will be entered in all of the races in the north, and will finish the cruise by a trip to Santa Cruz Islands. Ben Weston will also have his father's forty-five-foot gasoline cruiser, the Lillian C. at his disposal, and when not aboard the Clipper, will make several trips to the many inviting harbors about the island.

Knowles R. Bradley and his brother, Lee Bradley, will spend their vacations aboard their yawl, Idler, and cruise to the various islands. The wife of each of these yachtsmen will entertain many friends on the cruises. The Idler is one of the most comfortable and seaworthy boats in the South Coast Club, having a sleeping capacity for ten, with a spacious galley and roomy main cabin. The Bradley boys are strong supporters of the sailing game, and still maintain a prejudice against gasoline engines in sailing craft. However, it will not be a great surprise to see a neat little kicker tucked away in the stern of the Idler near the end of this season.

THE VETERAN.

More pleasure could not be had from a sailing yacht than that which William F. Bosbyshell gets from his trim little sloop, Shadow. Mr. Bosbyshell is one of the oldest and most ardent supporters of the yachting game in Southern California. About ten years ago he built the sloop Mist and sailed her for about five years, but found that more comfort could be had from a larger boat, so he built the Shadow. The Shadow has plenty of headroom and can easily bunk six people. Mr. Bosbyshell was one of the organizers of the South Coast Yacht Club, and has always been one of the strongest supporters in the club. He will spend his holidays at Avalon with his family and friends.

Percy Eisen will sail his new yawl, Enchantress, to Santa Cruz with the Sunset Yacht Club, remaining on the island for a few weeks, and racing to Long Beach with the San Francisco clubs. Percy is a very enthusiastic yachtsman. Saturday and Sunday will usually find him entertaining a party of friends aboard his boat at Avalon. His brother, Dr. Edward Eisen, always accompanies him on these cruises.

Commodore Warren Wood will head his fleet of South Coast boats to the annual regatta with the Santa Barbara Yacht Club off Santa Barbara during the early part of August. The commodore will spend a few weeks at Santa Cruz Island before returning to San Pedro. Other boats accompanying the commodore's Mischief I will be the Siwash, owned and sailed by Howard Wright; Marie, with Leo Lightype at the stick; Royal, with Dan Laubersheimer and wife and party; Mischief II, owned by Ted Tines; Merlin, with Ernest Coons and Lew Small and party; Wave, owned and sailed by Jimmie Gibson, with a stag party; Percy Eisens's Enchantress, Ben Weston's Clipper, and Knowley Bradley's Idler.

Although yachting in Southern California has been boosted for the past ten years it is really only in its infancy as compared with what it will be when the Panama Canal is opened. When the eastern yachtsmen sail around to this Coast and see the excellent facilities for the keeping of their boats, many of them will permanently locate here.

Canoeing at Balboa.

Paddling.

CANOEING IS VERY POPULAR.

SOME POINTERS FOR BEGINNERS IN THE SPORT.

Careful Balance Necessary, Steady Stroke and Coolness—Not Easy to Learn, but Once Acquired Paddle Game Is Hard to Beat—South Offers Exceptional Chances.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

Canoeing in Southern California is fast becoming one of the most popular sports, as the lagoons at the various beaches offer exceptional chances for the graceful crafts and their operation. However, it is not the easiest thing in the world to get in one of these canoes and ride off; in fact one must learn the art, and it takes longer and harder efforts than in learning to ride a bicycle, but it is one of the greatest sports out.

The first thing to learn in running a canoe is to get the balance and keep cool. There is just one part of a canoe where it is possible to keep upright and that is in the exact middle, and in working the paddles never leave the weight of the body from the stroke just delivered on that side.

If alone in the vessel, do the work from the stern and paddle on one side—the right—and do not try and change sides. Separate the hands well on the paddle, keeping the right hand within a few inches of the water and the left over the top of the paddle, take a long, steady stroke, getting the back into the pull, otherwise your arms will last about fifteen minutes or less. Pull the paddle close to the canoe at the start of the stroke and keep her there, and when three-quarters through with the stroke, give the blade of the paddle a slight twist to starboard or the right. This will keep the canoe in a straight course and not make it necessary to change from side to side.

I would advise any beginner to take the first lesson in still water and the same water not to be over three feet deep, because on the first few times out it will be a wonder if the old boat doesn't upset at least two times.

In paddling double, let the man in the stern work on the right side, if he is right-handed, and the one in the bow on the left. The man in the bow must keep his stroke even and not make any turn on the blade of the paddle, as all this is left to the man in the stern, who is steering.

If passengers are to be carried, put them back to back in the bottom of the canoe and right over the keel and above all, keep them still, as a slight move on the part of anyone not running the canoe will throw the whole works out of balance.

In getting into the canoe, if it be off a landing the matter is easy, as somebody can hold the boat while the others get in and then they can hold it in turn while the last man gets in, but in the case of pushing off a beach always get her floated with one man in the bow, if there be more than one going out, and then the last fellow to shove off must come in directly over the stern and make it quick.

In the propelling, a long, deep, steady stroke will get further than all the fast, sharp pulls in the world. One might write for days on this subject and not cover all the points that there as canoeing is like a ball game, nothing ever happens the same way twice, but the best way is to get in a bathing suit, put the canoe in shallow water and pick up the points from practical experience; a little water will not hurt.

THE JUMP-UPS

VERSES BY PAUL WEST DRAWINGS BY
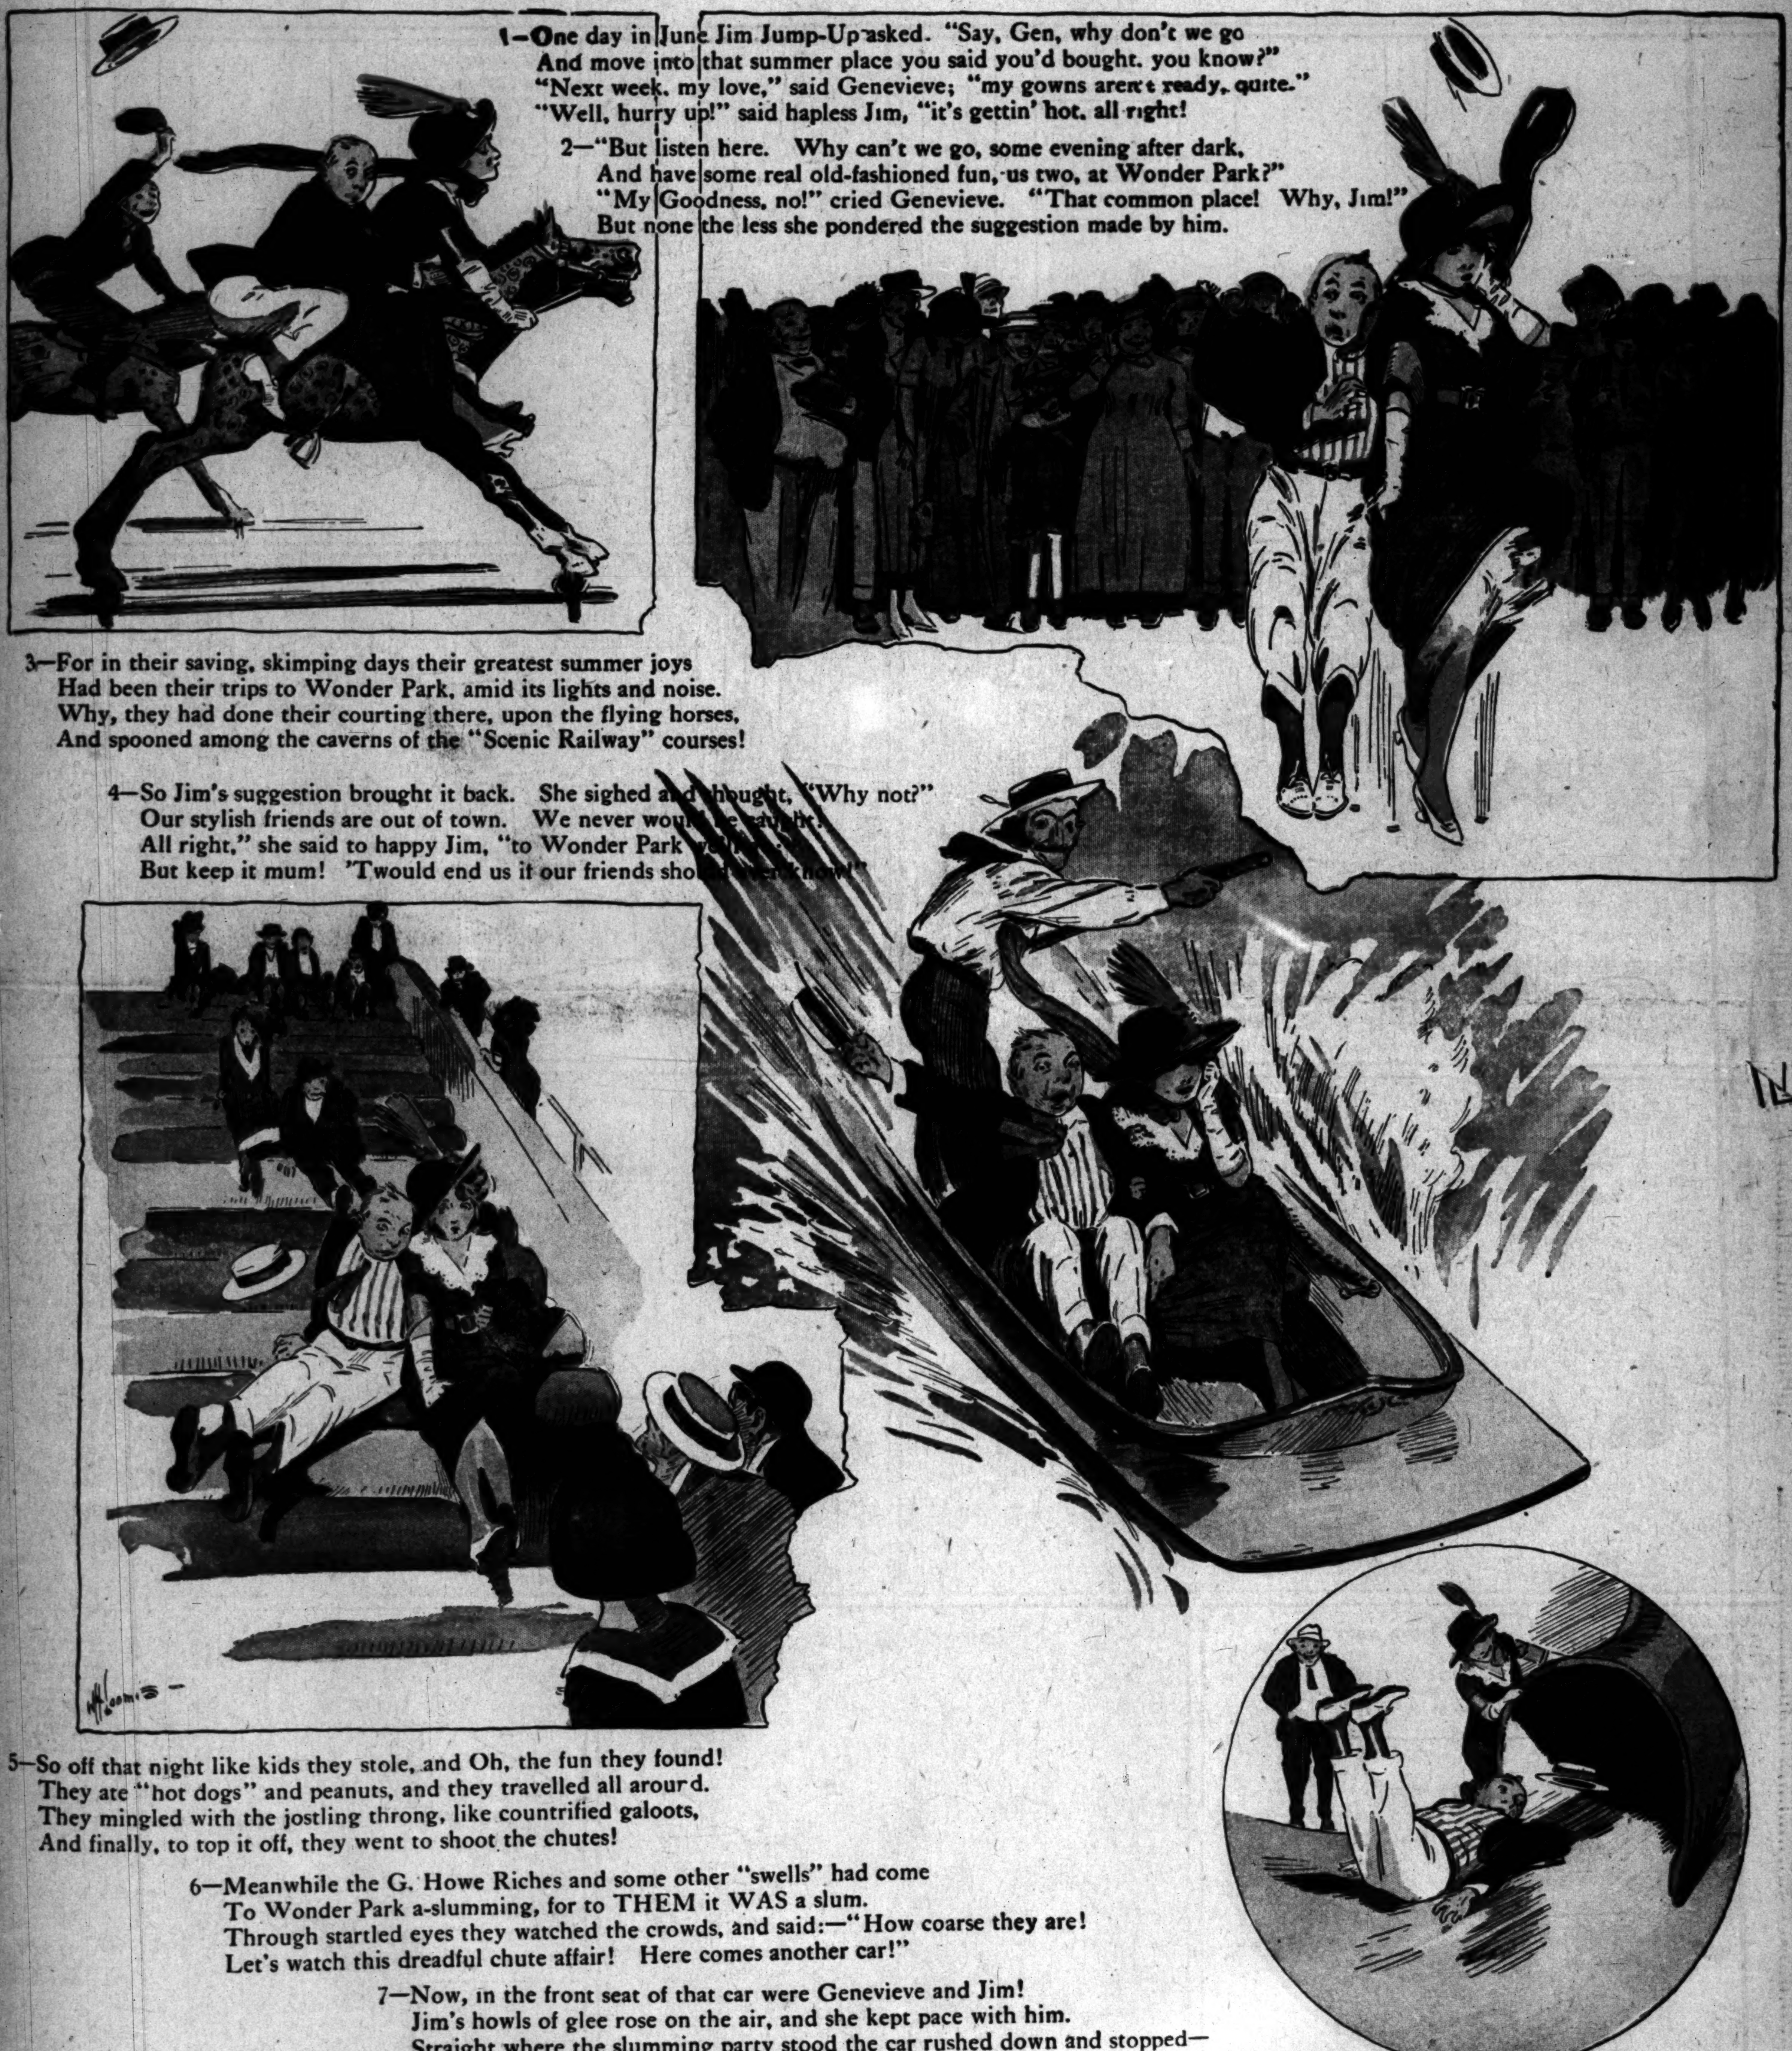
WM. H. LOOMIS



1—One day in June Jim Jump-Up asked. "Say, Gen, why don't we go
And move into that summer place you said you'd bought. you know?"
"Next week. my love," said Genevieve; "my gowns aren't ready, quite."
"Well, hurry up!" said hapless Jim, "it's gettin' hot, all right!

2—"But listen here. Why can't we go, some evening after dark,
And have some real old-fashioned fun, us two, at Wonder Park?"
"My Goodness, no!" cried Genevieve. "That common place! Why, Jim!"
But none the less she pondered the suggestion made by him.

3—For in their saving, skimping days their greatest summer joys
Had been their trips to Wonder Park, amid its lights and noise.
Why, they had done their courting there, upon the flying horses,
And spooned among the caverns of the "Scenic Railway" courses!

4—So Jim's suggestion brought it back. She sighed and thought, "Why not?"
Our stylish friends are out of town. We never would be caught.
All right," she said to happy Jim, "to Wonder Park we'll go.
But keep it mum! 'Twould end us if our friends should ever know!"

5—So off that night like kids they stole, and Oh, the fun they found!
They ate "hot dogs" and peanuts, and they travelled all around.
They mingled with the jostling throng, like countrified galoots,
And finally, to top it off, they went to shoot the chutes!

6—Meanwhile the G. Howe Riches and some other "swells" had come
To Wonder Park a-slumming, for to THEM it WAS a slum.
Through startled eyes they watched the crowds, and said:—"How coarse they are!
Let's watch this dreadful chute affair! Here comes another car!"

7—Now, in the front seat of that car were Genevieve and Jim!
Jim's howls of glee rose on the air, and she kept pace with him.
Straight where the slumming party stood the car rushed down and stopped—
And Genevieve—she heard her name! She looked! She gasped! She flopped!

8—She grabbed poor Jim and dragged him home, o'erwhelmed with her disgrace.
"Oh, Jim!" she sobbed, "we're finished now. That crowd we ne'er can face!
Our set will cut us dead for our unpardonable crime!
And yet"—she kissed him through her tears—"we had a bully time!"

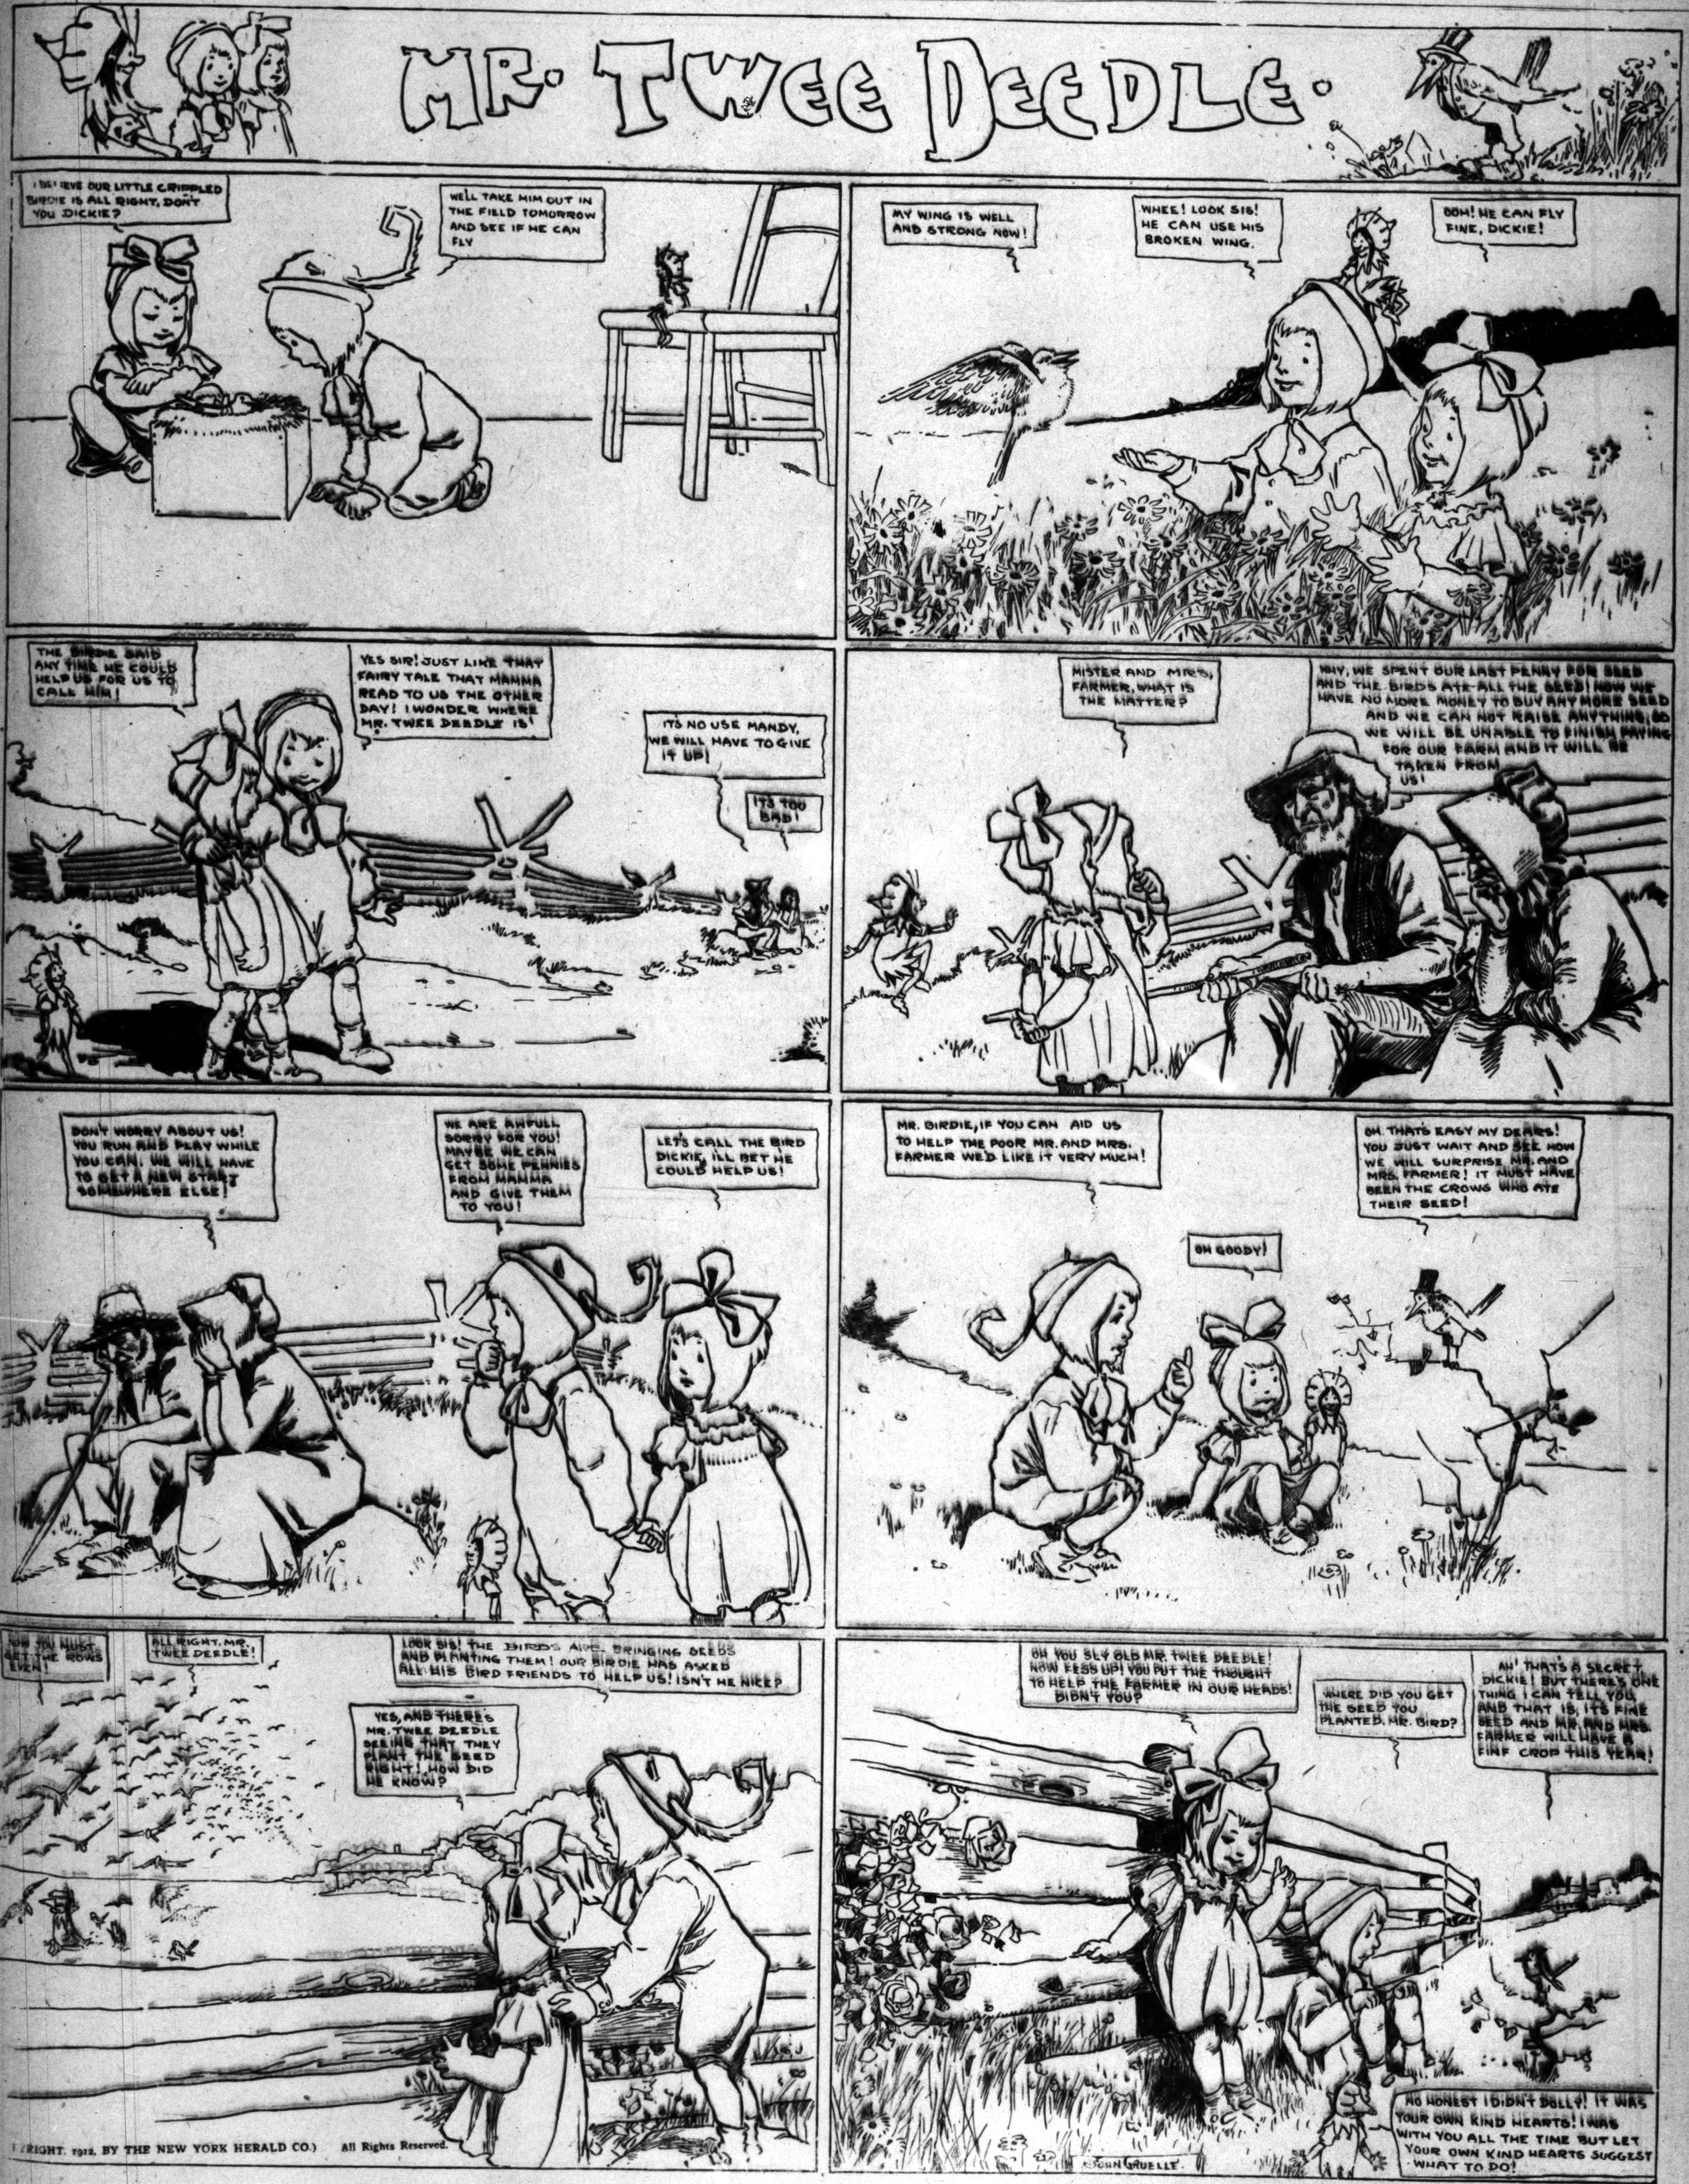
RIGHTY!

MR. TWEE DEEDLE.



I BELIEVE OUR LITTLE CRIPPLED BIRDIE IS ALL RIGHT, DON'T YOU DICKIE?
WE'LL TAKE HIM OUT IN THE FIELD TOMORROW AND SEE IF HE CAN FLY
MY WING IS WELL AND STRONG NOW!
WHEE! LOOK SIS! HE CAN USE HIS BROKEN WING.
OOH! HE CAN FLY FINE, DICKIE!
THE BIRDIE SAID ANY TIME HE COULD HELP US FOR US TO CALL HIM!
YES SIR! JUST LIKE THAT FAIRY TALE THAT MAMMA READ TO US THE OTHER DAY! I WONDER WHERE MR. TWEE DEEDLE IS!
IT'S NO USE MANDY, WE WILL HAVE TO GIVE IT UP!
IT'S TOO BAD!
MISTER AND MRS. FARMER, WHAT IS THE MATTER?
WHY, WE SPENT OUR LAST PENNY FOR SEED AND THE BIRDS ATE ALL THE SEED! NOW WE HAVE NO MORE MONEY TO BUY ANY MORE SEED AND WE CAN NOT RAISE ANYTHING, SO WE WILL BE UNABLE TO FINISH PAYING FOR OUR FARM AND IT WILL BE TAKEN FROM US!
DON'T WORRY ABOUT US! YOU RUN AND PLAY WHILE YOU CAN. WE WILL HAVE TO GET A NEW START SOMEWHERE ELSE!
WE ARE AWFULL SORRY FOR YOU! MAYBE WE CAN GET SOME PENNIES FROM MAMMA AND GIVE THEM TO YOU!
LET'S CALL THE BIRD DICKIE, I'LL BET HE COULD HELP US!
MR. BIRDIE, IF YOU CAN AID US TO HELP THE POOR MR. AND MRS. FARMER WE'D LIKE IT VERY MUCH!
OH THAT'S EASY MY DEARS! YOU JUST WAIT AND SEE HOW WE WILL SURPRISE MR. AND MRS. FARMER! IT MUST HAVE BEEN THE CROWS WHO ATE THEIR SEED!
OH GOODY!
NOW YOU MUST GET THE ROWS EVEN!
ALL RIGHT, MR. TWEE DEEDLE!
LOOK SIS! THE BIRDS ARE BRINGING SEEDS AND PLANTING THEM! OUR BIRDIE HAS ASKED ALL HIS BIRD FRIENDS TO HELP US! ISN'T HE NICE?
YES, AND THERE'S MR. TWEE DEEDLE SEEING THAT THEY PLANT THE SEED RIGHT! HOW DID HE KNOW?
OH YOU SLY OLD MR. TWEE DEEDLE! NOW FESS UP! YOU PUT THE THOUGHT TO HELP THE FARMER IN OUR HEADS! DIDN'T YOU?
WHERE DID YOU GET THE SEED YOU PLANTED, MR. BIRD?
AH! THAT'S A SECRET, DICKIE! BUT THERE'S ONE THING I CAN TELL YOU, AND THAT IS, IT'S FINE SEED AND MR. AND MRS. FARMER WILL HAVE A FINE CROP THIS YEAR!
NO HONEST I DIDN'T DOLLY! IT WAS YOUR OWN KIND HEARTS! I WAS WITH YOU ALL THE TIME BUT LET YOUR OWN KIND HEARTS SUGGEST WHAT TO DO!

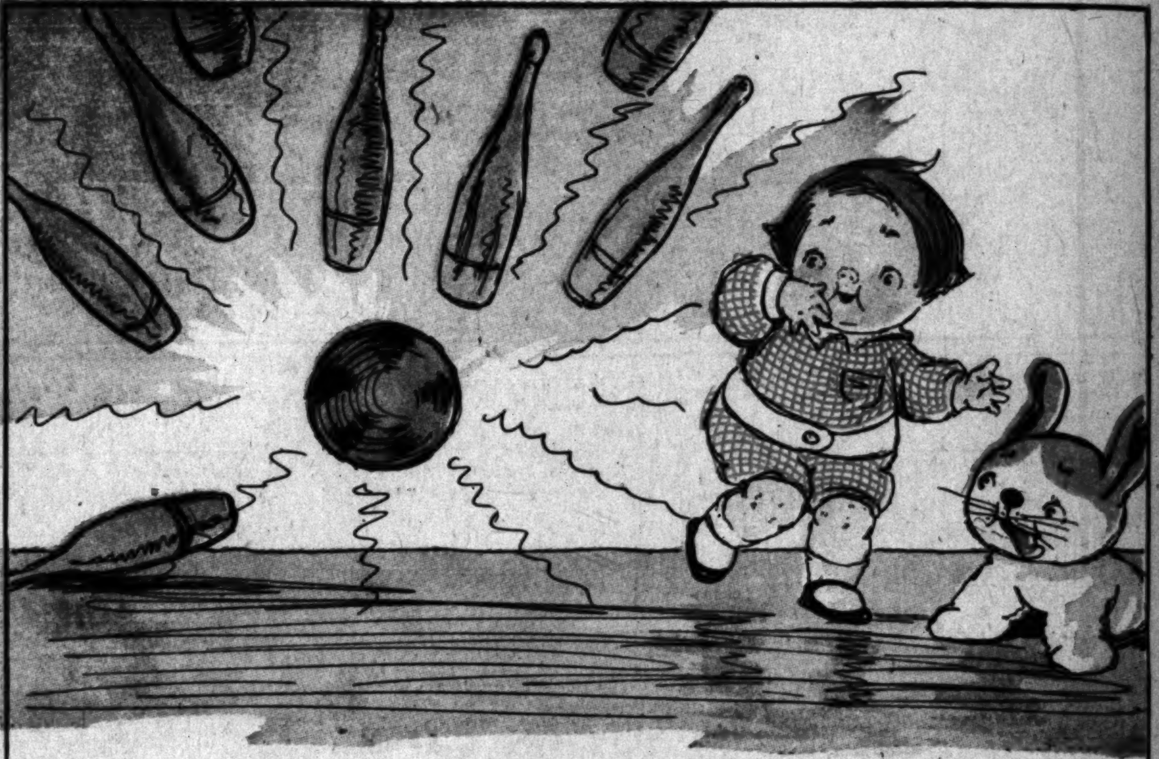
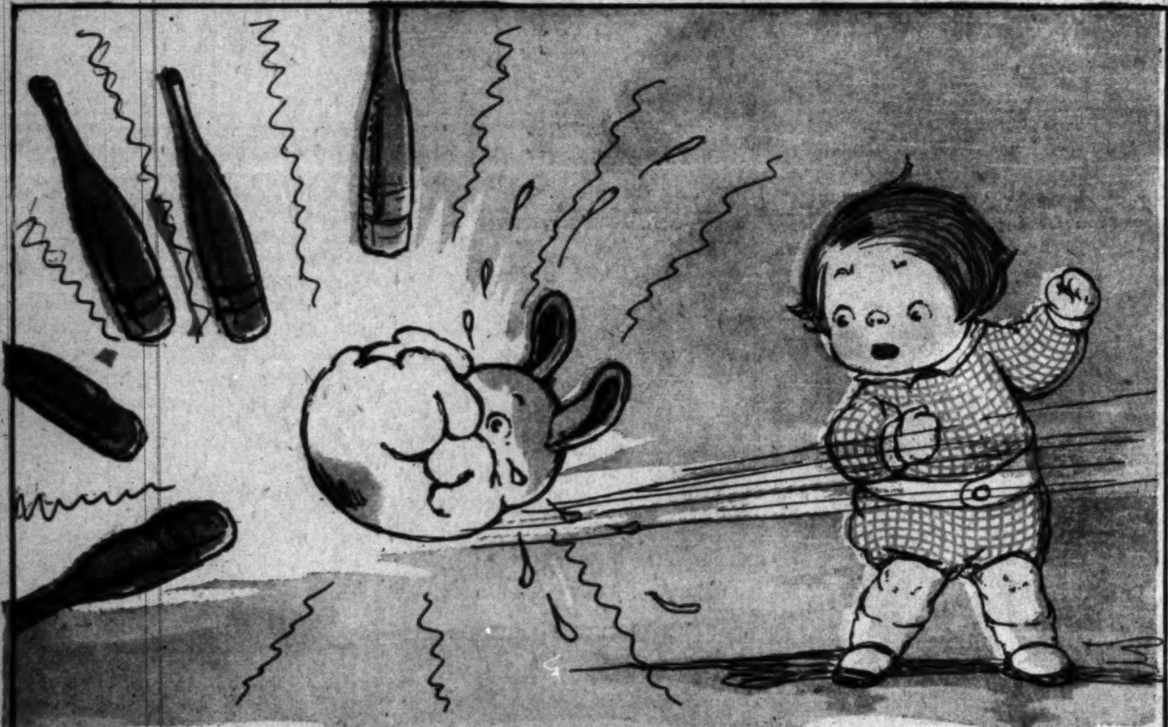
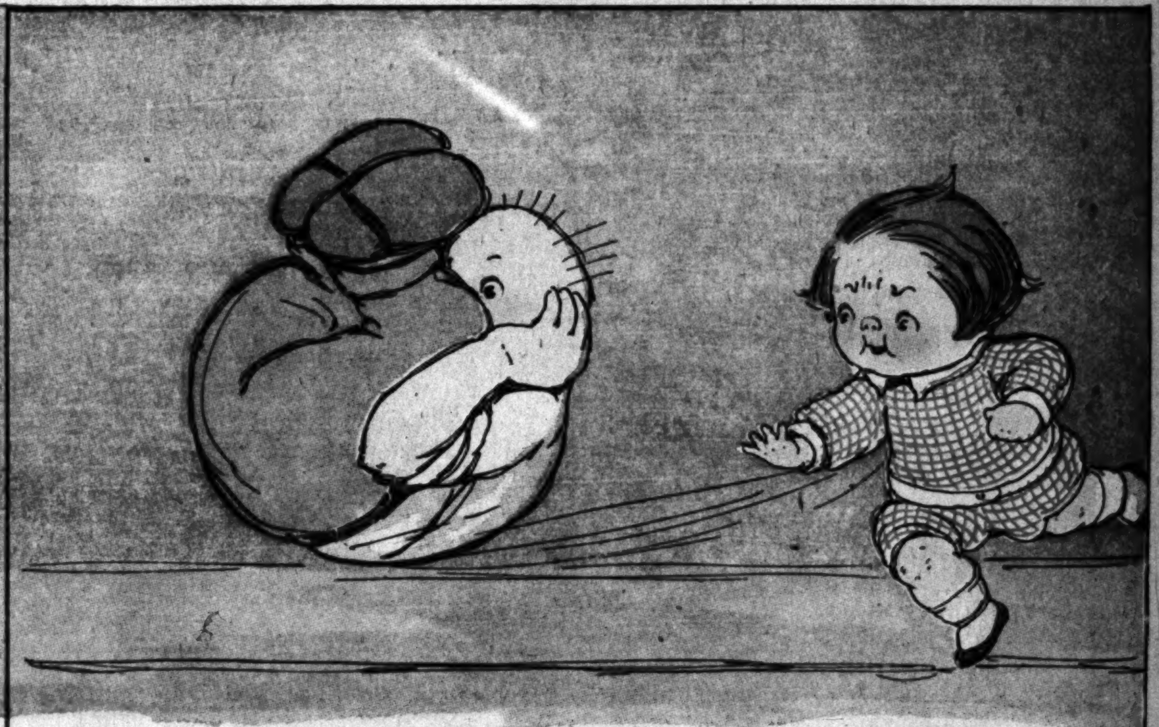
Me'n Puppo, we watched some mans in a bowling alley, an' he was a nice fat mans, an' he had a ball to bowl wif', an' it was in a 'ittle satchel wif'—wif' han'les to it, an' ther' was a—Torment-ment—an'—an' all o' the mans was tryin' to win a cup—an'—an' a cup—you see—a cup's—a—a—cup—don't-che-know 'at?



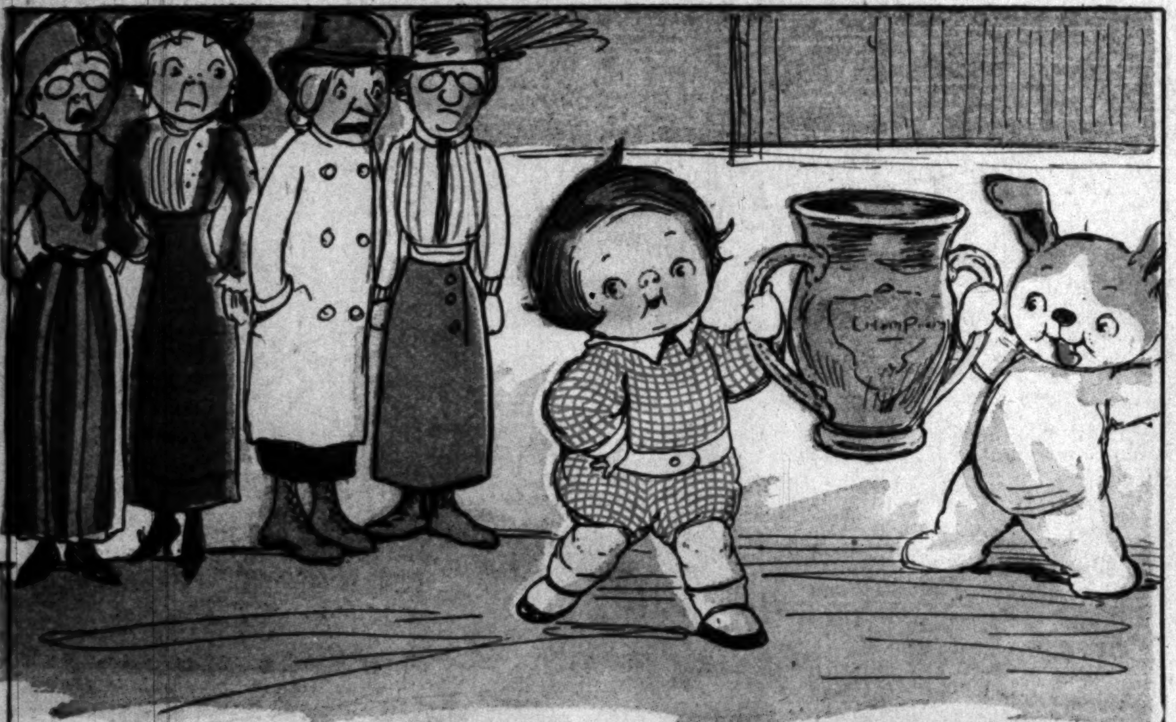
An' 'en some ladies was bowlin', too, an'—an' 'ey was a-tryin' to win the cup, too, 'cause 'ey was sufferinjets—an' sufferinjets always wants to beat the mens. An' I sed I'd be the bowlin' alley boy, an'—an' I'd set the pins up for 'em—an' I did, too, on'y they'd knock 'em all down.



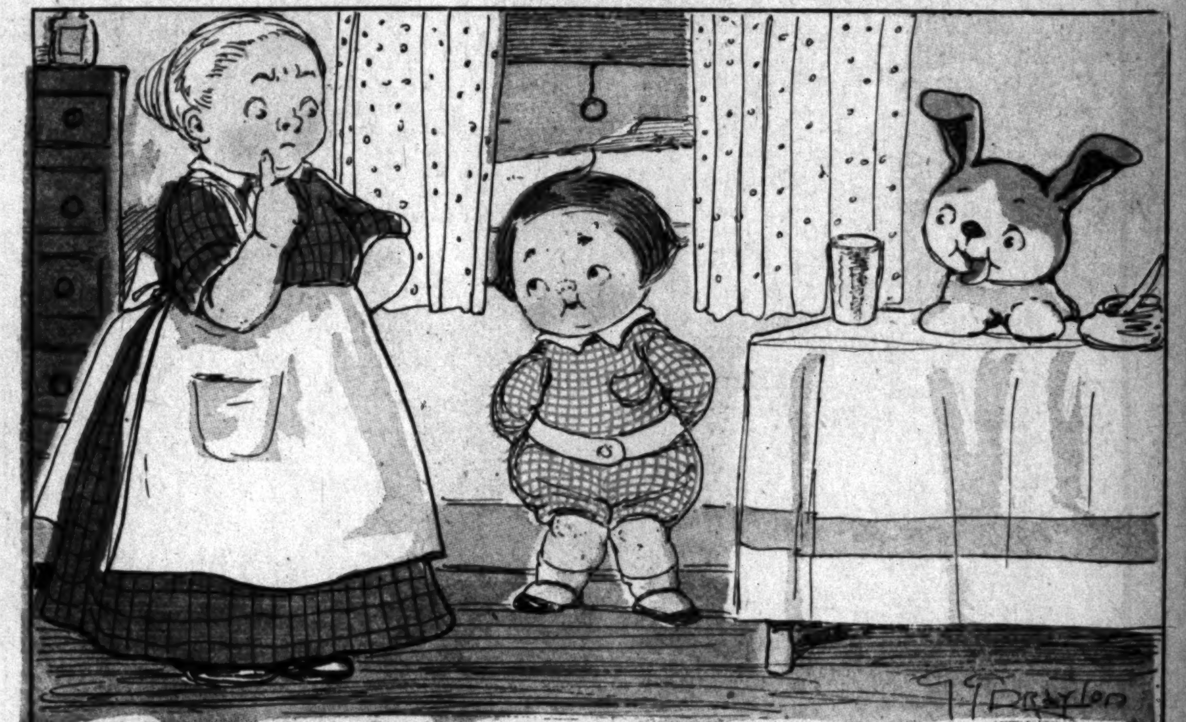
So I—I didn't not mind much, but all o' a suddently 'ey 'gan to use poor fat Puppo for a bowlin' ball, an' ey rolled him down the alley, an' he hitted the pins all down, an' all o' those ladies an' mans called out "A Strike! A Strike!" An' Puppo sed, "Ki-yi," an' I sed, "I strike," I sed, an' I meaned it, too.



An' 'en I singed 'em a song 'bout "You gotta quit kickin' my dawg aroun', Makes no diffrunce if he is a houn'," 'cause Puppo he—he's 'scended from a real sure 'nuff bloodhoun', he is; 'en I taked the fat man an' I rolled him up into a ball an' I—I winned the game wif' him—yes I did.



An' it was the man's side what winned, cause "us mens" had the highest score—a "score"—is a—well—er it's a "score," 'at's what is it—an' all o' the sufferinjets was a-cryin' when me'n Puppo walked orf wif' the cup, 'cause they wanted it the'r own selfs—'en we filled it full wif' lemonade an' ever'buddy had a drink out o' it, 'cause it was a "lovers' cup."



An' all o' those mans an' sufferinjets got to be lovers togevver, an'—an' maked friends—an'—an' me'n Puppo was busy in the kitchen makin' lemonade wif' lemons an' sugar—an' the meat chopper—an' Bridgie comed in an'—an' she was kinda cross—an'—we telled her 'bout the lovers' cup, an' we was makin' some lemonade for her an' Mr. Casey (the policeman) to drink. An' she put her apern in her mouf an' she sed, "Tee Hee! Oh you Kiddo."

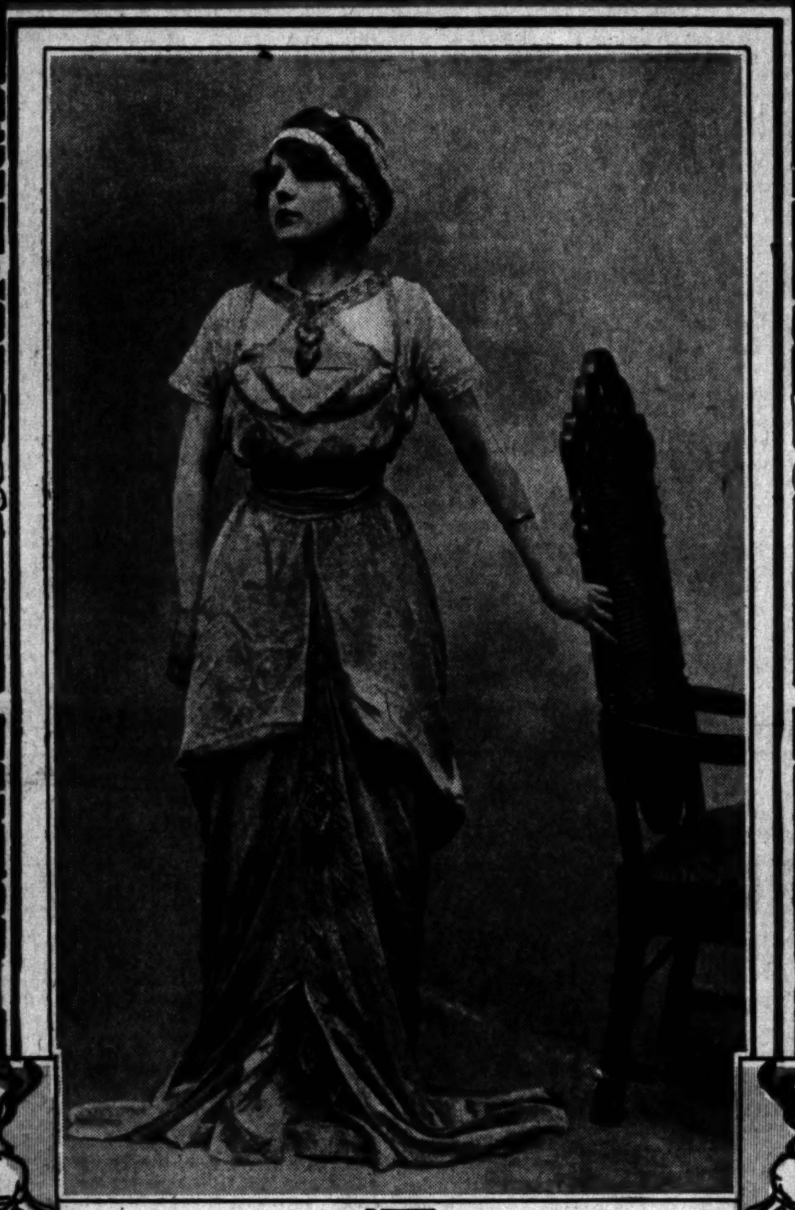
The Bell Shaped Pannier



Evening Gown of Gold Brocade

BACK from centuries of fashion, with the modifying touch of today, comes the pannier dress. It hints of pictures of Watteau; it suggests Mesdames du Barry, Maintenon, Marie Antoinette and the courts of Louis. Modern designers have realized the value of the golden mean that stands for beauty, therefore we shall not suffer from the extreme exploitation of this style that makes any one ridiculous. Notice how the pannier adheres to the straight lines of the fashionable silhouette, and do not forget that supple materials will give graceful folds and beauty of line.

In the evening dress of blue-and-gold brocade the pannier is folded, a little shorter in front and pointed in back. The straight edges of the material are at the front, giving a slashed effect, under which there appears an ornament of amber beads holding the long tunic in bias folds. The soft girdle of brocade is a fitting finish at the waist line; and the bodice, with its lace yoke and sleeves and its bib effect, speaks for the master hand.

Truly an American beauty is the dress with its skirt of ecru lace in a flounce and its pannier of American beauty satin. The silk bodice is fitted and sleeveless, and the gathered skirt is cut away in front, its folds being draped into a hem that is long at the back. There is fullness at the elbows, and the ecru lace shows effectively over a slip of the purplish red satin slip.

A pannier coat effect is shown over the figured chiffon in bordure pattern. The pannier is of prune color, with very short sleeves, and the fronts are quite narrow, showing the chiffon blouse. The long pannier is folded up underneath in almost a straight line, a peplum and a round shirred rosette being added to the lovely coat. Undeniably effective and easy is this idea for summer frocks.

Exploited in the changeable taffeta frock of apricot color and filet lace, the pannier is beautiful in its unobtrusive grace. The front edges are trimmed with a narrow ruching, and the pannier flares out toward the lower edge in a belt shape. It is placed over a skirt of the same. The use of filet lace on skirt, bodice and sleeves is worthy of attention.

In another silk model is shown a pannier that has its fullness shirred in at the bottom, giving a ruffle that is scalloped in front and finished with a quilling and a bunch of padded flowers. The pannier follows the line of the underskirt. A coatee of silk opens over a bodice of net with a pleated frill. The sleeves have puffings at the elbows.

To make the assurance of the pannier doubly sure there is a double pannier on the silk crepe dress. This shows gathers at the waist line, and the length of the goods is draped in two folds, caught at the center line. For soft chiffon, net or muslin this can be done easily, especially if a silk slip be made with the dress.

Her majesty the pannier! Such is the announcement of leading modistes. Is it surprising? Of course it requires more material, but there is added opportunity for grace, originality and beauty that results from an artistic alliance of fabrics.

The pannier is here! Let womankind bow the knee to the revived style.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

FOREIGN DISHES FOR HOME TABLES.

A FAVORITE correspondent writes to me: "Have you forgotten your half promise made long ago, to write a book upon foreign cookery? We are anxiously awaiting the fulfillment thereof."

If every day were even thirty-six hours long, instead of only twenty-four, and if I had two pairs of hands in place of a poor couple, I might perhaps find time for that "half promised" book. As it is, the prospect of attacking it is so remote that I cannot name a period anywhere near it. In the hope of atoning for the disappointment to my correspondent I will give today a few of the many foreign dishes which I have eaten across the water and liked well enough to adapt to my own table. They are favorites with us and I hope you who try them may also pass an approving verdict upon them.

If I begin with Italian dishes it is because of my especial fondness for them. Those who accuse the Italian cuisine of being made up of garlic, onion, and oil know but little of its merits. In its best manifestation the seasonings are so well blended that no one predominates and the general result is to my mind superior to the effect of the much vaunted French cookery. I like the latter, too, but it is less known and therefore less appreciated than the dishes for which I give recipes below. First of all stands:

Risotto a Great Favorite.

RISOTTO—Slice a small onion and fry it brown in a tablespoonful of olive oil or of butter. When the onion browns put with it a cup of rice which has been washed and picked over and two cups of hot water. Set this at the side of the stove and boil until the rice is soft. If the rice becomes too dry before it is done add more hot water.

In another vessel heat a cupful of stewed tomatoes, freeing this from lumps, but using both the solid and the liquid part of the vegetable and softening the sharpness by the addition of a teaspoonful of white sugar. Put the tomato with the rice when the latter is soft, salt to taste, turn the risotto into a dish and strew a heaping tablespoonful of grated cheese over the top. Pass grated cheese with it.

In Italy a little round red tomato is used, much smaller than those we see in this country, but ours will answer the purpose as well as the foreign variety.

FRITTO MISTO OR FRITELLA—This was another favorite dish with us. For it were required the liver, gizzard and heart of a pair of chickens, a pair of calves' brains, a couple of white potatoes, and, if we could get it, an artichoke. The chicken giblets were cleaned, parboiled, and sliced, the calf brains were parboiled and blanched and cut into neat pieces, the potatoes peeled and sliced as for French fried potatoes, the artichoke parboiled, the coarser outer leaves and the "fuzz" removed and the rest of the artichoke sliced. All were then dipped in a raw egg, beaten up with a little cold water, rolled in flour or cornmeal and fried in boiling oil or butter to a good brown. They were then drained dry on brown paper laid in a heated colander and served piping hot.

Florentine Macaroni.

FLORENTINE MACARONI.—Boil a half pound of macaroni or spaghetti in salted water until tender and drain dry. Have ready a cupful of stewed tomato in which has been cooked a small onion sliced; rub this and the tomato through a colander upon the macaroni, mix with it two heaping tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, let it stand three minutes, and send to table. With this, too, grated cheese may be served.

HOMINY BALLS.—In Italy we use what they call semolina, which may be purchased in some large cities or at Italian groceries in this country, but in default of this a fine hominy may be used. Put a cupful of it over the fire in enough boiling salted water to cover it and cook about twenty minutes, or until it thickens, stirring from time to time. Turn it out into a pan and leave it until cool enough to permit of being made with the hands into oval balls.

Have ready a saucepan of boiling milk, drop the hominy balls carefully into these and let them simmer ten minutes. You must watch the milk carefully that it does not scorch. Take the balls out with a skimmer or split spoon and lay on a platter. Keep them hot while you thicken the milk with a little butter rolled in flour, and add a trifle of salt. Pour this sauce around the balls, sprinkle them with powdered cheese, and let them stand in the oven for five minutes before sending them to table.

POLENTA.—The nearest we can come to this distinctively Italian dish with the means we have at our command in this country is to use yellow corn meal for it—unless the genuine article can be procured from an Italian grocer. The imitation is not as good a copy of the original as could be wished, but it is by no means to be despised.

Into a pint of boiling water, slightly salted, stir enough yellow corn meal to make a good mush and cook about an hour, stirring now and then. When it is thoroughly done, take it out by the spoonful and put it on a dish and pour over it a cupful of highly seasoned tomato sauce; strew cheese over this, set the dish in the oven for five minutes, and send to table. A good brown gravy may be used instead of tomato, or you may mix gravy and tomato together.

Recipe for Swiss Eggs.

SWISS EGGS.—Pour into a shallow pudding dish, well greased, a half pint of milk, put the pan on the stove and let the milk heat until blood warm. Break into it then six eggs, taking care to place them so that the whites will just touch each other and preserving the yolks unbroken. Dust with salt and pepper, set the pan in the oven and bake until the eggs are set. Serve in the dish in which it was cooked.

LAUSANNE MAYONNAISE.—Make a cupful of good mayonnaise, beginning with one chilled yolk of an egg, adding the oil drop by drop, stirring all the time, until the dressing begins to thicken, then putting it in more rapidly and thinning with vinegar as needed. Have ready two good sized potatoes boiled until tender and whip them light. Beat these into the mayonnaise. If raw tomatoes are attainable peel a rather large one, cut it into small pieces, and add this to the mayonnaise with the potato. Salt and pepper to taste, beat the white of the egg stiff and whip this into the mayonnaise at the last moment.

Use this dressing on a salad of cold vegetables—string beans, peas, sliced beets, etc., or on fish or cucumbers, or with cold meat. It is so heavy that with bread and butter and cold meat or fish it makes a supper or luncheon in itself and is a valuable standby in hot weather.

FRUIT MOUSSE.—This was a favorite dessert in our Swiss sojourn, for it could be made of any sort of fruit juice. To secure this a quart of the fruit would be put over the fire with just enough water to keep it from scorching and cooked slowly until the juice ran freely. Currants, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries could be used or peaches or plums.

Squeeze the stewed fruit in a vegetable press and to a pint of the juice allow a pound of white sugar, put them together over the fire and bring to a boil. While the juice and sugar are cooking beat six eggs light in a bowl, turn the boiling juice upon them, and when well mixed return to the fire and cook until the mixture thickens, continuing the beating all the while. When it is thick pour it into a vessel to cool, beating for a few minutes longer, and then let it become cold before serving it; if you wish, you can freeze it, but we never had this in Switzerland or France, but only the chilled dessert. It is delicious.

Baked Egg Plant.

AUBERGINES AU GRATIN.—To translate this into kitchen English and American market terms we would call this perhaps baked eggplant. The aubergine is smaller and more delicate than our eggplant but much like it in appearance and flavor. The eggplant makes an excellent substitute. Slice and peel this after you have parboiled the eggplant. Lay the slices in a pudding dish, strew crumbs and grated cheese on each layer, pour a white sauce over all, sprinkle more grated cheese on top and bake covered for twenty minutes. Uncover and brown, eat and be thankful! The aubergines we used to have in Paris were a revelation in savoriness and the American eggplant should prove equally toothsome, if rightly prepared.

PARISIAN STUFFED TOMATOES.—Select half a dozen firm tomatoes, of uniform size, slice the top from each and scoop out the seeds, taking pains not to break the sides of the tomato. Mix a cupful of fine breadcrumbs with a half teaspoonful of sweet herbs minced fine, a teaspoonful of grated lemon peel and salt and pepper at discretion. To this add a heaping tablespoonful of butter, melted, and a beaten egg, fill the tomatoes with this forcemeat, lay the tops on again and fasten in place with a toothpick or a piece of thread. Roll the tomatoes first in raw egg beaten up with a little water, then in fine breadcrumbs, arrange in a pan and bake fifteen minutes in a steady oven. Take off the threads or draw out the toothpicks before sending the tomatoes to table.

I could go on indefinitely with recipes we collected on the continent but I must devote a little space to a few of the good dishes we found in England. Far less variety is offered there than across the channel but some savory compounds came our way and it gives me pleasure to offer directions for them.

English Dessert Much Favored.

CASSEL PUDDING.—This was a dessert we often ordered from our London lodging house keeper, and it was favored by the friends to whom we introduced it.

Take the weight of two eggs in butter, in sugar and in flour, rub together the butter and the sugar, and add to them the grated peel of half a lemon and the yolks of two eggs, beaten light. Stir in the flour and last of all the whipped whites of the eggs and a half teaspoonful of baking powder. Grease small, deep patty pans and bake the pudding in these for about half an hour and turn out on a hot dish. Eat with hard sauce.

A YORKSHIRE TART.—Line the bottom of a deep baking dish with good pastry and spread on it a layer of preserved peaches or peach jam, mixed with a little preserved ginger cut into small pieces. Weigh two eggs, take their weight in sugar, in butter and in flour, cream the butter and sugar, add to them the eggs, whipped light and then put in the flour mixed with a half teaspoonful of baking powder. Pour this mixture over the preserves in the dish, and bake to a good brown. A few minutes before taking the dish from the oven rub the top of the paste with butter or with raw egg.

HAWORTH TEA CAKES.—Rub a quarter of a pound of butter into a pound of flour, first sifting a little salt with the flour. Dissolve half a yeast cake in a couple of tablespoonfuls of warm water, put this with the flour and pour in enough milk to make a dough as soft as can be handled. This must be rolled out into a thin sheet and cut into cakes about the size of a small saucer and put in a warm place to rise. They should puff up to be about three times as thick as they were in the first place. If they are in a warm place this will require about an hour. Bake quickly, split and butter while hot and serve cut in quarters. Delicious with Devonshire cream or with jam—or both.

"Those Who Accuse the Italian Cuisine of Being Made Up of Garlic, Onion and Oil Know but Little of Its Merits."

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the department I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I want all my correspondents to have a showing in the Corner, and if my request in this respect is complied with it will be possible to print many more letters.

Attention is called to the fact that Marion Harland cannot receive money for patterns, as she has no connection with any department that sells them. Marion Harland.

"MAY one of the merest of 'mere men,' and a self-made man at that, so far as he is made (you may think it is a bad job!)—take exception to your paper upon 'The Small, Sweet Courtesies of Life'?

"The paragraphs to which I refer in particular are these:

"'Breeding, like much slandered charity, must begin at home and maintain there a perpetual scholarship. Mme. Recamier, the most beautiful and gracious woman of her age and country, was asked "how she became so elegant in carriage and manner." Her answer is historical: "By conducting myself in solitude as I would in public."

"'There should be no dishabille manners in the home, so far as gentle consideration for the happiness and comfort of others is concerned. A man who fails to rise from his lounging chair when his wife enters must not complain when his sons, grown to young manhood, forget "company manners" so far as to sit still while fashionable visitors stand. Example is more potent and lasting than precept.'

"Now, that all sounds fine and reasonable. What I, as a man who has to earn a living for his wife and children, want to know is where I, and thousands like me, can find a resting place at the end of the day if I can't find it in my own house. I am too tired to play with frills when I get home and in too much of a hurry to get to my store in time in the morning to bother with etiquettical rules and the like flub-dub.

"Come down to the common sense of it—why should I rise from my lounging chair when my wife, whose board and clothes and keep I have been earning all day long—and got as tired as a dog doing it—comes into the room? I like to kick off my boots and put my tired feet into a pair of slippers when I get home, pull on a smoking jacket, put up my feet, and read the evening paper in comfort without keeping the watch to see if something that wears petticoats (that I pay for) is going back and forth through the room. If I am to mind my p's and q's in my own house why, then, I'll go to the club, where I can be at my ease!

American a "Good Provider."

"It isn't as if the husbands of the women you write for were all men of fashion, and had leisure to read up on French beauties and French manners. We are honest, everyday American citizens, who provide well for our families, pay our debts, and ask no odds of anybody.

"One of my girls read out that story of yours last night, and the women had a great pow-wow over it. I pretended to be buried in my paper, but I heard every word and this morning I bought a copy of the paper to get a better idea of what they thought was so fine. My wife said that the millennium wouldn't be so far away of everybody lived up to what you laid down as law and gospel.

"Maybe not, but I should like to ask if you, madam, ever knew a family in which your rules are practiced? For instance, where husband and wife and children are all the time polite to one another, etc. One of my neighbors has one of the pernickety kind of wives, who won't let him sit at table in his shirt sleeves, no matter how hot the weather is. My girls hinted something sly about this one day to me, and I told them what I thought about it, I can assure you! A man's house is his castle, and so long as he makes the money that runs it, it's nobody's business what he says and does when he is in it.

"I have no idea you'll publish one word of this bit of plain talk from a plain man, who resents liberties taken by writers for woman's pages with the habits of private families. It is as necessary for a human creature to lie off and rest, as it is for an animal. What would you think of a man who kept his horse harnessed in the stable and a tight rein on with the bit in his mouth, instead of letting him eat in comfort and lie down and roll and kick up his heels if he liked?

"I don't want to offend you, but you may depend upon it that other men think and feel as I do, only they don't dare to say it.

"If you don't believe it, call on them to speak out, and promise not to let on to their women folks who they are, and I bet a cookie your eyes will be opened to a thing or two. A SELF-MADE MAN."

* *

No Comment on Protest.

A man after reading my talk upon "The Breakfast Grouch," informed me that "Mary Jane" was a myth, and that he "recognized my style throughout that young person's letter."

Lest the like accusation may be brought against me in the case of the above letter I hasten to reiterate the assurance already made by me, and more than once, that there is no need of "faking" communications to this corner. It is not practicable to insert one-tenth of those in hand. "Mary Jane" is a veritable personage, and "A Self Made Man" is a solid entity who will read his own letter in print with no alteration beyond such editing as popular prejudice demands, in the minor matters of spelling and punctuation. Furthermore, I do not comment upon a single section of his protest, except to second his suggestion that other like minded masculine members will "free their minds," more briefly perhaps, but as frankly. I dread nothing more than monotony in the Corner, and earnestly crave lively discussion, even though I may be sometimes worsted in the skirmish.

Stewed Navy Beans.

"I would ask those who give a list of purchases for a week, why dried navy beans are not included? They are cheap and wholesome.

"Let me tell of a palatable, nutritious dish made of them which served abundantly two grown people and a boy of 5.

"STEWED NAVY BEANS.—Two double handfuls of dried beans cooked slowly, until they are tender, but not broken. Cook in plenty of water, adding a few slices of bacon, ham bone, or meat of any kind.

"Then add two small onions, one good sized potato, cut in dice, and cook until these are done. Season with salt and pepper if you like.

"One may add several tablespoonfuls of strained stewed tomatoes and serve as bean soup.

"My John thinks it fine.

"Thank you for the article upon the training of children. My boy has been trained to obey since he was able to understand 'No' and 'Yes.' MRS. C. W. T."

A sensible mother, who is farsighted enough to consult her boy's real good and to secure it at the expense of her own present ease and comfort.

It is marvelous to an impartial observer of divers methods of domestic management to see how much misrule is the result of indolence and carelessness on the part of the mother. The amiable woman will tell you that she "cannot bear to see the darlings unhappy." The busy woman, that she "has not time to do battle with an unruly child." The woman of advanced ideas contends for the "child's right to develop along the lines of his own individuality." The lazy woman is morally certain that "he will come out right in the long rule. Her children always do."

In ninety-nine cases out of a thousand of these, the truth lying back of argument and excuse is that the parent shrinks from the trouble of training aright the immortal committed to her care.

To Take Sheen Off Serge.

"Please tell me how to take the sheen off a blue serge skirt. MRS. P. O'B."

Sponge with hot vinegar, not rubbing, but dabbing the sponge up and down. If you fear to disturb the color, get at the back of the stuff and hold it over a kettle of water at a furious boil. The steam, rising through the serge, will dissipate the "shine."

Recipe for Shrimp Salad.

"Please publish a recipe for a nice shrimp salad, or for any other kind of new and tempting salad. Something I can serve in individual dishes at a church supper. "BEATRICE."

I offer two recipes for shrimp salad. You may take your choice.

PLAIN SHRIMP SALAD.—If you use fresh shrimps, they must be shelled. If the canned, set on the ice for some hours before using them, emptying the can into a bowl and throwing away the liquor in which they were canned.

Line a bowl with crisp lettuce leaves; lay the shrimps upon these and your mayonnaise dressing over them.

SHRIMP AND TOMATO SALAD.—Remove the skin from fine, large ripe tomatoes carefully with a sharp knife. Do not scald them. Dig out the centers, taking care not to tear the walls of the tomatoes. Fill these cavities with cold boiled or canned shrimps with their backs up. Set each tomato upon a leaf of crisp, ice cold lettuce and pour chilled mayonnaise over all.

This is a delicious and pretty salad.

Sponge Cake Recipe.

"Allow me to present to the Helping Hand what has proved a great success with me and a recipe much desired by others.

"SPONGE CAKE.—There are numberless recipes for this. The secret of success in making it lies in the method of putting the ingredients together and in regulating the heat of the oven.

"Three eggs, one and a half cups of granulated sugar, one and a half cups of flour, one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one and a half teaspoonfuls of vanilla or other flavoring; a pinch of salt, three-quarters of a cup of boiling water.

"Beat eggs light, add sugar, and beat again; sift flour and baking powder together twice, and add, cutting it into the rest of the ingredients with a knife. Do not stir. Bake in a loaf or pan with funnel in the center. This makes an 'angel cake loaf.'

"Clean the grate, put on coal, open drafts, put the cake in the oven, bake as the fire comes up. This is better than having the oven hot at first.

"ONE INTERESTED IN THE CORNER."

A novel recipe to me, yet one which reads well and commends itself to the practical housewife.

We welcome our "interested"—and interesting—member to our ranks.

From One of Large Nmber.

"In your comments upon 'Washing Hint' given in the Helping Hand by 'Mrs. A. R. K.' you say: 'Perhaps not one in five hundred of our readers ever stood at the washtub.'

"I feel sure that you are mistaken and that, had you said, 'Perhaps not ten out of five hundred of our readers need not stand, etc.,' you would have been more nearly correct in your estimate. I have been married twenty years. Having been a teacher before my marriage, I knew little of housework. I have 'stood at the tub' once a week during that score of years except during illnesses. And the same may be said of hundreds of 'readers.'

"Often your advice to those who wish to entertain prettily and inexpensively closes with the remark, 'This may be served nicely with the help of one maid.'

"Now I, and numerous others of your constituents, have never kept even one maid. Yet we live comfortably and upon $50 per month, and some of us upon less. We are those who derive the greatest help from your corner, and who love you for it.

"So, when any economical hint comes in, don't forget 'poor' members of the big family who live in peace and comfort, who love books, music, and beauty, and who try to be all that may be expected of them. "N. T. K."

Other readers will not take amiss the frank confession that women of the class represented by this noble letter (I can call it nothing else!) are foremost in my mind when I sit down to write out my message to the beloved 'big family.' I thank her heartily for writing to me and giving me the opportunity to say this. Women like her, who have souls above the reach of circumstance; who love "the things" and never rebel because finery and fripperies are out of their reach; who make of life what the Father meant it should be to each of us—a beautiful story of opportunity, of endeavor, and achievement; seeing beauty in everything and grains of gold where meaner souls see sand—these are the fellow women who make my mission to the American housemother worth carrying forward.

AN IRIS CENTERPIECE

DESIGNED BY E. J. BUCKMAN

THE Japanese love the iris in its decorative beauty, and here it is for my western sisters in a design for an oval traycloth or centerpiece.

The flowers are large, but you will notice that the work is of our "quickly finished" character, and the effect is quite like that in the sketched design.

This centerpiece should be done on medium-weight linen and worked in either white or colored threads. Cotton or silk can be used. In this day of advanced commercial art, silk is brought to a degree of practical perfection that is most pleasing.

If you use all white for your effect, outline the petals while there is a single line. Use long-and-short stitches on the edges, as shown. Work the center in solid stitches, filling in with French knots, and use seed stitches or tiny backstitches for the two petals that are dotted.

Outline the stems with outline stitch or fine stemstitch. Work the slender leaves solid, after padding with darning cotton.

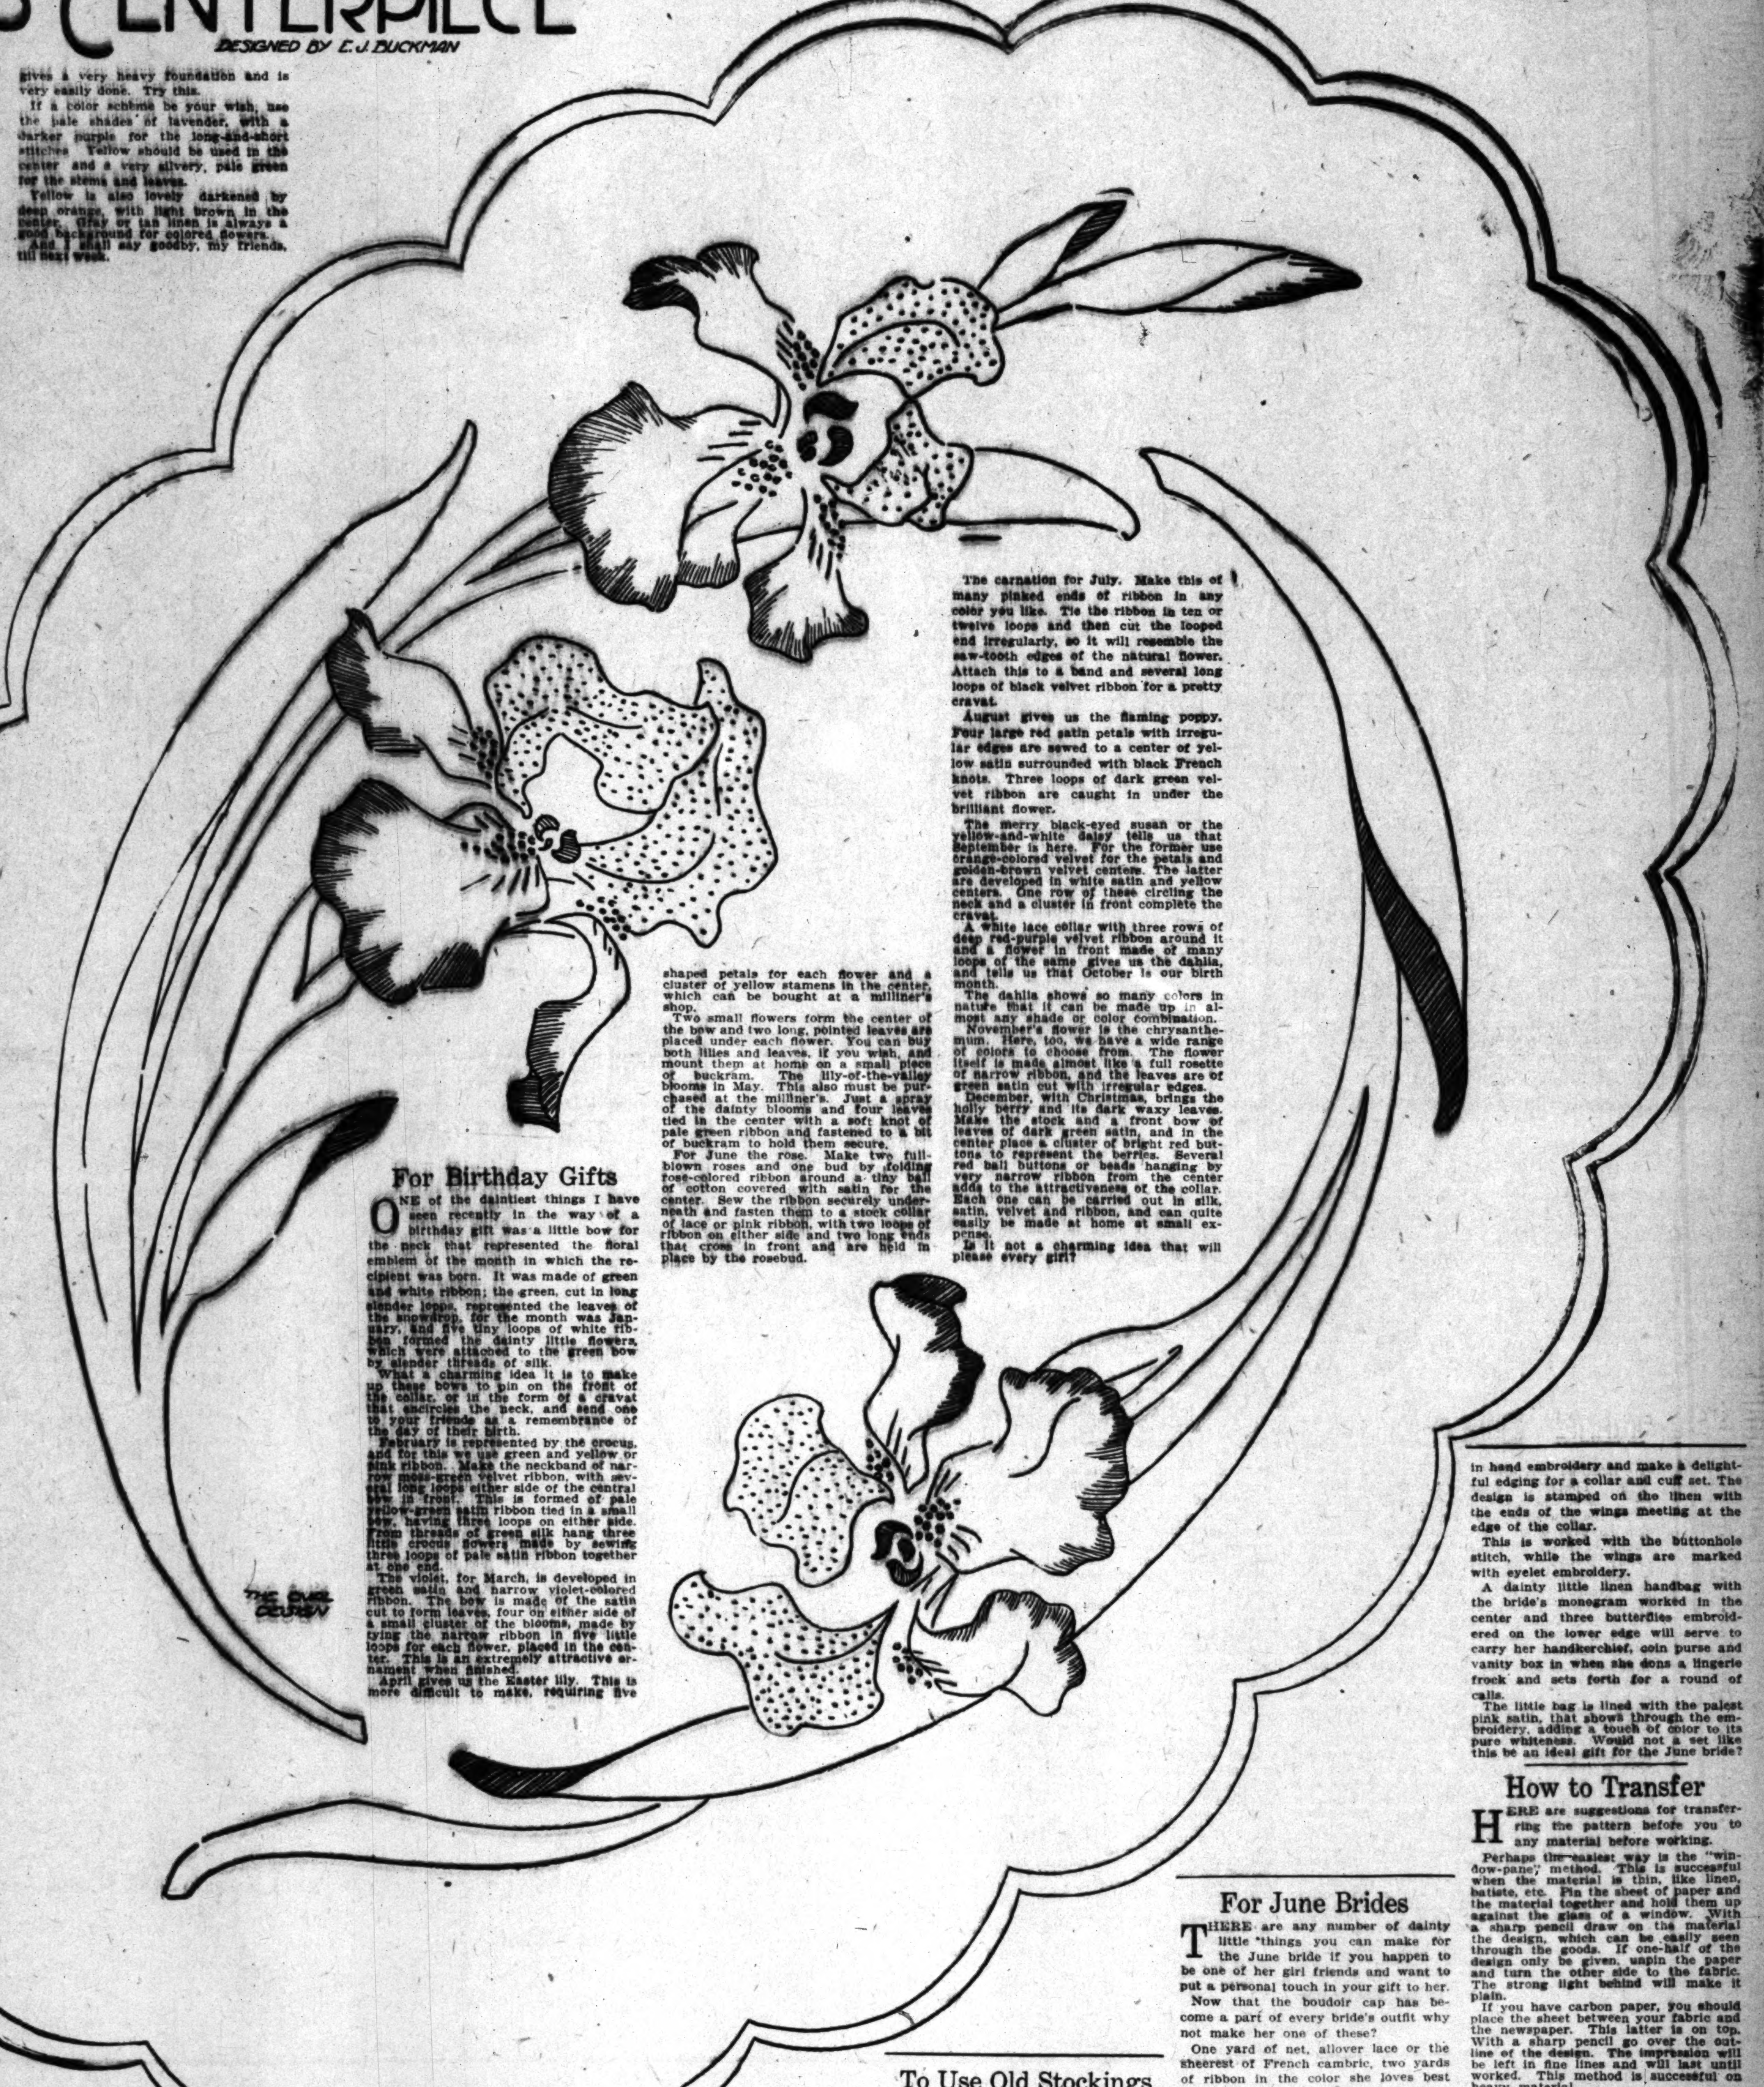
In padding the scallops, work in buttonhole stitches, and work again in the same stitch to strengthen and prevent any fraying of the edges.

Another successful way to pad is to use soutache cotton braid, holding it along the scallops as you buttonhole. It gives a very heavy foundation and is very easily done. Try this.

If a color scheme be your wish, use the pale shades of lavender, with a darker purple for the long-and-short stitches. Yellow should be used in the center and a very silvery, pale green for the stems and leaves.

Yellow is also lovely darkened by deep orange, with light brown in the center. Gray or tan linen is always a good background for colored flowers.

And I shall say goodby, my friends, till next week.



For Birthday Gifts

ONE of the daintiest things I have seen recently in the way of a birthday gift was a little bow for the neck that represented the floral emblem of the month in which the recipient was born. It was made of green and white ribbon; the green, cut in long slender loops, represented the leaves of the snowdrop, for the month was January, and five tiny loops of white ribbon formed the dainty little flowers, which were attached to the green bow by slender threads of silk.

What a charming idea it is to make up these bows to pin on the front of the collar, or in the form of a cravat that encircles the neck, and send one to your friends as a remembrance of the day of their birth.

February is represented by the crocus, and for this we use green and yellow or pink ribbon. Make the neckband of narrow moss-green velvet ribbon, with several long loops either side of the central bow in front. This is formed of pale yellow-green satin ribbon tied in a small bow, having three loops on either side. From threads of green silk hang three little crocus flowers made by sewing three loops of pale satin ribbon together at one end.

The violet, for March, is developed in green satin and narrow violet-colored ribbon. The bow is made of the satin cut to form leaves, four on either side of a small cluster of the blooms, made by tying the narrow ribbon in five little loops for each flower, placed in the center. This is an extremely attractive ornament when finished.

April gives us the Easter lily. This is more difficult to make, requiring five shaped petals for each flower and a cluster of yellow stamens in the center, which can be bought at a milliner's shop.

Two small flowers form the center of the bow and two long, pointed leaves are placed under each flower. You can buy both lilies and leaves, if you wish, and mount them at home on a small piece of buckram. The lily-of-the-valley blooms in May. This also must be purchased at the milliner's. Just a spray of the dainty blooms and four leaves tied in the center with a soft knot of pale green ribbon and fastened to a bit of buckram to hold them secure.

For June the rose. Make two full-blown roses and one bud by folding rose-colored ribbon around a tiny ball of cotton covered with satin for the center. Sew the ribbon securely underneath and fasten them to a stock collar of lace or pink ribbon, with two loops of ribbon on either side and two long ends that cross in front and are held in place by the rosebud.

The carnation for July. Make this of many pinked ends of ribbon in any color you like. Tie the ribbon in ten or twelve loops and then cut the looped end irregularly, so it will resemble the saw-tooth edges of the natural flower. Attach this to a band and several long loops of black velvet ribbon for a pretty cravat.

August gives us the flaming poppy. Four large red satin petals with irregular edges are sewed to a center of yellow satin surrounded with black French knots. Three loops of dark green velvet ribbon are caught in under the brilliant flower.

The merry black-eyed susan or the yellow-and-white daisy tells us that September is here. For the former use orange-colored velvet for the petals and golden-brown velvet centers. The latter are developed in white satin and yellow centers. One row of these circling the neck and a cluster in front complete the cravat.

A white lace collar with three rows of deep red-purple velvet ribbon around it and a flower in front made of many loops of the same gives us the dahlia, and tells us that October is our birth month.

The dahlia shows so many colors in nature that it can be made up in almost any shade or color combination.

November's flower is the chrysanthemum. Here, too, we have a wide range of colors to choose from. The flower itself is made almost like a full rosette of narrow ribbon, and the leaves are of green satin cut with irregular edges.

December, with Christmas, brings the holly berry and its dark waxy leaves. Make the stock and a front bow of leaves of dark green satin, and in the center place a cluster of bright red buttons to represent the berries. Several red ball buttons or beads hanging by very narrow ribbon from the center adds to the attractiveness of the collar. Each one can be carried out in silk, satin, velvet and ribbon, and can quite easily be made at home at small expense.

Is it not a charming idea that will please every girl?

Odds and Ends

WITH a little time to spare the girl who loves to sew can fashion many different dainty things with odds and ends of lace and ribbon, velvet, silk and chiffon.

The most fascinating little bows, that can be worn with stiff linen collars, are made by sewing a narrow lace edge on two strips of fine white lawn or linen eight inches long and two inches wide. Gather them; or, better still, lay them in very narrow pleats and join together with a fold of the material or a soft knot of bright-colored ribbon.

Small pieces of allover lace may be cut to resemble the wings of a butterfly. Bind them all around with either very narrow ribbon or little French folds of satin. Work several dots of colored floss on each "wing" and join them with a twisted fold of silk to represent the body of the butterfly.

From several different shades of ribbon you can make small rosebuds by folding the ribbon around upon itself and catching it underneath with needle and thread. Sew these little flowers to three lengths of inch-wide ribbon, the longest being not more than eight inches. Graduate the lengths of ribbon and sew them to a small bow, which is to be pinned at the neck of your gown.

An enterprising young woman made quite a deal of pin money by making her friends each a pretty little coin purse out of bits of lace and satin. Some were round and others square, with the lower end curved, and all were lined with white or some light-colored satin.

For the round ones she cut the lace in two circles 2½ inches in diameter. They were lined with the silk and sewed together on the wrong side, turned right side out and fastened at the opening to curved clasps of plated silver.

This same young girl showed me a box full of flowers and buds she had made of small bits of chiffon. They were beautiful, and in many sizes; she had made use of the tiniest pieces of chiffon, but each bud and blossom was attached to a fine wire on which were twisted a few green leaves.

This multicolored mass of bloom was used as trimming for a big white lace hat and a dainty lingerie gown.

A length of heavy white lace that had been left from the trimming of an evening gown was pressed into service to encircle the crown of a black hat, while several pieces of black satin, leftovers from a blouse, made an upstanding bow for the side. The only expenditure necessary for this stylish hat was the price of the hat itself.

From odd pieces of embroidered batiste a dainty set of cuffs and a sailor collar were made. Both were bound with pale blue batiste, which was edged with lace. The collar was fastened in front with a pale blue bow. The effect was extremely dainty.

Now, hunt up the odds and ends picked up in the sewing room and see what a number of really lovely accessories you can make to your summer toilette.

To Use Old Stockings

DON'T throw away your old black stockings when the feet are worn out. Cut the feet off and rip the stockings open at the seams. Then sew them together, keeping the narrow parts together, and of them make the top of your petticoats.

They make excellent stockinette tops for silk-ruffled underskirts that would cost considerable if bought.

After you have sewed the stocking legs together, fit them about the hips, sew on a waistband and trim off even around the bottom.

Now make a corded silk ruffle the necessary length and attach it to the stocking top by a French seam. There you have it—a perfectly fitting petticoat at about half the cost of the same ready made.

A hint that the economical woman will be sure to make use of.

For June Brides

THERE are any number of dainty little things you can make for the June bride if you happen to be one of her girl friends and want to put a personal touch in your gift to her.

Now that the boudoir cap has become a part of every bride's outfit why not make her one of these?

One yard of net, allover lace or the sheerest of French cambric, two yards of ribbon in the color she loves best and one yard of lace edge are the necessary materials.

Cut from the material used for this dainty cap a circle fourteen inches in diameter, turn in the edge and run a drawthread all the way around. Pull this up so that it will fit your head, then make a ruffle of the lace edge and sew it to the gathered edge of the cap. Around the joining point put a band of ribbon tied in a small bow on one side and directly opposite tie a larger bow of the remaining ribbon. Sew this on securely and the cap is ready for use. Small flowers made of ribbon are frequently used to trim these little caps, while other more elaborate ones are trimmed with lace motifs set into the plain material.

An attractive one of this description has a row of small lace butterflies arranged on the crown in a circle, and another row edges a narrow ruffle around the crown band. Two frills of lace are sewed in under this ruffle and a rose of satin ribbon is caught in the folds of the lace on one side.

The butterfly design may be developed in hand embroidery and make a delightful edging for a collar and cuff set. The design is stamped on the linen with the ends of the wings meeting at the edge of the collar.

This is worked with the buttonhole stitch, while the wings are marked with eyelet embroidery.

A dainty little linen handbag with the bride's monogram worked in the center and three butterflies embroidered on the lower edge will serve to carry her handkerchief, coin purse and vanity box in when she dons a lingerie frock and sets forth for a round of calls.

The little bag is lined with the palest pink satin, that shows through the embroidery, adding a touch of color to its pure whiteness. Would not a set like this be an ideal gift for the June bride?

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to any material before working.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric. The strong light behind will make it plain.

If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabric and the newspaper. This latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked. This method is successful on heavy material.

The last way is also easy. On wax paper or ordinary tissue paper trace the pattern before you. When the design is completed, turn over the paper and outline the pattern with a heavy lead pencil. Then place the design down on the fabric and redraw the outline, pressing hard with the pencil. The pattern will be transferred without difficulty.

A Dainty Collar

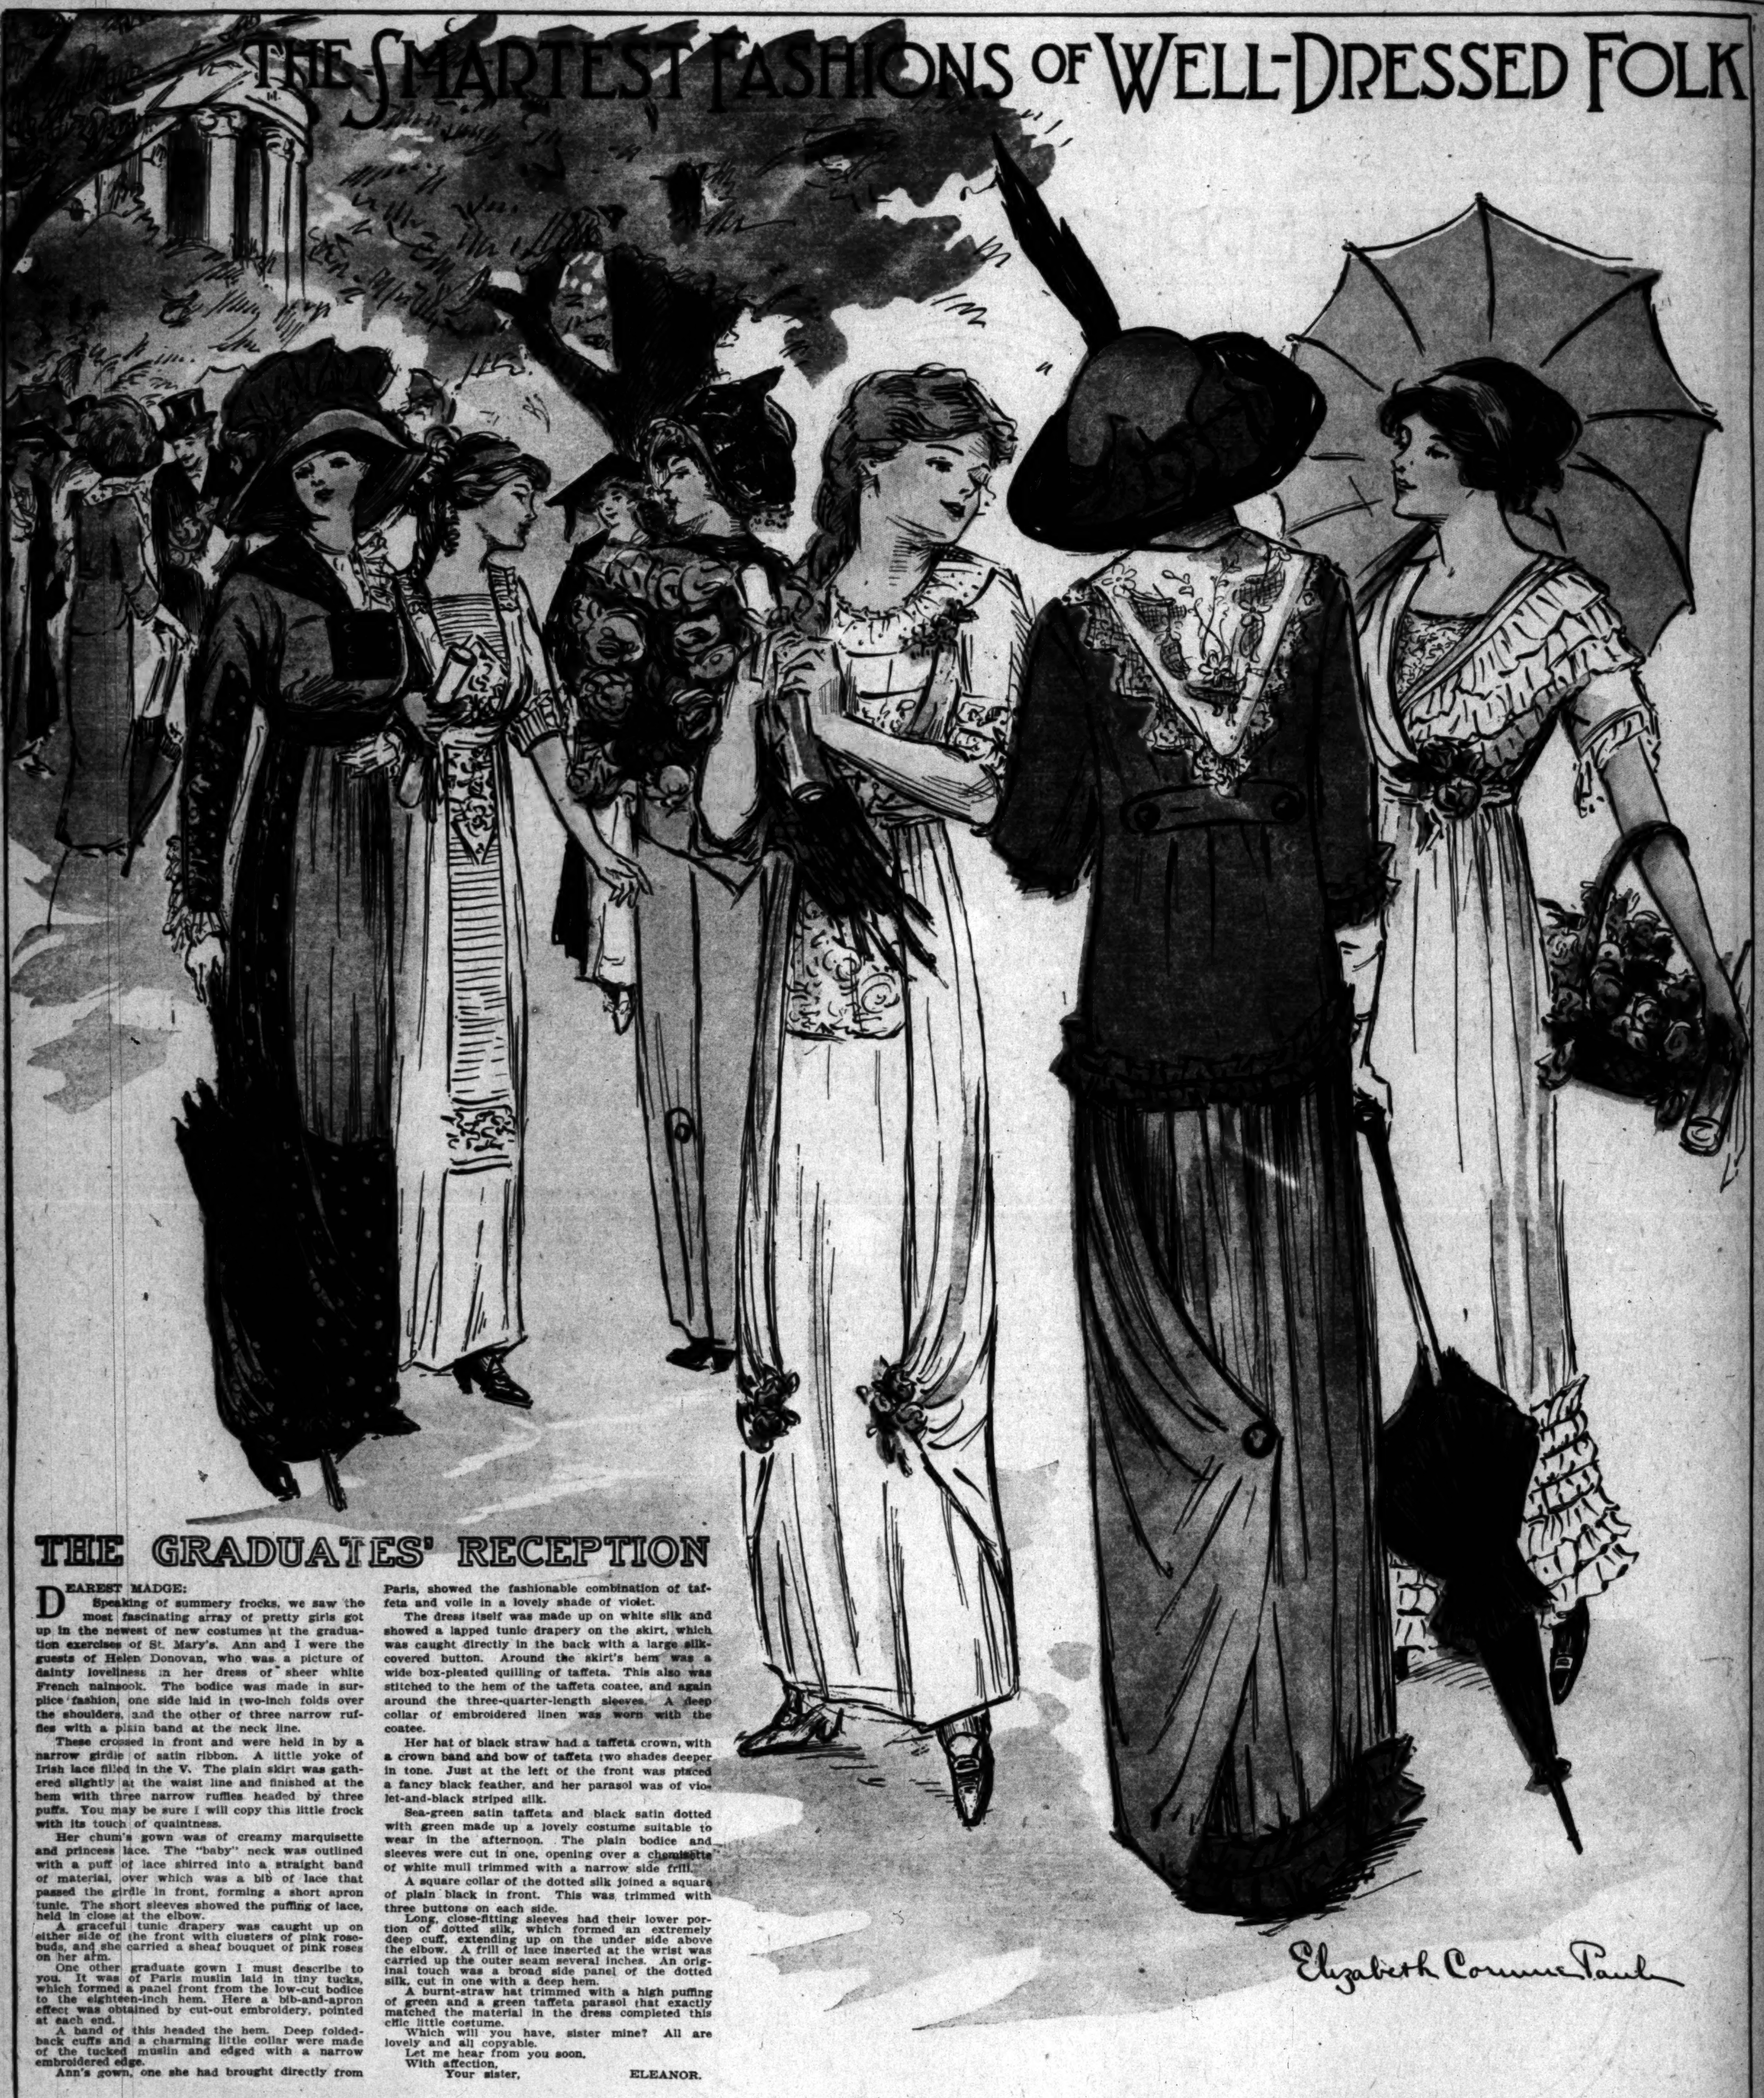
TO WEAR with colored linen dresses, [illegible]ailor collar of sheerest mull is [illegible]ffective.

It requires a half yard of material. After cutting the collar out, finish the edge with an inch-wide frill of finely pleated net.

Cuffs to match may be made with rounded or square corners and edged with the pleated net.

If a touch of color is desired, a row of featherstitching where the net is joined to the collar supplies it.

THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK



THE GRADUATES' RECEPTION

DEAREST MADGE:

Speaking of summery frocks, we saw the most fascinating array of pretty girls got up in the newest of new costumes at the graduation exercises of St. Mary's. Ann and I were the guests of Helen Donovan, who was a picture of dainty loveliness in her dress of sheer white French nainsook. The bodice was made in surplice fashion, one side laid in two-inch folds over the shoulders, and the other of three narrow ruffles with a plain band at the neck line.

These crossed in front and were held in by a narrow girdle of satin ribbon. A little yoke of Irish lace filled in the V. The plain skirt was gathered slightly at the waist line and finished at the hem with three narrow ruffles headed by three puffs. You may be sure I will copy this little frock with its touch of quaintness.

Her chum's gown was of creamy marquisette and princess lace. The "baby" neck was outlined with a puff of lace shirred into a straight band of material, over which was a bib of lace that passed the girdle in front, forming a short apron tunic. The short sleeves showed the puffing of lace, held in close at the elbow.

A graceful tunic drapery was caught up on either side of the front with clusters of pink rosebuds, and she carried a sheaf bouquet of pink roses on her arm.

One other graduate gown I must describe to you. It was of Paris muslin laid in tiny tucks, which formed a panel front from the low-cut bodice to the eighteen-inch hem. Here a bib-and-apron effect was obtained by cut-out embroidery, pointed at each end.

A band of this headed the hem. Deep folded-back cuffs and a charming little collar were made of the tucked muslin and edged with a narrow embroidered edge.

Ann's gown, one she had brought directly from Paris, showed the fashionable combination of taffeta and voile in a lovely shade of violet.

The dress itself was made up on white silk and showed a lapped tunic drapery on the skirt, which was caught directly in the back with a large silk-covered button. Around the skirt's hem was a wide box-pleated quilling of taffeta. This also was stitched to the hem of the taffeta coatee, and again around the three-quarter-length sleeves. A deep collar of embroidered linen was worn with the coatee.

Her hat of black straw had a taffeta crown, with a crown band and bow of taffeta two shades deeper in tone. Just at the left of the front was placed a fancy black feather, and her parasol was of violet-and-black striped silk.

Sea-green satin taffeta and black satin dotted with green made up a lovely costume suitable to wear in the afternoon. The plain bodice and sleeves were cut in one, opening over a chemisette of white mull trimmed with a narrow side frill.

A square collar of the dotted silk joined a square of plain black in front. This was trimmed with three buttons on each side.

Long, close-fitting sleeves had their lower portion of dotted silk, which formed an extremely deep cuff, extending up on the under side above the elbow. A frill of lace inserted at the wrist was carried up the outer seam several inches. An original touch was a broad side panel of the dotted silk, cut in one with a deep hem.

A burnt-straw hat trimmed with a high puffing of green and a green taffeta parasol that exactly matched the material in the dress completed this chic little costume.

Which will you have, sister mine? All are lovely and all copyable.

Let me hear from you soon.

With affection,

Your sister, ELEANOR.

COLUMBUS (O.) June 1.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In both the Taft and Roosevelt camps today the leaders have been busy inspecting arms, distributing ammunition, overhauling equipment and placing their artillery in positions where fire will be opened tomorrow in the great battle for supremacy in the Republican party of Ohio.

Tonight came word from each of the generals in command that all is in readiness and that each has enough bullets to send the other's forces to early cover.

This work was completed with the naming of aide de camps on both sides. Both portions of the army in Ohio have men whom they hope to send to the Chicago convention as delegates-at-large.

Should Roosevelt's cohorts win, these men will be named: Walter F. Brown, James R. Garfield, I. W. Foster, Dan R. Hanna, R. O. Nevin and Randolph W. Walton.
